COMMUNICATIONS.

BOSTON, MASS., April 3, 1907.

TO THE EDITOR:

I fully agree that a discussion of matters of interest to collectors, "a discussion bearing instructive results" is of the utmost value. It is likewise undeniably true that a discussion in which statements appear that are flatly contradicted by facts are injurious both to dealers and to collectors.

In your editorial column of March 30th, 1907, on the omission of the die varieties of the early United States Envelopes in the Scott Catalogue there are two diametrically opposed statements: Permit me to quote them.

"An intensely practical reason was that the inclusion of these varieties, some of which took a geometrical instrument to determine, had been a large influence in killing the interest in envelopes the past two years, and I think" (who is the "I' en passant?) "that every dealer will agree with me that envelopes have picked up considerably since the new catalogue came out with these minor varieties omitted."

At the conclusion of the editorial comments we read:

"The attention given United States Envelopes on this occasion is a tribute to the fascinations carried by these varieties which constitute one of the most engaging and entrancing philatelic studies."

As white cannot be black, and as the first statement is flatly contradicted by the second one, the intelligent reader of the WEEKLY will doubtless ask "who is wrong?"

Certainly a philatelic branch so fascinating that it "constitutes one of the most engaging and entrancing philatelic studies" could have had but one result. Decidedly it could not have "a large influence in killing the interest in envelopes the past two years."

So far the editorial comments. Now what is the honest truth?

It will be conceded that the firm whom the writer represents is doing the largest business in United States envelopes in this country. What has been the result of disseminating a clear knowledge of the Nesbitt die varieties? Answer—This firm, during the past two years, has been requested by the four largest collectors of United States envelopes to furnish their collections with every Nesbitt die variety; the mere demand for such big orders has increased the business in United States envelopes enormously.—Note our constant advertisement requesting all persons having Nesbitt die varieties for sale to submit them to our firm, many at full catalogue! Not only have the foremost collectors of United States envelopes shown this renewed interest, but also foreign collectors. Again we have received numerous requests from small collectors, and we can unflinchingly state that during the past two years we have sold ten Nesbitt die varieties to one regularly catalogued United States envelope die. Instead of, as an unknown writer reports, "the result was that collectors were omitting envelopes entirely and losing interest in a very fascinating branch of collecting", the actual result has been a widespread interest, a demand which in many cases even our firm cannot satisfy!

I trust you will not hesitate to give my statements the same wide publication that you have given to an unknown correspondent.

J. M. BARTELS.

TO THE EDITOR:

It is always amusing to note that people who have but a speaking acquaintance with a subject are most prone to deliver very decided opinions. For an application of this general truth I refer to an editorial in your esteemed journal of March 30, 1907.

There is a wholesale condemnation of the unlucky Nesbitt die varieties; it is said that the mere fact of giving collectors a small taste of them in the 1906 Scott Catalogue has produced a kind of philatelic-black-death-interest—the number of corpses are however not stated, presumably millions!! I have no intention to go into this gruesome matter, but having studied the Nesbitt die varieties probably a little more closely than the calamity crying writer, I may be permitted to correct a few of his statements. I quote:

"It was a very difficult undertaking for even an experienced philatelist to straighten them (the minor varieties) all out and an impossibility for a beginner."

This statement simply proves that the writer is not acquainted with the subject about which he talks so grandiloquently. I ask, what is his warrant for this assertion? That some varieties are not seen at a glance I admit, but this refers with equal and even greater force to various printings of United States adhesive stamps. I am, however, willing to go on record that I have personally seen a boy of fifteen years picking out the varieties of Die E, 1856, after a study of a quarter of an hour. If the writer refers to the later issues, then I should like to see the "experienced philatelist" who would have any trouble in picking out these die varieties. Indeed, thanks to the deep interest of a student, such as Mr. Toppan, and the good work of the Scott Company, every collector, young or old, experienced or inexperienced, has now the means of easily finding out and classifying the Nesbitt die varieties and this without "a geometrical instrument"—a meaningless phrase!

Personally I don't care whether the Nesbitt die varieties appear or disappear in the Scott Catalogue, for they are now well known and firmly established, but I do not believe it is fair or is justified by the facts in the case for anyone to assume the lofty language of imposing infallible authority and to proclaim that the insertion of some of these most interesting dies in the 1906 Scott Catalogue has had "a large influence in killing the interest in envelopes the past two years."

Does not the writer admit that a gentleman of Mr. Toppan's broad philatelic knowledge knew what he was doing when he recommended the insertion of these dies in the 1906 Scott Catalogue?

My dear unknown friend: if you want to get acquainted with the Nesbitt die varieties and to know how easy it is find them, and how much good the dissemination of this knowledge has done the dealers, I will gladly spend an hour with you to lead you gently to a better understanding and a higher appreciation of United States philately.

VICTOR M. BERTHOLD.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., Mar. 19, 1907.

TO THE EDITOR:—

In the May 16th issue of the WEEKLY we note a criticism of Mr. Nast in regard to our listing certain beer and hydrometer stamps in the Philatelic Side Lines recently published by our local club. Will you kindly allow us a little space to correct a misstatement and to give a few references?

In regard to the four hydrometer stamps which we have listed with an asterisk with a note that "these have not been seen but probably exist" we wish to say that external evidence and a comparison of a number of hydrometer stamps pointed strongly towards their existing so we listed them with the usual doubt. This is reply to Mr. Nast's criticism.

Mr. Nast also objects to our listing the 33½c beer stamp of the first issue with the word "stamp." He states that "No cataloguer ever listed it before." This is not correct.

Away back in 1877 in the Sept. number of the Curiosity Cabinet, also the Curiosity Hunter, he will find that W. P. Brown lists the stamp in question. More recently in the May 1897 number of the Metropolitan Philatelist, you will find a list compiled from the collection of J. N. T. Levick in which this stamp is mentioned.

If Mr. Nast will examine the report of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, dated Sept. 4, 1868, he will find listed therein the dies, rolls and plates of the first and second issue beer stamps. The dies are numbered as follows:

	1st Issue Stamp.	2nd Issue Panel
50c	404a	404aa
25c	404b	404bb
12½c	404c	404cc
16⅔c	404d	404dd
$2.00	404e	404ee
$1.00	404f	404ff
33⅓c	404g	404gg

Rolls and plates bear the same numbers except in six cases where in the rolls two stamps are on a roll and in those cases the roll has both numbers. There is one exception to this in which a roll containing the 16⅔c and 12½c, and the 12½c was altered to 33⅓c. It might be well to state here that all values were made in sheets of 20 stamps to the sheet and the 12½c, 16⅔c, 25c and 50c were also made in sheets of 35 stamps.

We do not claim perfection for our little book and we are always glad to receive any proof leading to the correction and additions. Since the book was printed we have seen several stamps not listed which we might mention.

Beer.—No. 42a on silk paper, but in yellow instead of orange. Nos. 38b and 44b on gray paper.

Lock Seals.—No. 26, series H No. 28, series Y and Z.

Publication Committee,
SPRINGFIELD STAMP CLUB.

NEW YORK, April 11, 1907.

To the Editor of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY:

I notice that the National Stamp Committee requires some additional funds in order to complete the work planned for the present year. I do not remember having seen any subscription from the A. P. A. and yet this is the work in which our association should be thoroughly interested.

On the other hand the publication of the year book will cost in the neighborhood of $300.00, and what pray have we in return for the expenditure of this amount of money? It may be gratifying to some of the attendants at the last convention to read the words of logic (?) that fell from the lips of attending delegates, but this does not commend itself to the great mass of the membership unable to attend the convention. Is it not about time that the association cut loose from the unnecessary expense of a shorthand report of the proceedings? Whole pages could have been cut out from the book before me and the association been financially better off, if not benefited in any other direction. May I suggest for consideration by the Board of Directors that a good longhand report of the Denver proceedings accompanied with a list of the members will give us a year book fully as valuable as the one recently issued, while the $250.00 saved could be put into recruiting work that would mean much for promoting philatelic activity.

REFORMER.

(Our correspondent would have been more correct in making the expense $400, including stenographer's fee and postage for mailing reports.—ED.)

Editor MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS:

I would not take issue with your esteemed correspondent, but trust you will at least permit one or two questions in justice to both sides re the U. S. envelope minor variety matter in your issue of Mar. 30.

He says "the small differences, (of the 1853-65 dies) cannot be for an instant compared with the 1874 issue," etc. Now is not that just a little too emphatic on a point not yet proven?

Let us give both issues a "square deal." Take the rather insignificant No. 1328c, Die 4, of 1860, now dropped from 1907 catalogue. Is it not to be compared with Die C2 of 1874? Why not, unless indeed the latter is the one unworthy of the comparison?

The first is a unique die, quite different from its contemporaries; smaller in size, the head sets lower in the oval and the bust touches the frame both back and front, while the Die C2 of 1874 is conceded by good authority to be only a worn or retouched die which makes a broader oval line, thus causing the tail of the 2 to touch it. This is only one sample, "there are others."

Again, your correspondent says, the sale of "envelopes has picked up considerably since the new catalog came out with these minor varieties omitted."

This seems a big work to accomplish by this passive agency in four short months. But assertion is not proof on either side, and I would suggest that the revival may be due to some other cause. However, I am glad to see the subject discussed. Agitation prevents stagnation, and I will willingly join forces with your correspondent in drawing the line wherever it needs a "geometrical instrument" to determine the differences but that which the natural eye can plainly see, let us have it chronicled. No true philatelist will be unduly discouraged by the "Ossa on Pelion" of unattained things, else we all would long since have fainted by the way.

That the specialist is evolved from the beginner is self-evident, but the latter having no "handbook," or advanced guide, his observant eye will not be trained to notice differences unless his general catalogue points them out and so helps him grow into full stature. As I cannot take my plea to your correspondent directly, I will greatly appreciate your tolerance in giving it space.

E. P. BUVINGER.

ABOUT THE CONTINENTAL MIXTURE

This is what the WEEKLY readers say about the mixture:

"I was well pleased with them."
E. P. Hoefle, Velasco, Texas

"The mixture was perfectly satisfactory, there were over 250 varieties of just the kind of stamps for a new collector and I have sold all the other stamps."
Miss Emily Coriell, Plainfield, N. J.

"Was well pleased with the Continental Mixture."
Elmer Anderson, Rock Island, Ill.

"The Continental Mixture I received from you were very fine. I do not believe there is anything like them."
J. T. Webb, Jr., Atlanta, Ga.

"I was much pleased with the Continentals. It was the first lot of the kind I ever received that I considered worth more than I paid."
C. W. Whitney, Newtonville, Mass.

"Your Continental Mixture was the best I have ever seen. I found an English 6p I. R. and sold it for enough to pay for the lot."
P. W. Poulit, Hartford, Conn.

Another tells of finding a 4¼a Zanzibar, while another reports a pair of German East Africa on a scrap of envelope.

These are chance finds. We do not advertise the mixture as containing stamps of this class: it is not reasonable at 25c per 1000! But they are possibilities, because the stamps have not been picked over and are just as they were gathered for the charitable institutions from whom we purchased them, and the people who gathered them did not discriminate or know a scarce official or colonial stamp from an ordinary kind.

We annex a list of some of the stamps which have been reported to us by WEEKLY readers as found in these mixtures:

Congo Free States.
Dutch Indie, provisionals.
Transvaal, E R. I.
Old Brunswick.
U. S. 15c 1861, Lincoln.
U. S. 5c 1875, Jackson.
U. S. 7c 1872, Stanton.
Swiss Cantonal locals (modern issue).
German Local Posts.
Swiss (Rayon I) 5r (catalogued $3.00).

For the best report of finds in mixtures made by readers of the WEEKLY we will give premiums.

Over a million stamps were sold in one week, from the smaller advertisement in these columns.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—It may not be generally known that the president of the Republic of Panama is an interested philatelist. The Editor of the Swedish Philatelic Journal, Hilmer Djurling, has been requested by His Excellency to purchase and arrange material for complete collections of Sweden and Norway. The writer cannot help but wonder if this philatelic interest on the part of His Excellency has had anything to do with the late philatelic flood of Panama varieties. If that is the case, the issues of Sweden and Norway will furnish him with a well earned rest.

—The Philatelic Society of Sweden can look back on 1906 as a signally active year. During that year the Society held a four days convention, eighteen ordinary meetings, and enrolled 124 new members. Three philatelic works were published and the Society took part in the philatelic exhibitions at London and Milan. The Society's income from different sources was kr. 10,777.77, and its expenses kr. 7,546.13. At the close of the year the assets of the society were kr. 5,332.11.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—The Indian Stamp Co. sends us a variety of the current 2c envelope in which the stamp is misplaced, being printed diagonally, inclined towards the centre of the envelope, and slightly below the normal position. The envelope was perfect in other particulars, having been mailed at Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3, 1904.

BAVARIA.—Mr. Schachne has the following: The 3 on 2pf—date 02—in a new variety caused by the surcharge "Drucksache" being placed more to the left covering the arms; also the 3 on 2pf double-dated 02, with the long heavy address line and arms.

To commemorate the Ludwig centennial there are several cards all of very creditable design and workmanship, showing six former Kings. One design shows the six on the upper front of a white glazed card each in the color of the stamp. The others have the entire back side in colors showing one bust and residence on each. Each of these latter has the 5pf green impressed stamp. One more is the Ludwig II card with the design covering only three quarters of the back side. This card has the 2pf gray barred with three heavy lines and the 3pf brown impressed at the left "Drucksache" over "Postkarte." Also one more illustrated card on which is found "Gruss von der Fuerther-Kirchweih" and has both the 2pf gray and 3pf brown stamps. In the upper left corner in a plain line frame is "Officialle Postkarte." A variety of this has the 2pf stamp cancelled with three bars, "Drucksache" over "Postkarte" and the "Officialle Postekarte" at upper left corner obliterated with a single rectangular block.

Post Cards.

3 on 2pf brown and gray, dated 02; variety.
3 on 2pf double card, dated 02, with long heavy address line.

2 on 3pf gray and brown on white.
3 on 2pf brown and gray on white.

CUBA.—J. H. Lyons has shown us the current 10c stamp, re-engraved. The most prominent difference between this and the earlier printing is the addition of a little white ball at the end of the straight projections at either end of the curved tablet containing the word "Cuba." Like the 1c and 2c, re-engraved type, the color of the new 10c stamp is somewhat lighter and brighter than the Bureau print.

FRANCE.—Mr. Schachne has received the letter card with new stamp of solid ground color and no setting sun. Also the 15c of 1902 with the surcharge "Taxe Reduite à of 10."

Letter Cards.

10c red on pale gray, 636 and 635.
10c on 15c rose on pale gray, 340.

FRENCH COLONIES.—Mr. Schachne has received the new cards of Dahomey and Guinea. These differ from the last in stamp only. This is oblong with a circle in the middle containing bust, and on lower edge the name of the country in red on the cards and blue on the letter cards. Smaller circles at left and right containing "RF" and "5c" respectively.

Letter Card.

10c red on gray.

GERMANY.—In No. 835 Mr. Schachne reported the 2x2pf card with some very remarkable errors (?). He now has received the regular provisional with both cards 3 on 2pf. This is the card with dotted lines 10mm. apart.

Post Card.

3 on 2pf brown and blue on blue, T3.

ITALY.—Alfred Smith & Son's Circular of June '06 announced the Simplon Tunnel card. This card was received last November but has not been noticed in this column. It was the first to show the stamp of new design and the whole card, front and back, is most interesting and artistic. In No. 834 Mr. Schachne reported the 10c card of '06. He now has the same with the new stamp of same design as the Simplon card.

Post Card.

10c carmine on white, '06; new stamp.
5c green and olive brown on glazed white; Simplon Tunnel.

Leonard H. Newman sends us an oddity in the shape of what appears to be a charity stamp of some kind. It is lithographed, square in shape, 27mm. each way, the frame being in bright carmine, and the centre in black.

The central design represents a woman, seated, partially draped, holding a few wheat straws in one hand while in the other is a sheaf of the same. A field of standing wheat forms the background. Above at the left is "Casa—del—Pane," literally "Home of Bread," while on a ribbon at the bottom is "AVGVRI" and "Cent. 5."

Can any of our readers tell us what this is, and whether there has been a charity series issued in Italy which we have omitted to chronicle until now?

SALVADOR.—Hermann Focke sends us a curiosity in the shape of a copy of the current 13c stamp, which has been printed on both sides. As the back is out of register with the front, parts of two stamps appear on the back, while on the face the printing is evenly centered. The specimen submitted is postally cancelled, and evidently came through the mail in the regular course of business.

SERVIA.—Mr. Schachne reports the 5 para card with the headline in different type.

Post Card.

5 para pale green on white.

SIAM.—The 2 atts on 1½ card (Senf's No. 10) has lately appeared with a new and heavier type of the surcharge in both Siamese and Arabic. Also the 5 atts on 4 card has been received with the numeral "5" in changed type.

Post Cards.

2 on 1½ atts black and red on yellow buff, variety.
5 on 4 atts black and red on yellow buff, variety.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—J. N. Morse reports having received the Labuan double cards surcharged for use in the Straits Settlements, the "Labuan" in headline and in stamp being cancelled with a double bar and "Straits Settlements" added in red.

Post Cards.

1x1c purple and red on buff, T3.
3x3c green and red on buff, T3.

TRINIDAD.—Ewen reports that the ½d has been reissued on ordinary multiple paper.

TURKEY.—In No. 845 we referred to the overprint applied to Turkish stamps sold at a discount to prevent the purchase of stamps from various foreign offices. Edw. Koller informs us that he has a cover upon which is a horizontal pair of the current 20p in imperforate condition. We do not remember of this stamp having been chronicled before imperforate.

URUGUAY.—In a letter accompanying a block of four of the current 5c, noted in No. 839, Prof. M. Loewy informs us that as a new president is being inaugurated, there will probably be a new series of stamps to celebrate his administration.

—The postal administration of Belgium has just issued books of stamps such as are in use here.

—M. Mirabaud, the well known French philatelist, has just been made a director of the Bank of France. At the exposition held in 1900 the stamp treasures exhibited by him aroused the admiration of all who inspected the same.—Journal of Philatelists.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

Dwight Burroughs, Baltimore, Md., has the kindness to write: "Your correspondent, 'D. R. C.' in the WEEKLY of March 16th has come into the possession of a portion of a 'Baltimore Jubilee and Home-Coming Week' stamp. I enclose a copy for your information. The only difference between this and that possessed by 'D. R. C.' is that the reading matter has been cut away from his. Early last year, Baltimore laid plans to celebrate the commemoration of the restoration of that portion of the business section of the city that had been destroyed in the fire of Feb. 7-8, 1904, when $75,000,000 worth of property went up in flames. Committees of substantial business men took charge of the jubilee plans; a popular subscription was taken up and the council appropriated a large sum to defray the expenses. The Lord Baltimore 'stamp' was one of the many means adopted to advertise the celebration, having been stuck on the mail of all the business houses of the city as well as upon that of many private individuals. Of course, it had no postal value, but made a striking auxiliary to the regular stamp and doubtless awakened much interest where-ever it went. The jubilee filled an entire week and there were tens of thousands of visitors to enjoy the festivities. I have a number of these 'stamps' and if any of your readers are curious to know what they were like, I shall be glad to send them copies, if they will enclose with their requests, two cents to pay postage, etc. Dwight Burroughs, West Arlington, Baltimore, Md." William H. Hush, Baltimore, was ready to answer us, substantially as Mr. Burroughs has done; he forwarded a number of the stickers, which have only an advertising interest. Shortly after Baltimore's terrible visitation, the suggestion was made that the government issue some postal item, through whose sale the stricken city would benefit, but the idea, while creditable to the sponsors was not seriously considered by the necessarily practical Washington authorities, we believe.

W. B. L.:—We take the following information in answer to your questions from Major Evans' "Stamps and Stamp Collecting:" "Grille. A Pattern of small square dots, usually arranged in a square or rectangle, but in some instances covering the whole stamp, embossed upon some of the issues of the United States and of Peru. The object of it is stated to be, to break up the fibre of the paper to a certain extent, and thus allow the obliterating ink to penetrate into it, and render cleaning of the stamps impossible." "Surcharge. Some addition to the design or inscriptions, printed or written upon a stamp which was already complete and fit for use without any such addition. A surcharge, therefore, as a rule, alters either the value or the use of a stamp, and if it does not do this, it seems doubtful whether the addition is to be considered a surcharge, or a completion of the stamp." Watermark is a term applied "to any design or pattern in the substance of the paper; these designs or patterns consist of lines in which the paper is thinner or thicker, and therefore, more or less transparent, than in the other parts, and the watermark can therefore be usually seen by holding the paper up against the light." The imprint of the posthorn in blue on the reverse of some of the stamps of Sweden may be called a protective marking; it is not a watermark but merely an impression of printed kind on the paper. Your stamp cannot be returned, as you omitted the address from your letter.

A New Offer.

10,000 Mixed Foreign Stamps for $8.50

This lot may be described as follows: —

1000 different varieties mounted.
1000 mixed South & Central American.
1000 well assorted Mexican.
2000 of famous "Boss Mixture."
5000 of the Great Missionary Mixture.

10000 stamps, among which will be found between 1500 and 2500 varieties, catalogue value between $150.00 and $200.00 for the lot.

Buy this lot, have the fun of sorting, then give those you do not need away, make a dozen boys happy and start new collectors. This is without doubt the GREATEST STAMP OFFER ever made, and it is made with the belief that CHEAP STAMPS should be sold cheap, in order that beginners should be encouraged in every way. It is a mistake to start new collectors buying cheap truck at half catalogue price, when a collection cataloguing $30.00 to $80.00 can easily be made from one of these $8.50 mixtures with thousands of duplicates to spare.

Read my advertisement in last number of this paper about the vast quantity of stamps collected by charitable organizations, mission schools and by solicitation of religious institutions in France, Belgium, Switzerland and Germany and consider that 500 tons are available that has never been picked over or sorted! Send $1.00 for a 5000 lot, or better send $8.50 for the 10,000 lot to which is added the fine line of stamps of the Western Hemisphere (no U. S.). For the most interesting report made by WEEKLY purchasers of the contents of this $8.50 mixture, I will give a $5.00 Stamp Album as a premium, entirely free.

Orders filled by return mail, shipped in a cloth bag registered, postpaid with 15c Columbian stamp, which is catalogued 30c. "Satisfaction guaranteed." If disappointed, return and lot will be exchanged for anything you want.

ARE YOU GOING TO DENVER?

As the time for appointing the Committee on Credentials is not far distant the President would request those members who are planning to be at the convention to notify him by postal card in order that he may know from whom he can select members of that committee. The Denver committee are also desirous of knowing how many to expect in order to perfect their plans for entertainment. Kindly attend to this as soon as possible. [53

WILLIAM C. STONE, Pres.
21 Princeton St., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOES THIS HIT YOU?

The President desires to call the attention of certain members of the Recruiting Committee to the fact that since their appointment for the current year they have failed to send in a single application. The appointments were made with the expectation that they would do something. Please wake up and hustle for the rest of your term of office!

WM. C. STONE, President.

We take pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of a second subscription on the current year from the Marks Stamp Co. This is an object lesson to U. S. dealers that would bear fruit in a proper financial endorsement of what the committee is doing. Members of the committee are giving freely of their time for the promotion of this work and it will be a great loss to philately if it should be discontinued at the end of the present season because of the lack of co-operation upon the part of those who are directly benefited thereby.

The fifty-fourth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, April 2nd, 1907, President Cornwall presiding with 16 members and 3 visitors present.

Three applicants were elected to membership: Elmer C. A. Berger 5814 Bartmer Ave.; Claude W. Long, 916 Olive St; A. Yaremdji, Constantinople. The resignation of C. Grandpierre was received and accepted. The resignation of S. B. Hopkins as Exchange Manager was received and accepted. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hopkins for his excellent work as Manager of Exchanges during the past few months. Mr. Schoeman was unanimously elected to this office.

The U. S. Exhibition for which prizes of $20.00 were offered created unusual interest and brought out many splendid collections. The prizes were awarded as follows:—1st, Mr. Sisson; 2nd, Mr. Delafield; 3rd, Mr. Humes; 4th, Mr. Higson; 5th, Mr. Wood. Highest average, 75%. Judges, Messrs. Boisselier, Kunz and Slack. President Cornwall's superb collection was exhibited, though not entered in competition. Next meeting Tuesday, April 16. Exhibition of Hayti, according to Scott, three prizes aggregating $5.00 offered by Messrs. Cornwall and Diamant.

BOSTON, April 2nd, 1907.

The regular April meeting of the N. E. P. A. was held in Room 448, Old South Building, on the evening of April 2nd, 1907. The meeting was called to order at 8 P. M. by the President, H. W. Legg. Minutes of last meeting omitted owing to the absence of the Secretary. The chair appointed A. P. Brown to act as Secretary pro tem. Treasurer's report read and accepted, showing a balance in the treasury with all bills paid to date. A. Yaremdji of Constantinople, Turkey, was elected to membership. The meeting closed early as there was no exhibition and the members present then had quite a long informal talk on stamp matters in general which was enjoyed by those present.

OUR NATIONAL ORGANIZATION.

By WILLIAM C. STONE, President.

John K. Tiffany,	Elected Pres.		Sept. 13,1886.

William C. Stone,	"	"	August, 1905.

On the fourteenth of September the American Philatelic Association will celebrate its twenty first birthday. Looking backward over those years the twenty two charter members who still remain in the association never ask themselves whether it pays to belong to a stamp association or not. They know it does and they never lose an opportunity to tell others that it pays.

Who first suggested the idea of a national association will probably never be settled, any more than "who struck Billy Patterson." We know lots of men who did it at some time or another. It was in the air, and when the spirit moved we got together and the thing was done. But the formal records show that S. B. Bradt of Chicago, T. F. Cuno of New York, George Henderson of Philadelphia, W. G. Whilden of Atlanta and C. H. Mekeel of St. Louis were delegated by the societies in those cities to attend the enrollment of collectors who desired to associate themselves together in a national organization. Nearly three hundred answers were received, and a meeting was called in New York, September 13, 14, 1886 to organize. The meeting, while small was very enthusiastic, and the new organization was successfully inaugurated. Of the twenty odd members who attended that first gathering there are but four now left in the association I think; Alvah Davison, E. B. Sterling, H. L. Calman and H. N. Terrett.

Of the 157 members who were the founders of the Association there are but 22 remaining today on the rolls of the organization. Here are their names:

25. Ernest R. Aldrich, Benson, Minn.
95. Herbert C. Beardsley, St. Joseph, Mo.

PRESIDENT W.M. C. STONE.

The numbers affixed are the original membership numbers which were superceded by the stock certificate numbers when we were incorporated.

The first official journal of the association was an eight page circular containing the officers' reports and notices to members. The constitution and by laws adopted at the New York convention first appeared in this circular. This was issued in November 1886 and was followed by No. 2 in December. The first number of the American Philatelist appeared January 10, 1887. One interesting item in it was a notice from the Purchasing Agent to the effect that the pence values (lake) of Newfoundland including the square 5p. and triangular 3p. could be had at face value plus ten per cent. Only the 2p. was missing. They went quick it is reported.

After a brief life of five months the American Philatelist was suspended and two more numbers of the officiaal circular were issued. A vote of the mem-

THE MOST FOR YOUR MONEY!

The best duplicate album or pocket stock book ever offered. No hinges, just slip them in and slip them out when wanted. The one I offer holds the stamps more securely than any other and has just twice as many pages and the price is only 37c post free.

For use in connection with these stock books, or for any kind of blank album, I have the most complete series of names of stamp issuing countries ever published. Attractive lettering, all gummed ready to cut out and stick on, price 32c post free.

Coats of arms and flags of all nations in their correct colors are mighty nice for stamp albums, scrap books or other decorative purposes. Produced at enormous expense, on account of the multiplicity of colors, they are nevertheless sold at very low prices,—50c for the complete set of coats of arms and 25c for the flags (cut out and gummed ready for mounting, or ungummed in sheets—as preferred.

BIGGEST STAMP BARGAIN!

20 of the finest—stamps from Hayti, Jamaica, Newfoundland, Egypt, etc. Catalogue value $4.30 or over, price 70c, postfree—three packets for $1.80. No damaged stamps in any of my packets, satisfaction guaranteed.

U. S. TELEGRAPHS.

These interesting stamps are deservedly popular, my low prices are making them more so every day. (Postage extra on less than 25c.)

American Rapid 1, 5, 10, 15, 20 and 25c Telegram; 1, 5 and 20c Collect; 1, 5 and 20c Duplicate (cat. 56c) ..... 1c each, the 10 for 12c

B. & O. (Hoen) 1, 5 and 10c ..... complete 5c

Postal 1900, 1901, 1902 and Supts ..... 4 for 5c

Western Union 1890, 1901, 1904 and 1905 .. 4 for 5c

bers was taken for preferences for an official journal 79 voting for the Philatelic Journal of America, 59 for the Western Philatelist, and 17 for the Quaker City Philatelist. The Official Board who had the final say, did not bow to the will of the majority, but awarded the victory to the Western Philatelist. Of course a howl went up, and we who were the "outs" prepared for war at once. Voluminous "open letters" from President Tiffany and Secretary Bradt filled the mails, and as the time for the second convention drew near it looked as if Chicago would be the seat of a bloody conflict. But what a tame time we had to be sure. Owing to the lack of a special rule for a quorum to do business, it was found that there was represented in person and proxy just a bare majority of the members of the association. Consequently any one of the five of us who held the large bunches of proxies, had it in his hands to tie up the whole meeting by withdrawing or refusing to vote. Therefore we caucussed privately and the result was a compromise and everything was done by a unanimous vote. The American Philatelist was reestablished as the official journal the first number coming out in September.

What do the convention goers of the present day think of holding three business sessions a day? We did it the first day and held two the second day. Unlike the conventions of the present day there was no set program for the entertainment of the visitors. Aside from the banquet and a visit to see the New York National League base ball team defeat the Chicagos, the members were left to themselves to seek entertainment. It was strictly a business convention. The attractive social features now so prominent were not introduced until several years later.

But I must pass rapidly over the conventions which follow. Boston greeted the delegates in 1888 and it was a big convention particularly in point of numbers. New York and Staten Island were there in full force and there was something doing all the time. An exhibition of stamps was held which was very fully noticed by the daily press, and did much to call attention to the association and its aims. Among the noticeable exhibits was the collection of essays of U. S. post cards and envelopes owned by W. C. Vanderlip together with hosts of rarities loaned by other members. It is to be hoped that we can have more such exhibitions, for it is quite evident they do more to call attention of the public at large to what there is in stamp collecting than anything else.

St. Louis welcomed the convention in 1889 and of this gathering I can only speak by hearsay. It is one of the few that Deats and I have missed. Herbert Beardsley in the Philatelic World a few years ago gave a capital report of the meeting to which I shall have to refer my readers. One of the enjoyable features of the convention was an evening spent with President Tiffany viewing his collection and library.

In 1890 we gathered in New York City and this time the fur did fly. The convention was prolonged to four days, special delivery letters were called into use to gather up additional proxies needed to carry certain amendments to the constitution by which the American Philatelist was abolished and the official journalship voted to the Metropolitan Philatelist. It was a hot time in more than one sense. Our membership had risen to 684 and both factions were well led. The outs had the most present, but the winners had the proxies and won. Dinner at the Hotel Manhattan and a dip in the sea at Coney Island constituted the entertainment. Immediately after the convention an appeal was made to the members by a mail vote on the official journal question, and the action of the convention was overruled by a vote of 381 to 35 in favor of restoring the American Philatelist as our official journal. The reports of the association appeared in the Metropolitan Philatelist for October and November 1890 only.

When we met the following year (1891) in New York again, the evil effects of the bitter contest showed itself in a falling off in our membership, the total being only 568, notwithstanding the fact that 90 new members were added during the year. It was a very quiet and harmonious convention, there being practically no opposition to any of the propositions submitted. Incorporation was ordered by a large majority and was effected later in the season.

Niagara Falls welcomed us in 1892 and while the attendance was rather small we had a most delightful time. It was the first convention since our incorporation and there was lots of business to attend to and changes to be made in our by-laws. In one respect this convention was the most representative of any we have ever held. Out of a voting membership of 218, only 37 were unrepresented in person or by proxy and some of these even had sent in proxies which the holder declined to use because they were uninstructed. The foreign members at that time had no votes. We had a banquet, a carriage drive and a photograph taken. In fact one of my most treasured souvenirs is a group photo of some eighteen of us robed for a trip under the falls. We were beauties then if ever we were. A number of ladies were in attendance at the convention for the first time I think.

Of course the Columbian exposition took us to Chicago in 1893 and it goes without saying that we had a good time. We always do in that city. The meeting lasted only two days, three sessions in all being held. The attractions of the Midway and other features of the Exposition proved a potent factor to hustle business. The exhibition of stamps which was installed in the United States Government Building under the auspices of the Association was a great attraction to all and one or more members could always be found there to give advice and help to the public who manifested much interest in the exhibit. Although it was not a success financially it has always seemed to me well worth the money spent as an advertisement of philately.

The next year saw us back again at Niagara Falls with our membership up to 770, the highest point we had ever reached. Here it was that at the banquet at the Hotel Kaltenbach, Alvah Davison had his wonderful dream of the future club house of the association. The words of eloquence which fell from the lips of the speakers that night were never officially recorded, but our stenographer took them all down and they can be found in one of the magizines of the day.

A never to be forgotten convention was that of 1895 held in Clayton, the Gateway of the Thousand Islands. A large entertainment fund had been raised by subscription and there was something doing all the time. Boat rides by day and night, a picnic on the island, a banquet, and above all one of the fiercest political fights in the history of the association. Our membership had passed beyond the 1000 mark, and with the beauties of cumulative voting, the duties of the credential committee was far from being a sinecure. But it is all over now and we laugh at the fun we had. Four of the most active of those who were with us then have passed away. I allude to Tiffany, Gremmel, Krauth and Rode. We were all on good terms socially, but how we did squabble in the convention. I distinctly remember hauling Gremmel down by his coat tails numerous times when he wished to "butt in" at inauspicious times. But as Luff said we had "peas and hominy" at last and all went home happy, even "yours truly" and Papa Doeblin who were both left out in the cold.

Minnetonka, Boston, New York, Detroit, Milwaukee, Buffalo, Springfield, Clayton, Pittsburg, Minneapolis and again the Hub of the Universe. What suggestions of good times they bring up.

We have not forgotten the visits to Salem Willows, Staten Island, and the war ships, Walker Brothers, Pabst's, The Pan American, Mt. Tom, Heinze's

WHOLESALE SUPPLIES.

My new wholesale list greatly enlarged and priced in U. S. currency is in the press, and will be posted to all my customers during April. All dealers desiring reasonable quotations on cheap stamps per 10, 100 or 1000 should send for it.

I do not claim that my prices are always cheaper than those of other dealers, but I do claim that no dealer in the world pays more attention to the condition of all stamps supplied to customers. All stamps are delivered free from paper and in good condition. This is of far more importance to dealers than low prices (which usually mean a large proportion of damaged stuff). However,

"The Proof of the Pudding is in the eating" and all I ask is the favor of a trial order from those American dealers not already on my books.

Columbian Stamp Co., Arlington, Mass., write 13th March, 1907: "Stamps duly to hand and very satisfactory."

Send name and address on a post card and lists will be forwarded regularly.

or to beautiful Minnehaha Falls. It would take a full number alone of the WEEKLY to tell it all and then how flat it would read if you had not been there yourself.

In closing I wish to say a few words concerning our convention attendants. For some years Mr. Aldrich and myself have been at work on a complete list of all who have ever attended our conventions and although the work is by no means finished, owing to no complete record having been kept of some of the earlier meetings, I am able to give a few figures concerning those who have been fortunate enough to have been at one or more of our gatherings.

Our twenty one conventions have been attended by about 500 different members, and a large number of visitors, including the families of members and others who were attracted by the gathering of brother collectors. Since the organization of the association there have been connected with it over 2500 members, the exact number not being easily determined. Of these, less than twenty per cent ever attended a convention. About 350 only atended one meeting, 130 from two to five meetings and 21 from six to nine. Six members only have been at ten or more conventions and their name and records are as follows: P. M. Wolsieffer 10, C. H. Mekeel 11, E. Doeblin 12, F. H. Burt 13, W. C. Stone 17, and H. E. Deats 18. Mr. Mekeel had an unbroken record at the time he ceased attending the meetings and was the only member who had such a record. Many members who have attended two or three, have done so at long intervals, in several cases eight or nine years. The large number who have attended only a single convention is due mainly to the fact that many are not able to attend except when we meet in their home city. Others do not hesitate to travel long distances for the sake of attending. Let us hope that there will be a goodly number of such to swell the gathering under the shadow of Pike's Peak this summer.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—We are indebted to James A. Block for a stamp clipping. He also informs us that the current St. Nicholas has an article on stamps, and in addition to the regular stamp page a story in which stamp collecting figures, the plot being laid in India.

—The Ohio State Journal of April 14 contained an interesting clipping "History of France as Told by Its Stamps." It was based upon a paper on the stamps of France read by C. B. Duffy at a recent meeting of the Columbus Collectors' Club. A large half-tone plate showing 15 stamps illustrating the various issues added a great deal to the attractiveness of the story. It is very evident that the collectors of Columbus, O., mean business.

—As will be seen by our advertising columns E. J. Bridger, of the firm of Bridger & Kay, London, Eng., will have arrived in the U. S. by the time this comes under the observation of our readers. For many months the advertising of this firm has been seen in our columns, and the trade here will no doubt be pleased to meet this representative of London philately. Mr. Bridger has brought with him a fine assortment of stamps, especially Great Britain and British Colonials. We bespeak for him a hearty welcome, and hope that the WEEKLY office may have the honor of a call from one with whom we have had very satisfactory business relations for several years.

—In the New York Sun of April 21 appeared an article "Uncle Sam's Rarest Stamps." It is a very readable article, and must do a great deal of good for philately.

—A meeting of the incorporators of the Envelope Society of America was to have been held April 25, when officers were to be elected and plans formulated for regular meetings and for carrying out the aims of the society. We shall hope to publish next week a report of the business transacted.

—If the subscriber who wrote requesting a copy of the WEEKLY for April 6 will send his address to this office, we will be pleased to comply with his request.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from James M. Porter, Paul Mason, Ebersole Gaines, John L. Steffen, Axel J. Johnson (3), J. T. Hermansader, Mrs. A. A. Doolittle, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr. (2), M. A. Lesser, W. D. Rodier and Leonard Newman.

—We have received from the J. M. Bartels Co. the catalog of their 37th sale which will be held May 14-15. Among the consignments we notice a very nice line of Canal Zone and Danish West Indies. The entire catalog will repay perusal.

—The stamp collectors of Rochester, Minn., to the number of eleven, have organized what will be known as the Rochester Stamp Collectors Society. The officers are as follows:—Pres. James L. Matheson, Sec.-Treas. Fred Witzke, Lib. Will Lemm. Regular meetings will be held on the second and fourth Saturday evenings of each month.

NOTICE TO CANADIAN SUBSCRIBERS.

We are compelled to announce that commencing May 1, the subscription price of the WEEKLY to all points in Canada will be $1.00 per year. This action has been rendered necessary through the position taken by the Canadian postal department in regard to U. S. publications.

A few months ago the Canadian postal officials denied certain publications published in this country the privileges of second class mail matter circulation. It resulted in a conference between the post office departments of the two countries looking to the establishment of a common basis of operations.

The result of it all is that an edict has gone forth ordering that commencing May 8, 1907, "The postage rate applicable in the United States to second class matter addressed for delivery in Canada shall be 1c for each four ounces or fraction thereof such to be calculated on the weight of each package and prepaid by means of postage stamps affixed."

In view of the fact that this is the result of an agitation instituted by the Canadian P. O. officials our Canadian subscribers must accept the situation with the best grace possible. That the WEEKLY is worth $1.00 a year goes without saying and that it cannot be supplied at less than that price is due, not to any choice of our own, but of the government officials who are guiding the destinies of the P. O. department across the line.

EDITORIAL.

A Pean of Praise—Hail to the American Philatelic Association. Our salutation is sincere and heartv; it is not made in the pleasantly perfunctory way that conveys congratulatory greetings on some occasions, but with an intimate knowledge of and admiration for the history of the association from the beginning. It is true that the growth of the association from its inception to its present condition of prosperitv, to some degree is a consequence of a natural increase of interest in philately during the past score of years; but this admission does not detract in the slightest from the shining record of the association on its attainment of the thousandth member. A full complement of one thousand members means that a proud eminence has been gained; this, coupled with the fact that the membership is one that is solid and not one that is forced in any way, is impressive to the one who reflects upon the meaning of it all. What a mighty philatelic force a brotherhood of one thousand constitutes, when dominated by the same thoughts and inspired by the same ideals. How irresistible a factor it becomes when directed in the proper channels and how powerful a deterrent to the flourishing of malign influences in philately. Members may congratulate themselves upon contemplating the fabric of their accomplishment. Every individual of the thousand strong may be proud of his certificate of membership in the American Philatelic Association and of the fact that he is a component part of the greatest philatelic organization of its kind. This special issue of the association's official journal endeavors to bring home to each member the conviction that an identity with the national society of America is a privilege that merits high appreciation.

It Has Uplifted—We shall not transgress upon the offices of the historians of the association who exploit the association in this issue and no attempt will be made here to mark the steps of the association's progress. A reference to the years when philately was unorganized nationally in this country affords a field for reflection, however. When the suggestion of a national organization in America in its maturer aspect was made in the early 80's, there was an immediate response of approval of the idea. Philatelic thinkers and other prominent dealers and collectors were outspoken in their approbation and it was surmised that this unanimity of opinion would easily assure the organization of the national body, but expectations were disappointed to some extent. The well-wishers of the proposed association were at some variance as to the proper method for the advancement of the plan; and conflicting ideas emanated from the well-meaning partizans, as copies of the old philatelic papers will attest. However where the demand was so unmistakable for a concrete manifestation of philatelic power, there could be but one result and in due course of time, the infant association was born, but under circumstances that could not be said truthfully to be auspicious. Here, the chronicler of the history of the association is assigned the task of recording the career of the American Philatelic Association. Before the association was formed over twenty years ago, progressive philately ran in somewhat devious public courses. There were dark corners here and there that the light of philatelic propriety could well be concentrated upon to the advantage of all having the welfare of their pursuit at heart. Individual efforts at reforming individuals or offensive customs or measures could not be so effective as a concerted movement of many collectors. The regulating influence of the American Philatelic Association was soon felt and the good that has been done through its works and largely, its suggestions, is of inestimable value. While conditions as they prevailed in the older days would have improved with time, yet it was the association that accelerated the movement so decidedly that this representative American philatelic body cannot fairly be denied a lion's share of credit for the philatelic uplifting of the past twenty years.

A Thousand Strong—The mere existence of the American Philatelic Association is not without a strong influence for good and when the association becomes an intelligently aggressive body, prominent in achievement, as it is now, its destiny is made the fuller and the more significant. The onward march of the association is now assured; the American Philatelic Association stands for philatelic honor of a kind in this country; and should the association languish, it will be a day of sad regret for the friends of philately. As the association has emerged from most critical periods in the past, such as assail almost every organization at some time or other in its history, when the American Philatelic Association was a weakling, comparatively, without fatal consequence, it is inconceivable that in its present position, any crisis could fatally affect it. The American Philatelic Association at least is one permanent philatelic institution of which American collectors are avowedly proud, and now that the association is a thousand strong, they may be pardoned for dwelling upon a fact that is not a figure of speech, but of strength, a membership of one thousand collectors that includes the flower of American philately.

Blot on Honduras—We cite the following example of commercial integrity, not because it is thought that the action of the dealers who were approached in discouraging the circulation of a pernicious product that might carry profit to the distributor is of striking exception, but to reflect a sinister light on the methods of irresponsible officialdom in some countries, which, however, do not long remain unsuspected. The following paragraph from the April number of the monthly Circular, issued by the Scott Stamp & Coin Company, is headed: Honduras's Fall from Grace:

"After posing as a shining example, philatelically speaking, for her sister Central American countries for several years past, Honduras, or at least some of her officials, appear to have again gone into the stamp business for revenue only. The latest "doings" are in connection with the new issue. Last fall, several months before the new stamps were to be issued, we were asked to make an offer for an entire sheet of the 1 peso, imperforate, which we were assured

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money. This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

A FAMOUS POSTAL CARD COLLECTION.

HORACE E. CARPENTER, JR., OF BAY CITY, MICH., THE PROUD POSSESSOR OF A FINE DISPLAY.

It is seldom that the WEEKLY presents its readers with a story of such interest as offered by the post card collection of Horace E. Carpenter, Jr. A copy of the Bay City (Mich.) Tribune recently sent us contained an extended writeup from which we take the liberty of quoting the following:

Horace E. Carpenter began to collect back in 1880, amassing a collection that, compared with such collections, stands way up near the top. There are now in his possession about 7000 specimens, each one differing from all the others in some particular.

Nearly all of the governments of the earth, both home and colonial, have now issued postal cards, some countries, such as Bavaria and Mexico, running their varieties well up into the hundreds, while others like Costa Rica, Abyssinia or New Zealand have only four or five cards to their credit. A look through Mr. Carpenter's collection will reveal many specimens of engraving that are triumphs of art, beautiful in the extreme, tasty and pleasing to the eye. Among these the cards of British Central Africa are especially noteworthy.

Many of the cards issued years ago are now very valuable, as in the case of Hong Kong, Ceylon, Mexico and other countries. In the collection is a large number of specimens whose individual value range from $5.00 to $75.00 and which were acquired away back in the '80's, at merely nominal sums. One Mexican card, held by collectors, up to two years ago at about $1.00, suddenly enhanced in value to the modest sum of $50.00 when the fact became known that the Mexican government had issued but 87 specimens of that particular card, of which, of course, a number were used in the mails, others undoubtedly lost or destroyed, leaving to supply the wants of collectors, probably not more than 50 at the outside.

The first country to issue postal cards was Austria in 1870, but she was quickly followed by many other countries as the necessity for these useful adjuncts to our postal service was recognized by one government after another. One very interesting card, of which Mr. Carpenter has two specimens is the so-called "rejected die" McKinley card. This die was prepared by the engravers, showing a full face portrait of our martyred president, but in all other details the design was exactly like our president McKinley card. This portrait was declared to be very unsatisfactory and so the whole issue, of which some millions had been printed, together with the plates were destroyed. But in some unknown manner one box of 500 cards found its way to a New York concern, which used a number of the cards, they passing through the mail in the ordinary way, thus establishing the right of the card to a place in card catalogues.

The rarest United States card is the old black Liberty head card printed on the watermarked paper, or rather, card board, of the first issue Liberty head brown card. Mr. Carpenter was fortunate enough to find two specimens of this rare card in a lot purchased by him at an auction sale, one of which now reposes in his collection, the other having been disposed of at private sale for a good round sum.

Mr. Carpenter is a very active member of the Postal Card Society of America and we feel sure that this brief account of his interest in postal cards will be appreciated.

Information of this character has a tendency to discredit varieties of the issues of those countries that do not stand forth substantially; but, after all, attention that is centered on pronounced or "straight' varieties of the countries that do not stand well in the scale of philatelic probity, is best rewarded so far as the work-a-day collector is concerned. The strict business honesty of the firm in refusing to be a party to the transaction outlined is to be commended; and their ventilation of the subject in public print is for the benefit of all collectors.

Suggested—A reader of standing addresses us as follows: "I wish to make in the WEEKLY, a plea for another stamp catalogue to be issued by Scott or anyone who is equally enterprising. There are a number of philatelists who prefer to specialize in the stamps of their own country and its colonies to attempting the task of collecting foreigns. The majority of those who collect U. S. are interested not only in the adhesives but in the envelopes, postals, proofs and essays of both the U. S. and its colonies and the current prices of the same. This feature Scott ignores as well as detailed information concerning the size of the various issues, etc. I am firmly convinced that were a catalogue to be printed incorporating these ideas, it would meet with a ready sale at a price of fifty cents the book, although a small volume, and would not decrease the sale of the 'Standard.'" We think that the suggestion of our correspondent is a good one. The field that he names for specializing purposes is increasing in popularity; and we have always maintained that the catalogue that gives the most information about stamps is the most acceptable, if, at the same time, it is reliable in its important essentials. Yet, it is known that the publishing of a philatelic work is always an experiment and that the reasonable expectations of a publisher are often disappointed. We express the double hope that such a work appear and that its publication be not attended with loss.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed CANAL ZONE.—Gerald D. Bliss writes: "From best information available I learn that the sheets of Panama stamps receive the Zone surcharge in full sheets of 100 with the exception of the 1 on 20 and 2 on 1 peso which have double bars, and these stamps were surcharged 50 at a printing as the supply of bars was not sufficient to set up for a full sheet.

"One has only to glance at a sheet of the stamps to note that the Panama surcharge was printed in blocks of 50, as I believe without exception that all errors in the Panama surcharge occur twice in each sheet, the second error always being found on the complementary stamp."

MOZAMBIQUE.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us a specimen of the new set. The design is the same as Gibbons' type 2, the colors being changed with the exception of the 5r as follows :—

Adhesives.

2½ gray.
10 pale green.
15 deep green.
25 rose.
50 brown.
75 mauve.
100 blue on blue.
115 brown orange on rose.
130 brown on yellow.
200 deep mauve on rose.
400 blue on yellow.
500 black on blue.
700 gray on buff.

NO. NIGERIA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 1d value on multiple chalky paper.

PERU.—Hermann Focke sends us the second value in the new postage set now being issued. This is the 2c, printed in two colors. The stamp is of large size like the 5c, the portrait being in a small circle at the top of the stamp. There are figures of value in each corner, the word "Centavos" being printed at the bottom. The bulk of the space below the portrait is taken by the words "Union—Postale Universal—Peru." The portrait is the same as that on the 1c value of the 20th century set of 1901.

Adhesive.

2c vermilion and violet.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS. — The two double cards of Labuan have been surcharged for use in this colony. The head-line "Labuan" is cancelled with two bars—"Straits" added at left—"Settlements" at right. On the stamp "Labuan Postage" is cancelled with two bars and above the stamp in two lines is "Straits Settlements—Postage." All surcharged in red.

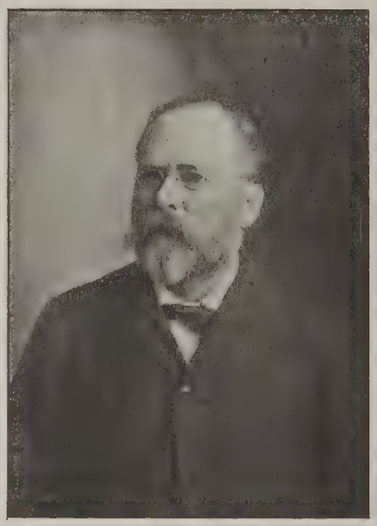
Post Cards.

1x1d lilac and red on buff, T3.
3x3d green and red on buff, T3.

DEATH OF SAM SCHLENKER.

In the WEEKLY of Feb. 18, 1905, it was the writer's privilege to pen a few words descriptive of the life and collection of Sam Schlenker of Brenham, Texas. It is now our sad duty to chronicle his death which occurred on April 8 after an illness of many months' duration.

Mr. Schlenker was born in Wurtemberg, Ger., Sept. 18, 1853, and came to the United States in 1870. Twelve years after his arrival he became the tax collector of Washington County, Tex., and served uninterruptedly thirteen terms. In announcing his political affiliations at that time he wrote us: "I am no politician but a good democrat."



During his long residence in Washington County he had drawn a large circle of friends around him who will mourn his death and their sincere sympathy will go to his widow and son in their bereavement.

He was a member of the Woodmen and United Workmen. A large number attended the funeral and upon the list of active pall bearers was noticed A. M. Krug, a local philatelist to whom we are indebted for a newspaper clipping conveying the above sad news.

Of Mr. Schlenker's stamp collecting it can only be said that he belonged to the old school, commencing to collect when a mere boy of 14. He was not a "variety" hunter but limited his collecting to straight issues. Unused stamps were always sought for and when unobtainable used were taken.

Mr. Schlenker was a member of the Texas and Boston societies. The writer feels that the death of Mr. Schlenker is a distinct loss to the cause of philately and to few will it come home with greater force than to the one who pens these lines. This observation is based upon several years of correspondence with him in which promptness and honorable business relations seemed to be cardinal virtues.

THE TRIALS OF A NON-PHILATELIST.

BY ABBY DURKEE.

Annette Douglas married Silas Martyn some years ago, and being an only child never left the beautiful home of her childhood, until death claimed them all and she was left alone. Her father bequeathed his entire fortune to her. Her husband was a stamp collector, and left a good many stamps to be disposed of, for Mrs. Martyn had no use for trash as old stamps and decided to sell them as fast as possible, close the old home, do some sight-seeing, and get entirely out of the stamp-craze atmosphere.

Accordingly, she advertised the stock. A dealer called upon her and said he should like to buy quite a number of sets, and other stamps that he knew were in the collection, but she would not consider his poposition; they must all go together, no half way work and a lot left over that would take years to dispose of in driblets. No, they must all go, and that right soon! Her determination, together with her plainly worded advertisement, brought about a sale that seemed to be quite satisfactory, and every one was packed and shipped post haste.

Mrs. Martyn decided to go to the city some distance east, take rooms in the best hotel, and try to enjoy herself where no person could possibly open a stamp album to show her its beauties or talk to her about the wonderful bargains that could be had just now.

Having made all her arrangements to close her home, she invited her best friend, Miss Lelia Denison, to go with her. Miss Denison was younger than Mrs. Martyn, dependent upon her own resources, and gladly accepted the position of companion.

The trunks all gone, house properly closed, carriage at the door, Mrs. Martyn came down with two satchels, a shawl strap bundle, a band-box, a box of lunch and a bouquet of flowers.

Miss Denison relieved her of them all, and immediately packed them into a small trunk she had ready, only having the hand-bag, and ordered the trunk put aboard the carriage.

"Why Lelia," said Mrs. Martyn, "you have packed our lunch and flowers."

"No matter," said Lelia, "we will get our lunch in the dining car; also dinner and breakfast."

"Have you the tickets?" asked Mrs. Martyn. "I hope you have good berths, for I have decided to have the best that is to be had this coming year, if it takes my last dollar."

"Yes," said Lelia, "I have a stateroom with bath and all conveniences, and if the train will keep the track we are all right. I also have a suite of rooms engaged to be ready for us at the 'Grand,' and I really think we have much pleasure in store for us the coming month."

The train was not very full, and during the day Mrs. Martyn took a seat in the car, as the stateroom seemed small for all day.

Among the passengers there was a family with two young lads, twelve and fourteen years of age. Mrs. Martyn spoke with them, asked them about their school life, and such other things as she thought would be of interest to them, when suddenly the younger one skipped across to their section returning with his stamp album which he desired Mrs. Martyn should see, as it was one of his Christmas gifts, and he, an ardent lover of stamps, hoped he could interest her, as he had some others, and get the promise of what treasures her store room contained.

Mrs. Martyn told him she was not a lover of stamps, not at all interested in them, had had them right in the family for ten long years, and was so sick and weary even of the name she almost despised those she was obliged to use in transmission of mail, and so begged of him to return it to his berth.

The young lad, in telling his mother of the incident, said he could not understand how she could feel like that.

His mother replied, "Never mind, dear, possibly the person who had those stamps was not agreeable to her. Her dislike may have been more of the personality

W. F. GREGORY, 65 NASSAU ST., NEW YORK.

Working for the Convention.

Buckeye Capital as a Well-Equipped Richmond in the Field for 1908.

Columbus is thoroughly determined to capture the 1908 convention of the American Philatelic Association.

Ohio never has had a national meeting of the Association, and the Columbus Collectors' Club, to which much of the recent philatelic growth in Ohio is due, has determined that it shall not be possible, much longer, that this can be said.

The club has adopted as its motto: "What We Determine, We Do."

There are many reasons why the 1908 convention should come to the Buckeye capital. The first has been set forth; that Ohio never has entertained the Association, and there is no place so fitting for such entertainment as the capital of a great state.

Columbus is one of the most central cities in the United States. There is no place in the country which can be easier reached than Columbus. Railroads radiate from it in all directions, like spokes from the hub of a wheel.

Its hotel facilities are up to the highest American standard and its hotel men are fully cognizant of the importance of treating members of conventions—and those that come to Columbus are Legion—on a fair and even liberal basis.

Its street car facilities are among the best in the United States, and it has interurban traction communication with nearly all points in Ohio, Indiana and Michigan. The State's two-cent railroad fare law assures minimum transportation charges to the delegates and their friends who visit the convention.

Its points of interest are many and varied. Here are many of the great penal, industrial and educational institutions of the state; the capitol building, of impressive architecture; the great buildings and enormous campus of Ohio State University; the largest recruiting station of the United States army, the Columbus barracks; the Ohio penitentiary, from which the Confederate General Morgan and his companions made their daring escape; the beautiful new Carnegie public library, opened the first of this month, and the home of the Columbus Collectors' club; the widest streets in America, not even excepting those of Washington; and the beautiful McKinley Memorial monument.

Columbus is known all over the middle west as "The Convention City," and all Ohio takes pride in the city's reputation for entertainment of strangers. As evidence of that fact, Governor Andrew L. Harris has extended a cordial invitation, on behalf of the state, to the Association to meet here in 1908.

Mayor D. C. Badger has issued an invitation in the name of the city, while on behalf of the commercial bodies, an invitation will be extended by the Columbus Board of Trade, of which George W. Lattimer is president, and John Y. Bassell is secretary. The invitation of Governor Harris is as follows:

STATE OF OHIO
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR

COLUMBUS, April 11th, 1907.

To the American Philatelic Association,
Gentlemen:—

I take pleasure in joining with the Mayor of Columbus, the Board of Trade and others in the invitation being extended to you to hold your next annual convention in this city. You may be assured of a hearty welcome to our Capital City, already famous for its hospitality in the entertainment of State and National conventions and, on account of its central location, I believe will give you opportunity for one of the largest meetings you have ever had.

Very truly yours,
ANDREW L. HARRIS.

This invitation, with those of Mayor Badger, the Board of Trade and the Columbus Collectors' club, will be presented to the Denver convention by Mr. C. B. Duffy, purchasing agent for the Hocking Valley railroad, president of the club. He will carry with him much data on the delights of Columbus as a convention city, and tangible evidence of the good things which may be expected when the convention comes to the capital of Ohio.

than of the stamps themselves. It is quite possible that she herself does not realize that fact."

"I'm glad you don't feel like that mama," said the boy, "or I should have a hard time."

"You see, my son," said his mother, "I love you, and naturally am interested in your pursuits, and always want to make you happy."

Mrs. Martyn returned to her stateroom. She said, "Lelia, where is my diary; my first entry must be 'twelve hours out from old place, a stamp album brought to me for inspection by a lad on the train.' I trust, Lelia, that this will be the last time in our travels that a stamp album will appear in my notes of travel."

That evening in the dining car two gentlemen near them discussed the subject of stamps. One said he was on his way to a convention, and was taking some beauties with him to show to his friends, and added, "These conventions are great—one cannot over-estimate the benefits to be derived from meeting so many philatelists, and hearing papers read on the different subjects; and then, socially, it is a great gain, for now the ladies are invited, and some of the finest collections shown last year belonged to ladies. O! it's a fine arrangement, you had better join us; you'll never regret doing so, and may get a good wife, who knows!"

"Thank you," said his friend, "but I have no time to enjoy such a luxury. I will tell you in confidence I am engaged, and my sweet-heart says no old stamps in our home; so you see I am not much interested in your glowing picture, but I wish you joy and good luck in the line that you are happy in pursuing."

"Same to you! Same to you!" said his friend as they left the dining car.

"Well," said Mrs. Martyn, "all through dinner hour a dissertation on old stamps. I am pleased, however, to know that one woman has expressed herself clearly early enough to have it remembered. 'No old stamps in our home!' I should like to shake hands with her."

Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison reached the "Grand" safely. They were very pleased with their rooms—well furnished, easy chairs, a nice desk. All looked as though they should enjoy a quiet stay. After unpacking a few things they made themselves ready for lunch, and took a few spare moments to look out of the window to see what the pounding they heard meant.

"Look here, Lelia," said Mrs. Martyn, "they are hanging banners across the street, handsome ones; probably a procession will come along soon. Can you read what it says on them?"

"Yes," said Miss Denison. "This big blue and gold one says 'Philatelic Convention here Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Banquet Hall, The Grand.'"

"O! dear me!" exclaimed Mrs. Martyn.

As they passed out for luncheon they saw on different doors near their rooms, "Headquarters Illinois Delegates," "Headquarters Ohio Delegates," then a little further on, "New York Delegates' Headquarters," "Mass. Delegation Here," "Maine Delegation, Walk In," and so on until it seemed the house must be full of stamp collectors.

Mrs. Martyn eat her lunch very quietly, wondering what it all meant.

When the club was organized, in January, there was but one A. P. A. member in Columbus. Now there are 20. When it was organized, there were about 65 A. P. A. members in Ohio. Now there are nearly 100, and most of the increase is due to the efforts of the club, which includes in its membership A. P. A. members—many of them new members—all through Central Ohio.

The last and most potent reason why the convention should come to Columbus is that if it does come here, it probably will result in increasing the Ohio membership to 200. Surely this is worth considering.

AN EXPOSURE.

Information reached this office two or three weeks since that the Monroe Stamp Co. were selling U. S. stamps fraudulently surcharged "Philippines." We immediately called the attention of the firm to this fact and reply was received that the firm had, ignorant of their true character, purchased a "big lot," though from whom they purchased this lot was kept a secret. Two or three of our subscribers have given us the particulars of unsatisfactory dealings with the Monroe Stamp Co., which causes us to issue this warning to our subscribers. In several instances money has been forwarded and no stamps sent in return. The manager of the Monroe Stamp Co. is F. F. Freese, whose advertising was admitted only after the receipt of a recommendation that we considered amply satisfactory. It is seldom that a thing like this occurs, as we are very careful in regard to the responsibility of advertisers using our columns.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—At the meeting of the Kansas City Stamp Club April 26, consideration was given commemorative issues, and essays were read by different members with prizes for the best efforts. Arthur L. Nelson, who submits this information, also enclosed a clipping from the Kansas City Star dealing with local philately. We would like to publish the article in its entirety, and will hold the same for possible insertion in a subsequent issue. It is expected that a goodly delegation will go to Denver from Kansas City.

—A subscriber calls our attention to an advertisement recently inserted in the WEEKLY calling for unused U. S. stamps at 5% discount from face. We saw nothing irregular about the advertisement and admitted it to our columns. We might add that the receipt each week of many dollars worth of unused U. S. stamps that require cashing, aids materially in causing us to see the propriety of admitting such advertising to our columns. We might add if our correspondent had signed his name to the communication, we would have been pleased to have replied to the very forcible communication submitted.

—"I noticed that a recent editorial quoted an English paper as saying that the stamps of other countries than the U. S. had been degenerating in artistic appearance and workmanship. Allow me to say that after seeing the new 15c Italy, I have concluded that at least one country has stopped degenerating. It is certainly one of the handsomest stamps ever issued. The design is striking and appropriate and thoroughly Italian, and the workmanship excellent. If the other stamps of the set are to be as fine as this one, Italy's stamps will be a close second to our own."—W. H. ZIMMER.

AN APPEAL.

EDITOR MEKEEL'S WEEKLY,

Sir:—Learning that your issue of April 27 is to be devoted to the affairs of the American Philatelic Association, the members of Pittsburgh Branch No. 5 desire to announce through your columns their nomination of Mr. Eugene Doeblin for president of the association, subject to the decision of the coming convention.

Our interest in this matter does not arise solely from local considerations. We have also in mind the fact that the man who presides over our national association must be a philatelist of national repute. Mr. Doeblin is more than this. He is known—well and honorably known—throughout the whole philatelic world. Moreover, he has been thus known since philately was in its swaddling clothes. He began collecting in 1859, a prehistoric period, philatelically speaking. His membership in the "A. P. A." dates back to 1888. He served thirteen terms as International Secretary—a distinction which speaks volumes—and he attended thirteen annual conventions of the association. He has also served fifteen terms as Resident Vice President in Alleghany County, Pa. In a word, among stamp collectors, Mr. Doeblin is one of the conscript fathers, and, in our judgment, he has a clear title to be considered the dean of the lot.

We wish to lay especial emphasis on the fact that Mr. Doeblin is a stamp collector pure and simple; not a dealer, and not in a way concerned in the commercial phase of philately. Is it not important that the president of the association should be of this type, free from hampering influences and representing specifically what it is the chief aim of the association to promote? The interest taken by dealers in the affairs of the association is valuable and merits commendation. At the same time there are obvious reasons for expecting that, when it comes to filling the presidency, the trade will perceive the wisdom and fairness of giving way to the simon pure collectors, the element which has no ax to grind.

Mr. Doeblin's personality is so well-known as to require no commentary here. We Pittsburghers know him as a man of rare integrity and of a high sense of duty, and as such we commend his candidacy most earnestly to our fellow members, believing that thus the interests of the association can best be served.

REPORT OF THE COUNTERFEIT DETECTOR.

April 16th, 1907.

Forgeries of the word PHILIPPINES on used specimens of United States stamps have created considerable uneasiness among collectors during the past two months. All values from 1c to $5, including the special delivery and postage due stamps, have been seen with forged surcharge and we have no hesitancy in stating that all of these emanate from the Monroe Stamp Co. of New York City. The case is now in the hands of the Inspector in Charge at the New York Post Office. Fortunately it is not difficult to tell the counterfeit upon a closer examination. The letters have not the smooth appearance of the originals, besides there are other differences. Fortunately these forgeries seem to have been confined to used stamps, but it would be advisable for everyone who has obtained any of these stamps during the past two months to submit them for an expert opinion.

These are the only forgeries of importance which have been brought to our attention this season. Nothing warranting special mention has been reported from Europe, but as a whole would-be forgers seem to find it more and more difficult to place their wares.

F. Fournier of Geneva is still flooding the mails with his extensive illustrated catalogue of so-called fac-similes. Prices run as high as $1 per stamp for good forgeries of rarities. Mr. Edward Howard, (A. P. A. No. 2370) was kind enough to forward us a copy of this catalogue. No less than 324 items are offered, and many of these are sets of from two to fifteen stamps.

Respectfully submitted,
J. M. Bartels.

AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION

Milwaukee, Wis., April 27th, 1907.

This Association—the principal Association of philatelists in America—has now over 1000 members in good standing.

Following are some of the benefits of membership:—

(1) Year Book—contains copy of Charter and the By-laws, a list of all members arranged alphabetically and by residence, and a full report of the last Annual Convention.

(2) Sales Department—provides a place for members to buy or sell stamps.

(3) Official Journal—MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS free to members.

(4) Annual Convention—this year in Denver week of July 30th. Entertainment, sightseeing and a good time are guaranteed.

The annual dues are $1.20 (Sept. to Sept.). All members are required to take one share of stock, $1.00. Total cost to join in May, $1.30. Write any member of the Recruiting Committee for application blank. Unnecessary for applicants to be personally acquainted with a member, but at least one commercial reference must be given with application.

A word to the members of the Recruiting Committee. Most of the members of this Committee have done satisfactory work and several have made an excellent showing, but as stated by President Stone "Certain members (7) have failed to send in a single application since their appointment for the current year." Many of the members at large are doing good recruiting work and a slight effort on the part of the members referred to would probably place at least one new name to their credit. If it is not their intention to make an effort the writer would suggest they notify the President to that effect.

We have secured an average of one new member a day since the Boston Convention. Keep up the average!

C. C. Johnson, Chairman.

Regular meetings 3rd Tuesday in each month at Elks' Hall, Hayward Pl., at 8 P. M.

Boston, Mass., April 20th, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-fifth regular meeting of the Society was held in Elks' Hall, on Tuesday evening, April 16th, with President Hawes in the chair and 45 members and visitors present.

The reading of the minutes of the March meeting was dispensed with.

The Entertainment Committee announced the following: At the May meeting an Auction for the benefit of the Library; at the June meeting a paper to be read by Mr. V. M. Berthold on the varieties of the 2c. Jackson envelope, Dies C, C2, and C3. At the October meeting "Side Lines in U. S. Revenues" will be exhibited by several members of the Society residing in Springfield.

The Library Committee reported that since the last meeting they have received a donation of eleven bound volumes from Julian Park, as follows:—

Philatelic Bulletin, Vol. 23-25.
Philateliste Francaise, Nos. 60-85.
Philatelic West, Vol. 23-24.
Philatelic West, Vol. 25-26.
Philatelic Post, Vol. 2.
Canadian Stamp Sheet, Vol. 1-4.
Philatelic Chronicle comp. file.
Collectors' Note Book, Vol. 1.
Collectors' Note Book, Vol. 2.
Stamps of Transvaal.
Philatelic vocabulary in French and Esperanto.

Also Postage Stamps of Portugal, (Reigns of Dona Maria II. and Don Pedro V.), R. B. Yardley, from E. M. Carpenter.

Priced Catalogues of Drew's 179, 180 and 181st, and the Boston Stamp Exchange, 3 and 4, from A. P. Brown.

The unbound volumes 2 and 3 of the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain, from the New England Stamp Co. (These latter two the Library Committee have had bound at the expense of the Society.)

Bound volumes of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS for 1905 and 1906, from the publishers.

Nos. 2 & 3 of the Boston Junior Stamp News, by the publisher, Day Kimball.

The Secretary was authorized to arrange with MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for the continuance of that paper as the official organ of the Society for another year on the same terms as formerly.

Application for membership was received from Mr. A. Yaremdji, Constantinople, and under the rules, will be voted on at the May meeting.

On motion the Society passed a vote of thanks to Mr. Julian Park for his generous donation to the Library.

An interesting discussion was had on the subject of envelope stamps, and it was voted that it is the opinion of this Society that the listing and pricing of envelopes and cards in the Catalogs would be a benefit to philately. It was also voted to give an opportunity to a proposed "Envelope Society" to hold a meeting in the Society's hall before our meeting when desired.

$50.00 was appropriated for the use of the Library.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. A. P. Brown for his valuable work in supplying the Society with priced Auction Catalogs.

The entertainment consisted of the great collection of British North America, owned by Mr. F. C. Foster, which held the close attention of the members until a late hour, and in appreciation of Mr. Foster's kindness a hearty vote of thanks was passed.

Meeting adjourned at 10.20.

Respectfully submitted,
Edw. de Z. Kelley, Sec'y.

NOTICES.

The May meeting will be held at Young's Hotel on the regular date, and will be preceded by a Subscription dinner to be served at 6 P. M. Members who will attend the dinner ($2.00) are requested to notify the Secretary at an early date.

The Society has invited the Providence and Springfield Stamp Club to be its guests at the dinner and meeting.

The meeting will be opened with an Auction Sale for the benefit of the Library, to which the members are requested to contribute liberally.

Stamps for the Sale may be given to Mr. Lyons or to Mr. Carpenter or Mr. Nevin.

If you have no stamps to contribute the Committee is prepared to accept Cash Contributions.

A fine program for this meeting is in preparation under the combined auspices of the Entertainment and Recruiting Committees, and the members are urged to be present. If you know of anyone not a member of our Society who collects stamps or ever did collect or who would make a good recruit, you are especially urged to bring that person with you.

Any philatelist to whom this comes is asked to consider this as a cordial invitation to be present at this meeting. Date—Tuesday, May 21st. Place, Young's Hotel, Boston. Time, 8 P. M.

Respectfully yours,
Edw. de Z. Kelley, Sec'y.

The fifty-fifth regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, April 16th, at usual time and place, with nine members and one visitor present. Formal business meeting was dispensed with and the evening given over to the Exhibition Contest of the Postal Adhesives of Hayti, the unusual number of entries arousing considerable comment. Mr. Delafield's collection was awarded the prize, based on completeness, condition and arrangement. Mr. Sisson's collection was exhibited but not entered for competition. Retiring Exchange Manager Hopkins reports tenth Exchange Circuit closed and accounts made up. Next meeting April 30th.

Washington, D. C., April 15th, 1907.

The seventeenth regular meeting was held April 8, 1907. Nineteen members and one visitor were present. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. The report of the Governing Board recommending slight changes in the rules of Exchange and of Auctions was approved by the Society.

The Treasurer reported receipt of 25c. for initiation fee and disbursement of $7.75, leaving a balance in the general fund of $16.12; the balance in Library and Insurance fund same as last report.

M. H. Sanborn and Isaac Clark were elected to membership. Messrs. Ward, Wheaton and McCutchen were appointed as a committee on Entertainment and Program. The subject for the evening was Canal Zone. Mr. Toppan exhibited his fine collection of these stamps and explained the various printings and errors. The members greatly appreciated the privilege of seeing the stamps and receiving the benefit of his knowledge concerning them. An informal auction sale was then held under the direction of Mr. Ward, Supt. of Auctions.

April 17th, 1907.

Present, 31 members, and the better halves of the following members: Bellows, Dicke, Klein, Levy and Shellenberg. Also several visitors. The occasion of the evening was the exhibition of Mr. Bellows' collection of Mexican postage stamps. The collection, which is especially rich in blocks, covers and postmarks, was much admired by all present. It contains three complete sets of Campeche's, partly on covers; a set of Chiapa's, also several singles and pairs; Guadalajara's, a fine lot; 3c. brown's with various surcharges and shades, also an elegant copy on laid paper. It was agreed by all that it was the finest collection of Mexico ever shown in America. The President thanked Mr. Bellows for the evening's entertainment and presented him with the blue ribbon of the Society. The subject of the next exhibition will be the postage stamps of Tunis on Wednesday evening, March 1st. Members bring your collections.

Eugene Klein, Sec'y.

MEASURES AND MEN

BULLETIN No. 1.

The important office of Secretary should be filled by a man with time sufficient to handle the arduous duties of that office. He should not hold a similar office in any other Stamp Society because his efforts would then be divided and no man can serve two masters.

The Secretary should live near the President so as to be in close touch with him; this is essential to the rapid and safe handling of the affairs of the Association. Consider what long delays would mean in the publication of applications. Matters of signature, etc., need active and prompt attention and there should be no delay of six days in handling communications. Further reflection on this one point alone will convince members of the undesirability of electing a Secretary who resides so far from the President as Denver.

The Secretary should be energetic, forceful, experienced and systematic. Such a man is

F. W. CONING,

Of New Brunswick, N. J.,

Our Candidate for Secretary.

Mr. Coning has served the Association in the past as Director for two years. He holds an important position with the well-known house of Johnson & Johnson. Needless to say, Mr. Coning is an enthusiastic collector, willing and ready to give his valuable services to our Association.

Attention is called to the last page of this issue where our entire Ticket and some of our Measures are clearly stated. Remember, Collectors, that the nominators and endorsers of this Ticket are not running for office nor seeking political preferment in any way; they have labored faithfully in the past, guarding Collectors' interests, while bringing the Association to its present position of strength. If you want to preserve the work of years, if you want Association growth and prosperity to continue, if you want to protect your interests as Stockholders as well as Collectors

TO THE MEMBERS.

Springfield, Mass., April 19, 1907.

The President is informed by numerous members that they have received anonymous campaign circulars which are decidedly personal in their wording, urging the support of one of the tickets which has been placed in nomination. This is the first time in the history of the Association that such circulars have been resorted to and I sincerely hope it will be the last. Not having seen the circular myself I can not speak more plainly but I trust that the members will refrain from all such matters in the future. In Massachusetts the sending of anonymous political circulars is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment. Let us not descend to low political methods. If you have anything to say sign your name like a gentleman or be silent.

William C. Stone, President.

ARE YOU GOING TO DENVER?

As the time for appointing the Committee on Credentials is not far distant the President would request those members who are planning to be at the convention to notify him by postal card in order that he may know from whom he can select members of that committee. The Denver committee are also desirous of knowing how many to expect in order to perfect their plans for entertainment. Kindly attend to this as soon as possible. [53

New Applications.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

With this week we pass our objective point in membership, and if all the present applicants are accepted it will reach the total of 1046. We have admitted 280 members since the date of last Convention, without including those reinstated who were dropped for nonpayment of dues this year. We have thirteen weeks in which to still further increase membership, and with the present outlook I see no reason why we should not have a membership of 1200 by the expiration of the present fiscal year.

SALES SUPT. REPORT, NO. 25.

Chicago, April 20th, 1907.

Since last report,

204 Books received, priced,		$ 5,036.00
1742 Previously reported,		46,303.85
1946 Books,	Total,	$51,339.85
From which deduct,
33 Retired, priced,	$ 794.09 sold	$ 312.16
433 Previously retired,	11,031.55 "	3,186.76
466	Total, $11,825.44	$3,498.92

One of the questions I am most frequently called on to answer is "What sells best in the Department," and I regret it cannot be answered with any great amount of satisfaction. What sells well over one circuit may not go at all over another. Very cheap stamps are not in great demand, and high priced stamps also do not seem to meet with much favor among our buying members.

The average of sales would be much better were it not for the very high priced stamps. One book just retired, valued at $133.97, only sold $10.14, and was in the Dept. over a year. Another valued at $27.10 sold $19.78, and was in the Dept. only four months. This is an indication that average priced or medium priced stamps sell more readily.

Books for circulation have not come in as plentifully as desired, the many new members making demands for circuits more frequent and it was necessary to circulate some books that should have been retired. In several cases the Superintendent was obliged to stop operations and have books made up in order to complete various circuits and send them out to applicants on the waiting list.

There are still many serious delays which makes the shortage of books more keenly felt, but the sentiment among some of the buyers seems to be that so long as they make purchases they can keep the circuits to suit their convenience. I would urge the members to bear in mind the fact, that there are other members who wish to see the books and also that the owners would like to have them retired as speedily as possible.

Various Branches have applied for circuits and all have received attention to date. Many of the individual circuits are not as frequent as usual, but with new books coming in the old schedules will be in force.

Books of medium grade stamps are still required to supply the demand. Please use good hinges.

FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF

THE AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION

New England Branch of Boston

PRESENTS ITS NOMINATIONS FOR DIRECTORS

For President: JOHN N. LUFF, New York,
The leading American philatelist, whose life work has been to dignify and advance our science.

For Board of Vice Presidents: C. A. HOWES, L. L. GREEN, E. de Z. KELLEY, all of Massachusetts, who are President, Treasurer and Secretary, respectively, of the Boston Philatelic Society, the largest local philatelic society in America.
Mr. Howes, filling his second term as President, was four years Secretary and one year Vice President.
Mr. Green for seventeen years Treasurer (there has been no other).
Mr. Kelley in his second year as Secretary, and one of the most successful members of the Association's Recruiting Committee, present a combination of experience and worth fitting in the highest degree for the office of Vice President.

EXPERIENCE COUNTS

For Secretary: DR. HOLLAND A. DAVIS, Colorado.
His qualifications for this office may be judged by noting his great success as Secretary of the Denver Stamp Club and the U S. Revenue Society, and he has been largely responsible for the success of these two organizations.

For International Secretary: L. HARALD KJELLSTEDT, Pennsylvania, an accomplished linguist with wide foreign connections, and the American representative of the Philatelic Society of Sweden. His election will greatly strengthen the Association at home and abroad.

For Treasurer: H. G. SMITH, Minnesota.
The present successful and faithful incumbent.

For Directors at Large: H. J. CROCKER, California, and F. R. CORNWALL, Missouri, both well known gentlemen of the highest standing, and representing communities always faithful to the Association.

This ticket represents no trades or deals. It is only an effort to secure the best material, and your vote and support is solicited on this basis.

SPECIAL NOTICE!

You are respectfully requested not to sign any ballot that may be sent you until you receive a circular letter which will soon be sent you and which will bear the signatures of hundreds of members who have endorsed this ticket.

To the hundreds of members who have endorsed this ticket New England Branch presents its sincere thanks and acknowledgment.

Respectfully,

NEW ENGLAND BRANCH OF BOSTON.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Edward D. Keith, Providence, R. I., calls attention to what we assume to be a minor variation to be found in the one-cent of the 1890 issue; he writes: "Have you noticed that the 1-cent, 1890, in regard to the '1' at the left? It has the right ball extended to a spear-shape point almost half the height of the '1;' and the left ball has a point extended downwards, as in the sketch that I enclose, which while not very good shows what I mean. It is a difference much more pronounced than in the capped two-cent of the same issue. I have not seen the variety mentioned in the stamp papers, although I have known of it for several years."

F. C.:—This correspondent asks: "Please advise me why the U. S. envelopes, surcharged 'Philippines' are not catalogued. Also, what the values of the same are." The tendency towards restriction of the cataloguers has dispossessed the envelopes in question from their place in their works. The denominations of the envelopes are one, two, four and five-cents, respectively, on different papers.

H. M.:—Color charts have been issued by stamp dealers, societies and other persons with good philatelic intent, but there seems to be no guide of this kind that is accepted with unanimity by collectors universally as solving the color question in all its phases. However, a study of Mr. Warhurst's color dictionary, published by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., will aid one in discriminating between color names as applied to the stamps of the United States. (2) A rouletted stamp is one that has been separated from its companions on the sheet by a row of narrow oblong slits regularly placed along the margin, by a little wheel or roulette. (3) The postal card is the double one-cent Sherman that has been in use for some time.

Beginner:—The two-cent U. S. current issue, is a "flag" stamp, and the four stars that are visible on the shield or upper part of the specimen are some of those that are on the original flag. While the present two-cent stamp in large quantities is in demand occasionally by foreign wholesale dealers in the regular course of trade, yet we cannot with assurance say that there is any sustained market that we know of for these extremely common stamps in lots, and consequently, it may not be said that the stamp has a market price in great quantities. (2) The first stamps issued were used in Great Britain in 1840; in 1842, a semi-official stamp was issued in New York. Information on United States stamps on the lines suggested appears in the WEEKLY often; and the stamps of our own country will not be neglected in future issues.

Henry Koch, Newark, New Jersey, writes that it has been inferred by some collectors that the split provisional Danish West Indies, No. 19a, in the catalogue was used merely as a local stamp. He submits a specimen that refutes this impression, and says: "The split stamp was recognized by the United States postal department, as the enclosed specimen will show. I have others that were used from St. Croix and St. Thomas, respectively. I have the 1873-96 stamp used in the same way." Mr. Koch's specimen was on a wrapper that enclosed printed matter sent to Baltimore, Md., via Porto Rico.

O. P. L.:—This correspondent says: "I should like information about a stamp which I have in my collection. It is a specimen of the Peace and Commerce type, France, ten centimes black on greenish paper, and type I, according to the catalogue." We can find no record of this 10 centimes black, on greenish paper, let alone of type I. The predecessor of the 10 centimes black comes in type I and II, respectively, but the 10c black was not issued until January, 1877, after type I had been supplanted. We suggest that our reader send his stamp to some authority for expert examination.

W. P. H.:—"For a number of years, I have had a Guatemalan stamp, Scott No. 11,-½r, yellow green, surcharged 'I centavo' in black, in two lines. I cannot locate this stamp in any catalogue that I have seen; the surcharge is about the same as that on Scott No. 17." The

WHY PAY MORE?

Some dealers make a big splurge—move to the city, rent expensive offices and spend a lot of money talking about themselves in the newspapers. Their customers, naturally, pay the bills, in the shape of additional profits. I prefer to let my prices do the talking and give my customers the benefit Here are a few samples:
Newfoundland 1857, 3p green (triangular) unused and perfect $0.90
(Recently advertised by a "splurger" for $1.25.)
Nicaragua 1901, 20, 30 & 50c Nos. 156, 157 & 158 .40
(Cat. $1.55 and sold by "splurgers" at 45 to 75c.)
Mulready Envelopes, the first postage stamps ever issued, I offer the complete set of 1 & 2p envelopes and 1 & 2p letter sheets for..... 12.00
($6.75 recently asked for the half set, 1 of ea value.)
Tonga 1892, Officials, complete set of 5, Nos. 101 to 105 ..... 10.00
(Gibbons cat. $24.29 for 4 of them, with the 8p unpriced.)
I have just received four of these Tonga sets and will break up one or two for the accommodation of customers who may have part of the set. Mulready envelopes are unused and absolutely perfect, as clean and perfect as the day they were printed. Tonga are unused and fine, but no gum. Absolute guarantee with every stamp. If you prefer a square deal to a big splurge, write to

REMEMBER

That I have the finest stock of the stamps of the Canal Zone
in the world, including many of the scarcest varieties. My new Price List
contains the latest and most complete check-list of these stamps ever published. It is the best and it is ABSOLUTELY FREE FOR THE ASKING.

surcharge in question is an old offender that was seen often in by-gone days; it is a bogus or fictitious surcharge and if ever catalogued was rejected by the different compilers many years ago.

C. S. D.:—The name of the animal on the 10c, North Borneo, 1902, is Sun, or Honey, Bear; that of the bird on the 2 pence, 1889, New South Wales, emu and on the 8 pence, same issue, lyre bird. The names of the birds depicted on the 3, 6d, and one shilling, 1898, New Zealand, are: Huia birds, kiwi (apertyx) and kaka parrots, respectively. The torea birds are shown on the 1898 set of Cook Islands.

THE TRIALS OF A NON-PHILATELIST.

BY ABBY DURKEE.

Finally, Miss Denison said, "You may as well look on the funny side of this and go into the exhibit room and really see what sort of looking people there are here from nearly every state in the Union, even if you do not care to see the stamps."

Mrs. Martyn would not go to see old stamps, but did set in the parlor after dinner, to see the dresses and hear the conversation, but soon said to Miss Denison, "This actually makes me sick," and retired to her room. This experience decided her to go to a smaller place, get into a private family with elderly people and there find rest.

Branchton seemed to be just the place. Having packed their belongings, paid hotel bill and all ready to leave, they went to the parlor to wait until they would be notified that it was time to leave. In the parlor were two old ladies; both had more hand baggage than they could carry. One had a band-box, covered with a cover drawn up on top with a draw string. In a box she said she had herbs and medicines she was taking to her sick daughter in Branchton, and she was in a hurry to get there.

An omnibus backed up to the door; the two old ladies gathered up their packages, band-box, bundles and umbrella and rushed down, followed by Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison, and all packed themselves in as best they could, for the omnibus was nearly full when it stopped there.

The driver came for the fare, asking them where they wanted to go. They answered, "To Branchton." "Well, hurry up and get out! This bus does not go to that train. Hurry up, I say, no time to waste."

So all piled out and up the stairs again. They had surely been misinformed and really did not believe the driver. Another bus appeared at the door; they all hastened down and were the first passengers and were congratulating themselves. After sitting there fully fifteen precious minutes the driver came asking, "Where do you want to go?"

"To Branchton, and we don't want to be left either," said the old ladies.

He looked at his watch and told them it was just two hours before the train left for Branchton, that there were only two trains a day—one at 10 A. M., and the other at 3.30 P. M. Watch for the green bus. That will take you to the train.

One old lady said she thought all the "busses" were green.

"That is due to your green goggles," said the driver.

So once more they all ascended the stairs, and the two old ladies eat their "fried cakes," while Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison had lunch in the café. The old ladies tied their bundles over, got all in order, and the "green bus" arrived on time. They reached the station and Branchton in safety. The old lady that had the "sick darter" and the band-box was urging the baggage man to keep her trunk right side up for fear the medicine would be spilled. The baggage man was patient and promised to do so. He must have been a model.

No cabs to be seen, Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison walked to the house of Rev. Mr. Cole, where they had engaged board. They were very kindly received by the minister and his daughter, Mrs. Harris, shown to their rooms and their trunks sent for. They were very tired, and after dinner retired early.

Mrs. Martyn said, "My diary will not hold the items I must write of these few days, and what will a year of travel bring forth?"

It was very quiet in Branchton. After breakfast the next morning—by the way—Mrs. Martyn said, "It would take quite a stretch of imagination to believe we have had breakfast, don't you think so, Lelia?"

Miss Denison replied, "I suppose it is my duty to forget a meal that I cannot eat, but I really think my stomach would rebel to have such coffee and poor food for any length of time."

They thought they would go down to the parlor and see how things looked. Mrs. Harris and her father were there. Mr. Cole said he was very glad they had come down, for this was the day of the week that he took for rest and recreation, and as he had a fine collection of stamps which he was working on he should like to show them. Rising, he went into the next room and returned with boxes and bundles, and then back again for his albums. He said, "I am very methodical. I have these stamps all marked correctly on the backs. These bundles contain one hundred stamps all alike, so I only mark one, but on these sheets and these in the albums are all correctly marked. It is quite a task, but I enjoy doing the work; and as I buy and sell it is a great advantage, and saves time in the end. Are you at all interested in stamps, Mrs. Martyn?" asked the minister.

"No, I must confess they are of no interest to me. I thank you for the trouble you have taken to entertain me. If you will excuse us I think Miss Denison and I will take a walk, see Branchton and get up an appetite for luncheon."

Miss Denison asked Mrs. Harris at what hour lunch was served.

"At one o'clock," replied Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison walked rapidly down the street. They saw a sign, "Branchton Hotel," and entered. Things looked nice, and as dinner would be served at 12 concluded to try a meal. It proved to be a good one, and, appetites appeased, they seated themselves in the parlor where they met Mr. and Mrs. Plummer from Lima, who were on their way to the city to attend the philatelic convention; they were both devoted collectors and very intelligent people. Mrs. Plummer told them she had learned more by studying history through stamps than by any study of the same in high school or college, and added she should be very loth to miss an opportunity to attend the convention and learn all she could by coming in contact with living embodiments of philatelic learning.

"I appreciate your enthusiasm," said Mrs. Martyn, "but I cannot get up the least interest in old stamps; in fact I am trying to forget that I ever heard of them, but it is almost impossible, for at every turn some one suggests some reason for being interested."

"Will you remain here long?" asked Mrs. Plummer.

A GRAND EXHIBITION.

The Boston Philatelic Society will hold an open meeting in parlor 12, Young's Hotel, Boston, Tuesday evening, May 21. The Providence and Springfield Societies will be invited to attend as guests of the local society. Besides the competitive exhibition of Canal Zone, there will also be exhibits of Hawaiians by Mr. Green, Chinese Treaty Ports by Mr. Howes, U. S. by Mr. Rothfuchs, 20th Century by Mr. Carpenter, Envelopes by Mr. Berthold, and Liberia by Mr. Foster. In addition to this there will be an auction sale of unusual merit, and Mr. Howes will favor us with a "stamp study" talk. An address will be made by Wm. C. Stone, president of the A. P. A.

From the above program it will be readily appreciated that an evening of rare enjoyment is being prepared for those collectors who may desire to partake of the pleasure of the evening. You are invited to come and bring any stamp-loving friend with you. A cordial invitation is extended to every one to hold May 21 open for this occasion, which will, no doubt, be one of the most successful functions ever planned by the B. P. S. If able to attend, drop a postal card to Willard O. Wylie, Sec. of Committee, 104 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass., stating how many friends you will bring. This will aid the committee in its preparations for the event.

AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION

New England Branch of Boston

FELLOW MEMBERS: —

In the WEEKLY of April 27th we set before you a ticket of exceptional worth for your suffrages next August. We presented briefly the qualifications of our candidates, which was hardly necessary because of their prominence. An has been nominated by the Colorado and Scranton Branches, and hundreds of our members have sent in their voluntary indorsements.

It has been some years since any nominations have been made except by the Chicago Branch, which still has the privilege, recently exercised. But our similar action, apparently mistaken for temerity, has called forth a regrettable diatribe upon the last page of the same issue. We based our ticket upon a and expected that any contest would be conducted upon the "square deal" principle. We are not the only ones surprised, therefore, at the scurrilous personal attack made upon our candidates in the page ad. referred to. Ordinarily such would merit and receive silent contempt, but lest they should influence any of the recent additions to our ranks, to whom our candidates and their standing may not be so familiar as to the older ones, we present the following

HIGH PLANE OF EXCELLENCE

REFUTATIONS:

Quoted.	Remarks.
1. Chicago ticket indorsed by the Philadelphia Branch.	1. No such action has been taken to date.
2. "Our Candidate for President * * * is a simon-pure collector, having no axe to grind and seeking no ends but the welfare of the Association. He has no business interests at stake and is pledged to no Dealer Boss."	2. This left-handed insult to the integrity and independence of Mr. John N. Luff, the foremost American philatelist, needs no reply.
3. "Consider * * * the probably disastrous consequences of a Dealer or a Ring of Dealers in control of our Association policy and funds. * * * It is in the hope of preventing another domination by a Dealer's Ring that we appeal to you to support the Collectors' ticket. * * * We feel confident that you will not allow the control of the A. P. A. to slip from the plain collectors * * * to the control of a corporate Ring."	3. In 1899, 1900, 2, 3, 5 and 6, P. M. Wolsieffer, and D. T. Eaton (now nominated by Chicago to take charge of the funds), both dealers, held the largest number of proxies; in 1901 Merell of Chicago and in 1904 E. S. Martin, now a Chicago dealer, occupied the same position. Where do the "plain collectors" of the rest of the country appear? We make no attack on the above gentlemen; their rights are indisputable. Has any one imputed wrong motives to them?
4. "We do not ask you for a hastily signed indorsement to hold as a whip over you to coerce you to vote."	4. Do the gentlemen who have voluntarily sent us their endorsement relish this slur?

But the worst feature of the above is the almost libellous allegation in No. 3 concerning the "probably disastrous consequences" to "Association policy and funds." This is an outrageous assault upon the probity of the gentlemen on the New England Branch ticket, among whom are faithful servants of the Association, philatelists of international reputation and Fellows of the Royal Philatelic Society. Chicago desires also to take the custody of the Association funds from Mr. Smith, the present faithful incumbent, "a simon-pure collector," and place them in the hands of Mr. Eaton, a dealer. We have nothing to say against Mr. Eaton, but merely call attention to one more delightful example of inconsistency.

GENTLEMEN OF THE ASSOCIATION

Will you countenance such "dirty electioneering methods?" With the support already assured us and of all right thinking members, we feel positive that a well merited rebuke will be administered in August.

"VOTE FOR THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE ASSOCIATION."

EDITORIAL.

Lacking—The Jamestown Exposition is to be signalized, as all philatelists know, by a special issue of stamps; and, consequently, the attention of philatelists generally is attracted to the celebration in a personal sense through the special stamps. Jamestown has its stamps, but, so far as we have elicited responses to inquiries, the philatelic idea does not have a place of any prominence in the exposition itself. This realization is not a warming one, and is brought forth in its cold unpleasantness by the receipt of the following communication by a well-informed observer: "Some of the collectors, especially in the south, think there should be some meeting place at the Jamestown Exposition where philatelists could register and get on the track of each other. There probably will be some stamp collector in charge of an exhibit so that there could be a headquarters similar to that maintained by Mr. Wolsieffer, in charge of a piano exhibit, at Chicago in 1893. I do not imagine that any firm of stamp dealers will try to make an exhibit there. Can you not work up some sort of editorial suggesting that some philanthropic philatelist who expects to have an exhibit of some kind at Jamestown make it a philatelic headquarters?"

Past Expositions—Before attempting to create a sentiment that may lead to the consummation of the plan of our correspondent, we wish to review at this season of the opening of the great exposition, at Jamestown, the philatelic aspects of similar occasions of the past. The time is appropriate for a brief outline of how philately was provided for during these festivals; and it may have its effect in accentuating the necessity of having a representation of some philatelic kind at the present exposition. At the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876, the government's display of its postal issues was an important one; reprints, re-issues and the 1847 imitations were prepared in order that the showing might be complete. The two Centennial envelopes issued to loan postal distinction were pioneer commemoration stamps; and on the grounds of the exhibition a machine was installed that printed the Philadelphia die envelopes before the interested spectators, some of whom purchased the envelopes at the counter for use and as souvenirs. We have read that there were exhibits of stamps by Brazil, and, perhaps, other countries, and by the American Bank Note Company at the Centennial.

Other Fairs—The World's Fair, Chicago, 1893, was advertised by that wonderful set of adhesives and envelopes, that were the most discussed and impressive postal emissions, perhaps, of all times. Long before the opening of the World's Fair, stamp collecting interests began to plan adequate philatelic displays at the Fair. The fruition was a worthy one; the American Philatelic Association promoted an exhibit, and several dealers made creditable displays. The United States and not a few other countries showed interesting examples of their postal securities. The stamp theme was noticeable in different ways throughout the Fair. The convention of the American Philatelic Association was held at Chicago in Fair time.

Later—The Omaha Exposition in 1898 was marked by the Trans-Mississippi series, a set that furnished a strong philatelic setting for Omaha's achievement. Isolated displays of philatelic kind were not unnoticed on this occasion. Many copies of a special number of the WEEKLY were distributed at the grounds. The immediate section of the country in which this exhibition was held was singularly receptive to the philatelic idea, and beneficial results followed the exploitation of philately at Omaha. The Pan-American, Buffalo, 1901, and the Louisiana Purchase Expositions, together with their stamps, are fresh in the minds of many readers. At Buffalo philately was not slighted. A special issue, with illuminated cover, of the WEEKLY was distributed from a booth there, and an elaborate single number, dedicated to the exposition, was a noteworthy production. The 1901 convention of the American Philatelic Association was held at Buffalo. At the St. Louis Exposition the United States government exhibit was a striking feature in the estimation of philatelists; the stamps were arranged scientifically, and were displayed effectively. The Charleston, S. C., and Portland, Oregon, fairs, while not emphasized by government stamp issues, were not allowed to pass without some philatelic imprint.

Advertising Benefit—The obliging authorities have given Jamestown its stamps, and it is devoutly to be wished that stamp displays of some kind be included among the exhibits at the great exposition. We know of the good accomplished by stamps on public view. The advertising advantages of stamps when shown to large numbers of people are plainly apparent; it is almost axiomatic that out of a certain number of persons, unacquainted with philately, who see stamps properly displayed, a percentage, though small, perhaps, are appealed to strongly by the stamps, and in the end embrace philately.

Let Us Hope—Philatelists who attended previous expositions always had a rendezvous of some sort, either at a stamp stall, a philatelic display, or at a non-philatelic exhibit in charge of a stamp collector. At several of the fairs collectors' days afforded opportunity for the congregation of kindred spirits. It will be regrettable if there is to be no place at Jamestown open for the reception of philatelists on the grounds, in the way of a meeting-point, where stamp collectors would feel assured of finding some of their fellows. A sort of headquarters, such as suggested by our correspondent, would relieve the situation pleasantly. Soon, we hope to be able to announce that there is a place of the kind where philatelists may resort, during the progress of the Jamestown exposition, already at their disposal.

Caution—Just in time, the WEEKLY proclaimed its neutrality in the campaign that is being waged in the American Philatelic Association. It would be unwise for us to allow contending claims to be argued in the reading columns; indications are that so much interest in the campaign will be excited that the number of letters would inundate us. By our course, no favoritism need be shown; and the opposing partizans who are working for their candidates probably will ask nothing better than a fair field. In this connection, several members of the association have written to express the hope that personalities will not enter the campaign, and that no bitterness will be engendered by the contest. We assume that the gentlemen, who are active in the political canvass of the association, are wise enough not to alienate the good will of members whose votes are solicited by descending to any questionable methods; first, their sound sense would show that such a course would incur the resentment of an intelligent audience, and, secondly, they are of a class that rises superior to a mean or nasty order of politics.

Startling—Here is a bit of information, important, if true. Before accepting the discovery seriously, it will be necessary to hear fuller favorable data which, no doubt, will be sought for by the German philatelic press. This is not the first time that "postage stamps," ostensibly issued long before the recognized stamp era began, have been uncovered in the newspaper press, but time showed that, after all, the laurels of Sir Rowland Hill were not in danger. The newspaper clipping follows:

BERLIN, April 20.—It has been discovered that the postage stamp was used as early as the year 1574. A resident of this city recently bought a book from the library of an ancient family named Detous. One, a Plantin, nicely bound, was covered with sheepskin. The purchaser removed the covering and found several papers, among them an address, presumably a letter covering, which bore a gray stamp about an inch square, on which the inscription read, "Good for 6¼ Groshens at the Bryfstall (stage offices) of the Seine Kurfursliche Durchlautch (His Serene Highness).

CANADIAN SUBSCRIPTIONS.

As stated last week we have been compelled to raise the subscription price of the WEEKLY to all points in Canada to $1.00. This is due to the policy of the Canadian Government, which last year summarily deprived many American publications of the privilege of being circulated at second-class rates. This compelled our postal officials to enter into a new treaty that would be free from unfair discrimination. Under the new rules, individual postage will be required. While we regret the increase in rates, our friends across the line will readily understand that it is not our fault but due to Canadian officials, who feel that the bond of postal union between Canada and the United States is crippling trade relations with the mother country. We do not know how it will impress our Canadian subscribers, but it seems like cheap statesmanship to us.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

TEXAS PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION.

Proceedings of the Eleventh Annual Convention, Held April 15, 1907.

By D. C. O. Wilson.

The eleventh annual convention of the Texas Philatelic Association was held at the rooms of the Scientific Society of San Antonio on Monday, April 15th, 1907. The meeting was called to order by President Edward W. Heusinger at 11.45 A.M., with the following members present: S. V. Pfeuffer, Otto Heilig, Prof. Chas. J. Lukin, Charles Roemer, Ad. C. Zoeller and D. C. O. Wilson.

On account of the lateness of the hour, and the small representation of membership, the regular procedure of appointing committees was dispensed with

The report of the retiring Secretary-Treasurer showed that there was in the General Fund, April 14, 1906, $47.99; that there was collected during the year $15.00, making a total of $62.99 and that there was expended during the same time $33.62, leaving a balance on hand of $29.37. The report further showed that the Insurance Fund on April 14, 1906, contained $89 43, and that there had been received interest from the San Antonio Loan & Trust Co., on the same amounting to $1.47, and collections from the Exchange Superintendent amounting to $5 08, making the total in the Insurance Fund $95.98, and showing a grand total of cash on hand of $125.35.

The report of Charles Roemer, Exchange Superintendent, showed that he received during the year 28 filled books of stamps amounting to $913.22, and that there had been retired 11 books valued at $508.32, from which there had been sold stamps to the value of $113.67, leaving 17 books valued at $404.90 still in circulation.

Both reports were accepted as read.

The election of a new board of officers was then proceeded with and for the purpose of counting the ballots Otto Heilig and D. C. O. Wilson were appointed tellers. They reported 14 ballots cast with the following result: For President, Edward W. Heusinger, 11 votes, scattering 1 vote; for Vice Presidents, G. C. Cuenod, 7 votes, Otto Staerker, 6 votes, scattering 6 votes; for Exchange Superintendent, Charles Roemer, 11 votes; for Associate Trustees, S. V. Pfeuffer, 5 votes, Otto Heilig, 3 votes, scattering 4 votes. The election of a Secretary-Treasurer having been left to the convention, upon motion of Mr. Heilig, seconded by Mr. Roemer, D. C. O. Wilson was unanimously elected as such.

A recess was then had at 1.15 to 3 30 P.M.

Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News was again selected as the official journal and San Antonio was likewise again selected as the next convention seat. A committee consisting of the President, the Secretary-Treasurer, and the Exchange Superintendent was then appointed to revise the Articles of Association and to submit the same for final approval to the Associate Trustees.

A resolution upon the death of Sam Schlenker was also adopted and a vote of thanks extended to the Scientific Society for the use of their rooms. A number of stamps were then shown and the convention adjourned at 4.45 P. M.

COMMUNICATION.

N. Y. City, April 13, 1907.

Editor Mekeel's Weekly:

In view of the claim of philately to rank as a science and to be the help-meet of history, why do you (in today's "Queries and Comment") and why does the so-called Standard Catalogue perpetuate the error of classing certain stamp issues under Italy when they belonged to Sardinia?

The modern Italian Kingdom dates from March 1861, when the then King of Sardinia (Victor Emanuel), having overthrown, with the acclaim of their subjects, the princes of Tuscany, Parma, Modena, etc., proclaimed himself King of Italy. The first issue of stamps for Italy appeared early in 1862 and was the same as the last issue of Sardinia plus perforations.

Sardinia deserves, moreover, a special place in our books and albums—and it is accorded such by all European cataloguers and publishers—because as early as 1819, and again in 1820, it issued a set of three stamped envelopes (or letter-sheets) of semi-postal semi-fiscal character, which are said to have been in use until 1836. Further particulars and illustrations may be found in Haas' "Lehrbuch," pp. 7–12, published by Senf in 1906.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Penn. Red Cross Branch, through its secretary, Joseph A. Steinmetz, is sending out an appeal for assistance for the American residents of Kingston, Jamaica. Conditions are reported as being in critical shape and assistance is imperative.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Wm. T. Kimball, Edw. J. Meehan, August H. Hoffman (5), F. G. Ross, Eben S. Martin, Clinton L. Chalfant (2), Hugo Kuenstler (4), Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., and Ralph Morse.

—A bill has been reported in the Massachusetts House of Representatives providing for the taxation of transfers of stock, the bill being patterned very closely after the New York law. It is estimated that the levying of this tax will increase the annual revenue of the commonwealth by $250,000.

—Arthur J. Palethorpe, who so kindly donated a half dozen of his gold posthorn badges in our literary competition, writes us as follows in a brief comment upon Mr. Lines' article in our issue of March 9:—"The last post mark illustrated is used by the Controller of the P. O. Savings Bank. It is not usual for P. O. official correspondence generally to have the amount of postage denoted thereon. There are two offices in London to my knowledge, viz:—Nos. 18 and 19, from which P. O. official correspondence is sent, and which used for this purpose a circular red post mark inscribed 'London Official Paid,' giving the time of posting, date and number of office, but the amount of postage is not stated."

—Jos. A. Steinmetz very kindly submits for our inspection an orignal "Government Notice," issued by the Barbados postal authorities in connection with the Kingston Relief Fund surcharge on the 1d. This poster is to be framed and hung in the office of the Philadelphia Society.

—The new album, advertised by the New England Stamp Co. as per our last week's issue, is certainly a gem. We have had the privilege of examining it, and its publishers do not claim any too much for it. It will, without doubt, become a great favorite with the fast increasing body of collectors who require a movable leaf album. If thinking of procuring an album, we should certainly advise an examination of the merits of this the latest one placed on the market.

—On Thursday evening last the American Envelope Society was organized in Boston. Information may be obtained from the secretary, Henry S. Linnemann, 9 Sewall Ave., Brookline, Mass. We shall publish the prospectus in our next issue.

—L. Harald Kjellstedt favors us with the 1907 year book of the Philatelic Society of Sweden, containing the names of members with addresses. We notice in the American section no less than 41 names.

—We have received from J. C. Morgenthau & Co. the catalog of their 10th sale listing stamps contained in the collection of the late Wm. Thorne. We cannot take the space necessary to describe the splendid features of this sale. A good line of stamps is offered, Iceland comprising 170 lots being offered in a block at a reserved price of $1600.00. Should there be no sale the stamps will be sold in small lots. We advise a perusal of this catalog, which is in itself a philatelic educator. Sale to be held May 23 and 24.

—The Chicago Daily News of recent date contained a DeRuyter story illustrated with a picture of one of the commemorative stamps recently issued.

—August H. Hoffmann is contributing stamp items regularly to the Little Gem, Loveland, Colo.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—J. M. Bartels is the first to show us specimens of the new Jamestown stamps which have just been issued to postoffices making requisition for them. A full description was given some time since, so that perhaps it is only necessary to say that they present an appearance fully as attractive as the Louisiana Purchase stamps of 1904.

The stamps are a small oblong like the Pan American set, though all in one color. The 1c has a portrait of Capt. John Smith, with the usual information as to date of birth and death, while the 2c shows the landing of the English at Jamestown in 1607. Both values have "Commemorative Series, 1907," and "Founding of Jamestown, 1607" as a part of the descriptive legends.

Adhesives.

1c green.
2c carmine.

AUSTRIA.—The North Shore Stamp Co. favors us with a specimen of the 5h in yellow green. This is Scott's No. 89 which, however, is catalogued as slate. Evidently an error. It is without the bars or varnish.

BRITISH GUIANA.—The North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us a specimen of the 72c lilac and orange brown on multiple chalky paper.

GERMANY.—Mr. Schachne has more varieties of the provisional 3 on 2 pfen. card. Mr. Morse has also the 3 on 2pf with narrow lines and watermark S3 with "Drucksache" printed in blue in ordinary Roman type; also 3 on 2pf, narrow lines, no watermark, as well as both halves of the double, all on buff card.

Post Cards.

Narrow address lines.
3 on 2pf blue card, wmk. Z5.
3 on 2pf blue card, wmk. S2.
3 on 2pf blue card, no wmk.
3 on 2pf blue card, S3, "Drucksache" in new type.
3 on 2pf buff card, no wmk.
3 on 2pf buff card, no wmk., Original.
3 on 2pf buff card, no wmk, Reply.
Wide address lines.
3 on 2pf blue card, wmk, Z1.

GUATEMALA. — Hermann Focke reports that he is informed on good authority that no 25c value is to be issued, but that toward the end of this year, or the beginning of the next, a set of five stamps will be issued to commemorate the completion of the Interoceanic Railway of Guatemala.

ITALY.—The Indian Stamp Co. informs us that Mr. Newman's stamp, described in No. 851, is one of a series issued in 1906. They were offered to dealers in this country by an Italian firm, but no description of the object for which they were issued was forthcoming. The other values seen were 10c brown and 25c blue (with black centres?) in addition to the 5c carmine and black.

Mr. Schachne now reports the arrival of the card chronicled in No. 845.

Post Card.

5x10c green and rose on gray T3, date 06.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke sends us several curiosities from this country. They include the 1c green official stamp of 1906, surcharged "Vale 20 cts" and "Vale 50c", in the latter case the usual inverted emblem being used to indicate centavos. The "Vale 20 cts" is in larger type, but the other value has a surcharge like the 1904 type. The former has the following varieties: Surcharge reading up; surcharge reading down; "Vale" with an accent on the "a"; "cls" for "cts". All surcharges seen are in black.

Provisional Adhesives.

"Vale 20 cts" on 1c green Official.
"Vale 50c" on 1c green Official.

SOLOMON ISLANDS.—Our English contemporaries illustrate the new series of stamps just issued for these islands. The designs suggests the stamps of British New Guinea, just going out, the central picture being a native war canoe with high ends, and filled with dusky warriors. The inscription at the top reads "British Solomon Islands—Protectorate," in two curved lines. There are native palms and foliage; at the side the figures of value, thus "1d" appearing in large circles in each of the lower corners, with "Postage." The upper corners of the design are rounded.

The stamps were printed at Sydney in sheets of 60, in 10 rows of six stamps, on unwatermarked paper, and perforated 11. There is only one design, and the stamps are printed in one color.

Adhesives.

1d rose carmine.
2d dark blue.
2½d orange yellow.
5d emerald green.
6d chocolate brown.
1sh deep violet.

MISSIONARY STAMPS.

Old Stamps are solicited by Religious Missions and Charitable Associations in France, Switzerland, Belgium, Germany and other parts of the world. This means of collecting supplies of cancelled postage stamps has grown during the past twenty years to enormous proportions.

Charitable people in all parts of the civilized world are saving stamps from current correspondence and from old letters, and shipping their accumulations to the depositories assigned to receive them. This work of accumulation is going on in countries and colonies all over the world.

The proceeds from the sale of these stores of stamps are devoted to charity, educational and missionary work.

The people collecting these stamps know and care nothing about their value. Stamps collected in Holland are quite likely to have Transvaals, Capes and Dutch colonies. Belgium mixtures include scattering stamps of Congo Free State. Great Britain mixtures have officials and colonials, etc., etc.

The magnitude of this collection may be conceived when a lot of 500 Tons is offered.

CHEAP STAMPS CHEAP!

I have a stock of stamps consigned by Missions in Belgium, Holland, France and Switzerland. These include lots collected in Italy, Austria, Gt. Britain and other countries (U. S. and Canada excluded as far as possible).

These stocks from various sources have been mixed together so that every lot of 1000 Contains Over 250 Varieties.

Some have found between 400 and 500 varieties in a single 1000! Some have found single stamps worth the price of the lot, but I cannot guarantee anything like that it is obvious.

This is an unpicked mixture, and I have thousands of testimonials from parties who were pleased, and the chance of good things is fair for all. In any case, the stamps are worth the money.

1000—25c. 5000—$1.00.
POST FREE.

If you buy one lot, you will come again and AGAIN!

I am commissioned to sell 500 Tons (at 25c per 1000—this is a million dollars). It is the cheapest and best mixture ever offered.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Swedish postal museum, which was to have been opened about Christmas, is to contain a stamp collection and will help raise philately to a higher dignity in the eyes of the public. Before long there will be few countries that do not have a national stamp collection.

—The "Land-Post" stamps of Baden are due stamps, which were used in the rural mail of Baden only. The rural mail was an institution quite distinct from the city mail and states' mail, and letters or parcels which passed from the Land-Post to the state's post were not subject to the use of the Land-Post-Porto-Mark. They were used only in such cases, where a piece of mail that was insufficiently prepaid remained within the rural district or passed from one to another such district without the intervention of the state's post, or where an insufficiently prepaid parcel that came from the state's post was delivered by the rural carrier and the insufficiency represented that amount which the rural carrier was entitled to receive as his pay for delivering the parcel. In other words, these stamps were used only for such amounts as were due to the rural carriers and not for such as were due to the state's post. Few of these stamps were used though the time of their use extended from 1863 to 1871. The proper cancellation is that of a cog-wheel with a number in the center. For a thorough treatment see Dr. Kalkhopf's article in Senf's Ill. Briefmarken-Journal, Nos. 668 and 669, also C. Lindenberg's, No. 670.

BULLETIN No. 2.

In the last issue of the WEEKLY, we stated the reasons why MR. DOEBLIN, candidate for PRESIDENT, and MR. CONING, candidate for SECRETARY, were the best men for their respective offices. If any members have not read these announcements, this Committee would be glad to forward this information, upon request. We might add that we are at all times willing and ready to give members complete information on all points concerning our

MEASURES AND MEN.

Our candidates for VICE-PRESIDENTS are men of high standing in this community. MR. WOLSELEY is an attorney of long and varied experience, and is well known for his keen mind and ripe judgment. The great advantage of having a lawyer on the BOARD of VICE-PRESIDENTS must be evident to all. MR. MICHAEL has served as VICE-PRESIDENT for the past year and his present associates, MR. H. N. MUDGE and MR. H. A. FOWLER, testify to his earnest work and sagacity. MR. MANN, accountant of the Illinois Central Railroad, is admirably equipped, by disposition as well as by experience, to serve with distinction on the BOARD of VICE-PRESIDENTS.

MR. EATON, candidate for TREASURER, needs no introduction to the members. He has been Secretary for a term of years and is now International Secretary. MR. EATON is an indefatigable worker and in his care our finances will be in able and safe hands.

MR. KLEMANN, a Governor of The Collectors' Club, representing the great State of New York, and constantly coming in contact with many collectors and the trade at home and abroad, will make an admirable INTERNATIONAL SECRETARY.

MR. PREVOST, candidate for DIRECTOR from the State of Massachusetts, is a man of sterling character, sound judgment and admitted philatelic zeal.

MR. CORNWALL, of Missouri, well known as an attorney in St. Louis, and a philatelic writer of prominence, will add lustre and ability to the BOARD of DIRECTORS.

If you want to protect your interests as stockholders as well as collectors, if you do NOT want to place on your shoulders the yoke of Control by the Trade

ARE YOU GOING TO DENVER?

As the time for appointing the Committee on Credentials is not far distant the President would request those members who are planning to be at the convention to notify him by postal card in order that he may know from whom he can select members of that committee. The Denver committee are also desirous of knowing how many to expect in order to perfect their plans for entertainment. Kindly attend to this as soon as possible. [53

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

BOSTON, April 22, 1907.

New England Branch No. 20 of Boston held a largely attended meeting in Elks' Hall, Boston, at 7 P. M., Tuesday, April 16th.

An interesting discussion was held concerning matters relating to the Association, and certain matters were placed in the hands of the Executive Committee for action.

The Executive Committee reported on matters previously delegated to it and a very successful and pleasant meeting was enjoyed.

Branch 20 has had some additions to its strength, and promises to be very successful.

President Stone of Springfield will attend the May meeting of the Boston Philatelic Society, and as this meeting will be along recruiting lines, he will be asked to speak on Association topics to the many strangers expected to be present at that time.

The 226th meeting of the T. C. P. S. was held Apr. 25, at 422 6th Ave. President Hemphill called the meeting to order and roll call showed 14 members present, also two visitors. The minutes of last meeting were read and approved. It was moved and seconded that all bills be paid to date. E. Doeblin exhibited his collection of France, Switzerland, Spain, Norway and Sweden. He was tendered a vote of thanks for this exhibition, same being greatly enjoyed. Mr. Miller also showed a fine collection of Canadian Revenues. J. G. Linn of 922 Mellon St., E. E., Pittsburg, was unanimously elected to membership. A committee consisting of E. Doeblin, Chairman, W. A. Hemphill and H. E. Wilson was appointed to report on the advisability of giving a dinner in June in honor of the founding of the Society. As there was no new business on hand the Society adjourned at 10.30 P. M.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

April 20, 1907.

I desire to call the attention of our members to the fact that we are not adding new names to our membership roll. A little effort on the part of each member should increase our membership materially before the time of our second annual convention in August next, when we would like to show a substantial gain over our numbers of last year. Will each member please consider himself especially appointed to get at least one collector to sign an application blank and become a member of our State Society? All who do so will be rewarded in a suitable manner at the expiration of our fiscal year. There are many, many collectors in our state to whom a membership in our Society would be an advantage and with a little missionary work by each member we can give our Society a great impetus. You know a Society which shows no progress is NOT standing still; it is declining. We do not want to be in the latter class but we must have our members' co-operation to keep our Society at the head of the State Societies.

I also want you to carefully note the above report of our Sales Department and I take this opportunity to say that this department is not patronized as it should be. There are numbers of good stamps in circulation and it will well repay any member to see that he gets the circuits which Mr. Wollenberger is sending out. Our Superintendent has gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to put his department in first class shape and I trust the members will show their appreciation of his work and take more interest in it than heretofore and give Mr. Wollenberger your hearty support. It is to YOUR INTEREST to do so. I would like to hear from each member with an expression of his views on the above matters.

BOSTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

Grand Open Meeting and Exhibition at Young's Hotel, Parlor Twelve, May 21st, 8 O'Clock.

BOSTON, May 8, 1907.

TO ALL STAMP COLLECTORS:—

The B. P. S. will hold an Open Meeting and Exhibition at Young's Hotel, on Tuesday evening, May 21, at 8 o'clock. Your presence as our guest is not only requested, but earnestly urged that you may better understand the objects and aims of our society. Hold this date, May 21, for this purpose and you will declare it to be the grandest philatelic experience you have ever known. The Providence and Springfield societies have both been invited to attend and a goodly number is expected.

THE PROGRAM.

A Continual Feast of Good Things.

(1) An Auction Sale of Stamps Donated by Members.

(2) Reception to Pres. Wm. C. Stone of the Am. Phil. Ass'n.

(3) Competitive Exhibit:—Stamps of the Canal Zone.

(4) A Stamp Study Talk by Pres. C. A. Howes of the B. P. S.

(5) Brief Addresses by Representative Philatelists.

(6) Exhibits: Hawaiians by Mr. Green; Chinese Treaty Ports by Mr. Howes; Envelopes by Mr. Berthold; Twentieth Century by Mr. Carpenter; United States by Mr. Rothfuchs; Liberia by Mr. Foster.

Each exhibit will be superintended by its owner, with the exception that Mr. Bartels will show Mr. Foster's Liberia.

The opportunity to examine these superb collections should not pass unheeded. We have insufficient space to describe each separately but their mere mention should of themselves prove a magnet of irresistable power.

A party will be made up to attend a ball game in the afternoon, to cheer the Boston Nationals on to victory. Meet at the WEEKLY office at 2 o'clock P. M.

THE INVITATION

is extended to you and your friends to join with us in this gala occasion as the guests of our society. Please notify the Committee if you expect to attend, as soon as possible that we may make an estimate of the probable attendance.

Respectfully yours,

WILLARD O. WYLIE, EDW. de Z. KELLEY, C. K. B. NEVIN, Special Com. Chairman Ent. Com.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The Ohio State Journal of April 28 contained the stamp study published in the WEEKLY two weeks ago and dealing with the tuberculosis issue of Holland. The article is illustrated, showing the design of the issue. Columbus philatelists are to be congratulated upon having such an active worker as Paul Mason in their midst. The attention paid philately by the Journal is no doubt very largely due to Mr. Mason's connection with it in an editorial way.

—The Scranton Philatelic Society sends the WEEKLY two new subscriptions for the advancement of philately in that city. One is to go to the Public Library, and the other the Y. M. C. A. This is publicity work of the highest order and the example should bear fruit.

—A. C. Stewart of the Toledo Stamp Co. in a brief note informs us of the death of Joe Copper of the Tiffin Stamp Co. No particulars are at hand excepting that Mr. Copper met his death by drowning on Sunday morning, April 28.

—We have received from the Nassau Stamp Co. the auction catalog of their second sale to be held Tuesday, May 21. The collection of John D. Carberry rich in unused U. S., Chile, Greece, Queensland, Straits Settlements, Uruguay and Portuguese Colonies will be sold.

—The Toledo Stamp Co. wishes to sound a warning against John Kinsley of 308 West Locust St., Dubuque, Ia. Mr. Kinsley wrote the Toledo Co. for an approval selection giving as a reference H. Kertsch of Dubuque but a letter mailed to the latter gentleman requesting information as to the reliability of Kinsley failed to be delivered.

—No. 4 of the Boston Junior Stamp News reaches this office in a new dress. The publisher, Day Kimball, gets out a very interesting publication and will no doubt be willing to supply sample copies to those of our readers who may wish to see the same. Price 5c. The subscription price is 50c per year. Mr. Kimball may be addressed at 343 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

THE BARROCHI COLLECTION of Italy and States, Tuscany, Naples, Romagna, Two Sicilies, etc., has passed into our hands.

This collection lists up to some Thirty Thousand Dollars and has such trifles as Naples Trinacria unused, Tuscany Three Lire unused, 60 crazia unused, used (singles and pairs) etc.

We shall be glad to hear from serious collectors who desire to inspect this superb lot, probably the finest line of these stamps ever offered for sale at reasonable prices.

WHOLESALE SUPPLIES.

My new wholesale list greatly enlarged and priced in U. S. currency is in the press, and will be posted to all my customers during April. All dealers desiring reasonable quotations on cheap stamps per 10, 100 or 1000 should send for it.

I do not claim that my prices are always cheaper than those of other dealers, but I do claim that no dealer in the world pays more attention to the condition of all stamps supplied to customers. All stamps are delivered free from paper and in good condition. This is of far more importance to dealers than low prices (which usually mean a large proportion of damaged stuff). However,

"The Proof of the Pudding is in the eating" and all I ask is the favor of a trial order from those American dealers not already on my books.

Columbian Stamp Co., Arlington, Mass., write 13th March, 1907: "Stamps duly to hand and very satisfactory."

Send name and address on a post card and lists will be forwarded regularly.

S. B. HOPKINS, (A.P.A., M.P.A., etc.)
5728 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

—Early in March the WEEKLY made public the information that forged Philippines were on the market and our subscribers were cautioned to use great care in purchasing the same. Our early warning prevented but little imposition, two or three complaints only reaching this office. Should there be any other interested party communicate with Max A. Lesser, 302 Broadway, N. Y. City, who has the case against the Monroe Stamp Co. in hand.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from the following: J. F. Hinson, G. Meye, Paul Mason, G. de Lachesse, T. C. Mann, Grant Cordrey, Mac H. Sanborn, John B. Howe, F. D. Goodhue and John A. Solomon (3).

—The one and two cent denominations of the Jamestown Exposition stamps were placed on sale in Chicago on May 2nd. There were many inquiries for the stamps for several days before the arrival of the requisition and when, on Thursday afternoon, the one and two-cent stamps were first offered, there was a long line of purchasers at the windows.

—The daily newspapers generally, throughout the country had appreciative comment on the appearance of the stamps; and in some instances, an attempt was made to inject a bit of philatelic information into the notices by well-meaning editors.

—John A. Solomon sends us the result of a hearing given American publishers protesting against the enforcement of the recent amendment to the postal compact with Canada. Our postal authorities claim that the new arrangement is entirely Canadian in conception and that no concessions can be secured other than what have been already outlined. Canada has full control of her own postal affairs.

—H. Wesley Legg, Boston, was a visitor to Chicago some weeks ago, where he met local philatelists, and was a heavy buyer at Wolsieffer's last auction sale.

—F. D. Goodhue sends us a newspaper clipping calling attention to the retirement from active business life of Geo. N. Daniels of whom it is said that he created the "Empire State Express" and induced the government to use a picture of the train on the 2c stamp of the Pan-American issue. He has been identified with railroad life for many years and has the reputation of being the only man who has succeeded in using government stamps as a means of advertising a private business. This publicity scheme referred to is considered one of the most daring ever put through by an advertising man.

—The Chicago Philatelic Society is now installed in its new quarters, room 523, Roanoke building, 145 LaSalle St.

—"What is the difference between a stamp perforated 14 and another one perf. 12, or between one on watermarked paper and another one on paper without a watermark?" There is not much difference unless one buys or sells them; then it may be a matter of dollars.

STAMPS OF PERU SHOWN.

Luff Collection Displayed at Board of Trade Room.

The Peruvian stamps of John N. Luff of New York were displayed last night at a special meeting of the Columbus Collectors' club, in the assembly room of the Board of Trade. There was a large attendance, including almost the entire membership of the club, many unaffiliated local collectors and W. H. Schaffner of Marion, president of the Marion County bank; E. F. Tate of Chicago and W. H. Field of Cleveland.

Two applications for membership were received. Votes of thanks were extended to the Board of Trade for the use of the assembly room and to Mr. Luff for putting his collection at the disposal of the club. The collection consists of more than 2000 varieties, and is valued above $5000.—Journal, May 2.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

An esteemed correspondent writes: "I notice that you say that in the case of a stamp, one-cent blue, instead of green, sea water will produce the change. I am in no way attempting to dispute this, but I am enclosing for your inspection, a strip of four 1-cent blue, current issue, that I received from a correspondent who said that he obtained them at the postoffice and used almost two sheets before he discovered that they were blue instead of green." The stamps shown us had the original gum unimpaired and were blue in color by any odds, but the blue did not match the blue color of any of the other stamps in the current set, thus discouraging in a way, any error theory that the optimist might hold. A mild process of "chlorination," we believe, will alter green to blue, without changing the characteristics of the original gum; and we quote from the findings of a philatelic investigator: "That green easily changes to blue is in all probability known to every collector; why, green stamps from over the sea are only too easily exposed to being spoiled in this way, on the voyage." We have seen half penny green Great Britain that had been recovered after having been submerged in a wreck at sea; they had become blue in color.

A. W. D.:—"Here is a copy of a letter, mailed in 1851, that came into my possesion lately. Why does it bear the impression, 'Paid 3,' when there were actual stamps in use at the time?" For some years, after the introduction of stamps, 1847, the use of postage stamps was optional with the sender of a letter. If it were elected to pay in cash, when the letter was handed over the counter, it was the privilege to do so; hence, in 1851, the "Paid 3" marking as described by our correspondent. An act approved in 1855, provided: "And from and after the first day of January, 1856, the Postmaster General may require postmasters to place postage stamps upon all prepaid letters, upon which such stamps may not have been placed by the writers."

E. M. G.:—Inverted watermarks are met with occasionally but cataloguers do not attach interest enough to them to list them sparately. They are the result of feeding the watermarked sheet into the printing press, upside down. After all, such watermarks are inverted only in relation to the base of the stamp, which, if turned the other way, would show the watermark in normal condition. Mr. Krauth has said: "The only genuinely inverted watermark known is the heraldic emblem watermark of Great Britain, in which the roses should always show two petals at top and three below, but which sometimes show three petals at top and two below."

F. J. G.:—The envelopes described are the regular United States governmentally printed envelopes with the "frank" of the Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express. While the frank enhances the value of each envelope, yet, as there is no established market for "franks" it is impossible to tell exactly what your specimens are worth; even so, most of the franks on envelopes since the 1870 issue are not uncommon. Wells, Fargo & Company used preliminary types of franks before the first regular issue of United States envelopes appeared, in 1853. The franks of the company named are among those of scores of other companies that operated in the west in by-gone days and penetrated to sections of the country not served directly by the government postal service. The Wells, Fargo & Company express is the most important of the companies and some of its franks are quite common.

A STAMP STARTED IT.

Twenty years ago the postmistress of South Chicago, Phenie Lauritzen, sold a postage stamp to H. M. Brown, a good looking electrician who had just come to work in the mills of the Illinois Steel company. Since then the postmistress has sent Brown something like 2,000 postage stamps and Brown has sent her enough foreign stamps to fill a stamp album.

A few weeks after Brown bought that 2 cent stamp he left South Chicago and has traveled all over the world. At every place he stopped he found a packet of letters from the postmistress and mailed a packet in exchange. A few days ago a letter came postmarked Manila, P. I., and as soon as she had read it Miss Lauritzen began preparations for a wedding.

Brown announced that he had been granted a leave of absence from the Manila fire department and is now on his way back to South Chicago. On May 8 the marriage is to take place at the home of Miss Lauritzen, 9008 Houston avenue.—Chicago Tribune.

THE AMERICAN ENVELOPE SOCIETY.

On Thursday evening, April 25th, 1907, a society was formed for the collection, study, and exchange of U. S. and foreign entire and cut square envelopes, wrappers, and letter sheets, and all those interested in this subject are heartily invited to join.

There has long been need of such a society, and all collectors should encourage this movement, with pecuniary, as well as moral support, so as to place this interesting branch of philately in the position it rightfully belongs.

There is need of such a society.

There will be great benefits derived through the exchange department.

There will be a society journal sent to each member containing valuable articles by well known writers on envelopes.

There will be a purchasing department organized as soon as practicable, which will supply members with all new issues at cost.

There are some of our most progressive and enthusiastic collectors and students interested in this society whose stability insures its success from the start.

There are few great rarities, thus a representative collection may be brought together at small expense.

All collectors are eligible on payment of $1.00 annual dues for the current year ending December 31, 1907, and if paid before July 1st, 1907, are entitled to be enrolled as charter members.

Anyone who desires any further information or has any suggestions to make is invited to write and all dues are to be sent to the secretary-treasurer, HENRY S. LINNEMANN, 9 Sewell Ave., Brookline, Mass.

The first regular meeting of the American Envelope Society will be held Wednesday evening, May 8th, 1907, at 8 o'clock, at Room 448, Old South Bldg., Boston, Mass. Your attendance is earnestly requested as there will be important business that needs your approval.

—"Collectors may be very glad of a simplified catalogue for collecting by, but they will want a catalogue of quite a different sort for purposes of pricing their duplicates."—Major Evans in the Monthly Journal.

EDITORIAL.

For the Future—In the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, a writer, inspired by the news of the impending issue for the Solomon Islands, names British possessions that while now unrepresented by stamps, seem to be eligible for the stamp issuing category. The wrtier lists almost a dozen possibilities, chiefly in the Pacific and in Africa; evidently, he has closely scanned his Whitaker's for additions to the number. In time, the world will have become so postalized that the most remote and unfamiliar countries will have their stamp messengers. Philatelists, indeed, have served a civilizing end; they have hastened the coming of stamps from many lands that otherwise would have been backwards in adopting them. The philatelist and his money have become a factor in the estimation of governments that consider the propriety of stamp issues. The countries that do not issue stamps now are the exception, when, say, forty years ago, the countries that had stamps were made distinctive. For instance, in a "timbrophilic review of the year 1868," we read under the notice: New Stamp Issuing Countries: "There are not many, as we can only count six, one of them being doubtful. They are as follows: Orange Free State, Azores, Sarawak, Madeira, Paraquay (doubtful), and the Dominion of Canada, representing in all thirty-one stamps."

Bogus Old Timers—The Paraguay stamps assigned to the year 1868 (or 1867) were properly questioned for it was proved that they were fictitious labels that were foisted on the market by schemers. The controversy regarding the authenticity of these frauds was a lively one at the time, and for a while their real character was in doubt. About the time of the appearance of the Paraguayan productions, various other fictitious stamps were promoted to deceive collectors. There were bogus varieties ostensibly from some of the South and Central countries in particular. The bogus stamp has been dismissed from the serious role that once it played in philately and it no longer is a disquieting influence to be coped with. Each succeeding year, the philatelic pool becomes clarified, and the protection afforded collectors becomes the more secure through the co-operation of the forces for good.

Philatelic Protection—The Stamp Trade Protection Association, an English corporation, whose purpose is denoted by its name, embodies among its objects, the one "to take notice, and action if deemed necessary, in the event of the trade being misrepresented in the public press or elsewhere, and generally to deal with any subject affecting the general interests of the trade." This intention cannot be too highly commended. It is based on the suggestion, in a qualified way, that has been repeated so often in this paper that the collector who sees in the non-philatelic press distortions of the truth and rank mis-statements should write to correct the wrongful remarks. It is not likely that garbled philatelic accounts will ever be wholly suppressed in the public sheets, yet the inaccuracies may be neutralized or even used as a stepping-stone to a pleasant preachment on the hobby. The feasibility of the trade combination to protect, among other aims, the commercial interests of philately, as a sort of adjunct to the idea just expressed, is apparent. The association becomes the guardian of an important part of philately and it may yield a moral effect that will help philately materially.

Here—Protective organizations for dealers in this country have not been lacking in by-gone days but at present there is no large or important body of the kind that receives general support. We understand that a limited number of dealers are banded together for the interchange among themselves of confidential reports concerning frauds, undesirable customers, etc., but this exclusive body does not meet the popular idea of a dealers' protective association. Any protective organization that would be satisfactory in its workings so far as serving its primary end, and include a measure such as embodied in the plan of the English association, as specified, would meet with favor in this country, we should take it. Collectors, as well as dealers, would be interested in such a conservator of philatelic morals.

Forged—A Colombo, Ceylon, correspondent says: "The official Ceylon 'On Service' stamps which have been commanding high prices have had their sale militated against by the appearance of forgeries; likewise the Ceylon stamps, surcharged Maldives."

Our Policy—It is apparent that great interest is felt in the present campaign that is being waged in the American Philatelic Association. Some of the members who have allied themselves with the opposing sides and who have sent us for publication partizan announcements are informed that the WEEKLY in its conviction that it should remain neutral, under the existing conditions, will not publish these political communications in its reading columns. We made this declaration before the campaign was begun, and we repeat it to account for the absence of the letters from members that have been directed to the paper. The official department of the American Philatelic Association in this paper includes all the reports from officers and this material we publish in the name of the American Philatelic Association.

No Corner—A newspaper says that the Kingston Relief Fund surcharge was inadvertently printed upside down on one sheet. "A well-known philatelist immediately bought up the lot at the rate of four shillings each. The moment the governor heard of it, he ordered that 6,000 more should be struck off. It is easy to imagine the chagrin of the philatelist." The action of the governor proves that the inverted surcharge was "applied inadvertently." This personage showed a striking regard for the feelings of philatelists—except one—by his incisive order. In view of the fact that some of the inverted surcharges known to philatelists are not above suspicion on the score of good postal faith, and we are not forgetting certain little irregularities attending the appearance of the four-cent, invert center, Pan-American, the incident is refreshing, and will meet with the hearty approval of all collectors, but the one who says that enterprise has met with a poor reward in his case.

Overdue—The Jamestown stamps have been awaited patiently by collectors throughout the country. While some of the sanguine collectors believed that these special stamps would be placed on sale the dav the exposition was opened, other philatelists, knowing how seemingly inevitable some delay is on such occasions did not expect the stamps at the appointed time. From newspaper clippings sent from different cities, we gather that collectors have been watching intently for the stamps. In some cases, crowds at the post-offices were turned away disappointedly, with the assurance that the stamps would be on sale soon. Probably some time before this item is in print, the stamps commemorative of the great exposition at Jamestown will have been studied with satisfaction by the majority of collectors.

Mild Enough—A correspondent in Holland writes to say that the patriotic impulses appealed to by the appearance of the De Ruyter commemorative stamps lose some of their strength by reason of the tawdry appearance of the stamps; he says that better workmanship of the specimens would have added to philatelic as well as public satisfaction.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE TRIALS OF A NON-PHILATELIST.

BY ABBY DURKEE.

"No," replied Mrs. Martyn, "we go on tomorrow. We have concluded to go to Canada for a time, and perhaps to California for the winter," said Mrs. Martyn.

The following day they left for Toronto. Mrs. Martyn said she had always heard that Canada was a slower place, and, possibly, they might not be surrounded with stamps in albums everywhere present.

They reached their destination in safety, went to the finest hotel, had everything at hand that one could wish for. They took a drive through "Queen's Park," that is so noted for its beauty, and were, indeed, quite in love with the place Their second evening they went into the parlor where they heard fine music, and some ladies addressed them, inviting them into an adjoining parlor to see a very fine exhibition of stamps that were here from all over the world—among them a collection from England.

There seemed to be no other way, and Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison accepted the invitation and were, indeed, well pleased with the people they met.

Mrs. Martyn said: "Lelia, this is a different phase of stamp collecting than any that I have ever seen before. These are grand people, so refined and intelligent, but it is stamps—there seems to be no escape. It is everywhere."

"To California we will go after making a short visit at the home of my cousin 'en route,'" said Mrs. Martyn.

The visit was a pleasant one in a western city. Mrs. Gibbons, cousin of Mrs. Martyn, had a son and daughter at home with school friends visiting them. Games, music and charades made merry times. One evening, during their stay, they had a dance in the ball room on the third floor. Mrs. Martyn said, "This is like living; why, I have not danced in years! and just see how those fiddlers gave us the good old-fashioned 'Virginia Reel' and 'cotillions' of 'ye old style.' I should like to grow young again every year instead of older and older!"

The next day the young people invited all their friends to see the wonderful exhibit of collections of stamps these college boys and others had to show. They had judges and a prize for the best exhibit.

The prize was won by a student, who said his uncle bought a very fine collection from the widow of a philatelist. She was not a collector, and not at all pleased that he was, and she sold the whole stock for a song, and now it brings me the five hundred dollar prize, and in a few years I shall have added much to its worth.

When Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison went to their rooms Mrs. Martyn said, "I hope they will never learn who that party is that sold that collection 'for a song.' It was a beautiful collection, and so well mounted; and on every album his monogram in gold. Mr. Martyn took so much pains with his work—all so neatly done. I have looked those albums over and over with him, and recognized the books as soon as I saw them. I felt faint."

Mrs. Martyn was silent for some time, then said, "It seems as though the ghost of philately follows me; if I see him many times more I shall surely become one of his devotees, and if I should take up the work King Edward would have to look to his laurels. I have only one regret. I wish I had helped my dear husband more, and made him happy in his work."

Their trip to California was a delightful one—sunshine and flowers with good company everywhere made life worth living. In every hotel were stamp collectors and stamps, and all philatelic supplies for sale.

Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison made many warm friends in their travels in California, and as the spring advanced felt they must turn homeward, attend to some business matters, and in the autumn go again wherever it seemed best when the time came. On their way they visited Denver, reached there just in time to see the officers of the Federated Philatelic organizations in session, preparing programs for the year's work and showing their fine collections.

"Well, Mrs. Martyn," said Miss Denison, "Here we are right in the midst of more stamps. One of the officers we met in Los Angeles is here. He seemed surprised to learn that we are here."

"Did you tell him we were on our way east?" said Mrs. Martyn.

"Yes, I told him, and he said he would call upon us this afternoon."

"Call upon us," said Mrs. Martyn. "What is his name?"

"I think you will know him," said Miss Denison. "I refer to Mr. C. F. Merideth of New York."

"Mr. Merideth! Well, well. Wonders never cease. He will be welcome."

Mrs. Martyn received her home letters in Denver. She had given the postmaster weekly instructions where to send mail, and one old neighbor had looked after her home and had made reports at intervals, also giving news of the town. This day a letter came from her Aunt Caroline Douglas from Minnesota announcing the death of Uncle Roland Douglas, Mrs. Martyn's father's brother, a bachelor, and his sister Caroline, a maiden lady, had always lived with her brother.

In his will—so the letter stated—her uncle had left Mrs. Martyn one-half of his estate. The home he gave to his sister during her life, and made other arrangements for her comfort. To Mrs. Martyn he gave all the things that were in a closet opening out of the front chamber, and in a sealed letter he told her where to find the key, and also gave further instructions. Aunt Caroline said she hoped Mrs. Martyn would make no delay.

"This changes our plans," said Mrs. Martyn. "We must go to the old place; it is fifteen miles from the railroad—a hard ride. Uncle Roland was very eccentric, and odd as Dick's hat band. He was almost ninety years old."

"Possibly," continued Mrs. Martyn, "the things were all removed from that closet twenty years ago; but we will go and see Aunt Caroline. One thing sure, there will be no philatelists nor conventions there."

"When do you think we had better start?" asked Miss Denison.

"Tomorrow evening, I think," replied Mrs. Martyn; "and, perhaps, you had better secure tickets today to St. Paul."

Mr. Merideth called during the day, and invited Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison to attend the opera that evening.

Mrs. Martyn plead fatigue as her excuse for declining.

Miss Denison accepted the invitation with pleasure.

After Mr. Merideth left, Mrs. Martyn said she thought this a time where "two are company and three a crowd."

"How do you like Mr. Merideth?" asked Lelia.

"Perhaps," said Mrs. Martyn, "I had better ask you how you like him? it might be more to the point, but I will answer you and gladly say that I am much pleased with him, and believe him to be a gentleman whose acquaintance is worth cultivating."

"Thank you," said Miss Denison, "we agree perfectly; I value your opinion, and shall enjoy his society more knowing that you approve."

"The opera was fine," said Miss Denison to Mrs. Martyn the next morning, and added, "Mr. Merideth asked permission to call upon us after we return home. I assured him he would be a welcome guest."

Mrs. Martyn inquired if Mr. Merideth would call today.

Miss Denison said "no, he leaves early this morning for the east; has some business to transact in several places and will not reach New York before another month expires."

Mrs. Martyn said, "That is lucky; we shall not have to hurry home on his account."

"No," said Lelia, "no haste; take your time."

Reaching St. Paul, Mrs. Martyn and Miss Denison went to the hotel for the night where they were surprised to meet

Mr. Meridith, and he equally so to see them.

Mr. Merideth informed them that his business here was to attend to matters connected with an estate of which he had learned he was executor. He told them the deceased was an old gentleman and that for years he—Mr. Merideth—had been his attorney, looking carefully after his interests.

Mrs. Martyn asked him for the name of the deceased, and he replied "Mr. Douglas."

They soon found their business was at the same home. Instead of a ride of fifteen miles over bad roads Mr. Merideth told them of a new settlement that had grown to quite a village and an electric car running to it, which was only a mile from Mr. Douglas' home.

On reaching the village they found a carriage awaiting them, and were taken very comfortably to Mr. Douglas' home. Mrs. Martyn had not been to her uncle's home in many years, and was greatly surprised to see a fine modern stone house instead of the small log house of her early recollection.

Aunt Caroline met and greeted them very cordially at the front door. Mrs. Martyn expressed her surprise at the surroundings and the improvements. Aunt Caroline said, "Your uncle concluded to have a rock house—he never spoke of it as a stone house—he wanted something substantial, with improvements not commonly found in the country and he succeeded very well, as you will see. Tomorrow Mr. Merideth, who is a lawyer and is your uncle's executor, will be here, and we will spend the day attending to business," said Aunt Caroline.

"I see you have a phone," said Mrs. Martyn. "Quite in touch with the world, but it will be lonely for you in this beautiful home without Uncle Roland."

"Yes," said her aunt, "but I shall feel I am only biding my time, which cannot be extended to any great length, as I am now over the allotted time for creatures of this world."

Mr. Merideth came. The closet opening from the front chamber proved to be a vault, strictly fire proof, containing a very large safe, the combination of which was found in a sealed envelope addressed to Mrs. Martyn, and marked personal. The letter within read:

"This safe contains a fine collection of stamps that I fully intended to give to your husband, and am sorry that I did not send them to him that he might have had pleasure in them in his last days. I request you to keep them, unless by some accident you should lose your money and so be obliged to sell them to make yourself comfortable — and bequeath them to some young person who will appreciate and enjoy them as I have done in these declining years of my life.

"You will find securities in this safe to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, par value, and in gold coin and certificates ten thousand dollars; also, the deed of this home and grounds which must be yours with the proviso, that my beloved sister Caroline shall have full control undisturbed in her home during her life. She has sufficient means, will pay the taxes and make necessary repairs. She has more securities and money than I have left to you, and will dispose of them by will as pleases her.

"We have no other relatives—all are gone. You are young enough to travel and enjoy life. See the world, my good neice, and learn all you can. I feel sure the knowledge that we carry with us into the next world will help us along in progress there, besides being a joy and blessing here.

Affectionately your uncle,
ROLAND DOUGLAS."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—It is possible that this chronicle has never given the New York State revenues, currently used for stock transfer purposes, the attention they deserve. Certainly this is so, if their beauty and variety count for anything. We have before us a number of these stamps, showing that there has been a re-engraving of the $1 value as well as various changes in the other values, made to discourage washing, counterfeiting, etc. We are indebted to W. B. Brown for this information, the specimens submitted by him showing the following varieties:

10c green, rouletted.

20c orange, rouletted.

20c orange, perforated, overprinted "20" in black, in large double-lined figures, 14 mm. high.

$1 blue, perforated, plain figure "1," same overprint as above. There are also other differences in the engraving not easily described.

The above is, of course, only a brief list of a fraction of the denominations and varieties that exist in these interesting stamps. They are as worthy of the attention of the philatelic student as the California State revenues or similar stamps, while the probability that Massachusetts and Illinois will also tax stock transfers or trading in futures, suggests a wide field for state revenues in the future.

Many of our friends have shown us the new Jamestown stamps, too many, in fact, to be acknowledged by name. Hermann Focke inquires in regard to the 5c and 10c values, and we shall gladly welcome any information regarding other values than the 1c and 2c now in common use.

INDIA.— Indore. — A new value has been added to the current set, according to the Bazaar, Exchange and Mart. The inscription reads "Indore."

Adhesive.

1a green.

Jaipur.— Gibbons' Monthly reports that negotiations are underway to have this state supplied with overprinted British Indian stamps, like those now issued to Chamba, Gwalior, etc.

PERU.—Hermann Focke sends us a copy of the 20c value of the new set, the shape and size being the same as the 12c stamp of 1905. It is printed in two colors, and shows a view of the Medical College in Lima. The frame is after the style of the current work of the American Bank Note Co., rather stiff, but neat and well engraved. The legends are "Union Postal Universal—Peru" at the top, with "20—Veinte Centavos—20" at the bottom. Directly below the central picture, but engraved in the frame, is "Escuela de Medicina."

Adhesive.

20c dark green and black.

MALTA.—H. N. Haas has shown us the 1d King's Head stamp, in one color, without overprint "Revenue," showing that the stamp has now been issued as a regular postage adhesive.

NORWAY.—The 30c value has now been issued in the regular type to take the place of the provisional in use for some months.

Adhesive.

30 ore gray.

SALVADOR.—In regard to the freak 13c stamp noted in No. 851, the Ararat Stamp Co. reports having seen another similar stamp of the 13c denomination, the frame printed on the back, without the center piece; and, also, a copy of the 1c green and black, the center printed on the back but without frame.

We are informed by Hermann Focke that letters from this country are now franked with an additional 5c beyond the regular postage rate of 13c; viz., 18c, 31c, 44c, etc.

Executive Board:—C. A. HOWES, Pres.; WILLARD O. WYLIE, Sec.; E. M. CARPENTER, Treas.; J. M. BARTELS, F. PUTNEY, JR., JOHN N. LUFF, HENRY N. MUDGE. Address Room 508 Kast Bdg., Boston, Mass.

Your committee has received a very kind offer from the Eben S. Martin Co. We submit it as presented and trust those who have not already contributed to our funds will aid us in securing the $50 contribution conditionally presented by Mr. Martin:—

"As an incentive to larger contributions to the work of the committee, the Eben S. Martin Co. beg to submit the following tender. Providing $1000 is subscribed and paid for the use of the committee, the Eben S. Martin Co. will pay to the committee 5% of such amount, that is $50. In any event their subscription for the use of the committee for the following year will be 2% of the total amount raised. We sincerely trust that our subscription will total $50."

May 1st, 1907.

Present 27 members.

Application. William Lampe, 865 East 169th street; proposed by Rosenthal, seconded by Klein.

Six collections of Tunis were entered for competition. The collections were all very fine and the judges, Messrs. Steinway, Wilford and Klein, found their task in awarding prizes rather difficult. Best of all was judged to be that of Chas. Jancovich, so he was awarded the blue ribbon. Second prize, the red ribbon, went to Wm. Uhlman. Miss L. Cook's collection was honorably mentioned. A specially prepared paper was read by the Secretary. Reprints of the first issue were described and shown; also forged surcharge of 1902 rnd fraudulently punched regular issues resulting in forged postage due stamps. Senf Brothers' new German Colonial Catalog was shown and favorably discussed. Its price is 25 cents. Forgeries of Guam, Philippine and Porto Rico surcharges on U. S. stamps were shown and collectors warned. Subject of next exhibition will be Hamburg with special reference to correct recognition of reprints and frauds. Date: June 5th. Next meeting will take place May 15th.

COLLECTORS' TICKET.

For Directors,
J. W. PREVOST of Massachusetts
F. R. CORNWALL - of Missouri

For some years past, the Chicago Branch of the American Philatelic Association has placed before the members a ticket for their consideration; in that time no opposition developed, and the tickets proposed by the Branch were elected without contest. No selfish ends were served, and in no material way did those who promoted the tickets profit. In the days when little interest was displayed in elections, the Chicago Branch did much to encourage a proper attention to this aspect. It is natural that the Chicago Branch this year, as previously, should name a ticket. One has been nominated by it; motives purely disinterested dictated the choice of candidates. Now, as in the past, collectors may confidently entrust the welfare of the Association to the nominees of

THE COLLECTORS' TICKET.

Letters of inquiry have come to this committee from members who originally approved the Boston Circular and mailed it in the stamped, self-addressed envelope to A. W. Batchelder. These members, in the light of later developments, wish to vote the Collectors' Ticket, and ask this Committee whether or not they should write to Boston and withdraw their formal expression of approval. We repeat our answer to these gentlemen:

You are absolutely under no obligation, moral or otherwise, to vote the ticket first considered by you. Vote the ticket you feel is the best for the interests of the entire Association,

WHETHER YOU VOTE THE COLLECTORS' TICKET OR NOT.

We urge you strongly, however, to carefully consider the merits of our

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

SALES SUPT. REPORT No. 26.

CHICAGO, May 4, 1907.

April 21st to May 4th:

170 books received, priced		$ 3,454.50
1946 previously reported,		51,339.85
2116 books	Total	$54,794 35
From which deduct
119 retired, priced	$ 2,239.32 sold	$ 818.72
466 previously retired,	11,825.44 "	3,498.92
585	$14,064.76	$4,317.64

Books of members are kept in circulation so long as there is a chance to dispose of a large part of the stamps, unless they are ordered retired by the owners, or they become too badly worn.

Among the 119 retired in this report are several that did not sell a stamp, as well as two that sold every stamp in the book, and others a very large percentage. The figures show that the average of the total is over one third sold, a very satisfactory showing.

Members having blank books on hand should fill them up and send them in soon. There is a shortage of good books in the Dept. at the present time and sales have been above the average.

"The Secretary should live near the President, so as to be in close touch with him."

Did they have this in mind when, for two consecutive years, they placed these two offices in Muscatine, Iowa, and Springfield, Mass., fully as far apart, as regards postal communication, as Denver and New York?

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

H. S. J.:—"What determines the price of the reprint? Take the reprints of Heligoland, Roman States, Hawaii, Samoa, etc.—some are sold for much more than others." Fundamentally, the rule of demand and supply governs the price of reprints. Private reprints from plates in the hands of individuals are not esteemed in the way that government reprints are; of the former the supply is unlimited but of the latter, such is not the case. The demand for reprints is not of sufficient volume to allow of consistent regulation as to the prices of all kinds and characters of the stamps.

R. R.:—There is no record of reprints of the Westervelt locals, the low quotations on certain of the stamps at this day, being due to the liberality with which the specimens were distributed by Mr. Westervelt during the period of the post's existence, and afterwards. It seems that Mr. Westervelt was not unaware of the possibilities of profit through the sale of his stamps to collectors and we have been told that he sold and distributed complimentarily little envelopes containing his stamps and including color and paper varieties and also envelope stamps which are not catalogued, nowadays. To account for the stamped envelopes and to reflect the somewhat quizzical regard for the issues that was entertained by philatelists of a time cotemporaneous with the exisence of the post, we extract the following from a leading paper of the 60's: "The next stamps claiming attention are those issued by C. H. Westervelt, of Chester, New York. This gentleman has for several years past conveyed letters between the villages of Chester Depot, East Chester and West Chester, New York, and this post being a public convenience in the vicinity, has continued to exist in defiance alike of United States district attorneys, U. S. marshals, grand juries, acts of congress, and various other mighty and persuasive influences which, in any other country under the sun, would have long since confined Mr. Westervelt to some dungeon, and his post would have been 'suppressed by the government,' with a vengeance. The prospectus of Mr. Westervelt's Post forms a standing advertisement in the columns of the Goshen Democrat, embellished with engravings of his stamps. The stamps are of three kinds. The first issue is an oblong type-set label, and was pictured in the Once a Month for July, 1864. The second issue has for a device the head of an Indian maiden. The third emission has for a design the effigy of General Grant. The inscription is similar in all the issues. The stamps are printed in both red and black on white and colored papers. There is also an emission of stamped envelopes having for a device that well-known and familiar fowl, the American eagle, in his favorite defensive attitude, as depicted on the metallic currency which in our youthful days, formed the circulating medium of our beloved country." (2) The Blood labels with the portrait of Henry Clay in the center of a square frame have been described variously as essays and as fanciful creations. They were never seriously considered. (3) Reprints and originals of the Pomeroy locals are much alike; send your specimens to a competent counterfeit detector for examination.

W. S. B.:—Our correspondent writes: "Please give me all the information you can regarding the 'Glen Haven Daily Mail' United States local catalogued by Scott. Where is Glen Haven located (state and county) and between what places did the concern issuing the stamps carry mail, and how was it conveyed, etc." Our information regarding these stamps is indeed meager; and we hope that some reader may be in a position to supplement the following bald statement: "Glen Haven, New York, 1855. Carrying system to and from the United States Post Office, Glen Haven." A late gazetter shows no Glen Haven assigned to New York.

A. W.:—Your three-cent, 1851, United States showing a large "3" cancellation is not an abnormal variety in that the marking on the face has any particular significance. Evidently, the specimen was canceled with the rating stamp. We have read that ten years or so after the introduction of stamps, the postmaster-general forbade the use of the rating stamp in canceling the postage stamps; and consequently, the inference is that the rating stamps were sometimes used for cancellation purposes, as in the case of your specimen. (2) Ask the dealer whom you patronize to pass upon your supposed, three-cent pinks of 1861.

G. B. writes:—"Kindly give me some information as to the following. On a registered cover mailed at St. John's, Newfoundland, Dec. 27th, 1893, with a No. 45 one-cent green and a No.54 twelve cents, puce brown, is a copy of A19 two cents but instead of being in orange or green, it is a smooth, even, rich brown, darker than the twelve cent and about the color of the No. 56, one-cent, reissue. No such stamp is mentioned in the catalogue, and from its smooth, even color, I do not believe that it is a changeling. Any information will be gratefully received."

There is no record of the particular stamp in the color mentioned and it is doubtful whether the facial appearance, no matter how natural, of the stamp alone, could invest it with error possibilities, especially in view of the fact that orange is changed to brown, on chemical provocation.

E. F. L. writes:—"I have an original cover bearing the date of December 8, 1821, with the stamped impression, in red, 'Phil. 8 Dec.' Has such a relic any value?" While this cover and its marking is of antiquarian or historical interest, it may not be asserted that it possesses a philatelic interest, and any monetary value that it has as a relic is a nominal one, no doubt. As the cover in question was used before the days of postage stamps, the impression could not be invested with provisional possibilities. Covers, bearing various "Paid" markings but no stamps, that were sent after the regular issues of United States stamps appeared, are akin in a way to the cover referred to, which is typical of those of the days before any stamp issue. All these covers are without credentials that entitle them to philatelic consideration. They may have some value otherwise but, so far as we have observed, they are not in demand by any class of collectors. The finders of "Paid" covers usually are anxious to know if the items have any suggestion of provisional use, but it has been pointed out in the past, that certain strict requirements must be fulfilled before serious attention is given such envelopes, as possible provisionals.

B. M. R.:—Your stamp, "Tromso," 2 ore, brown, picture of reindeer, is a private local stamp of Tromso, Norway. In 1899, it was recorded that all Norwegian locals, with the exception of those of Tromso, had been suppressed.

R. E. N.:—Since writing this reader, who submitted a specimen of a three-cent proprietary stamp, first issue, civil war period, bearing a postal cancellation of that day, we have found the following information, which bears out our remarks to him that the revenues of this issue were never used for postal purposes: "A United States revenue stamp can not pay postage and vice versa. A letter prepaid with one goes to the dead-letter office, and a document stamped with a postal label is invalid. The reason of this is no doubt found in the need of keeping the postal and revenue statistics separate, as well as in the fact of revenue stamps being sold to any persons at a discount when bought in certain quantities, whereas postage stamps are never sold thus, except to special agents of the government." This statement applies to the rules and regulations currently in force in the sixties.

E. E. N.:—The two cuts that you send, evidently taken from an old stamp paper, are not those of adhesive stamps of Mauritius but are representations of two of the early envelope stamps of that country. (2) Your four pence, first issue of Tasmania may be genuine but the color no doubt became brown through action of some kind on the orange ink; a discolored specimen of the kind is seen occasionally.

T. L.:—We are able to present the statistics as to the number of the recent Gambian provisionals issued, in the following letter, which appeared in the January number of Stanley Gibbons' Monthly Journal: "The postmaster presents his compliments, and regrets to say that the issue of surcharged penny and half penny stamps is exhausted. They were issued on the 10th and withdrawn on the 23rd April, 1906. Your remittance is returned herewith. The total issue was only 4500 penny and 3600 half penny, and five shillings each has been paid for them. The bank here has been buyers at the rate mentioned but there are no more sellers at the price named. From information received last mail from Sierra Leone it is understood that 15sh was being offered for 'provisionals.'" The editor of the Monthly Journal draws attention to the statement of the same official that "the balance remaining" was destroyed on the 16th of October.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Cablenews of Manila, Philippines, dated April 2nd, contains a splendid picture of Colonel H. H. Bandholtz, together with a glowing appreciation of the work that Col. Bandholtz has accomplished as acting director of the Philippine constabulary. Col. Bandholtz has now been promoted and succeeds Brigadier-General Henry T. Allen, as director of constabulary. The success that has attended Col. Bandholtz's career in the Philippines, particularly in coping with outlawry in the islands, on different occasions, has been brought to the notice of our readers. Col. Bandholtz is an ardent philatelist of many years' standing and has many personal friends among collectors in this country.

—Here is an amusing clipping from a Chicago daily paper; the curious confusion apparent in the item will be appreciated by collectors in particular:

"I noticed a letter signed 'Mrs. M. M.' in which the writer asks for canceled stamps for missionary purposes.

"She states that the mission is in Switzerland and that the missionary fathers send the canceled stamps to the 'wild' men as money in exchange for which they receive tea, coffee, rice, etc.

"This sounds very peculiar, Switzerland is a civilized country and has no 'wild men.' Probably Swaziland was meant. It does not matter, however, in what part of the world the mission is located. One thing is certain and that is that canceled stamps cannot form the basis of a monetary system, and that they are utterly worthless as a circulating medium everywhere.

"The case as presented appears as if a hoax were being played upon the 'wild wicked men' whom missionaries are trying to convert.

"I wish some one would write further particulars concerning the passing of canceled stamps as money. I do not intend to contribute any canceled stamps for the purpose outlined in 'Mrs. M. M.'s' letter unless more definite information is forthcoming."

Stamps on Approval
One Cent Each

I know by 18 months' experience that any general collector having 3000 or less varieties of stamps can use my one cent books to advantage and can add to his collection from 25 to 40 stamps from each of my books.

A California collector writes as follows: "It makes me mad when I open your books to find stamps there that I have paid from 3c to 5c each for." Write a postal to me and I will tell you all about them.

Next week may be too late to get some of the good things. Do it now.

AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION

NEW ENGLAND BRANCH No. 20.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

A. W. BATCHELDER, President.
WILLARD O. WYLIE, Vice President.
EDWARD DE Z. KELLEY, Secretary-Treasurer.
C. A. HOWES. J. M. BARTELS.

APPEAL TO MEMBERS

OF THE

American Philatelic Association.

BOSTON, MASS., March 25, 1907.

FELLOW MEMBERS:

The New England Branch of the American Philatelic Association has nominated a ticket for the next convention of the A. P. A., to be held in Denver in July. It will be published in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of March 30, and kept standing until the date of the convention.

We desire to call your attention to this ticket, which reads as follows:

President, JOHN N. LUFF, New York.

Vice-Presidents { C. A. HOWES, Mass. / L. L. GREEN, Mass. / EDW. DE Z. KELLEY, Mass.

Secretary, DR. HOLLAND A. DAVIS, Colo.

Treasurer, H. G. SMITH, Minn.

International Secretary, L. HARALD KJELLSTEDT, Penn.

Directors-at-Large { F. R. CORNWALL, Mo. / H. J. CROCKER, Cal.

We feel very much pleased in presenting Mr. John N. Luff, that "Prince of Philatelists," as a candidate for your suffrages. The Association will be honored in his election to this position, and we feel sure that you will feel it a privilege to accord him your support.

Associated with Mr. Luff are three Boston men as Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Howes, Green and Kelley. Space does not permit us to refer to the great work these gentlemen have done in the name of philately. Suffice it to say that they are collectors who have lent dignity to philately, and their splendid work deserves recognition.

Dr. Holland A. Davis, our nominee for Secretary, is particularly well qualified, as his recent labors in connection with the organization of the United States Revenue Society will attest.

Mr. H. G. Smith, as Treasurer, has been a tried and true official of the Association, and in the administration of its financial affairs changes should be made only as an actual necessity.

We present Mr. L. Harald Kjellstedt, an accomplished linguist, for International Secretary, believing he will make an ideal officer. His position as American representative of the Swedish Philatelic Society and wide foreign acquaintanceship will render his services invaluable, and we feel very fortunate in presenting his candidacy.

For Directors-at-Large, Mr. F. R. Cornwall, an active representative of St. Louis philately, and Mr. Henry J. Crocker of California, whose collection of Hawaiians is world-famed, completes this, the strongest ticket ever named for American philatelic honors.

Three of the above, Messrs. Howes, Kjellstedt and Crocker, are Fellows of the Royal Philatelic Society.

It is surely representative from a geographical stand point, and combines to the highest degree true philatelic merit coupled with business integrity. We appeal to the members of the Association to ratify this ticket in the knowledge that its success will lend dignity to our Association work, and give philately a higher standing here in the United States than it has ever attained before.

Respectfully yours,

In all 514, or more than half of the entire membership of the Association when our appeal was sent out. This includes more than fifty foreign members, to whom no appeal was sent and from whom we have not heard.

This is not all. Scores have written us assuring us of their support but for one reason or another preferring not to have their names published, but their votes will count.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Section 774 of the Postal Laws and Regulations have been amended by the addition: "3. Special delivery stamps attached to articles mailed abroad and contained in mails for the United States, shall be canceled in the sea post-office or the United States exchange post-office that opens the mails and distributes the articles therein contained. In case said stamps were canceled in the foreign mailing office, the articles shall nevertheless be delivered by special messenger."

—"Beginners in philately who are able to read the German language will do well to order a copy of Philipp Kosack's Price List No. Two, which contains a very helpful introduction to stamp collecting. Besides, there is a large list of packets, sets and other things of interest to collectors. Mr. K. issues also a larger list pricing single stamps, to be had for 25c, which is refunded, when an order of 5 marks ($1.25) is received. Mr. Kosack's address is: Berlin, Burgstr. 12, Germany. In this connection we might remind our German confreres that advertising in American papers pays and that there is quite a number of American collectors who do read German. Why is it that we so rarely see any advertisements from them?"—REV. L. G. DORPAT.

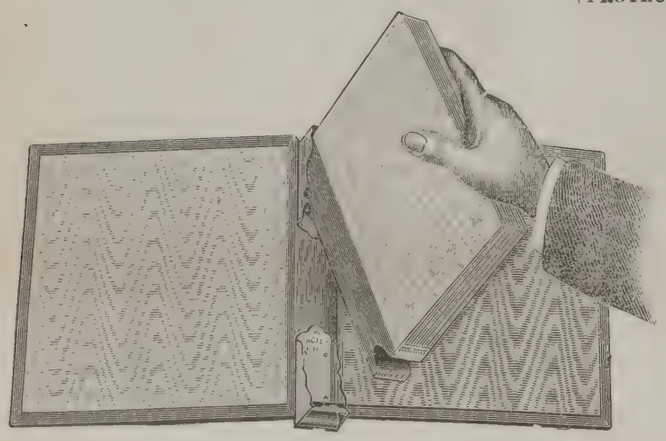
—The U. S. government has issued in the last fiscal year 6000 million postage stamps, including 1,500 million 1 cent and 4000 million 2 cent stamps. Of the $2.00 there were only 4500 and of the $5.00 only 6000, not million but single stamps. In 1847 not more than 25,000 stamps were issued of the two values, 5 and 10 cents, then introduced. Now the $1.00 stamp alone is used yearly in larger numbers, the last year's crop being 59,000 copies.

—A gentleman purchased a stamp at a drug store, but, failing to make it stick to his envelope, gave it back and asked for another.

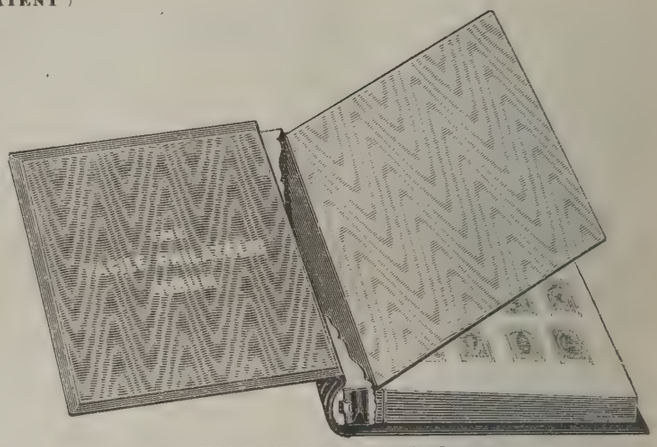
"It's very strange," said the druggist, "that's the sixteenth time I have had that stamp back this morning."

THE NEW BLANK ALBUM.

(PROTECTED BY ROYAL PATENT)



A—SHOWING LEAVES RELEASED.



B—SHOWING LEAVES SECURED.

This is undoubtedly the acme of loose leaf albums. The position of the leaves can be altered without disturbing the others and the Binder being rigid, friction is impossible. The Binder has no loose or detachable parts and cannot get out of order, and the attachment of the gilt clip for holding the leaves is automatic.

This Album effectively solves the Blank Album Problem.

—Nunn's Directory, 18th edition, enumerates 491 stamp dealers in Great Britain and states that there must be many others, who for some reason shun publicity. There must be an immense amount of capital invested in the stamp trade and many, many an individual makes his living or augments his resources by the traffic in stamps.

—According to The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly a large find of Luxembourg stamps was recently made of the issues between 1877 and 1895 to the amount of $500,000.00 catalogue value. The stamps were bought by Mons. Heim for $31,00.00.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—J. M. Bartels has shown us the 5c Jamestown stamp, the size and shape being the same as the lower denominations. The design shows a portrait of Pocahontas in a horseshoe, with large "5" in a shield on either side. "United States of America" and "Founding of Jamestown 1607," appears at the top, and "Postage Five Cents" at the bottom.

Adhesive.

5c dark blue.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly chronicles several more of the current values, with the surcharge "Papua." The 2d and 4d have been previously chronicled with this surcharge.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—A. O. Tittmann reports having received the 6d and 1sh King's Head stamps in new colors, both on multiple paper. He is informed that the 4d and 5sh stamps have also appeared in two colors, but that ½d, 1d and 2½d have not been changed. The 6d brown and 1s orange on multiple paper are therefore likely to become scarce.

Adhesives.

6d light olive green and rose.
1sh violet and bright green.

EGYPT.—Ewen reports that two of the postage due adhesives have appeared on chalky paper, the 1pi and 2pi being thus noted.

FRENCH OFFICES IN ABYSSINIA.—According to Le Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste, the 25c Levant stamps recently issued in Abyssinia were without the surcharge "1 piastre," as Turkish currency is not known in that country.

GOLD COAST.—The 2½d chronicled in No. 850 should have been announced as appearing on multiple ordinary paper and not on chalky.

HONDURAS.—Several other values are reported in the new postage set. We have already reported the 1c, 6c, 10c, 50c and 1p.

Adhesives.

2c rose.
5c blue.
20c ultramarine.

ITALY.—The Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung reports a new parcels post card, with "Pacchi Postale" at the top.

Postal Packet Card.

L1 25 brown on green.

NETHERLANDS.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie chronicles a permanent issue of the 6½c due to take the place of provisional chronicled last fall. The design and colors are the same as the other values of the regular set.

A variety of the 1c of 1876 is noted, consisting of a variation in the ornament just below the circle containing the upper right figure of value.

Postage Due Adhesive.

6½c dark ultramarine and black.

PARAGUAY.—Further additions and changes in color are noted in the set dated "1904" at the bottom.

Adhesives.

20c light brown.
30c violet gray.

PHILIPPINES.—Theodore Siddall writes to correct a misstatement made in No. 840, and incidentally gives us a great deal of interesting information regarding revenue matters in the Islands, which we reproduce for the benefit of our readers:

"The oblong Philippine revenue stamps have not supplanted the old square revenues at all, for both series are still in use. Furthermore, there are two designs of the oblong revenues of the new series, the centavo values being of one design and the peso values of the other; the difference is that only one design has a picture of a cocoanut palm, or betel nut tree, I am not sure which, in the center of the stamp, dividing the two panels containing the serial numbers of the stamp, and the other design has a picture of a native senorita, holding in her hand a hammer, emblematic perhaps of the habit of 'knocking' which is occasionally practiced in the islands.

"These oblong stamps belong to what is officially called the 'Internal Revenue series,' and the stamps are used on licenses and on invoices of taxed articles, and in both cases track is kept of each stamp, by serial number, and each stamp is recovered by the government and destroyed, after audit. The reason the serial number is repeated on the stamp is because, when the stamps are used on invoices, the stamp is affixed to the invoice so that when the invoice is delivered to the purchaser of the taxed goods the the stamp is cut in half.

"The manufacturer is required to notify the collector of internal revenue of the name and address of the purchaser, and give a detailed list of the articles sold, and the serial numbers of the stamps used in paying the tax. After a few days, an agent of the revenue takes up the invoice, and it is later on compared with the stub and the notification, to see that the numbers of the stamps correspond, and the whole affair is considered officially closed, and the stamps are destroyed.

"In the case of a license, when a new license is issued, the old one must be surrendered with all the stamps affixed, before business can be carried on. The merchant is required to pay a tax of one-third of one per cent on sales, which must be paid by internal revenue stamps affixed, in addition to the license fee itself, which ranges from two pesos a year for ordinary merchants up to a thousand pesos for a beer saloon, so that there are plenty of the stamps used, even though they are hard to get.

"The small square stamps are used on checks, drafts, receipts, and legal papers of all sorts.

"Shortly before the new series of stamps was put in use the system of rouletting was adopted on both the old series, and they were also printed on watermarked paper at about the same time, instead of on the old unwatermarked paper. As the stamps were printed in the government printing office here, they were of very crude workmanship, far inferior to the beautiful new series printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington.

"When American collectors wake up and decide to collect Philippine revenues, they are going to regret not having got them when they could be obtained, as it is doubtful if a single complete set of the last issue of Internal Revenue stamps could now be assembled, and even of the low values there are only a very few available. The Bureau of Internal Revenue is anxious to discourage the collecting of its stamps, and is doing nothing whatever to make it easy for collectors to obtain them."

QUEENSLAND.—The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain reports that the 2d stamp of the current series has been redrawn.

REUNION.—A postal packet stamp has been issued for the Island, only one value having been seen thus far. We are indebted to L'Echo for this information, which illlustrates the new issue. The stamp is of large size, and is printed in two colors. The background consists of an engraved tint block, with the familiar head of Liberty in a circle at the top. "Republique" "Francaise" appears on either side of the head, within the circle. The overprint, in the second color, reads, "Ile — de la — Reunion— Colis Postaux—10c," in five lines.

Postal Packet Adhesive.

10c light brown and black.

SPAIN.—Our foreign contemporaries report that the Spanish people, the great body of whom are passionately loyal to the present King, are greatly incensed over the portrait of King Alphonso which has been printed on the new series of stamps just issued for the various colonies. They say that the woolly hair and thick lips make their King look like a mulatto, and that instead of being a portrait, it is but an insulting caricature.

ST. KITTS-NEVIS.—Ewen reports that the 2½d has been issued in one color on ordinary multiple paper.

Adhesive.

2½d ultramarine.

TURKEY.—Our foreign contemporaries report that a new series of stamps is in preparation, and will be put on sale about Sept. 1, 1907, the Sultan's birthday. The type accepted was designed by Nazin Bey, an attache of the Ministry of War. The cards and envelopes will be changed at the same time.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—The ½d green stamp on Crown A paper has been perforated "OS" for official use.

EDITORIAL.

A Benefit—The Jamestown exposition stamps while intended particularly to commemorate the celebration now being held at the seat of the earliest permanent settlement in the United States, advertise philately in a manner that is distinctly favorable. We have said before that some of the leading philatelic purists who ethically could not countenance unnecessary or special issues, were the first to admit that there were variations of offense to philately through such issues. Further, they say that in some cases, the general advertising good done philately through the stamps more than counterbalances any loosening influence on organized philately. If ever a commemorative set could claim justification, the Jamestown set is the one to do so. It is not to be said fairly that the intention of the department is to profit financially through the issue. Rather, if the time and extra work involved in the preparation and handling of the set were measured and reduced to dollars, it would be found that actual loss attended the accommodating action of the government. Consequently, the pernicious feature of trading on the enthusiasm of collectors is eliminated in this case. The good faith of the authorities was shown by their intention, as originally held, to issue but the one and two-cent denominations; the decision to include the five-cent stamp was a subsequent one. It is known, conclusively, that the thought of profit did not have any weight in the official consideration of the advisability of the issue. It is noticeable that adverse criticism of the Jamestown stamps has been lacking in quarters where it was freely voiced on occasions of previous commemorative sets. The engaging appearance of the stamps themselves will soften the harshest opinion, we feel certain.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [H

Fulton Stamp Co., 102 W. 42 St., New York.

Interest That Helps—It is doubtful whether all collectors themselves realize how thoroughly philately has been advertised by the Jamestown stamps. When the stamps were first placed on sale in the many postoffices throughout this broad land, nearly as many local newspapers recorded in their columns, with comment brief or extended, the arrival of the new stamps. The demand for the novelties was apparent in some instances by long lines of purchasers at the windows of the stamp clerks; and in many ways, stamp collectors were identified in the public mind with the special set. The stamps themselves commanded the attention of the non-philatelist when he saw them for the first time and in an isolated case, at least, it is fair to assume that a latent philatelic spark was kindled; and in other ways, the Jamestown set will be a factor for strengthening our hobby.

A Dip Into the Past—The Colonial Stamp Company, Chicago, having read references recently in the WEEKLY to philatelic publications of the early days of philately sends some items of interest to the antiquarian. The notes are based on the "bibliographic information" that was incorporated in the old Lallier albums, but even so, a repetition of the data will not be unwelcome at this time. In 1870, there were about thirty-five catalogues and papers available for the notice of philatelists; this number, however, did not include minor publications, such as dealers' leaflets, and similar sheets. A "Postage Stamp Review" was published by Ischiesche and Roder, 23 Koenigstrasse, Leipsic, Germany, in 1862. The stamps issued from 1849 to 1862 were considered, in this periodical catalogue of eight pages. The same publishers issued a review of the stamps issued from 1840 to 1863, in a work of 75 pages, 18 mo, that described 1279 varieties. A thirty page, 12 mo, "Catalogue of Postage Stamps issued from 1840 to 1863,' was published by Oscar Jann, Breslau, in 1863. A list described "Description of All Known Stamps," 2200 in number, with remarks on forged stamps, was published at Strassburg, Germany, in 1864. A first edition of a "Guide de l'amateur des Timbre-Poste," issued by Baillieu, Paris, in 1863, catalogued 1179 stamps; 12 mo, 88 pages. A second edition in 1864, of 132 pages, quoted 2,007 stamps, and a third edition in 1865, listed 2120 stamps. The first edition of Moens' "Manuel des Collectionneur de Timbres-Poste," was issued in 1862; size, 18 mo, 72 pages, a second edition appeared in 1862, 12 mo, 90 pages, and in 1863, an edition of 90 pages, with supplement of sixteen pages. The list "De la Falsification des Timbres-Poste," was issued by Moens in 1862; 12 mo, 32 pages. In 1865, Maury published the "Catalogue Complet des Timbres-Poste;" price 75 centimes. The famous Gray's catalogue was England's early contribution to bibliography of philately. In the United States at Philadelphia, in 1862, A. C. Klein published the "Postage Stamp Collectors' Manual," 12 mo, 48 pages; this work had the distinction of having had five stamps engraved on cover.

Then and Now—Our informant who submitted the details of the foregoing paragraph says that in 1870, the issues of Great Britain and Colonies, numbered 700 stamps, apportioned geographically, as follows: Europe, (Great Britain, 28, Ionian Islands 4, and Malta, 3) 34 stamps; Asia, 95; Africa, 87; Oceania, 257; and America, including the West Indies, 227; or a grand total of 700. Among the more prolific stamp-issuing British Colonies of that time, were New South Wales, British Guiana, Ceylon and Victoria. These statistics are significant when it is remembered that according to Whitfield King and Company's catalogue, the issues for the British Colonies, or rather, Empire, numbered 6,153 on January 1st, 1907.

Repeated—We are not insensible to the keen interest that is being manifested in the coming election in the American Philatelic Association; but this paper is the official journal of the association, as a whole, and, so certain proprieties must be observed in view of the broad obligation that is entailed in faithful service to the association. Partizanship will have no place in our reading columns; no faction will be favored over another, nor will attempts be made to induce members to vote for certain candidates. The several members who have written us courteously protesting against our policy really have no cause for grievance; and we assure them that no ulterior or political motive inspires our decision. We made early proclamation of our position of neutrality, in an editorial sense, and any treatment of political questions in our reading columns has been impartial. To correct a possible misunderstanding on the part of a correspondent or two, it should be said again, that the official matter, inserted under the heading of the American Philatelic Association is received only from accredited officers of the association.

Postally Used—J. B. MacRobert, Halifax, Nova Scotia, writes: "Enclosed please find photograph of the 15c surcharge on the 30c, cinnamon, Cochin China. This may be of some interest to you, as I have reason to believe that it is the only postally used copy in existence. Gibbons says that this stamp, the 30c, cinnamon, was surcharged in 1888, so that it could be severed diagonally, and each half used for 15c, but that the consignment of the 15c blue arrived before the surcharges were placed in issue. This stamp, as you will see, was used by the Postmaster at Saigon Port in sending a letter to the Postmaster at Halifax. Trusting that this may be of interest to you," etc. It is not to be gainsaid that the envelope of which we have the photograph bears the 1888, 15c surcharge doubly on the 30c, brown on bistre; in addition, there is a pair of the 5c on 35c, Indo China, 1889 issue. The Cochin China stamp is postmarked at Saigon, February 1891. Gibbons' catalogue says that the stamp in question, halved or whole, was postmarked by favor, and quotes prices, in common with many other catalogues for the stamps in used condition. The specimen shown on the original cover is interesting in that it was really used in part payment of postage. The assumption is that the surcharge under discussion was used perhaps by a postal official, judging from the printed line, "To the Postmaster," on our correspondent's cover, in connection with the two Indo China surcharges before the January 1st, 1892, set of Indo China, whose stamps superseded those of Cochin China, were received.

MORE SPLURGING!

"We are advertised by our loving friends." Mr. Hopkins has our sincere thanks for the complimentary advertising he has given us. After mature deliberation we have decided that our price of $1.25 for 1857 3d Newfoundland (catalogued by Gibbons $3.10) is too close to wholesale quotations for this stamp and hereby advance our price to $1.50.

Mr. S. B. Hopkins, 5728 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo., offers this stamp at 90 cents. We advise our customers to purchase from him as we are unable to supply at this figure and stand ready to purchase ANY quantity at this price.

We take pleasure in offering a limited number of 1860 3d green Newfoundland (catalogued by Gibbons $1.50) for 75 cents. This isn't as big a bargain as the 1857 3d at 90c but is not bad for a splurger.

THE SQUARE DEAL.

Notwithstanding we are one of the few dealers who have moved from the country to the city and rented expensive offices (where the light is good and you can see what you are buying) we believe in the square deal—we also believe in splurging and in talking about ourselves, for then you come to know us and judge for yourselves.

We have been interested in stamps for seventeen years, we have sufficient conceit to think we know something of values and as repeatedly stated we are ready to buy at all times at a price that will allow us a fair business profit on anything we offer for sale.

Our advertising of the past six months speaks for itself.

"COLONIALS" CARE MORSE AGENCY,
19 West 34th Street, NEW YORK.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6th, 1907.

MR. E. M. ROSENTHAL, Chairman,
COLLECTORS' CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE,

Dear Sir:

Having read the untruthful assertion put forth in the statement of the New England Branch of Boston, under heading of "Refutations" on page 159 of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY for May 4th, that the Philadelphia Branch had not endorsed the Chicago nominations, I deem it my duty, as President of Branch No. 18 of Philadelphia, to correct the same.

At the meeting of Philadelphia Branch held February 6th, 1907, the nomination of Mr. Doeblin was endorsed by a unanimous vote, this being as far as the Chicago nominations had reached at that time. At the meeting held May 1st, the balance of the Board of Directors nominated by Chicago Branch No. 1 would have been endorsed, had it not been for an attempt of the agents of the New England Branch to capture the endorsement of our Branch by underhanded and unparliamentary methods. This attempt was frustrated and all action upon the balance of the nominations was postponed until the June meeting.

Mr. Batchelder of the New England Stamp Co. and also of New England Branch, was present at the May meeting, as the guest of Mr. Parrish of The Scott Stamp & Coin Co., for what purpose is best known to himself, and heard the matter fully stated in regard to our endorsement of Mr. Doeblin, and I cannot understand how he would permit the publication of such a misleading statement through his Committee.

Requesting you and giving you full permission to publish this statement in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY or in whatever way you may deem best to give this correction the fullest publicity, I am,

Very respectfully,

(Signed) JOHN W. HASELTINE,
President of Philadelphia Branch No. 18.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Chas. Wm. Eberle sends us a clipping from the Yonkers Statesman describing the revenue collection of Albert E. Lawrence of that city. Mr. Lawrence commenced collecting in 1861 but since 1870 has given his attention to revenue stamps exclusively. We learn from the Statesman that Mr. Lawrence is Vice-President of the Fiscal Philatelic Society of London. We shall hope some time in the future to give the readers of the WEEKLY a glimpse of this great collection of which there are from 30,000 to 40,000 specimens, some very old and rare.

—Luther B. Tuthill favors us with a pictorial post card exploiting the exhibition of antiquated paper money at the Jamestown Exhibition. Mr. Tuthill informs us that if stamps are not shown there, paper money will be.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from the following: James S. Hardy, J. I. Barnhurst, Geo. E. Marx.

—We have received a copy of the Prospect Philatelic News issued fortnightly by the Prospect Philatelic Club of Brooklyn, N. Y. It bears the earmarks of enterprise and we congratulate the young men managing this paper upon their venture which we trust will be successful.

—"Knowing that you are always interested in matters philatelic I write you concerning a peculiar coincidence which happened at a recent auction sale to which I sent in thirteen bids. Eight of the bids were successful, and the peculiar part of it is that on these eight different bids totalling $33.90 the lot cost $33.65. This you will notice is a smaller difference than 1%.

This means that I so closely gauged the value of these stamps as to be able to hit it within a one-hundredth part of their price which is pretty good work. Further when I tell you that six out of the eight were imperforate stamps of perforated issues of Canada upon which there is no actual standard of price and some of which I have never known to be offered before, you will realize how closely I seem to have gauged the market conditions. If this thing continues I will commence to consider myself an authority on the subject, or was it all due to my sending in an unlucky thirteen bids? Discerning bidders may read between the lines.—CHAS. N. ROBERTSON.

—The annual convention of the Metropolitan Philatelic Association will be held, August 7 and 8, at Syracuse, N. Y. A cordial invitation is extended to all stamp collectors, and A. P. A. members in particular, to be present. The chairman of the committee on arrangements is J. D. Park, 510 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., to whom requests for further information should be addressed.

—Dr. H. A. Davis kindly favors us with a picture post card showing "The Albany" convention headquarters for the Denver meeting of the A. P. A. The WEEKLY will no doubt have a couple of representatives in attendance.

—A. McKechnie sends us a clipping from the Ottawa Journal in which a correspondent takes to task the Canadian postal authorities for the adoption of the new postal arrangements charging that "the people of Canada are being treated altogether too much like children." He believes that the government should not attempt "to prescribe to them where they should get their reading." There is no doubt but that the new order of things will be exceedingly distasteful in many quarters but it is also doubtful if any modification of the new arrangements can be effected.

—"Our advertising of late is bringing us very satisfactory results."—The Star Monthly.

MEASURES AND MEN

BULLETIN No. 4

We call the attention of the members of our Association to our previous three Bulletins, and our opening page Announcement on the last page of the Weekly of April 27th. In these statements we set forth briefly the merits of our Candidates and the Principles for which we stand.

It is with keen regret that we notice, in a recent issue of this paper, that our opponents have distorted our statements. They have accused us of "dirty electioneering methods," "delightful inconsistency" and other pleasant failings too numerous to mention. They have even resorted to a downright piece of Trickery in quoting our phrase "Association's policy and funds," italicizing the word "funds," whereas in our own statement this word did not appear in Italics. They did not take the trouble (?) to say that the Italics were theirs, and, consequently, they put a wrong construction upon our remarks.

We can, however, overlook even such a grave offence as, in their worry because their ticket is losing ground, they must say something violent in order to keep up their own spirits. Invective and abuse are rampant in the Boston headquarters of the Stamp Trust.

Elsewhere in this issue we have reprinted in full the letter of Mr. John W. Haseltine, President of the Philadelphia Branch. This shows the peculiar mental attitude of our opponents in making their so-called Refutations. This letter refutes Mr. Batchelder's Refutation No. 1.

Mr. Batchelder says further that we have attacked Mr. Luff. We have said

NOTHING AGAINST MR. LUFF PERSONALLY.

As a philatelic expert we take off our hats to the Prince of Philatelists. But we question the wisdom of electing any DEALER President of our Association.

Next they draw comparisons between Mr. Smith and Mr. Eaton. In reply we urge the members to look up their 1906 Year Book, pages 78 and 79, showing the report of the Committee on Finance, and pages 89, 90 and 91, showing the Auditing Committee's Report and the revised report of the Treasurer. Does this show Mr. Smith such a "faithful incumbent"? Mr. Eaton would be far more careful and systematic.

The fourth of these terrible Refutations is completely refuted in our Bulletin No. 3, which appeared in the last issue.

Remember we attack no candidates on the Boston ticket until the Boston Campaign Committee attacks our Candidates and draws unflattering comparisons. Justice then demands that we state

THE REASONS WHY OUR MEN ARE THE BETTER.

It is only fair for the members to be put in possession of this information, set forth in a logical and dispassionate manner. The printed statements of the opposition are welcomed by us; their arguments are easily refuted; their venom avails them naught! We are, however, in possession of long and scurrilous personal letters written by individuals in Boston and other interested partisans unfairly attacking our candidates and motives.

WE SHALL NOT DESCEND TO THE SAME LEVEL TO GAIN VOTES.

But if this does not cease we shall publish some of these objectionable letters so that all members may publicly know what is privately written.

Regarding our Ticket being the Collectors' Ticket, we would state that there is positively no inconsistency in this. There are seven Collectors and two Dealers on our Ticket. The dealers are running for the offices of Treasurer and International Secretary respectively. One of the dealers, Mr. Eaton, has served the Association long and faithfully, and needs no recommendation at our hands. The other dealer, Mr. Klemann, is equally well fit for his prospective office.

Our opponents make the statement that they have only one dealer on their ticket, their candidate for President, and they are even making excuses for his being a dealer, saying that he is in the employ of a dealer and therefore not a REAL dealer. Charming and refreshing inconsistency, is it not? Is this the kind of logical argument they expect to present successfully to the intelligent members of this Association?

The reason our Ticket is the Collectors' Ticket is that it is Fostered, Furthered and Favored by Collectors. The five members of this Committee are simon-pure Collectors. They are not dealers, nor have they any intentions of ever being so, holding, as they do, responsible positions in other lines of business.

Members may, perhaps, understand the excited and vehement outbursts from the Campaign Committee of the Boston ticket when they realize that they are:

TWO OUT AND OUT DEALERS AND TWO CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

The self-interest of these gentlemen in this campaign is therefore evident to all.

The moving spirit of this opposition is the man whom we have referred to as the Dealer-Boss, A. W. Batchelder, Manager of the New England Stamp Co. Through Mr. Batchelder's machinations Mr. Luff was prevailed upon to run as President on the Boston ticket. Mr. Luff needed a great deal of urging before he consented to run, and is therefore an unwilling candidate. Mr. Luff's great and surpassing interest in our Association may be gleaned from the following extracts from letters written by him. Under date of Nov. 19, 1906, Mr. Luff says:

"Temporarily I have withheld my resignation from the Collectors' Club and the American Philatelic Association, but they will both follow in the course of time."

And, again, under date of Nov. 22, 1906:

"Personally, I am a believer in Societies for the younger Collectors, for they have a chance to see and study stamps, and learn things by exchanging opinions and information; but for the older collectors I see no benefit in them and only a waste of time."

THE REAL ISSUE

is to elect a Board of Directors who will, in your opinion, best serve the Association.

You will note by list published elsewhere in this issue that over 500 members have voluntarily endorsed the ticket named by the Branches in Boston, Denver and Scranton, and will admit that what has secured the approval of so large a part of the membership must have worth behind it.

We invite you to scan our previous advertisements, all of them dignified expositions of our ticket, or refutations of ridiculous statements, (to give them no stronger name), and to compare their tone with that of the matter appearing in advocacy of the opposition ticket. We think you will feel that our methods have been most fair and cannot work harm to the Association.

Ours is the real "Collectors' Ticket"

It has not been necessary to attack anyone in setting before you what all, however partisan, must admit to be a strong ticket, and we await your verdict with the assurance that in addition to the great number who have signified their approval of the Boston, Colorado, Scranton ticket, many more, who like all fair-minded men, approve of decent methods, will show their appreciation of the ticket offered by these branches, and of the fair-minded way in which we have sought your approval.

NEW ENGLAND BRANCH No. 20.

LIBRARIAN'S BULLETIN BRANCH No. 19

Liberal members of the Scranton Philatelic Society together with the Philatelic Society of Sweden have contributed quite a lot of philatelic literature to our Society since it was chartered as Branch No. 19 of the American Philatelic Association. However, as we are anxious to make the library an important part of the Society, I respectfully solicit philatelic publications of all kinds from generous-minded philatelists, philatelic societies, dealers and publishers.

In connection with this, I wish to publicly thank the Philatelic Society of Sweden for their valuable additions to the library.

PHILADELPHIA BRANCH No. 18.

PHILA., PA., May 1, 1907.

The regular monthly meeting of the Philadelphia Philatelic Society, Branch No. 18, A. P. A., was held at the Penna. School of Industrial Art on the above date, Pres. Haseltine in the chair.

A. W. Batchelder of the New England Stamp Co. was present.

The discussion of the various A. P. A. candidates was postponed until the June meeting.

Notice in proper form was given to have the By-Laws amended, at the next regular meeting, to allow the voting of proxies under certain conditions.

In answer to a question the Secretary stated that E. Doeblin had been unanimously endorsed for President of the A. P. A. at the February meeting, held on the 6th day of that month.

An informal stamp auction closed the meeting.

F. HAHMAN, Sec'y.

PHILATELIC LITERATURE COMMITTEE.

BENSON, MINN, May 1.

A valuable little work for collectors of philatelic literature which has been issued for some time but which has failed to be noted in these reports is "Jones' Check List of Philatelic Journals of the British Colonies," 15 pages. Can be had of the publisher, E. B. Jones, Sioux City, Ia., for fifteen cents.

The Springfield (Mass.) Stamp Club has issued a neat little pamphlet entitled "Philatelic Side Lines" containing a number of valuable reference lists, some of which can be found nowheres else and the most of the others in no readily obtained work. 24 pages. Can be had of R. C. Monroe, 40 Mass. Ave., Springfield, Mass. Price 15 cents.

Since my last report three society year books have reached me. The annual number of our own society, The American Philatelist, Vol. XX. It contains a half tone of the convention group and another plate. 126 pages. Can be had by non-members of the Sec'y for 25 cents.

The Metropolitan Philatelic Association has issued their Second Year Book, 20 pages. Whether non-members can obtain copies or not I do not know but the secretary, F. A. Mueller, Pleasanton, Nebr., will undoubtedly impart this information to any one interested.

"Vertrauliche Mittheilungen No. 29," the annual of the International Philatelisten Verein of Dresden, Germany, was issued on Jan. 15. Contains nought but official matter including a list of 1829 members. 140 pages. Whether non-members can obtain copies or not I can not say but those interested can address Ernst Plotz, Rabenerstrasse 18, II, Dresden A, Germany.

Paul Kohl of Chemnitz, Germany, has sent forth a 48 page price list, of which four are devoted to stamp publications, eighty works being offered. The list is gratis.

H. F. Colman, Washington, D. C., has issued his 1907 list of U. S. and U. S. Colonial Stamps which contains a valuable check list of Canal Zone stamps. 44 pages. Gratis.

The Bogert & Durbin Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., has sent forth a 148 page price list, free.

Carl Willadt & Co., Pforzheim, Germany, have also issued a large free price list of 168 pages.

In a recent journal a work published in 1905 but not before noted in American publications is reviewed. It is "Estudas de la Filatelia de Chili" and its author Rafael Aguirre Mercado of Coquimbo, Chili. The review states it consists of 66 pages replete with statistical information but no price is stated.

Philip Kosack, Berlin, Germany, has issued the 12th edition of his catalog. 240 pages. Price one mark.

"A Catalog of the Stamps of Australia, New Zealand and South Sea Islands" is the title of a 150 page little work issued by Fred Hagen, Ltd., 182 Pitt St., Sydney, N. S. W. Price postpaid 12 cents.

In periodicals the final number of The American Journal of Philately has appeared and the journal closed its second series with the last number of its eighteenth volume. Collectors can only hope that the publishers may change their mind and start series third. Beginning in Jan. the same firm (Scott Stamp & Coin Co.) started a small eight page Monthly Circular. Sent for postage, 12 cents per year.

Fads and Hobbies is a new one from Chicago, 4014 Michigan Ave. 25c per year.

In March the Philocartist News and Camera Craft of Oklahoma City, of which about a third of its space was devoted to stamps, was consolidated with the Columbus Philatelist.

One number of The Perforator which was supposed to have suspended has appeared this year.

Mekeel's News and Trade Circular, St. Louis, has issued a couple of numbers. In each a number of out of print philatelic works are offered.

L. Harald Kjellstedt announces that the Swedish Society have in press a work by himself entitled "Philately as a Pleasure and a Study." Also in preparation and ready for press the second part of Catalog of the Swedish Postal Issues —being on Entires. Also that after its serial publication in the Svensk Filatelisk Tidskrift, Rudolph Krasemann's "Bibliography of the most important special literature pertaining to the postal issues of different countries" will be issued in book form.

As the time for the preparation of the annual report is drawing nigh the committee would request that any member would call attention to any work not noticed in either of the partial reports published this year.

The chairman would also be pleased to have his attention called to any article upon stamps which has appeared at any time in any non-philatelic magazine of journal.

May 1st, 1907.

President Nast called the 18th regular meeting to order at 8 o'clock. Minutes of previous meeting were approved as read. W. G. Swart tendered his resignation as Secretary on account of his absence from the city most of the time. It was accepted with regret. A. M. Ballau was elected to fill the vacancy. C. C. Harrington was elected member of Board of Trustees to fill vacancy by resignation of A. M. Ballau.

Fraud charges having been entered against R. E. Gerspacker and M. Ockenfels, discussion was taken up regarding defense. By a vote of the Club, the Secretary was instructed to ask for their resignations from the Club.

The following applicants were elected to membership: A. Yaremdji, W. O. Wylie, Edw. de Z. Kelley, C. A. Howes, A. W. Bellard and V. N. Garretson. Stamps were donated to the Club by Garretson, Munger, Behneman and McCabe.

Louis Mayer displayed his collection of Government Issue Postal and Letter cards which were much admired. Meeting adjourned 11 P.M.

H. A. DAVIS, Sec'y.

—A letter from Major Evans is making the round of English papers advocating the study of British envelopes, cards, wrappers, etc., and their treatment similarly as the adhesives of the British Isles have been treated in the London Society's work. As it appears from the several editorial comments the proposition is regarded with favor, and the result may be a general stimulus to the collection of "Entires." There are many collectors on both sides of the Atlantic, who are quietly collecting envelopes and cards as best they can. To them any new work on these subjects will be a great help, and under the auspices of the Royal Philatelic Society something good may confidently be expected.

—Chicago is the happy place from which is issued The American Post Card Journal. It is a paper advocating the interests of the souvenir card. The appearance is excellent, but to grow into the estimation of philatelists it should embrace the cause of the old, plain, nonpretentious and useful government postcard and make that a special feature.

TO THE MEMBERS.

May 6, 1907.

The President regrets that his notice in the journal of April 27 gave offence to a number of members and takes this opportunity of assuring them that it was not intended to be at all personal but to apply in general to all campaign literature. The allusion to the Massachusetts law was perhaps unfortunate as of course it does not apply to our election but was simply quoted to show the status in which anonymous circulars were held in this state.

Let us avoid all personalities and devote our energies to booming our own ticket without doing anything to vilify or run down the opposing candidates either by circular or personal letters. The candidates are all gentlemen, and are entitled to gentlemanly treatment. Let us have a lively campaign, a full vote and may the best man win!

SCRANTON BRANCH No. 19.

The third regular meeting of the Scranton Philatelic Society was held in the Y. M. C. A. parlor, Washington Ave. and Mulberry St., Scranton, Pa., Tuesday evening, April 30th.

Communications from the Secretaries of several of the branch Societies were read and the contents carefully considered by the members. In expectation of launching a new membership campaign, the Secretary was requested to secure booklets and application blanks from the Chairman of the Recruiting Committee. Several visitors present stated that they will join the Society.

The Society voted to subscribe for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, to be presented to the Scranton Public Library and the Y. M. C. A. Reading Room.

Quite a surprise was sprung upon the members by the President, by the information that he had discovered the existence of a stamp paper published in Scranton between 1892-96. The existence of the paper had been heretofore unknown by the members. A committee was appointed to investigate and report on this matter at the meeting in May.

The Librarian reported fine progress in his department, all the files of stamp papers having been substantially bound.

After the regular business was transacted, Pres. Kjellstedt gave an interesting talk on U. S. proofs.

C. EVERETT LANCASTER, Sec'y.

4c U. S. Envelopes

on Blue or Buff, Scott No. 1524 or 1529.

There were but a certain number of these made, some of which are not now in existence. A large proportion of this quantity fell into our possession, and we offer them temporarily at the low rate of $3.00 for a package of 25; either color. In view of the fact that envelope collecting is acknowledged to be merely in its infancy, and it is plain to anyone who believes in Philately and has confidence in its future and who know how few of these envelopes there are, that it is only a question of time when there will be a demand for every one of them at $1.00 each or more. We believe that a package or two of these laid away for awhile will prove a very profitable speculation.

N. B.—We've laid away a few ourselves. We reserve the right to withdraw this offer at any time. No one can sell cheaper. All are entire, clean and immaculate.

PHILIPPINE OFFICIAL SEALS.

Some little time ago I received a small lot of these seals; they were perforated and upon unwatermarked paper. I am now in receipt of a new lot, but they are ROULETTED and on WATERMARKED paper.

The color of the United States seal has been lately changed to BLUE and those for the Canal Zone are, also, in that color. It is not therefore, unreasonable to suppose that the next lot for the Philippines will be blue also

My supply of the perforated ones is practically exhausted, but I can still furnish the rouletted ones, which are of a yellowish-brown shade.

Price, while they last, unused, o g., 25 cents.

LITERARY CONTEST AWARDS.

We feel very much pleased at the manner in which our younger readers took hold of our literary contest "Why I Collect Stamps." No less than eighty replies were received, eight reaching the office after the contest had closed. The report of the judges follows.

The judges who were honored by being appointed to award six prizes in the literary contest over the theme "Why I Collect Postage Stamps" beg to report, that after due and careful consideration of all contributions received, in their opinions, the 6 best essays were those written by:

Edw. O. Asplund of Bellingham, Wash.
Laura M. Baker of Milwaukee, Wis.
Edmund de S. Brunner of Bethlehem, Pa.
Harry E. Harris of Sturgeon Bay, Wis.
Mary E. Hutson of Harding, Mass.
Harold L. Townsend of Dearborn, Mich.

For fine literary composition, combined with singularly well stated reasons why stamps should be collected, the judges award the first prize to Mr. Harold L. Townsend.

The winners were selected from 72 contestants, and the judges take pleasure in complimenting upon the generally excellent conception of the spirit of the theme, and the warmhearted enthusiasm displayed by all who competed.

L. HARALD KJELLSTEDT,
E. K. RODEN.

HAROLD L. TOWNSEND.

In keeping with the report of the judges we take pleasure in announcing that to Harold L. Townsend of Dearborn, Mich., belongs the honor of winning the distinction accorded him by the judges. Our readers will no doubt be pleased to look upon the features of Mr. Townsend and we are able to present a half tone. His winning essay follows and we shall hope to use some of the other entries in coming months.

WHY I COLLECT POSTAGE STAMPS.

Many people collect stamps because of the financial side, but undoubtedly the greater number do it entirely for the pleasure it affords them. I belong to the latter class, having the desire only to satisfy a craving for this hobby.

Many hours of delightful recreation have I obtained from my stamps, in spite of the fact that I belong to that class of "unlucky" collectors who seldom, if ever, get a stamp that is really valuable.

One of the reasons I have for collecting is that it is restful and quieting after the brain has been busily occupied with school studies.

Philately opens up a broad field of interest and the further one penetrates it the more fascinating does it become.

"Doing good is essential," writes T. P. O'Connor, "but it is also essential not to grow sparse in amusements; for in wholesome trivialities lies sanity for most of us." And as a wholesome triviality, stamp-collecting is without a peer.

It is also one of the most pleasant and profitable pastimes; it gratifies a legitimate passion, provides useful recreation, and by its wholesome associations, crowds out the danger of many vices.

The collecting of stamps carries with it an evidence of tangible value. The money value may be subservient but it gives the dignity of property and when one spends his dollars for the pleasure of collecting, it is with less uneasiness that he realizes the assured value of the investment and is encouraged to think his hobby has intrinsic worth.

These are the principal reasons "why I collect postage stamps."

The WEEKLY wishes to acknowledge its indebtedness to Messrs. Kjellstedt and Roden in their courtesy in serving as judges. There was a great deal of labor in connection with their work which cannot be fully appreciated except by those who have served in a similar capacity.

THE ASCENT OF PIKE'S PEAK.

Upon the first page of the cover of the A.P.A. Special (issued April 27) was an illustration of Pike's Peak. Its publication is very timely in view of the fact that a goodly number of our readers will be interested in viewing that which it will be their privilege to enjoy, at close quarters when in next July they attend the convention of the A. P. A., to be held at Denver.

Pike's Peak has long been an object of admiration to the world because of its commanding position and the glamour thrown around it by history and tradition.

The majesty of greatness and the mystery of minuteness are here brought face to face. The thoughtful mind is awed by the contemplation of this scene, and when the reflection comes that these great spaces are but grains of sand on an infinite shore of creation, and that there are worlds of beauty as vast and varied between the tiny flowers and the ultimate researches of the microscope as those which exist on an ascending scale between the flowers and the great globe itself, the mind is overwhelmed with wonder and admiration.

As the ascent is made, many opportunities are given for exquisite views of the world below, through vistas in the trees, with the eastern plains glowing in the sunshine, and extending as far as vison reaches, and limited only by the blue horizon's verge.

H. W. Dossher, 1126 Geary St., San Francisco, Cal.

When the headwaters of Ruxton Creek are reached, the road curves to the southwest, and "Windy Point" is attained. From here one has a distinct view of Manitou, Colorado City and Colorado Springs. The "Cathedral Spires" and the "Great Gateway" of the Garden of the Gods appear like the castles set by the giants for a stupendous game of chess. We are now far above timber-line. On all sides can be seen strange flowers, of lovely forms and varied hues. Plants which attain considerable proportions on the plains are here reduced to their lowest terms. It is not an unusual thing to find a sunflower-stalk on the prairies rising to a height of from eight to ten feet; here they grow like dandelions in the grass, yet retaining all their characteristics of form and color. Beyond this mountain meadow are great fields of disintegrated granite, broken cubes of pink rock, so vast in extent that they might well be the ruins of all the ancient cities in the world. Far below flash the waters of Lake Morain, and beyond, to the southward, lie the Seven Lakes. Another turn of the track to the northward, and the shining rails stretch almost straight up what appears to be an inaccessible wall of precipitous granite. But no physical obstruction is formidable enough to stop the progress of this marvelous railway; and passing the yawning abyss of the "Crater," the line proceeds direct to the summit. The grade here is one of twenty-five per cent and timid passengers will not escape a thrill of fear as they gaze over the brink of this precipice, although the danger is absolutely nothing.

The cars are not tilted, but the seats are arranged so as to give the passengers a level sitting. The engine pushes the cars, instead of drawing them, which is of great advantage in the fact that the passengers' eyes are not constantly menaced by cinders. The cars also work independently of engine and can be let down alone if necessary. Fifty people make a load for the train and about three hours are consumed in making the round trip. Stops are made at interesting points on the way up.

At last the summit is reached, and disembarking, the tourist can seek refreshments in the station and then spend the time before the train returns in enjoying the view and in rambling over the seventy acres of broken granite which form the summit.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

G. B.:—The label that you describe, "Confederate Blockade Postage to Europe, One Dollar," etc., lettered on an upright rectangle, 30 by 23mm, is a fictitious and fraudulent specimen, one of a set of three, that first made its appearance many years ago, when the promotion of bogus varieties of U. S. and Confederate stamps was somewhat commonly attempted. You say: "I see no reason why there should not be a stamp of this sort, as anyone conversant with affairs during 1861-65 knows that the only communication with Europe was had by running the blockade." It must be admitted that the individual responsible for the "blockade" stamps was shrewd in taking advantage of a natural situation in this instance, to loan plausibility to the frauds, but as it is known that the stamps were not issued with government authority, it follows that they must be placed in the category of frauds or stamps that never existed. (2) "I should like to obtain the names and addresses of wholesale dealers in this and foreign countries who make a specialty of one or a group of countries." Wholesale dealers, as a rule, handle the stamps of many countries, but yet, nearly everyone of them makes a sort of specialty of the stamps of the country or group, that for some reason or other, they have superior facilities for importing. The wholesale dealers in America use our advertising columns occasionally, while those abroad advertise, as a rule, in their own stamp papers.

J. L.:—We find no reference anywhere to a stamp of the St. Lucia Steam Navigation Company and so, infer that your blue stamp on heavy paper was made to sell to collectors, instead of to serve any legitimate postal purpose.

R. W. M.:—"Is there any possibility of the United States ever issuing charity stamps? and can you tell me if the government has ever considered this form of raising money for charities?" We may not say that there is no possibility of our government ever issuing in the future stamps of the kind, but we think it highly improbable that the postal authorities, or congress, will ever undertake to raise money in the manner described. The proposition to help relieve the necessities of Baltimore after its visitation of fire by the issue of some special form of postal security, if ever properly presented to official notice was rejected. For reasons of policy, if not of state, it is unlikely that this country will ever take active means through its postal branch to gather funds for charity.

L. W. C.:—"Is there any dealer who has 'permits' for sale or who has catalogues of same? Can you tell me of any place where I can get any information about them?" While we think that we have seen "permits" advertised for sale on one or two occasions perhaps in our Trade Column, yet we cannot refer to any dealer in them. No catalogue of these varieties has been published. An exhaustive article on "permits" by Mr. Nast, appeared in the WEEKLY issue of May 19, 1906.

E. A.:—"How should United States pre-canceled stamps be mounted? Should all denominations of one city be placed together, or all one-cent stamps, for instance, of the entire country be mounted together?" Here is an opportunity for individual view. Personally, we should prefer to arrange the stamps by cities and not by denominations; in this way, the number of varieties of each city could be seen and the monotony of an unbroken field, considering the stamps themselves, avoided.

A correspondent submits an envelope, Rail Road Business, that confirms in its instructions, printed in the upper right hand corner, the information last given on the subject of these envelopes in this column: "This envelope is exclusively for R'y B., and when so used on local or interline mail, U. S. Postage is not required. Provided, it is handled entirely by employes of the sender Co., or jointly by them and employes of the Co. addressed without intervention by another carrier."

J. E. L.:—This correspondent writes: "I have in my possession a copy of the United States, 1883, two-cent red brown, imperforate and on double paper, on the envelope on which it was used. As it is not catalogued in that condition, I am anxious to know about." The two-cent red brown, 1883, is listed in imperforate condition, but there is no record of double paper varieties. We suggest that the specimen be submitted to an authority for his opinion as to the character of the paper, and whether it is a double paper, such as was found in the National (six and twenty-four cent) and Continental prints.

W. S. B.:—This correspondent who wrote recently for full information as to the Glen Haven locals, and their uses, and who was returned an answer that conveyed but little data, now writes: "With reference to my recent inquiry in regard to the 'Glen Haven Daily Mail' stamps, I have been told that the information that I am looking for was published in the American Journal of Philately about thirty years ago. As I have not access to this work, I give you its name in the hope that you can look it up for me. (2) "Also, please let me know what a 'godet' is, and the workings of it. The term was used recently in your columns." As we have not the first series of the American Journal of Philately at hand, perhaps some reader who is fortunate enough to have the papers, in file, will help us by furnishing the information. (2) A "godet," according to the dictionary is "an earthen, wooden, or metallic tankard, usually with a cover." The word is an obsolete one, and is used but rarely and then in technical descriptions.

S. T.:—The 2-cent, 1898, on envelope, bearing in part, "Military Station No. 2, Cavite—Philippine Islands," impressed in purple ink, in two lines, was sent from the Philippines from one of the army postoffices established by our invading troops, during the war with Spain. These military postoffices were established in Philippine Islands, Cuba and Puerto Rico, and in 1900, in China, for the service of the troops. At the time, and for a while after these markings were in use, they were in some demand by collectors to whom they appealed, but latterly, they do not seem to be in the collecting mind to any noticeable extent. These military postmarks may be said to have a curious interest that may be reducible to a small monetary value. (2) The marking on the Spanish stamp probably has no postal significance.

A. E. M.:—The U. S. 2-cent, 1898, surcharged I. R., variety, the I having no seriff at the right bottom side, is a minor variety similar to that with comma instead of period, etc., in importance. This variety, while uncommon enough, does not seem to command any price that is worth mentioning. (2) The watermark on the current issue, U. S., and on preceding issues, is occasionally found inverted. (3) The United States newspaper stamps, bearing the words "fac-simile" or "falsch" are frauds that are of German origin; they are commonly met with and sometimes they bear faked rubber stamped cancellations.

C. R.:—It has been denied by the authorities that the plan to overprint city names on the current stamps will be adopted.

T. T. L.:—An article descriptive of the different manners in which stamps are printed may appear in a coming number of the paper.

EDITORIAL.

Once Again—Recently, a collector of earlier days found his album, which, since 1879, had lain away forgotten. For nearly thirty years, he had felt no philatelic promptings but a cursory examination of the old International was sufficient to ignite the tinder of interest, and it was not long before the old fire burned brightly. He began to pore over the well-thumbed pages so rich in recollection of his youthful love for stamps, and, in time, sought a dealer with the intention of informing himself of present-day conditions. Being a systematic person, he bought a catalogue and subscribed to a stamp paper, both of which he studied intently. In passing, it should be said that this regenerated collector had the satisfaction of finding that his thousand odd stamps, catalogued over ten times as much as the price estimated to have been paid originally for the stamps; and this fact was not without its weight as an incentive to again pursue philately. However, it is his observations on the changes that have taken place in philately as applied to himself personally that are interesting and we have the privilege of detailing his findings. They are of value as showing that stamp collecting to-day is even more engaging than when first he was active. In this connection, it is to be remembered that the old-timer is apt to be partial to the by-gone days as the vista through which he sees the past is softened and made the more attractive by years. The veteran under notice unhesitatingly says after due deliberation that the philatelic path is more pleasant now than it was then, for reasons that follow.

Two Favorable Counts—In the first place, says our collector, in the old days there was not a large enough number of easily obtainable stamps to allow the ordinary collector of limited purse to make a strong numerical showing; and the new issues did not come so rapidly as to greatly enlarge the field of specimens readily at hand. Now a collection of common stamps, according to market value, may mount to say, three thousand, a number large enough to be presentable. The great total of stamp issues has worked to the advantage of collectors in that it includes many stamps that may be had at a comparatively small expenditure; and so, a small amount of money ensures a collection of presentable size. Another count in favor of to-day is that the condition requirements of collectible specimens are much stricter, and it follows that the modern album becomes the more pleasing to the eye by reason of the improved condition of the specimens that it contains.

Acclaims Present Philately—We hasten over the points of better commercial regulations in a business sense and protection afforded collectors generally, and also those considerations that in effect remain the same under the new order, to bring forth the idea expressed by the collector that the one whose collecting interest has lapsed to be now revived, is fortunate in having placed before him what may be called a new world of stamps. It is refreshing to find new faces where before only the old were seen, and while it is something of a shock to hear old friends treated so lightly, by inference, yet there is no disputing the attractions of novelty to the average mind. It is not to be said that the philatelic mind becomes tired of the specimens seen time and again, but new stamps are welcomed by the collector; and when the person who has had some philatelic experience is suddenly brought face to face with the fruitful developments of recent years, he must be happily impressed. It is not unnatural that the one-time collector who has dismissed the hobby for a period of years only to renew his affiliation be somewhat puzzled by the growth of philately in many ways, but the differences may have a favorable construction placed upon them. The old stamps of fond recollection may seem to be very close but that is no reason why the circle of friends should not be widely extended by the inclusion of new ones. We are pleased that one collector speaks out to contrast the two eras of philately in favor of the present one.

Richness—At a recent meeting of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, a display of stamps from the collection of the President, H. R. H., The Prince of Wales, was the feature. The exhibit, in part, consisted of "a collection of the stamps of Kashmir, presented to His Royal Highness by the Maharajah of the State. This collection is arranged in sections consisting of single copies, unused and used, pairs and blocks, copies on originals, entire sheets, proofs from defaced plates, and examples of the chief forgeries. Apart from the stamps themselves, the large album in which they are mounted was an object of general admiration, the covers being very beautiful examples of native art in chiselled silver-work, and all the pages being illustrated with numerous designs by nature artists." Further, "a few choice unused early Mauritius stamps, recently acquired by His Royal Highness, were also shown, comprising a pair and a single copy of the one penny, Post Paid, in mint condition, and a very fine unused example of the 'large fillet.'" The wonderful collection of Kashmir mentioned is not the first that has been presented to His Royal Highness by admirers. We recollect in particular the fine collection of the stamps of Malta that was received by him, some years ago. It certainly must be a source of gratification to the members of the Royal Philatelic Society, London, to know that they are given the privilege of inspecting the treasures that come into the possession of their President; while collectors, the world over, are proud to know that His Royal Highness manifests a sincere interest in stamps, and to feel that he is working for the common good of philately.

Much of a Good Thing—Speaking of noteworthy collections, that of an English collector, consisting of the stamps of the Cape of Good Hope may be cited; it has recently passed into the hands of a dealer. The collection contained over two hundred woodblocks, used and unused and over one thousand of the engraved triangular issues, including upwards of three hundred unused specimens. The errors were included, joined in pairs with the regular varieties. In this connection, the London Philatelist says: "The finds of sheets of certain impressions of the old triangular stamps have indeed quite altered the relative value of some of the older issues, and the lists of Cape stamps—notably in unused condition—require many and important modifications."

No Danger—We have received several letters of protest from members of the American Philatelic Association who are favorably known to us; and we do not hesitate to say that the writers are impelled to speak from sincere conviction that harm is being done the association through the campaign that is being fought. One writer asks if a certain unfortunate period that was experienced in the past is to be repeated in the association; and he says that a fire has been started that in its fierceness will destroy much that it has taken years to construct. He believes that the original ideas of the campaign managers have been lost sight of in the heat of contest. The welfare of the association cannot be seriously jeopardized by the present campaign. Any objections that members may have as to the politics, as practiced, scarcely could be charged against the association, itself. There are ways of protesting against methods that are considered unwarranted without withdrawing support from the association. We feel that members, as a rule, are too intelligent and too much interested in the association to allow a suggestion of the unpleasant, as they may deem it, to alienate their support from the association, that, truly, is to be placed far above the contentions of parties.

F. W. REID,

Box 244, Edgewater, New Jersey.

I have decided to close my store in New York and carry on mail trade only, from my home. Edgewater is just across the river from N. Y. City.

For some time past my mail business has been increasing until it is now greater than my counter trade.

By closing the store I can give mail business my whole time and thus serve my customers better than ever. Please address as above after May 25.

In nearly five years steady advertising in the WEEKLY I have sold stamps to a large number of its readers and have never had a single complaint. I always advertise: "Money back if not satisfactory" but never get the stamps back.

PHILATELIC ZOOLOGY.

BY MARION M. QUACKENBOS.

(E. E. Hand, the teacher of Zoology in the Wendell Phillips High school, Chicago, enrollment 1800, the largest in the U. S., believes in inoculating his pupils with the collecting microbe. Each pupil taking the zoology course makes a little cigar box collection of insects and shells. There is also chart work and each one who brings a new specimen properly named and classified receives extra credit. This has been part of the work for several years.

Seeing the opportunity for close observation and study connected with stamps, and knowing the keen delights accompanying the continued collection of them, it was decided to follow the same plan in collecting animal stamps. Classified charts were prepared to receive the specimens and there was a great deal of friendly rivalry to see who could chase down the required data and get his stamp registered first. Many of the boys and girls had their eyes opened to new beauties in the common everyday world about them. Many heard for the first time of stamp hinges, perforations, watermarks, etc.

The fine set of lantern slides with accompanying lecture by James Abbott, so kindly loaned by the Chicago Philatelic Society, contributed largely to the success of the experiment.

Each pupil had to write a paper on the work at its close and the following is one of the girl's impressions.)

Before taking up the study of philatelic zoology, a stamp was simply a stamp to me, and I valued it because I knew that if I had no stamps I could send no letters. But what could a person ever want with cancelled stamps? At last the veil of error has been lifted from my eyes and I know their value. They mean extra credits and—well a great deal more.

In the first place you procure your stamp, not an ordinary stamp but one on which some beast, bird, fish or reptile rampages across its red, yellow or blue surface. After considerable work I managed to extract from one of my long suffering friends a beautiful stamp. In the middle sat a complacent lion, holding aloft a long pole on which was a liberty cap. Of course holding a pole is not a lion's ordinary business, but this one seemed to greatly enjoy the situation.

Finally after a most confusing hunt thru catalogs I found the small necessary data to get the stamp on the chart. I say small data because you must merely find out the country which issues the stamp, the date of issue, the denomination, the perforation, the catalog price, whose catalog, its date, the name of the animal on the stamp, paste on your specimen, but not paste it tight down, mercy, no! What ignorance, you use a stamp hinge. Then you tell whether you have any duplicates, make a few remarks, as: "pretty scroll design," "pony mail carrier," "excited animal" or something that appeals to you, and then if you have any energy left you sign your name. I did all this and then proudly placed my first stamp on the chart. But alas! "Pride goeth before a fall," for the next morning I found my treasure lying on the desk, with various instructions written with blue pencil. But "Try, try again" is my motto, so I corrected my mistakes and the next morning as I went by, my red beauty was lying in serene dignity on the chart. Now one would think that after the exhaustive research necessary to place one stamp on the chart that I would be satisfied. But no, a mad desire to get another on possessed me, and so I did. Then having seen my second safely on, I rested and began to enjoy the hard earned fruits of victory.

But this was not all to our study of philatelic zoology by any means. We had a most delightful and interesting lecture on the subject which was written by James Abbott and read to us by our instructor. The Chicago Philatelic Society kindly furnished some beautifully colored stamp slides and this made the lecture doubly interesting, for as different stamps were described pictures of them were thrown on the screen.

Now, no one must think for a moment that I was the only one that rushed to get stamps on the chart. Of course I realize how wonderful it was for me to get two on, but one enterprising young man actually had nine, but he is no doubt superior to ordinary mortals.

To show to what good advantage the classes worked, I will give the number of stamps placed on each chart: Mammals 84 (the horse and lion leading), birds 45 (mostly eagles), reptiles 8, fishes 1, a lone cod from Newfoundland and miscellaneous 2, bees from Nicaragua and a shell from Travancore, 140 stamps in all.

Now that we have finished this study I am a trifle surprised to find that I have escaped from the stamp collecting microbe that was let loose in our zoology classes, and into whose fatal clutches many fell. Nothing but a wild gleam comes to my eyes when I hear "stamps" mentioned. And why that wild gleam? It comes from vivid recollections of a certain cold morning up in the laboratory when I hunted thru several catalogs for a great many facts about a little red stamp from Paraguay.

AN OPEN LETTER.

MR. E. M. ROSENTHAL,
Chicago Branch Campaign Committee, A. P. A.

DEAR SIR: —

A letter in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of May 18th and signed John W. Haseltine, President of Philadelphia Branch 18, stating that he deems it his duty as President of Branch 18 to write the same—is of such a character, is so misleading and falls so far short of the whole truth generally,—that we deem it our duty to reply. In so doing we do not split hairs, we do not rely upon half truths, we do not defame anyone, we state "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth."

It is claimed by some of our members that at a meeting of Philadelphia Branch held February 6th, at which five members were said to be present, Mr. Doeblin was endorsed as a candidate for President of the American Philatelic Association. We do not deny it, but we do protest against such endorsement being claimed as an endorsement of Branch 18.

1st. Because the By-laws of Branch 18 designated seven (7) members as being necessary to constitute a quorum. Therefore the meeting of February 6th was not a regular meeting, but an informal gathering of members.

2nd. Because neither we nor anyone, so far as we can learn, (excepting the boomer of the Chicago nominations), knew until they attended that meeting that the question of an endorsement of A. P. A. candidates was to be considered at all. No notice whatever of such intention was given.

3rd. Because we do know that a majority of members of Branch 18 have endorsed the ticket nominated by the New England Branch of Boston, and will vote same.

ALSO NOTE

That upon the official list of branches endorsing nominations (published on the last page of MEKEEL'S, every week) Philadelphia does not appear as endorsing the Chicago nominations, and never has appeared in such capacity.

The references to Mr. Batchelder, the President of the New England Branch, who was a guest on the night of May 1st on written and verbal invitation of several of our members, are outrageous. We repudiate them utterly

At that meeting several of our members, including President Haseltine himself, referred questions which arose to Mr. Batchelder, but he declined to express an opinion, saying that parliamentary questions should be decided by our By-Laws, those of the American Philatelic Association, or by such authority on parliamentary law as we should agree upon.

In conclusion we would respectfully suggest that all who are interested wait until our June meeting before counting the vote of Branch 18. Personally we favor and shall vote that nominated by the New England Branch.

Respectfully,

JOSEPH A. STEINMETZ, Central Trust Bldg., (A. P. A. 1977),
PERCIVAL PARRISH, 1204 Chestnut Street, (A. P. A. 1868),
W. A. MACCALLA, 237 Dock Street, (A. P. A. 13),
C. B. BISHOP, 6248 Haverford Avenue, (A. P. A. 2016).

In addition to the above, the following Philadelphia members of the American Philatelic Association have already endorsed the New England nominations:

JOSEPH B. FEIGEL, 126 N. 13th Street.
MAX R. KRESS, 1725 Snyder Avenue.

NEW STAMPED ENVELOPES.

Plan to Place Name of City or Town on Stamps Considered Impracticable.

The stamped envelopes which will be issued under the new contract, beginning July 1 next, will contain the bust of either Washington or Franklin in simple bas-relief, Washington having been the first President and Franklin practically the first Postmaster General and the father of the post office system. There will be no printing on the stamps except the words "United States" and the denominations in figures and also in raised letters. The effect will resemble somewhat the stamped envelope when it first came into use in earlier days. The issue will consist of four denominations, two-cent and five-cent (Washington) and one-cent and four-cent (Franklin), the colors being green, red, blue and black.

Postmaster General Meyer is being besieged with inquiries and suggestions as to devising a plan for placing on postage stamps the name of the city or town in which they are sold. The scheme is impracticable, according to post office officials, owing to the necessary delay and expense involved, and does not harmonize with the ideas of the Postmaster General, who desires to simplify the design of postage stamps so that they will have as little on them as possible, thus making the denominations clear and distinct.

THE RAREST OF ALL U. S.

Cards is the McKinley Error, showing the full face portrait of our martyred President. Only one small lot of these cards was sold at the New York Post Office. I have secured a few of these rarities and offer them, while they last, at $2.50 unused, $1.25 used.

After my limited supply is exhausted, you will not be able to purchase this card at double the price.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed CANADA.—Mrs. Allan R. Oughtred sends us a copy of the Quebec $2 law stamp in a new color. The stamp was formerly printed in green, in that color for 14 years, as a matter of fact, but now appears in violet brown. Mrs. Oughtred has previously informed us of other changes in the current revenue stamps of the Dominion.

CANAL ZONE.—Gerald L. Bliss writes in re rate of postage from Panama to the Canal Zone:

"I inclose you a cover which seems to me to rather discredit the article from H. Leonard regarding the postage rate from Panama to the Zone, printed in No. 850. He states that an agreement between Panama and the States allows a two-cent postage rate from the Republic to the Zone or States, or from the Zone or States to the Republic, and this may be true, but I call your attention to the fact that the enclosed cover, mailed in the Republic, (Colon Post Office), and addressed to the Zone has two cents postage prepaid but notwithstanding this, it is marked "T", indicating Tax or Postage due, by the Panamanian P. O. at Colon and one cent collected from addressee on delivery, indicating a deficiency of one-half cent, which deficiency is doubled when mail is addressed to a foreign country making the one cent due. You will not fail to note that the 1c stamp on the letter is a Zone stamp while the remainder are Panamanian.

"It is quite possible that Mr. Leonard is correct in his contention, I have nothing official to oppose him but you can see for yourself how it looks with this cover before you, that the postage rate from Panama Republic to the Zone or the States is the same as the Panamanian domestic rate and this we know to be 2½ cents, in fact would it not be establishing a precedent for a country to allow cheaper postage to a foreign country than its own domestic rate. There is no question but that the article is correct in stating that the rate from the Zone or the States to Panama is 2 cents, the only question is, is the rate reciprocal?"

As Mr. Bliss says, the cover submitted has four of the ½c Panama stamps, with the addition of a 1c Canal Zone stamp, surcharged "Postage Due" diagonally reading up, the surcharge being in black. There is also stamped on the envelope in the same type as this surcharge, but in violet ink, the same words, "Postage Due," and also "T—Colon" in a circle in dark purple, with "1c" written at the right. A later note from Mr. Bliss quotes an official at Cristobal, as authority for the statement that the official rate from Panama to the Canal Zone and States is five cents silver or two and one-half cents gold. This ought to be reliable information, as Cristobal is the Exchange Office, and tax letters are rated up there.

Mr. Bliss further writes:

"There are no new stamps contemplated as far as I know. I doubt if the Zone authorities have ever given a thought towards surcharging the 25c and 50c Panama, giving us stamps of a little higher value. We need them badly, and will want them still more as it gets near Christmas. It is my opinion that these stamps, surcharged for the Zone, will be the next new thing from the Isthmus."

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—H. Leonard has shown us a curiosity in the shape of the stamp of the 2c red wrapper of 1890, cut square and used as an adhesive. Mr. Leonard has three similar copies of this stamp, which were used in 1899, one being distinctly postmarked "May 1, 1899." This practice of allowing unused envelopes to be cut square and used for adhesives is now authorized in several countries, including Great Britain, and promises to become general, though as usual it seems probable that the United States will wait until the last to adopt this convenient and just provision.

GOLD COAST.—We are informed that two of the single color stamps have been issued for this colony, on ordinary multiple white paper.

Adhesives.

1d carmine.
2½d ultramarine.

HAYTI.—A. W. Dunning informs us that he has Scott's Nos. 69, 206 and 207, with double surcharge, both normal, and Scott's No. 207 with inverted surcharge.

ICELAND.—The current 5 aur card is now reported by Mr. Morse with value changed to 3 aur. This is done by a large colorless "3" in the center of an otherwise solid rectangular block of color covering about three quarters of the central portion of the stamp.

Post Card.

3 on 5 aur green, surcharge dark red violet.

NEW ZEALAND.—Senf's letter card of 1903 he calls brown-red, but the correct color is dark brown or burnt sienna. J. N. Morse reports having just received exactly the same card with change of color to light brownish red.

Letter Card.

1d brownish red on pale blue.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke sends several novelties from this country, including the 1c official of 1906, surcharged "Vale 10c," the "c" being inverted and with cross lines as usual. Mr. Focke's budget includes an unsevered pair of these stamps with a variety in the size and shape of the "0" in "10". Mr. Focke also sends us a copy of the 4c, Waterlow print.

Provisional Adhesive.

"Vale 10c" on 1c green official.

PERU.—Hermann Focke sends us the 50c value of the new series now being issued. This is a horizontal oblong stamp, 21x35mm. A broad arch shows the General Post and Telegraph Office at Lima as the picture in the background, while on the curve of the arch is printed "Union Postal Universal Peru." Scrolls and ornaments at either side have "Cinquenta—Centavos" and the figures of value, the latter being repeated four times. As this new set developes, it promises to be as handsome as any on the list, while the differences between the designs of the different denominations are certainly striking.

Adhesive.

50c black.

ROUMANIA.—Mr. Schachne reports the "charity" set post card of angel and baby design. The frame and the outer edge of the stamp are pale green—all other printing is black. This includes the design in center of stamp, the figures of value in each upper corner, the inscription at lower edge in a straight line, two head lines at upper left, "Romania—Carta Postala" in fancy block capitals, and four dotted lines for address the first preceded by "D."

Post Card.

5b black and pale green on white.

SPANISH GUINEA.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. reports having received the 1c, 2c, 3c and 4c stamps of Elobey, surcharged "Correos Assobla" etc., as previously noted for the higher values.

ST. VINCENT.—P. Wolff reports having received the new St. Vincent 1d stamp. The design shows two women, one kneeling to be crowned with a wreath. The value 1d appears in one corner, with the usual inscription, "Pax et Justitia." The stamps are printed on multiple paper, and were issued April 26.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—Dr. H. A. Davis very kindly favors the office of the WEEKLY with printed matter of interest to the possible attendant upon the Denver Convention, including views of the "Albany" the convention headquarters. The program of the convention published elsewhere will be read with interest.

—We have received from W. O. Staab information that an application has been signed by no less than fourteen Milwaukee members of the A. P. A. for the purpose of obtaining a charter for a local branch. Dr. R. F. Teschan is chairman of the temporary organization and Mr. Staab, secretary. At the meeting just held a resolution was adopted condemning the political heat that has been engendered by campiagn statements printed in the philatelic press.

WHOLESALE SUPPLIES.

My new wholesale list is greatly enlarged and priced in U. S. currency. All dealers desiring reasonable quotation on cheap stamps per 10, 100 or 1000 should send for it.

I do not claim that my prices are always cheaper than those of other dealers, but I do claim that no dealer in the world pays more attention to the condition of all stamps supplied to customers. All stamps are delivered free from paper and in good condition. This is of far more importance to dealers than low prices (which usually mean a large proportion of damaged stuff). However,

"The Proof of the Pudding is in the eating" and all I ask is the favor of a trial order from those American dealers not already on my books.

Columbian Stamp Co., Arlington, Mass., write 13th March, 1907: "Stamps duly to hand and very satisfactory."

Send name and address on a post card and lists will be forwarded regularly.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., sends us a clipping from the New York Sun of May 12 dealing with "Great Stamp Collections." It is a very interesting article and we hope to be able to use it either in whole or in part in a later issue of the WEEKLY.

—A movement is on foot amongst the officers of the army, navy, marine corps and marine hospital service to organize an exchange circuit amongst those who are interested in stamp collecting. Capt. J. L. Knowlton of Fort Du Pont, Del., may be addressed for further information. Lieut. F. R. Lang who is interested in this new organization is desirous of making it a Service Branch of the A. P. A.

—The Toledo Stamp Co. wishes information in regard to R. H. Clark of Hacklesburg, Ala., who bought some stamps in December at auction and has never settled for the same. Clark claims that the goods failed to be delivered, but a tracer sent through the express company revealed the fact that they were delivered to Clark at a different town to which he had gone. Further correspondence comes back marked "Unclaimed." Information in regard to this party will be welcomed.

—E. B. Power, managing director of Stanley Gibbons, New York, was at the office of the United Stamp Company, Chicago, from May 20th to May 25th, when he left for the east. Mr. Power presented to the notice of patrons, a superb line of stamps, with an estimated value of one hundred thousand dollars.

—We are indebted to J. A. Klemann, Sec. of the Collectors Club, for a copy of the records of the meeting held May 13. At this meeting a communication was read, signed by Mrs. H. C. Coo, calling attention to the need of an annual exhibition of postage stamps and offering several collections to those who would engage in promoting a public exhibition. It was suggested that it take place in New York City early in 1908 in a place where "all sorts of conditions of people might meet and discuss the interesting phases of stamp life." The Collectors Club recommended that this offer be made public though no other definite action was taken by the organization. We are very glad to give it publicity in the columns of the WEEKLY and suggest that an exhibition in New York or Boston for the year 1908 would be quite the proper thing.

—John B. Howe favors us with an editorial from the Syracuse Herald dealing with "Commemorative Stamps" and commends them because of the manner in which they "deepen popular interest in events that are invested with rare historic and patriotic significance." We have received from Mr. Howe an article dealing with some criticisms of the Jamestown issues made by "Cornelius Wrinkle" in Gibbons' Weekly which we shall hope to publish in our next issue.

—The purchase of the C. E. Hussman Stamp Company, St. Louis, stock by the United Stamp Company was a transaction of importance. A full cash payment secured the stock that is catalogued roughly at from $75,000 to $100,000, and which was transported to Chicago from St. Louis in a dozen packing boxes of formidable size. Mr. Massoth, the manager of the United Stamp Company, says that the stock will be placed on the market through auction sales and special offerings.

—We have received from the Co-operative Stamp Co. a catalog of their 7th mail auction sale which takes place June 7. It contains a fine line of U. S. and foreign stamps including some fine British Colonials, single stamps, sets, lots by countries, six good collections, some fine wholesale offers, ready mounted approval books and mixtures, in fact "something for everybody."

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from H. N. Hass (2), Barclay Green, Geo. L. Tophan (2), John N. Monser, F. R. Fraprie, C. A. Howes, F. D. Goodhue (2), A. F. Henkels, Arthur L. Nelson, W. H. Schaffner, W. R. King, L. Newman.

—W. G. Swart, Denver, Colorado, who advanced Denver's convention claims so convincingly at Boston last year, as to influence a favorable result, was a recent visitor to Chicago.

—F. D. Goodhue sends us the sad information that Geo. Decamp, one of the recent additions to the membership of the A. P. A., recently passed away, the funeral taking place in Cincinnati, Tuesday, May 14. Mr. Decamp had acquired a national reputation as a tennis player and his death is charged to pneumonia contracted by exposure in tennis practice.

—At the meeting of the Kansas City Stamp Club, April 26, the Jamestown Commemorative stamps were discussed. The exhibit of the evening consisted of the U. S. Exposition stamps of past years. The club is now installed in its own room at No. 442 Jenkins Bldg.

—The philatelists of Kingston, N. Y., have formally organized with the Rev. Wm. F. Stowe, Pres. and Ernest J. Linson, Sec.-Treas. Meetings will be held every month excepting during July and August.

—We erred in a recent issue in our statement in regard to the arrangements for the Convention of the M. P. A. We are now informed that correspondence should be addressed to L. Crandall, Ithaca, N. Y.

—On April 27 Chas. N. Combs, M. D., occupied the Children's Hour at the Terre Haute Public Library, addressing about forty boys and girls on the subject "Stamp Collecting as a Sensible Hobby." Dr. Combs exhibited his collection and the various kinds of philatelic accessories. He gave each child a small assortment of stamps and instructions as to the way to start a collection. On request the librarian agreed to buy a catalog and to subscribe for the WEEKLY.

To All Members of the American Philatelic Association

GENTLEMEN:—While I fear that the members of the Association have long ere this become disgusted at the low plane on which the campaign has been conducted on one side, yet I cannot allow to go unchallenged the statement embodied in a letter in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of May 18th and signed "John W. Haseltine, Pres. of Philadelphia Branch No. 18." Believing that all members who are at all interested have read that letter or have a copy of the paper, I will quote only briefly, "Having read the untruthful assertion, etc." The next paragraph states that at the meeting of Philadelphia Branch held Feb. 6th "Mr. Doeblin was endorsed by a unanimous vote, this being as far as the Chicago nominations had reached at that time." Does this not prove that our statement made May 4th, that the Chicago ticket had not been endorsed up to that date, was correct?

It is true that I was present at the meeting of the Philadelphia Branch May 1st. I was present, however, upon the written invitation of Mr. Jos. A. Steinmetz, an ex-President, I think of that Branch, and without that invitation I would not have been there, although I was in Philadelphia on other business. As Mr. Haseltine has stated, I "heard the matter fully stated in regard to our endorsement of Mr. Doeblin." This I admit, and as Mr. Haseltine has been very careful not to state the whole truth in regard to that endorsement, I trust that the members will pardon me if I should do so.

One of the members did make the statement that at a meeting held Feb. 6th, at which there were five members present, the Branch did endorse the Chicago ticket. Upon being questioned, he corrected this to say that they endorsed Mr. Doeblin, the head of the Chicago ticket. A member asking to have the records of Feb. 6th read, brought out a reply from the Secretary that he had not yet had time (May 1) to enter the records of the Feb. 6th meeting, and that while he had his record book with him, he had unfortunately left his notes of that meeting at home. The fact was also brought out that no notice was sent the members that any action looking to the endorsement of any ticket was sent out with the call of the Meeting, Feb. 6th.

Another member then asked how many members constituted a quorum. He was told "Five." The member then asked to have the by-laws relating to that matter read. The by-laws being read stated seven. Mr. Henkels then stated that at a subsequent meeting this number was changed to five. The records were vainly searched to find any such record of a change having been made.

The meeting then voted to postpone all action until the June meeting.

Our statement that the Philadelphia Branch had not endorsed the Chicago ticket, however, was not because of anything that happened at the above meeting. Our statement appeared in the WEEKLY of May 4th, which was printed May 1st, the very day of the meeting. Our information came from two members of the Philadelphia Branch.

Let every member judge for himself as to the justice and truth of all our statements.

On the last page of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY is a statement headed "Another Falsehood Nailed" The above two statements were sent out with the knowledge that every member of the Association would get his ballot and proxy on almost the same day as they would get the paper containing these advertisements, and in the hope that the members would vote without further investigation

Now, I would suggest that every member who desires further light on this question write to Dr. Davis of Denver and get his statement.

The REAL ISSUE is still the election of the best board of officers obtainable.

Regretting exceedingly to be obliged to even notice campaign literature like the above, I remain

Yours for decency,
ALBERT W. BATCHELDER,
President Boston Branch
Chairman Executive Com. } No. 20.

—The Kansas City Stamp Club is planning some missionary work among the pupils of the high schools and higher grades of the ward schools in that city. A small book will be issued for gratuitous distribution dealing with the pleasures and benefits to be derived from stamp collecting. It is proposed to distribute copies of current philatelic papers and free packets of stamps. This is propagating work of the right kind.

—Will some one please send the present address of J. C. Coleman, formerly of Alexandria, Va., to the Editor?

THE PURCHASING DEPARTMENT.

Distribution No. 7 was mailed on May 11th, 1907. It consisted of 15 new issues, viz. Bavaria (5), France (2), French Guinea (3), Germany (3) and Italy (2). It is a curious fact that while all the old members are participants in the Department, the newcomers are not as fully represented as they should be. I strongly urge all members to join both Departments, the Exchange as well as the Purchasing Dept., at once. Mr. Hosbach, Exchange Superintendent, just informs me that a new circuit is now being formed and that he will be pleased to receive the names of new applicants.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

WANTED—VOTERS, NOT VOTES.

MILWAUKEE, WIS., May 18, 1907.

Much interest is now being aroused over the "election." The nominees are probably all capable and if elected will undoubtedly work for the interest of the AMERICAN PHILATELIC ASSOCIATION—but members must not lose sight of the fact that "in numbers there is strength."

If the enthusiasm and printers' ink now being spent in behalf of candidates was devoted to securing new members and showing collectors the benefits of membership in this Association, more good would be accomplished.

The first Recruiting Committee, which was appointed at the Minneapolis Convention, made a Net Gain of 152 Members from Aug. 8, 1905 to Aug. 14, 1906—(53 weeks). The present Committee, assisted by the Members at Large, has made a Net Gain of 254 Members—including applications pending—from Aug. 14, 1906 to May 11, 1907—(9 months)

Collectors will please write any member of the Recruiting Committee for full information in regard to Membership.

We are after "Voters"—not "Votes."

Notice of Nominations.

Several members have written the Secretary placing the present Board of Directors in nomination to be elected for one year beginning Aug 15th, 1907, at which time the present term expires. Among the letters is one from which I quote as follows: "In regard to Officers for 1907-8, I would like to see the present Board re-elected. They have had the blunt end so far, and shouldered the hard work incident to organizing and launching our splendid organization, and now that its success is assured, they should have a chance to show results. I therefore nominate the present Board of Directors to succeed themselves as Directors."

Another member, No. 2, places the present Board in nomination as follows: Pres., Geo. J. Carter, N. Y.; V. Pres., Clarence H. Eagle, N. Y.; 2nd V. Pres., W. S. Aldrich, N. Y.; Sec'y, H. A. Davis, Colo; Treas., W. T. Kimball, Mass. The Secretary wishes to say that while he appreciates the high honor again conferred, it will be impossible for him to serve another term and declines the nomination with thanks to those who have insisted on using his name a second time for the office of Secretary.

F. B. Kirby of New Bedford, Mass., has been nominated for Secretary.

The fifty-seventh regular meeting was held Tuesday, May 14th, 1907, with Vice-Pres. Humes presiding in the absence of Pres. Cornwall and ten members present. The elements' persistent endeavors to hold our members under the shelter of their own roofs, seemed only to increase the enthusiasm of those who ventured out. Such a meeting as this under weather conditions prevailing is indeed gratifying in the extreme, showing an interest in the meetings equaled by few societies. Two more members have been added to our roll, Messrs. Vinton E. Sisson and Adalbert Strauss, both of whom were unanimously elected.

Our recently elected Exchange Manager, Mr. Schoeman, reports a number of new and highly desirable books entered for circulation and many as good or better promised. It is hoped and expected that members will aid this department by entering their duplicates for sale and increase their collections at small cost by freely patronizing what should be one of the most valuable adjuncts of our organization.

The original and highly entertaining prize contest proposed by President Cornwall, namely, writing as many names of countries which have issued triangular stamps as possible, time limit ten minutes, was thoroughly enjoyed by all, particularly by the wise and fortunate winners, Messrs. Schoeman and Wood, who respectively carried off first and second prizes, offered by our worthy President. Certainly an edifying sight to see our staid and dignified friends put on their thinking caps and assume schoolboy attitudes for their "final exam." even though it did last but ten short minutes. Next meeting Tuesday, May 28th, 1907. Be sure to be there.

CHESTER MYERS, Sec'y.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

THE JAMESTOWN EXPOSITION ISSUE.

BY JOHN B. HOWE.

Under the heading "Utterly Speculative Abortions," Gibbons' Stamp Weekly publishes the following from its editorial contributor, "Cornelius Wrinkle:"

The great and mighty Republic is at it again. There are to be more speculative show labels for milking stamp collectors. This time it is to be a series for the "Jamestown Exposition of 1907." This local show rubbish is increasing at such a pace that it will soon outstrip the ordinary postal series of the United States.

I wonder whether the foregoing was intended as a sneer or a jest. It reads like a sneer but one may hope, for the sake of the naturally genial, though cynical, "Cornelius," that it is only a clumsy attempt at humor.

The cost of the complete Jamestown set to the collector will be eight cents. Let us assume that one million sets will be sold to stamp dealers and collectors for purely philatelic purposes. That will mean a magnificent increase of $80,000 in the revenue of our postoffice department. The revenue of the department for the last fiscal year was about $168,000,000. The receipts of the New York city postoffice alone are now more than $16,000,000 a year. On the basis of my estimate that one million unused sets of the Jamestown issue will be purchased for collections, the increased revenue to the Government from this source will be less than the average revenue of our chief metropolitan postoffice from two days' business! If, in the face of these figures, our friend "Cornelius" can believe that the Jamestown stamps are "speculative show labels for milking stamp collectors," he can believe anything.

If further refutation of this preposterous slur were needed, it could be found in the steady tendency of our Government to reduce the number and denominations of its commemorative stamps. Whatever may have justly been said by way of criticism of the high denominations of the Columbian issue in 1893, and of the dollar values of the Omaha issue five years later, no rational philatelist can seriously pretend that if the postoffice department had been principally bent on "milking collectors," it would have confined the Jamestown issue to three stamps, selling for eight cents. As I have shown, the revenue from all the Jamestown stamps it could possibly sell to collectors would scarcely be "a drop in the bucket" of its enormous postal income.

This sneer in an English philatelic publication is all the more unbecoming and offensive because it happens that the Jamestown tricentenary is the first of our national expositions and celebrations arranged in commemoration of historic events in which the people of England could naturally and properly feel a strong sympathetic interest, based upon historical associations. Of the historic dramas which our expositions have commemorated, only one appeals with a direct sentimental force to living Englishmen, and that was the colonization of Jamestown. Indeed, two of our expositions, the Philadelphia Centennial and the St. Louis World's Fair, were calculated to recall unpleasant memories to British minds namely, the Declaration of Independence, and the sale of Louisiana by Napoleon to the United States for the purpose of filling his war chest for the most terrible struggle England ever had to encounter. But Englishmen can recall the little expedition upon the Chesapeake with universal pride, and therefore share our own sentimental interest in the tricentenary.

The trouble with a certain class of philatelic extremists is that they have acquired the habit of measuring the value and judging the signification of commemorative issues of postage stamps by their own prejudices or desires. They attach more importance to an inverted watermark, a minute variety of perforation, or a misshapen surcharge, in some existing issue of a semi-barbarous colony, than to the educational influence which must always radiate from such simple and inexpensive historic memorials as a commemorative set of postage stamps. I should be the last to deny that this custom of signalizing historic anniversaries with special postal issues has been abused by impecunious governments, but I believe that the resulting evil has been far outweighed by the good. Every nation rears imposing and costly monuments to honor its heroes or recall great events in its history, and the purpose of this policy is both patriotic and educational. The commemorative stamp serves that same purpose in a simpler, more popular and more effective way; for in these modern days the postage stamp goes everywhere and, if it is commemorative, it carries its lesson and meaning to millions, where the monument, the group of statuary or the historic painting can impress only the comparative few.

PHILIPPINE--OFFICIAL SEALS.
Some little time ago I received a small lot of these seals; they were perforated and upon unwatermarked paper. I am now in receipt of a new lot, but they are ROULETTED and on WATERMARKED paper.
The color of the United States seal has been lately changed to BLUE and those for the Canal Zone are, also, in that color. It is not therefore, unreasonable to suppose that the next lot for the Philippines will be blue also
My supply of the perforated ones is practically exhausted, but I can still furnish the rouletted ones, which are of a yellowish-brown shade.
Price, while they last, unused, o g., 25 cents.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

C. M. B.:—This correspondent writes: "Do the 1902 surcharges of Portugal and colonies serve any legitimate purpose, or were they issued purely and simply to make more stamps to sell to collectors? I am a friend to Portuguese stamps in general." When the 1902 surcharges of Portugal and colonies were first announced a wave of protest against the wholesale surcharging spread through the stamp papers. So decided a multiplication of varieties at one stroke seemed to be imposing too much on the tolerancy of collectors, as it was suspected, and with reason, that the motives of the authorities were not above reproach, in that they calculated to sell many of the new stamps to collectors. The condemnation that was leveled against the stamps had its effect, and many collectors ignored them at the time of the issue of the stamps. It was discovered later that these surcharges were not easily obtainable and then, some of the collectors who opposed them before, sought to fill in the spaces left for these stamps. The surcharges in question were legitimately issued, and should not be discriminated against unless other stamps under the same category are dismissed from notice by the individual collector.

E. E. E.:—"Was the 10-cent, 1895 issue, ever surcharged I. R. by the government and used? A gentleman showed me a used copy of the stamp with surcharge in purple ink, as in the one-cent and two-cent, 1898 revenue issue. I have every reason to believe that it is genuine, as the man is connected with a bank as cashier and is not interested in stamps himself. He took the specimen from a check received from a small town in Michigan." The 10-cent adhesive 1895 was never governmentally surcharged I. R.; the stamp referred to is not an official issue, as only the one-cent and two-cent stamps were surcharged. The overprint spoken of on the 10-cent stamp was applied privately. It should be added that the tax on checks was but two cents.

Several correspondents have asked concerning an article headed, "A Stamp Fake," (or similarly) that has been appearing in different newspapers, in which it is stated that the soliciting of postage stamps from the charitably-minded on the pretext of applying the proceeds from the sale of stamps to the furthering of Christian work is a plan conceived in fraud and fostered by dishonest dealers in stamps. Our answer is that the article in question distorts the truth; and in explanation, we give first of all, a letter that was written by a person authorized to speak as follows: "There is in Basel, in Switzerland (my native town), a large training college that prepares young people for missionary work among heathen nations. It is one of the oldest institutions of its kind. We used to collect stamps many years ago and send them there." We know that there are several institutions that request, in the name of charity, contributions of stamps, on the plea that the money realized from the sale is turned to the account under which the stamps were sent. One religious institution circulates a paper in furthering the collecting of stamps for charity. Many frauds have been practiced with the intention of profiting through the donations of stamps by the general public, but it is not fair to say that there is no honesty in any of the methods employed by any institution.

C. L. C.:—"Why is it that stamp dealers can buy postage due and official seal stamps, unused from the government, in view of the fact that here, the postmaster says that he is not allowed to sell such stamps and refuses to do so?" Stamp dealers succeed in obtaining the stamps named in different ways, but we believe that they make no effort to get them first hand or buy them from the government. A postmaster, here and there, may be ignorant of the rules forbidding the sale of the stamps, and sell them to a collector, who in turn might seek the dealer with them.

L. B.:—"What is the quickest, cheapest and safest way of cleaning stamps?" We strongly advise against the cleaning of stamps by any chemical means, the employment of which is rarely attended with satisfaction. A dirty stamp may be brightened up a bit, harmlessly, except in the case of colors that are not "fixed" by a gentle application of pure soap and water and the use of a camel's-hair brush.

A correspondent writes: "I recently came across a Baltimore, 1861, one-cent red carrier (Scott No. 804) on a U. S., 1853 stamped envelope, which was received in Petersburg about September 12th, 1859. I would appreciate any information about the use of this carrier at that time." Number 804 in the catalogue is given under date of 1851 and not 1861; consequently, the seeming discrepancy as to the date of use is brushed away. The Baltimore semi-official issues were used with the permission, if not the authority of the government.

E. B.:—"The Die Varieties of the Nesbitt Series of United States Envelopes," by Victor M. Berthold was published in the American Journal of Philately originally, beginning with the March issue, 1905. The work was published later in book form; price one dollar.

NOTES ON THE STAMPS OF ICELAND.

By L. HARALD KJELLSTEDT, C. E.

Last November Rev. Edward Shepherd, chaplain to the British legation at Stockholm, read a paper before the Philatelic Society of Sweden on the stamps of Iceland, illustrated by means of his own excellent collection of this colony. From this paper, which was afterwards published in condensed form in the January issue of the Svensk Filatelistisk Tidskrift, we take the liberty of extracting a few interesting points.

The 3sk value of the first issue undoubtedly exists with perforation 14x13½ because one copy has been seen by Major Evans and it is listed by Yvert & Tellier. This stamp is without question the greatest rarity amongst the Iceland stamps. All the skilling stamps with watermark are found imperforate, of these the 4sk is the most valuable. 3sk gray, imperforate is a proof.

5 aur blue, perf. 12½, was soon changed to 14x13½ in order to conform to the other stamps of this series. This stamp is very difficult to find in unused condition. The issue of perf. 12½ must have been very small as it was probably after a couple of months only that the change in perforation took place.

20 aur lilac of this series is scarce but the violet is quite common on account of large remainders.

5 aur blue exists imperforate with watermark, and 5 aur ultramarine without watermark.

In July, 1882, a 3 aur yellow stamp was issued which is semi transparent. This is caused by the influence of the gum on the paper. 40 aur lilac, perf. 12½, is a reprint, it is listed by Yvert & Tellier but can not be had. The same is the case with 100 aur, perf. 12½.

Of the official stamps of this period, the earlier printings of 10, 16 and 20 aur are found on paper of a yellow tint. One sheet of the 5 aur brown with watermark was issued imperforate.

The first surcharge "PRIR" (three) on 5 aur green is stated to have been issued in November, 1897. 126 sheets are said to have been sold in the three days from Nov. 10 to 13. There is much hesitation in believing in its genuineness. Earée in his "Album Weeds" takes a very sceptical view, but there is no doubt of the stamp being genuine. The German consul on Iceland, D. Thomsen, is said to have purchased the whole issue of the surcharge immediately on its arrival by the mail steamer.

We reprint below a document bearing on this provisional and issued from Reykjavik, Nov. 10, 1897.

Reykjavik, 10 November, 1897.

Dear Sir—I beg to inform you that the postal government has issued new '3 aur postfrim' stamps. The old ones are quite out of stock because the Danish mail was sixteen days late on account of the average [sic] of the mail steamer 'Hjalmar'. The postal government has therefore been obliged to issue new '3 aur postfrim' stamps, and she has done it in that way that she has altered green 5 aur stamps into 3 aur stamps by printing on them. At first she had printed on some sheets the numeral figure '3' in red on the middle of each stamp, and besides that on the same stamps the word 'prir' (meaning three) in black printing. These stamps were first sold on the Post Office the 1st inst. The appearance, however, was not considered pretty, and on the rest of the new stock, therefore, only was printed the word 'prir' and no red figure. This later edition was issued on the 3rd inst.

I send you this letter by post, stamped with one of these new stamps (later issue), and the postal officials will have to cancel the stamp, as well as they cancel all other stamps on postal transmissions.

HANNES THORARENSEN.

The surcharge was printed on 5 aur green perf. 12½ as well as on 5 aur perf. 14. The latter is very scarce, particularly unused. A number of the catalogues give the date of issue of perf. 12½ as being 1898. How can this be possible when all copies found are cancelled November, 1897? The author of the paper has two copies cancelled as early as April, 1897, and February, 1896, respectively. If the latter cancellation, as Paul Kohl states, is based on some mistake, the thousands of copies cancelled in November, 1897, prove that the date given in the catalogues mentioned is wrong.

In regard to the stamps surcharged "I GILDI '02-'03" there seems to have been no real need for their issue and they have been the object of no little amount of "jobbing."

Nothing in particular is to be said about the issue having the portrait of the King except the 20 aur value which on the right hand side has the inscription PJONUSTA instead of FRIMERKI, but as 2000 copies of this error are in existence it can not be considered as specially scarce.

Iceland stamps are found which have been cancelled in other places as Edinburgh, Leith, Thorshavn, Copenhagen, Stavanger, etc.

—We acknowledge the receipt of pictorial cards from the Columbus Collectors Club. Not the least interesting of the three is that of the Chittenden Hotel, presumably a candidate for convention headquarters in 1908.

EDITORIAL.

Bear in Mind—So much has been heard of the campaign of the American Philatelic Association which has been waged with a vigor to arouse the attention of the most apathetic member that it now becomes opportune to refer to the coming culmination of the contest at the Denver convention. It is not too early to speak of the convention which now looms up in the path of the future. The committee on arrangements at Denver has been appointed by President Stone, and the convention call specifies July 30th, 1907, as the day on which the convention will convene. The reasons are several that it is desirable that a large and representative attendance be at Denver. A full moral effect is gained by a strong showing of delegates, and a greater enthusiasm in the workings of the convention body is ensured. The entertaining city is likely to regard a large number of visiting delegates as a sort of compliment under the thought of which the extension of courtesies is all the more satisfactory from its view. The center of membership of the American Philatelic Association is well in the east, and in this respect, Denver is much farther west than it is geographically. However, eastern members in particular should know that the journey is one that may be made most pleasantly. As a trip alone, it is well worth taking without the stimulus of a goal such as a convention of the American Philatelic Association.

Plan to Attend—We have every assurance that Denver is making preparation for the coming event on a scale of liberality that will be appreciated by those who participate in the festival. The entertainers will spare no effort to make a pleasing impression on the visitors and whole-souled hospitality will be dispensed in lavish way. It is really a comforting feeling that members may have in knowing that they will be objects of solicitous regard in a social sense, and that a round of entertainment will be provided to consult all tastes. As for the serious work of the convention, there are not a few indications that the Denver business sessions will be marked by the accomplishment of much that will denote substantial philatelic and association progress. The annual meeting of the share-holders of the huge philatelic corporation marks an important date on the philatelic calendar, and all members should show an active interest in the convention by attending it in person, if at all possible to do so. It is none too early to begin to plan the vacation trip so that it may include Denver on July 30th, and "the succeeding days until all business shall have been disposed of."

Take Note—Alex. Holland, ex-president of the American Philatelic Association, and a specialist of high degree of the stamps of Hayti, in particular, has notified us that fairly dangerous forgeries of surcharge varieties, 1902 issue of Hayti, made their appearance some time ago, and that their presence had been discovered in recent auctions held in America and possibly abroad. The forgeries were in the guise of inverted and double surcharges. Mr. Holland while not caring to publish the points of difference between the genuine and counterfeit surcharges expresses himself as willing to pass on suspected specimens for the information of the holders.

Brunei—The Brunei stamps, both the provisional and permanent types, seem to have a clean bill of character. It has been shown that Brunei on Jan. 1st, 1906, passed under the dominion of a British Resident "with powers to control the general administration of the State." This arrangement was agreed to by the Sultan of Brunei. Thus, Brunei became equipped with all requirements of authority as a stamp-issuing country, considerations recognized by the Postal Union, in approving Brunei's application for membership. The permanent set was ordered from London seemingly in good season, but the customary delays attending the production of the finished stamps, they were not received at Brunei, until after the post-office there had been established. In view of the necessity for stamps, recourse was had to surcharging the Labuan stamps; hence, the provisional issue of two thousand sets. Ewen's Weekly Stamp News, in detailing reasons for the philatelic probity of the provisional issue, says: "It is noteworthy that no inkling of the issue of stamps in Brunei was allowed to leak out beforehand, and their existence was actually unknown in Europe until two months after they had been in use." It is known that even the second or permanent set was ordered in so comparatively small a number that dealers' requests for lots of the sets were only filled in part.

Questions of Policy—In connection with the foregoing item our contemporary says: "This raises an interesting question. When ordering the stamps should Brunei have requisitioned for a large stock to supply stamp collectors or for only sufficient to supply 'postage and revenue' needs? And if the latter, has the post-office any right, when the collector presents his demand, to refuse him a supply? Otherwise what should the post-office do when it is bought out?" We assume that any isolated post-office far from the base of stamp supply could refuse on a plea of "public policy" not to sell large lots of an issue limited in number to any one person particularly a non-resident. It is likely that a postal official could stretch his prerogatives of office to justify a course that unusual conditions made necessary in his judgment, and that he would be upheld in his decision by the highest authorities. British colonial postmasters in countries not so inaccessible as Brunei have been known to return even small sums sent by collectors, with the information that the stamps ordered were for the use of the residents only. As for the propriety of a country requesting a supply of an issue large enough for collectors as well as for actual users, it is likely that in good faith a country will not make the mistake of not doing so more than once.

For Sale—An Iowan who has a keen idea of enterprise, if not of stamp values, has sent his "Price List of Old Coins and Stamps," to a number of dealers. We believe that the list may justly be given place among the curiosities of philatelic literature, the following excerpt being submitted to fortify the contention:

Canadian Imperforates—In a paper read before the Royal Philatelic Society, London, and printed in the journal of the society, the London Philatelist, reference is made to imperforate varieties of Canada of the 1868 and succeeding issues of the Dominion, to somewhat later than 1890. These varieties are offered occasionally by dealers and at auction but information regarding their origin is not so generally known as it should be in view of the following quoted statement: "Before leaving this interesting series, I should like to remark that in my opinion, which I have had confirmed by several most competent authorities, the various imperforate copies which I show you, some used and some unused, are absolutely genuine varieties. Imperforate copies of various values were sold over the post-office counter in Montreal about the years 1891-3, at their face value, and have been good for postage whenever people cared to use them. The quantities in this condition are, I believe, extremely small."

F. W. REID,

Box 244, Edgewater, New Jersey.

I have decided to close my store in New York and carry on mail trade only, from my home. Edgewater is just across the river from N. Y. City.

For some time past my mail business has been increasing until it is now greater than my counter trade.

By closing the store I can give mail business my whole time and thus serve my customers better than ever. Please address as above after May 25.

In nearly five years steady advertising in the WEEKLY I have sold stamps to a large number of its readers and have never had a single complaint. I always advertise: "Money back if not satisfactory" but never get the stamps back.

A Statement from Holland A. Davis, M. D

To the Members of the American Philatelic Association:

The Chicago Campaign Committee states in the WEEKLY that Chicago Branch did not nominate me for secretary. For the information of members to whom this statement might be misleading, I will say that early this year I received a letter from a party high in the affairs of the Chicago Branch asking if they might use my name as a candidate for secretary, this being soon followed by another from another party. One of my replies was that "I did not think Chicago would place nominations this year." Hardly had this letter been dispatched when I received notice of nomination by the New England Branch.

After publication of New England Branch ticket, their former actions were revoked, as I have letters from parties who state they were present at meetings in which my name was acted upon favorably for secretary, and later, after publication of the Chicago ticket, were "much surprised to learn I was not a candidate on their ticket."

Were it not that the evidence is in the nature of personal and confidential correspondence, and so stated therein, I would publish these letters with the names of the writers. Since such is the case and should any member doubt the statement of the New England Branch, I will gladly on receipt of inquiry furnish evidence to their entire satisfaction without abusing anyone's confidence.

Very respectfully,

HOLLAND A. DAVIS.

DENVER, COLO., May 21, 1907.

THE CONVENTION CITY.

Philately in Denver.—A Mile High.

BY O. K. CARSTARPHEN.

From the earliest eighties Denver has always been prominent in Philately and always contributed her little mite to the history of our hobby or science as it were. The first we hear of it was about 1884 when the old Denver Stamp Collectors League was the representative society and embraced in its membership such shining lights as the Feldwisch Bros. and D. W. Osgood, well known as the Publishers of the Stamp, the elder brother, John C., being a charter member of the American Philatelic Association and also a member of its Board of Trustees in its earlier years. There was also another well known paper published there at that time and The Collectors' Review is held in high esteem at the present time, especially for its fine articles written by the then Lieutenant (now Major) Partello, designated as the "Philatelists Observations Abroad." There was also a junior society known as the Queen City Philatelic Society and governed by the now well-known philatelists of Denver.

In the earlier nineties there was an awakening of the philatelic spirit and the Queen City Philatelic Society was organized and during its reign numbered as high as 400 members and at one time was the largest city society in the country. It is better known on account of its official organ, The Rocky Mountain Stamp, conceded by all to have been the handsomest stamp paper ever placed before the public.

In 1895 Denver again came into the limelight and was favored by having the P. S. of A. hold its convention within its gates. Following upon this Denver philatelists were honored by the National societies and Messrs. Oney K. Carstarphen, John E. Zahn and Jos. S. Davis were elected to the offices of President P. S. of A., Vice President S. of P., and Vice President P. S. of A., respectively. Thus it will be seen that Denver was on the philatelic map.

In December, 1905, the Denver Stamp Club was organized with thirteen charter members on the thirteenth of the month. Since that time its membership has increased to over fifty, forty per cent of whom are members of the A. P. A.

Aside from the larger and older society, Denver has the Junior Stamp Club, a hustling organization of youngsters, none over sixteen years of age, that claims the honor of having the largest membership of any junior society in the world—some forty-five members. A crowd of hustlers and future giants in philately are embraced in its membership.

The twenty-five collectors in Colorado have associated themselves into a branch, have asked for a charter and hope to be honored with the original No.2 given to the first branch organized in Denver several years ago.

MR. POWER'S SENSATIONAL DESCENT ON CHICAGO.

Accompanied with a lot of postage stamps valued at $125,000, E. B. Power, that embodiment of dynamic philatelic force, maker of philatelic epigrams, and purveyor of scintillating wit, without preliminary announcement of any kind, penetrated into the peaceful precincts of Chicago. The editor, learning of the spectacular advent lost no time in seeking the managing director of Stanley Gibbons, who was found at the offices of the United Stamp Company, in the Marquette building. Mr. Power is traveling as far west as St. Louis, and will touch Cleveland, Columbus, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica, Albany and New York on his return trip. It was indeed a pleasure to behold Mr. Power in the flesh again, the editor not having seen him for many years, but the intervening period of substantial success for Mr. Power has not changed him. The man is still the same; he has the same strong personality and engaging business ability, if possible in added measure.

Asked to reveal a few secrets, Mr. Power said, with rare sapience, that he was well satisfied with the philatelic outlook; that the sales of his firm were fully up to those of last year; that fine stamps were becoming more and more difficult to obtain and that conditions generally were very satisfactory. Some idea of the enormous business of Stanley Gibbons may be gained from a few statements casually made by Mr. Power; for instance, he remarked that the sales for the fiscal year were over one hundred thousand dollars and that a purchase of a single collection for nearly $150,000 was made. A keen judge of stamps and their values, a salesman and buyer and equally resourceful as either, this man, moving among the best collectors and biggest buyers, stands forth in the philatelic world for all that conduces to the upbuilding of philately. Scrupulously careful in his dealings, Mr. Power enjoys the personal acquaintance of the richest collectors of America. We readily give credence to the report that a Chicago collector has drawn a very large check for some of the gems from the Barrochi collection, which teems with the rarest material from the Italian states.

To meet and converse with Mr. Power is a privilege that takes the collector quite out of the ordinary rut. He answers questions of intricate philatelic kind almost instantly and quotes the value of the rarer stamps with amazing accuracy. By chance, he looks at a stamp, the first issue of New South Wales, and says: "Two pence, plate I, second retouch," or, again, "South Australia, broad star, rarer color, compound perforations," without referring to the catalogue published by his firm.

Mr. Power owns a philatelic library of which he is justifiably proud and fortunately, he was enabled to make a few additions to it here; his library contains a vast number of papers and volumes, etc., all systematically placed, and is easily one of the finest in the world. On Friday, Mr. Power left Chicago; his visit stimulated and refreshed those with whom he came in contact, and they were many. His observations, general and specific, on philately broadened and enlightened those who listened and much that he said will be remembered with profit. His parting words were: "Leave your American Philatelic Association to work itself out; leave your recriminations and countercharges in the ice-box and get down to collecting postage stamps, not campaign posters," and this coming from one, who, intuitively and constructively, is a philatelist, is not, as Josh Billings would say, a "sukkle goak."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the officially sealed stamp, Scott's No. 758a, imperforate horizontally.

Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., kindly favors us with a specimen of the 1c green envelope, current issue, on very transparent paper. Upon showing the same to the Bartels Co. we are informed that the stock employed is distinctly new to this envelope.

DENMARK.—We have been informed by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., that the 25 ore stamp, with portrait of King Frederick, has been issued. The North Shore Stamp Co. has also shown us this stamp.

Adhesive

25 ore sepia.

GRENADA.—The Colonial Stamp Co. informs us that the 2sh King's Head stamp now comes on multiple chalky paper.

INDIA.—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly reports that the 1a stamp is now issued with a new form of the overprint, reading "On—H. S.—M."

Indore.—The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the quarter anna stamp, Scott's No. 8, surcharged "Service" in a new type. The old surcharges were in a light-faced condensed Gothic, the new type being heavy black-faced Gothic.

LUXEMBOURG.—We have been shown the new 20c by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., and understand that other values have also appeared. The design is the same as the 10c previously chronicled.

Adhesives.

12½c gray green.
20c orange.
25c blue.

NEW ZEALAND. — The 9d and 2½d values have been added to those previously chronicled as appearing with the 14 perforation, according to Stanley Gibbons, Inc. This evidently is to be the permanent perforation, as the Australian Philatelist chronicles the 6d rose as issued in a smaller size than formerly to fit the new rotary perforating machine.

SAN MARINO.—A new stamp, new in design as well as value, has appeared for this little Republic. The shape and size is like the current Greek stamps, "Rep. di S. Marino" appearing on a tablet at the top, supported by a rustic frame. Directly under this is a circle with a lined background, bearing a shield, with the three castles which form the distinctive features of the arms of the Republic. Above this is the crown, and below the shield the word "Libertas". The value, "Cent—1 –esimo — Bollo — Postale" appears at the bottom. The design is graceful and pleasing. We are not informed whether this is the first of a series, or only a single issue to supply an absolute need. This is the first 1c stamp to be issued by San Marino.

F. P. Brown has shown us the 1c, described above, and also the new 15c postage and 25c Express stamp. The 15c is of the same shape as the 1c, but the design is entirely different, though both are of unusual artistic merit, and are among the finest appearing stamps issued this year. The 15c has the shield surmounted by a crown at the top, with foliage and flowers on either side, the stems meeting beneath and carried back of the scroll bearing the inscription to the bottom line of the stamp. A large scroll fills the lower part of the stamp with this inscription: "Rep. di S. Marino—Franco bollo —Postale." "Cent—15" is imposed on the background just above the scroll.

The Express stamp is a handsome design with the shield at the upper left corner, and a picture in the background with the three castled hills framed against the rays of the sun. A female figure with a three castled crown stands at the right, and there are various other insignia on the stamp. The inscriptions read: "Rep. di S. Marino," at the top, "Expresso" in large letters in the centre, and "Cent. Bollo Postale 25." at the bottom.

The whole series, if the other values bear out the promise of the three already seen, will have a high place in philatelic esteem, owing to the beauty of the design, the appropriateness of the colors, and the clearness of the printing. The stamps are printed on unwatermarked paper and perforated 11½.

Adhesives.

1c brown.
15c slate.

Express Letter Stamp.

25c carmine.

Just as we go to press, Stanley Gibbons, Inc., supplements its previous information by showing us copies of the 15c and Express letter stamps. The North Shore Stamp Co. has also shown us the three stamps mentioned above.

TASMANIA. — We are informed by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., that the 4d stamp has been added to the list of the current series issued on Crown A paper, with the regular perforation.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., sends us two clippings. One deals with "Rare Stamped Envelopes," an article appearing in the New York Sun, May 26 and containing much useful information. The other clipping is from the Newark (N. J.) Call of the same date, "Postage Stamps and Memorial Day." This latter is a Burroughs story issued under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee and appeared in some twenty of the large daily papers of our country on the date mentioned.

—We have received from the Nassau Stamp Co. the catalog of their third sale to be held Thursday, June 6, at the Collectors Club, N. Y. City. The collection of R. F. Hohenstein is included in the six hundred lots offered, which comprise a good assortment of U. S. and foreign.

—The advertising of Wendover Neefus which has hitherto appeared on pages six and seven will be found hereafter on page three underneath the Home Stamp Co.

—John A. Solomon favors us with a clipping which indicates that the government is to make a test of stamp slot machines and if successful they will be a permanent feature. These machines will be adapted to receive 1 and 5 cent pieces and if the plan is workable machines will be placed in department stores, drug stores, hotel lobbies and other places convenient for the public.

—Colorado Branch No. 22 has issued a "Souvenir Program" of the A. P. A. Convention entertainment at Denver the last of July. It is a creditable advertising sheet, illustrated with a number of half tones, including no less than three group pictures. Should any reader of the WEEKLY fail to receive one, a sample can do doubt be obtained upon application to any member of the Colorado Branch.

—Thomas H. Hinton favors us with an account of the annual meeting of the International Philatelic Union held at London May 9. The old board of officers was re-elected practically in its entirety. The Union was founded in 1881 and has had a very successful career. Meetings are held regularly in London from October to May. Its official organ is the Philatelic Journal of Great Britain sent free to all members. The entrance fee is 62c and the annual dues, $1.20. For rules and application forms apply to the secretary, T. H. Hinton, 27 Cromford Rd., E. Putney, London, Eng.

—J. B. McGrath favors us with a copy of the St. John (N. B.) Globe, May 18, giving the particulars of a find made in the Bank of British North America, located in that city. No less than forty 3d Nova Scotia and 3d and 6d New Brunswick, all on the original cover. An immense quantity of Canada bill stamps was also unearthed.

NEW PHILIPPINE STAMPS.

The United States Issues a Fine New Series for these Islands.

BY C. A. HOWES.

For nearly two years there were rumors in the air of a new distinctive issue of postage stamps for the Philippine Islands. When the Americans first occupied the archipelago, as a military force, they installed military postal stations as the troops progressed and permanent garrisons were established. These were all numbered as sub-stations of the San Francisco postoffice, which was their head office, and were supplied with the regular United States postage stamps and even some of the commemorative set of 1898 (the Omaha exposition stamps). When the War Department had set up its Military Goverment at Manila, however, which assumed control of all local Philippine affairs, the Department of Posts for the Islands was included and consequently separated from the American Post Office Department. This naturally necessitated a change in the stamps employed, since unless those used in the Islands were bought of the local Department of Posts, the revenue would go to the United States Government instead of the Philippine Government. This resulted in having the regular United States stamps overprinted with the word PHILIPPINES, running diagonally, and these stamps were used from April 29, 1899, until the appearance of the new issue.

As the Military Government at last gave way to a civil government, and the Filipinos were granted more of a voice in their own affairs, we find their than previously and that special coins were minted for the Islands, the local peso of 100 centavos being fixed at one-half the American dollar. This required that all postage stamps used should be paid for at the rate of two Philippine centavos for every American cent indicated upon them, or double the amount already expressed in cents or dollars. The result was naturally perplexing at times to the Filipinos or Chinese traders who might not fully understand the reasons. This was an added argument for employing a distinctive set of stamps to supplement the new currency. But many difficulties arose. It was thought at first that the new stamps might be manufactured in Manila, where certain series of revenue stamps had already been lithographed. But the latter were not wholly satisfactory, and it was decided best to have the stamps designed and engraved in the United States, with the idea that the plates could be sent to Manila and the printing done locally, making them at least partly Philippine productions. The local facilities, however, were found unequal to the task, so finally the work was given entirely to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington.

Yet another hitch was caused after the designs had been accepted and the dies and plates made, because the word "Postage" was not included in the inscriptions; but it was pointed out that this was not absolutely essential, and the recent requirement for the use of stamps in the prepayment of telegrams made the lack of the word "Postage" an advantage, because the stamps could be appropriated to both uses. At last, however, everything was settled except the design for the special delivery stamp, and the requisition was filled and sent to the Islands, where the stamps were put on sale to the public on September 8th, 1906.

The new series consists of fourteen stamps, ranging in denomination from two centavos to ten pesos, and corresponding exactly in values and colors to our own stamps—e. g. the two centavos in green corresponds to our one cent stamp, and the ten pesos, also in green, to our five dollar stamp. All are practically the same design, a United States shield serving as background for a central oval, and supported by palm leaves and surmounted by a spread eagle. Curving above the shield and at either side of the eagle is the double lined inscription: PHILIPPINE—ISLANDS and UNITED STATES—OF AMERICA. Figures of value occupy the upper corners, and inclosed in ovals or circles in the lower corners. The only variation in the design is in the oval upon the American shield. In the four peso values it contains the whole combination forming the official coat-of-arms of the Philippine Islands. The superposed arms are divided horizontally, the upper half bearing a gold castle upon a red ground, and the lower half having a silver heraldic sea-lion, with a gold sword in its right paw, upon a blue field. Of course the stamps are not printed in all these colors, but they are indicated heraldically by the lines of the ground work.

The centavo values differ from the pesos only in having a portrait in place of the arms of Manila, and these various heads present an interesting study. The 2 centavos (1 cent) has a portrait of Rizal, the idol of the Filipinos, who was executed by the Spaniards on December 30, 1896, after having returned to Manila under promise of immunity. His activity was largely as a writer, his efforts being directed against the religious orders who were grinding down the natives. His influence among the Filipinos was enormous. This stamp has its largest use for domestic mail.

The 4 centavos (2 cents) has an excellent portrait of President McKinley, under whose administration the Islands were acquired.

The 6 centavos (3 cents) shows a portrait of Magellan, whose fame is perpetuated in the "Straits" named for him and who was also the discoverer of the Islands, where he was killed in a skirmish on April 27, 1521.

The 8 centavos (4 cents) has a dashing portrait of Miguel Lopez de Legaspi, the Spanish conqueror of the Philippines, who founded the city of Manila on June 24, 1571, and died there fourteen months later in want.

The 10 centavos (5 cents) shows us our own Major General Lawton, who was killed in service in Luzon on December 19, 1899, a martyr to our "colonial experiment."

The 12 centavos (6 cents) gives the Filipinos a chance to become acquainted with one of America's greatest men—Abraham Lincoln

The 16 centavos (8 cents) has been a puzzle to many, for it is the first time that has appeared upon a United States stamp production. It has been asked what has he to do with the Philippines, and the answer is—nothing directly; yet indirectly he had considerable, as his victory off Cuba put Spain practically hors de combat and terminated the war by which the Philippines fell to our lot. His untimely death was a direct result of his untiring efforts in behalf of his country at that time, and the abuse and vilification heaped upon him by his enemies afterward. Admiral Dewey would of course be the one expected on a Philippine stamp, but a rule of the United States Government prohibits the portrayal of the features of the living on any of its securities.

The 20 centavos (10 cents) gives the Filipinos a portrait of the "Father of His Country"—George Washington. (Anti-Imperialists will please note that Aguinaldo does not appear in the set.)

The 26 centavos (13 cents) has a portrait of Francisco Carriedo, the Spanish philanthropist, who died in 1743, leaving 10,000 pesos to provide Manila with a water supply. Work was not begun upon the system until about 1880, when the fund with accrued interest amounted to about 180,000 pesos. It was finished July 24, 1882, only 139 years after the death of the benefactor.

The 30 centavos (15 cents) presents one more great American for the Filipinos' consideration—Benjamin Franklin.

The 1 peso (50 cents), 2 pesos (1 dollar), 4 pesos (2 dollars) and 10 pesos (5 dollars) have already been described, as they are all of the "coat-of-arms type. It is to be noted that the symbol for the peso, as figured on these stamps, is a capital P with two horizontal lines drawn through the upper part—a character with which our printers are not yet supplied.

The special delivery stamp of 20 centavos (10 cents) is perhaps the gem of the series, being printed in a beautiful ultramarine shade. This did not appear until about three months after the rest of the set, there having been some criticism of the original design. It is of the same oblong shape as our own special delivery stamp, and shows a native messenger on a cross country run, with a view of the volcano of Mayon in the distance. This mountain is in the province of Albay, Southern Luzon. The first drawing of the stamp had the courier in his proper lack of attire; the issued stamp has him in a natty white suit which, even if less shocking to American sensibilities, would soon mean the end of his career in such a climate.

Taken as a whole these stamps form a very attractive and interesting series, and one of which both the Americans and Filipinos can be proud. They are of the best execution in steel engraving and are printed in bright and decided colors corresponding, as previously remarked, to the equivalent values of the United States stamps.

It will readily be appreciated that the new set will cause the obsolete stamps to increase rapidly in value. Of many values only a few thousand were overprinted and several dealers who have sent for supplies have had their money returned. A local correspondent writes, "The 4c 1902 light brown, is coming along as a good thing and specimens are changing hands here at $3 each. Of the dark shade three times as many were printed as of the light." Collectors will do well to fill their Philippine spaces at an early date.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

I. R. JOHNSON, L. MICHAEL.

To the Members of the American Philatelic Association

To continue the campaign for election of officers on the plane that it has now reached can only result in permanent injury to the Association. The issuance of anonymous matter, the indulgence in personalities, and the violation of personal and confidential correspondence must cease if the Association is to live and prosper.

Confident that the great majority of the members will approve of our conduct, and urging every member to vote for what he believes to be for the best interests of the Association,

We therefore rest our case.

Respectfully yours,

U. S. REVENUE NOTES.

By CHARLES A. NAST.

LAID PAPER AGAIN.

My remarks last month regarding the Jayne stamp on laid paper, has started quite a discussion, and from all parts of the country I am receiving letters as a consequence.

To some collectors the very words "laid paper" are an abomination, and yet, if there be noteworthy differences in the number of perforations, the color of gum, and the shades of color, why refuse to notice those in the texture of the paper? In postage stamps we have for instance the single, multiple, and inverted watermark (which to the revenue collector mean nothing) and why? Simply because it is just as natural to note differences, and departures from the normal, in a study such as philately is, as that a tree should grow and spread out its branches, if it be alive. Philately must also grow, and branch out into minor varieties, or die of dry rot. Besides take away this unexplored field so promising in new discoveries, and what would there be for this editor to write about?

Accordingly my brethren let us turn to page 55 of the Standard Catalog and we find according to Scott only one stamp of the '98 ship series listed as on laid paper and that is the 1¼c Proprietary.

Now I have seen quite a number of different values in this series on this variety of paper but never that particular one. On the contrary the ¼c is well known. No less than three correspondents send specimens for inspection, and the thought occurs perhaps the listing of the 1¼c is an error, the lower value being meant.

I will now give an authentic list of all the values known in this series as being on laid paper. Besides my own investigations, I am indebted for courtesies shown, to Messrs. C. H. Eagle, Dr. Collins of Duluth, and Mr. F. Colson of Norwalk, Ohio.

Proprietary: ½c; ¼c; ⅝c; 1c; 1⅞c; 4c Documentary: 5c.

NOT VIOLET BUT MAUVE.

Mr. Scypes of Richland Center, Pa., sends for inspection a number of the 4c Proprietary 1st series, and suggests they are anything but the color given in the catalog which is violet. Mr. S. is right; and in my opinion the catalog is wrong. Four stamps are listed as "violet" viz: 4c Playing Card, 4c Proprietary, $1.90 Foreign Exchange, and $2.50 Inland Exchange.

I think my training has given me the right to an opinion as to colors and I maintain these four stamps should be listed as mauve. Of the first two stamps in the list I have never seen one, of hundreds which passed through my hands, which in the slightest degree would suggest a violet color, but I have seen many which approached mauve. This last color is an admixture of blue, red, purple, and brown, and being of such a mongrel nature its first tone or "bloom" is very fugitive. It soon fades, and we have in time every tint from greenish gray to reddish brown.

However as to my claim that "violet" is not rightly placed in the catalog, no one need take my unsupported word. Let us turn to the Boston Rev. Book which is distinguished for elaborateness in every department. The 4c Playing Card is given four shades of color; the 4c Proprietary is listed in no less than eleven shades. In these 15 shades running the gamut from slate to purplish brown, violet is not once mentioned but mauve is given twice in the last denomination. Turning to the $1.90, we find this listed twice as mauve and once as brown violet. The $2.50 is divided under eight shades, only one of which is a violet, and two of mauve. So out of 26 shades "violet" occurs twice, and "mauve" six times. But this is not all, violet is a faster color than mauve and many of the shades given, tho they do not mention the word are simply variation of mauve. There is no doubt in my mind that these four stamps should be listed as mauve.

CATERSON & BROTZ PROVISIONALS.

H. J. Leland:—Your 1c Play. Card with the cancellation C. B. and date in script, is unquestionably a Caterson & Brotz provisional. Sterling and other old authorities, who had every opportunity of ascertaining the real facts have always accorded it to this firm. As a concern doing business during the war as playing card manufacturers, they certainly must have used stamps, and they just as surely cancelled these with initials and date, as the law directed. Many, no doubt, were cancelled with pen and ink, (as did the great firm of Hall and Ruckel for instance) in the beginning, and as such they were not distinguishable from the millions of other stamps similarly cancelled by private individuals and firms. But whenever they adopted the plan of precancelling in sheets on a printers' press, they were at once easily identified. To date I have records well authenticated of five varieties none of which are listed in the Boston Book.

1c Play Card "C. B. Jan'y 1863" all in script.
1c Play Card "C. B. Dec 1863" all in script.
1c Prop. "C.B." (Roman) "Dec 1863" (script).
2c Play Card blue "C. B. Dec 1863" all script.
2c Prop. blue "C. B. April 1865" all Roman.

All are printed in three lines in black ink.

A QUERY ANSWERED.

F. E. L.:—Your 1c Proprietary cancelled "H. Hutchins Springfield Mass," is not a provisional, antedating, as you suggest, the firm of Hutchings and Hillyer. You have been misled by the big revenue catalog which spells this firm's name without the "g." Besides Hutchings and Hillyer were located in New York. Examine the stamp always for correct spelling of proprietors' names.

UNLISTED PROVISIONALS.

Mrs. F. P. Holt sends for inspection a 2c orange Proprietary surcharged in circle "H. & R. Feb 25, 1863' in blue ink. A very interesting provisional of Hall & Ruckel. Besides this I have the following also; none of these three were ever listed before. "J. Burnett & Co.—Feb 27—1867—Boston" on the 4c Proprietary and " T. G. & B—(Thomas Gorman & Bro) July—1865." All three in black ink.

TAX PAIDS.

Dr. Homer Collins sends some interesting Tax Paids for inspection, among which are two provisional Internal Revenue cigar stamps. I had never heard or suspected the existence of such a thing but when we consider the conditions prevailing at the time, we wonder more have not turned up before.

The great "American desert," a vast empire, peopled with hostile Indians, stretching out from the Missouri river to the Rocky Mountains, lay between the California of that day and civilization. The Union Pacific railroad had not been built. Supplies in answer to requisitions were freighted across the praries by bull teams. To my mind there is a fine field here for active collectors to search for California provisionals. I will describe them briefly. The first is on brick paper, size of ribbon about 1½ by 7½ inches, with an ornamental border all around. The top line reads "50 Cigars Internal Revenue 50 Cigars." Note the absence of the U. S. In the lower right hand corner is the word "Inspector" and on this line is written "used in San Francisco Co. 1866 Fred R. Thompson." The second is on white paper about 1½ by 11 inches. At the extreme left we have "E. T. Cole Inspector" on the extreme right "First District California" in the center a square space flanked on either side by "50 Cigars." In the center within the square we read: "U. S. Internal Revenue"—"Used in absence of stamps of this denomination by authority of Frank Soule Collector of First District California."

POSTAL AFFAIRS IN THE CANAL ZONE.

The Cristobal post office has grown to such an extent during the past fifteen months that whereas three employes were required to do the work at that time, nine are hardly sufficient at this time to handle the incoming and outgoing mails. These nine employes are kept constantly busy, and as an evidence of their efficiency in handling the mails it may be noted that several weeks ago—to be more exact, on Dec. 28—upon the arrival of the Panama, the Allianca, the Royal Mail and the New Orleans ships, these nine employes handled between 300 and 400 sacks of mail, and had it ready for dispatch to the other offices in the Zone by the first train the following morning.

In the mailing division of this office and from the various ships is handled for the Canal Zone.

In the mailing divison of this office mail is received from all parts of the world for distribution to the different Zone offices and mail originating at those offices is received for dispatch to all parts of the world. Mails for the West Indies is tied out for the larger cities of these islands, between twenty and thirty separations being made for Jamaica and Barbados alone. Besides this, mail is made up for each one of the States, and for at least 100 of the larger cities.

Mail is dispatched by the Panama S. S. line, the Royal Mail the Hamburg-American, the Bordeaux-Colon, St. Nazaire-Colon, United Fruit, and Leyland-Harrison lines to all parts of the world.

Owing, no doubt, to the complex nature of the inhabitants of the Canal Zone, nearly all nationalities being represented on the pay rolls of the Isthmian Canal Commission, the registry and money order business have attained abnormal proportions. Since the establishment of the money order system, early in June, nearly 10,000 orders have been issued and nearly half a million dollars has been handled by this office.

During the ten-day pay period in December $33,960.04 was received for money orders issued.

The registry division has handled during the year just ended 78,000 registered pieces of mail, and on account of this being the exchange office for the Canal Zone, the above figures mean an enormous amount of work for the employes of this branch, as all outgoing registered mail has to be properly recorded on the various special records prepared for certain offices.—Colon Starlet.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

R. D.:—The Catalogue for Advanced Collectors characterizes the special printing of the United States newspaper stamps, 1875 issue, in the following words: "Special printing for display at the International Exposition of 1876, and for sale to collectors. Crisp, wove paper, very white and semi-transparent. Without gum. The impressions are very clear and sharp. We have not seen the values above 96 cents of this printing, but they were undoubtedly issued and, we presume, were in the colors then in use for the regular issue." Needless to say these stamps are very rare and it is very unlikely that the several specimens that you speak of having bought recently from an approval sheet are of the special set, 1875.

E. W. W.:—From the work named in the preceding item, we take the following description of the counterfeit 5-cent (and 2-cent) Mobile, Confederate local stamp: "On the genuine stamps the points of the star touch the labels at the sides and the heads of the figures in the lower corners touch the under side of the points above them. The counterfeits do not agree in either of these particulars. On the latter, the strokes of the letters of 'Paid' and 'Cents' are all of equal thickness but they vary in width on the genuine stamps."

A. C. T.:—There are imitations of the Wenden stamps, Scott No. 2 and No. 3, that are referred to as follows in Bacon's "Reprints:" "The imitations of these stamps may be recognized at once, as they have, after the word 'Wenden,' only one thick line with a thin line at the bottom and right side, instead of two thick lines, with a thin line at the bottom and right side. The colours of the original stamps are black and rose, black and deep green, and black and yellow green, while the imitations are black and dull rose, and black and dull yellow-green." (2) Send the suspected specimens to a counterfeit detector.

Our request made recently for information regarding the Glen Haven local stamps was not passed unnoticed. Charles A. Townsend, Akron, Ohio, kindly sent for inspection a copy of the local, type L139, in the catalogue, on the original envelope, which is the three-cent 1853 stamped envelope on buff. Mr. Townsend writes: "The enclosed may be of some value to you and from it, you may get more information than I can give. Glen Haven is now Glenhaven and is in Cayuga County, New York. The letter was mailed from Scott, Cortland County, New York, which was the nearest post-office, no doubt, at that time." The letter enclosed in the envelope is dated at Glen Haven, August 24th, 1856, and accompanying it is a circular containing the Constitution of the National Dress Reform Association, whose objects were "to induce a Reform in Woman's dress, especially in regard to long skirts, tight waists, and all other styles and modes which are incompatible with good health, refined taste, simplicity, economy, and beauty." The roster of officers of this association showed that its president resided at Glen Haven; moreover, its corresponding secretary, treasurer, some of the vice presidents and members of the executive board were recruited from Glen Haven's progressive women. Evidently, the volume of letters sent from the intelligent community of Glen Haven in those days was a very large one in ratio to the population, and if the nearest post-office was in another county at the time, there indeed was need for a carrier service in that locality.

Mr. Townsend, who is in the postal service, says, also: "While I am about it, I wish to show you three grades of paper used on the current one-cent newspaper wrapper. The one that has the appearance of amber, almost, is new to me and I have seen it only on the very small size of wrapper." As Mr. Townsend remarks, the variations in the quality and appearance of the three papers in question is marked, particularly in the case of the "near amber" variety.

H. T. Parker, Wilsonville, Nebraska, writes: "I have noticed W. S. B.'s inquiry in regard to Glen Haven locals and can give the following information from J. W. Scott's 'Latest Revised List of Postage Stamps of the World, 1879,' in which he goes into details concerning the various locals. In introduction to 'Locals,' he gives a list of fictitious issues and says: 'In conclusion I desire to mention a few labels that I have purposely excluded from the chapters that follow, for want of sufficient proof as to their character,' and mentions Glen Haven Daily Mail. Further, he says: 'I am inclined to think that there may be one or two genuine types of the Glen Haven, though quite different from the specimens generally known. My impressions regarding the others do not favor their ever having existed in authentic form.' Latterly, it seems that there is no disposition to question the philatelic validity of the somewhat numerous types of the Glen Haven locals, as, no doubt, proof of such as the cover and letter submitted by Mr. Townsend carries has long been established in favor of the locals in question.

S. E. Y.:—"I have an unsevered pair of 10c blue, U. S. revenue, No. 2833, with double perforation between the stamps. They are on the original document and in fine condition. Is this a rare thing? I see nothing in the catalogue or elsewhere about such perforation." Double and other erratic perforations in the revenues of the Civil War period are comparatively common. E. B. Sterling in his revenue catalogue of 1888 catalogued scores of such varieties at prices but little above those asked for the same stamps with normal perforations. These revenues are known with the freakiest of perforations. (2) "I have also, a copy of the three-cent postage 1869 in brown on the original cover, instead of blue. Was there a copy of this stamp ever printed in brown?" The three-cent blue, 1869, is not known in brown as a stamp, although we are told that there is a proof in brown. Blue may be changed into brown by chemical action, however, which in some cases may have been caused accidentally.

L. G. C.:—This correspondent writes: "I have a stamp which evidently is Newfoundland No. 51, but instead of the usual white paper, this stamp is on pink paper. I am not familiar with the methods employed to change the color of paper and therefore, do not know how to make any test. I have tried water only but without effect. Can you advise me as to the best method for testing and also, whether there are other copies known of this stamp?" The 3c Newfoundland was never printed on pink paper; and the paper of the specimen mentioned must have been saturated in some way to cause the pink tinge. Pink paper is pink, and uniformly so, all the way through, while paper that has been dyed pink is apt to show an unevenness of color on the surface and a suggestion of whiteness in the center fibre, if a tear is made in the stamp. There is no chemical test that is the common property of collectors adapted to this case.

S. G.:—For definite information as to the value of the coins mentioned, write to one of the coin advertisers in the WEEKLY. (2) There are two different shades of the 2c and 10c Philippines surcharged on United States, 1895-99, given in the catalogue.

WHOLESALE SUPPLIES.

My new wholesale list is greatly enlarged and priced in U. S. currency. All dealers desiring reasonable quotations on cheap stamps per 10, 100 or 1000 should send for it.

I do not claim that my prices are always cheaper than those of other dealers, but I do claim that no dealer in the world pays more attention to the condition of all stamps supplied to customers. All stamps are delivered free from paper and in good condition. This is of far more importance to dealers than low prices (which usually mean a large proportion of damaged stuff). However,

"The Proof of the Pudding is in the eating" and all I ask is the favor of a trial order from those American dealers not already on my books.

Columbian Stamp Co., Arlington, Mass., write 13th March, 1907: "Stamps duly to hand and very satisfactory."

Send name and address on a post card and lists will be forwarded regularly.

EDITORIAL.

A Matter of Name—A reader submits a new name for philately. Half seriously, we infer, he suggests that philatelists or stamp collectors be called "postampists" or, more euphoniously, "postamplists." No doubt, realizing the somewhat awkward construction of the word philately, he sought to find a substitute for it, and "postampy" has been evolved. How seriously our correspondent wants his word specimen to be taken, we cannot say, but to the average mind, "postampist" is a more meaningful equivalent than are "timbrologist," "timbrophile" or "philatelist." It is unlikely that "philatelist" will ever be displaced as a definitive of stamp collector; philately has had the sanction of years and is installed in the dictionary. The word philately is not easily pronounced at first sight but the very peculiarity of the word in popular estimation has a tendency to give it an advertising advantage; it is a distinctive word and is more apt to excite curiosity, if not respect, in the mind of the outsider than any clever combination such as "postampy" or "postamply."

Decided Difference—The Colonial Stamp Company has shown us a variation in the current two-cent United States stamped envelope that is so marked as almost to denote a new die. The head of Washington on the particular envelope is thinner than usual and measurements show a shrinkage of at least a half-millimeter in the width at any point, in comparison with the ordinary head. A mechanical vagary, if accounting for the specimen was indeed a marked one to have produced this very apparent result.

Case of Charity—The Kingston Relief Fund surcharge on Barbados issue was retired from sale April 25th after having presented various aspects of striking kind to philatelists. Five settings of surcharge are known and the stamps were printed in batches as they sold, while nearly as many stamps with surcharge inverted purposely were issued as those with normal overprint. A contemporary gives the following statistics: Total printing, 50,560, of which 30,520 bore the normal, and 20,040, the inverted surcharge.

Retired—Official announcement has been made that the O. P. S. O. surcharge, official stamps of New Zealand will no longer be kept in service. The remainders have been destroyed and these scarce surcharges will be more elusive than ever before. In commenting on the ethics of the case of this destruction of remainders, Ewen's Weekly Stamp News says: "Collectors have not gained because the issue of the stamps created blank spaces in their album and these they can now never fill. We doubt if an offer of five hundred pounds would bring together a complete set, so rare are these stamps, even used." The sale of remainders by a government while satisfactory to the majority of collectors who naturally welcome the opportunity to add to their albums mint specimens at prices but a tithe of the face value, yet work hardship on a few collectors who may have paid much over face value for the stamps before they were demonetized. In the instance of the New Zealand official surcharges, the exceptional collector who perhaps secured some of the stamps in question at high prices, would decry any public distribution of remainders thereby cheapening his holding. The greatest good to the greatest number is a fair demand in the estimation of all but the members of the small minority.

Sold by the Government—When the United States newspaper sets of stamps were sold by the government in 1899 at five dollars a set, it was understood that one of the reasons why the authorities took so unusual a course was based on a desire to visit a form of reprisal on dealers who held, unwarrantedly, the government claimed, specimens of these stamps which were prohibited from public circulation. The authorities lost their suit and were forced to return the stamps that they had seized from a dealer in New York, and consequently, ordered the discontinuance of the use of the newspaper stamps. The remainders were sold for the benefit of stamp collectors who long had covetously regarded these stamps; but the fact that holders of the originals saw their specimens slashingly reduced in value did not cause the government any regret. There was method in this sale and a consideration other than financial entered into it.

Advance Agents—The old-time collector would have opened his eyes in amazement had he been allowed to pierce the veil of the future and to see how new issues are announced nowadays. For instance, a dealer in offering the coming Papau and Solomon Islands stamps, advertises, "Have you booked your order? The advantage of booking is that you avoid getting lost in the rush." However, it is not always that the stamps of a new addition to the list of issuing countries are announced so well in advance, as the Brunei instance shows.

Not New—The Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly speaks of some bogus stamps of Ireland, illustrating its remarks by a cut of one of the specimens. The paper says: "We have been shown some very crudely printed labels bearing the inscription 'Ireland,' and purporting to be postage stamps of that distressful country. Where they hail from, or who is responsible for their manufacture, we are unable to say. Messrs. Nissen & Co., who have shown us these curious productions have two specimens:—2½ penny blue and four pence brown." These lithographed labels have been somewhat commonly in this country for not a few years past and so cannot be recent creations of fancy; they were a product of a day when there were more flying ends to the philatelic fabric than at present. The design approximately is that of the familiar queen's head type.

A Bit of Lore—The Earl of Crawford has contributed to the sum of philatelic knowledge by confirming the contention of an investigator that the surcharge, C. T., on the one shilling official South Australia, is a misprint for G. T., signifying Goolwa Tramway. Three copies of the surcharge have been reported; one of the specimens is in the collection of the Earl and it supplies the final link of evidence in the postmark that it bears: Goolwa, Ju 24, 72.

Hot—The campaign that is now being waged in the American Philatelic Association is attracting attention abroad and some of the stamp papers of Europe do not hesitate to express a preference for candidates. That interest in the struggle continues keen is shown by the letters that come to the WEEKLY, recording regret in most cases that the contest should have become so heated. To these correspondents we say that the WEEKLY has held aloof from any participation in politics on this occasion and has not entered editorially into any controversy whatever over candidates; consequently, it need make no explanation. What the campaigners say in their advertising space is their own business.

Worth the Trip—Denver has announced its programme of entertainment for visitors to the convention and its varied character will appeal to members of all classes. The committee having in charge all the affairs wants a large attendance so that the pleasures of the occasions may be full blown. The WEEKLY has started a list of the names of those who expect to attend the Denver convention, and it invites additions to it. Follow the example of many loyal members and say and mean it, that you will go to Denver.

—Gerald D. Bliss of Pedro Miguel, C. Z., wishes us to correct an impression in regard to the currency of the Canal Zone and Panama. Both are on a gold basis and not silver. In fact, the Zone currency has never been upon a silver basis.

THE TRUTH.

PHILADELPHIA, May 27, 1907.

MR. E. M. ROSENTHAL,

DEAR SIR:—

In the issue of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY of May 25th, I notice two advertisements attacking my letter published in same WEEKLY under date of 18th, the one headed, "An Open Letter" signed by Jos. H. Steinmetz, Percival Parrish, W. A. MacCalla and C. B. Bishop, and the other signed by Albert W. Batchelder, of the New England Stamp Co. Under ordinary circumstances, I would not notice such frenzied effusions, but, as they were published with the intention of purposely misleading our fellow members, I deem it my duty to again state the facts. In the first place, Mr. Parrish and his co-signers see fit to attack the validity of our endorsement of Mr. Doeblin at our February meeting and state that but five members were present. I quote as follows from the Secretary's minutes of said meeting, which are now before me. "Members present—Messrs Haseltine, Hahman, Smith, Fleisher, Beamish, Henkels, Burnett, Giroux and Cardeza" making Nine in all, and further I quote: "On motion of Mr. Henkels, duly carried, the Secretary was instructed to notify Mr. Fowler, that this Society had unanimously endorsed Mr. E. Doeblin of Penna. for President of the A. P. A. for 1908."

The statement that a majority of the members of Branch 18 have endorsed the ticket nominated by the New England Branch of Boston, is utterly false, as the vast majority of the members and the entire Board of Officers have declared themselves in favor of the Chicago ticket. Now, in regard to the statement that our necessary quorum had never been changed from 7 to 5, I quote again from our minutes of May 2nd, 1906, at which meeting Mr. Batchelder was present. "The By-Laws were amended, making the quorum 5 instead of 7, thirty days notice of intention to vote upon the amendment having been given." And this is over the signature of Percival Parrish, Secretary.

In reference to my having referred to Mr. Batchelder at our meeting of May 1st, such statement is absurd. The only time Mr. Batchelder was referred to, was at the request of Mr. Parrish, when he, Mr. Batchelder, stated that we had endorsed Mr. Doeblin before he was nominated. Mr. Henkels immediately objected to this statement as he had absolute proof to the contrary.

I have demanded a written apology and retraction from Messrs. Steinmetz, Parrish, MacCalla and Bishop. If said apology and retraction is not forthcoming, I will take the proper action in the matter.

Very respectfully,

(Signed) JOHN W. HASELTINE,
President of Branch No. 18, A. P. A.

February 6th, 1907.

Meeting held at "Penna School of Industrial Art" on the above date. Pres. Haseltine in the chair.

Members present: Messrs. Haseltine, Hahman, Smith, Fleisher, Beamish, Henkels, Burnett, Giroux and Cardeza, also Mr. Toy (visitor).

Secretary read minutes of previous meeting which were approved as read.

Treasurer's report was accepted. Cash balance on hand $27.67.

Members present passed the time in examining the A. P. A. circuits.

On motion of Mr. Henkels, duly carried, the Secretary was instructed to notify Mr. Fowler that this Society has unanimously endorsed Mr. E. Doeblin of Penna. for President of the A. P. A. for 1908.

An auction sale was held. Although the bidding was spirited at times, no record prices were established.

Meeting adjourned.

To the Members of the American Philatelic Association.

To continue the campaign for election of officers on the plane that it has now reached can only result in permanent injury to the Association. The issuance of anonymous matter, the indulgence in personalities and the violation of personal and confidential correspondence must cease if the Association is to live and prosper. We could continue to refute but are confident that the great majority of the members will approve of our conduct. Urging every member to vote for what he believes to be for the best interests of the Association,

We therefore rest our case. Respectfully yours,

Unfortunate Misunderstanding.

TO EDITOR OF THE WEEKLY:

The gentlemen of the Philadelphia Philatelic Society as named below who were parties to an exchange of letters as recently published in the WEEKLY have had a meeting to compare their notes and find several misunderstandings that have unfortunately crept into their presentation of their respective arguments.

The gentlemen therefore retire from a fruitless discussion and have amicably agreed to withdraw their letters, believing it in a largeminded and liberal way for the good of the American Philatelic Association.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—F. G. Ross of N. Y. City was a caller at the office of the WEEKLY a few days since.

—We are in receipt of no less than five stamp clippings from Miss Hattie R. Stratton of Chattanooga, Tenn. We must take the liberty of quoting a portion of her letter:—

"Enclosed please find some clippings from our local daily press. Two of them will show that I have been trying to do a little missionary work for philately in our city. The stamp case at our library has contained from one hundred to five hundred different stamps all through the month. They have been changed each week so that nearly all countries have been represented. Today the case contains late issues from all over the world, mostly picture stamps. The librarian told me the other day that they had never had anything in the bulletin case that had attracted so much attention from both children and older people. Next Friday afternoon I am to meet some boys at their request at the library to help them organize a stamp club. They are very enthusiastic and are disposed to ply me with questions."

—Miss Stratton is furnishing us with an example that is worthy of emulation. All of the clippings are of such a nature as to be helpful in spreading an interest in stamp collecting.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Chas. E. Roy, Jos. H. Wadsworth and Ben M. Carpenter (2).

—We have received from the United Stamp Co. the catalog of their auction sale No. 103 listing a wide variety of stamps, including U. S. and foreign. The firm's purchase of the Hussman stock is advertised extensively and the next sale of this company will no doubt be marked by offerings from this purchase.

—We are under obligations to H. W. Boers of Detroit, Mich., for a Memorial Day pictorial post card.

—S. Schachne favors us with a new price-list, just issued, in which post cards have the right of way. Any of our readers interested in this branch of collecting will do well to apply for a copy.

—J. M. Bartels Co. favors us with a catalog of their 38th auction sale to be held June 20. It consists of a fine collection of U. S. and Confederate stamps, the property of the estate of the late W. F. Lambert of Alexandria, Va. Mr. Lambert it will be remembered was for many years a member of the A. P. A. and a former associate in business with Mr. Bartels.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—L. C. Ernst kindly sends us some varieties he has discovered in the Jamestown stamps which may possibly interest specialists in United States stamps.

Two varieties are submitted of the 1c, the first being a blot of color covering one-half of the upper part of the "T" in "Postage." This is manifestly a defect in printing. The second variety consists of a small dot, printed exactly on the top of Capt. John Smith's head. This would appear to have been a defect in the plate, as is seen on both of the lower stamps in a block of four sent us by Mr. Ernst. It is quite marked and does not need a glass for identification.

Mr. Ernst also shows us a vertical strip of five 2c stamps, four of which are crossed by a colored hair line, showing plainly through the left figure "2" and in the perforated margin between the stamps.

All the above are from top sections of the sheet, though whether right or left we are not informed.

Mr. A. H. Weber calls our attention to still another variety of the 1c Jamestown stamps. On a certain part of the stamps in each sheet, the central ornamental line in the left numeral of value is split, being plainly printed double. We have no knowledge yet as to how many times this appears on each sheet, but a casual examination of a block at hand shows that the variety with single line in the left figure is the scarcer one.

ANTIGUA. — The Philatelic Record chronicles the 1sh value on multiple paper.

AUSTRALIA.—The Australian Philatelist chronicles the ½d and 5d postage due stamps, the former on Crown A paper, and the latter on paper watermarked Crown NSW.

BENADIR.—Sometime since we chronicled several values of the old set surcharged with new values in Italian money, upon the occasion of the taking over of the colony by the Italian Government. Le Journal des Philatelistes now chronicles further values. The new values are given below, the surcharges being all in black.

At the same time the postage due stamps of Italy were overprinted "Somalia Italiana — Meridionale," in black, though why the Benadir adhesives did not receive the same overprint does not appear.

Provisional Adhesives.

2c on 1b brown.
5c on 2b green.
10c on 1a claret.
25c on 2½a blue.
50c on 5a orange.
1 lira on 10a lilac.

CANADA.—L. E. Richardson has shown us a copy of the 5c King's Head stamp, with the "for third class matter only" precancel, but with "Montreal" at the top.

EGYPT.—The 2m and 4m postage due stamps have now appeared on chalky paper, according to Ewen, the 1pi and 2pi have previously been reported on the same paper.

ERITREA. — Der Philatelist reports having seen the current 1c stamp with surcharge inverted.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA.—In addition to the stationery previously chronicled, L'Echo de la Timbrologie gives the following, the name of the different districts,—Cote d'Ivoire, Dahomey, Guinea, Haut-Senegal et Niger, Mauritanie and Senegal,—appearing in the proper place.

Post Cards.

10c rose on green.
10x10c rose on bluish.

Letter Card.

25c blue on rose.

Envelopes.

5c green.
10c rose on green.
25c blue on rose.

GIBRALTAR.—The 4sh value is reported to have been issued on multiple paper.

GOLD COAST.—Ewen chronicles the 6d lilac and violet on ordinary multiple paper.

HAYTI. — According to L'Echo the following quantities of 1898-99 issue were surcharged with the oval surcharge, "En Piastres Fortes": 1c, 29,000, including one-third blue and the balance green; 2c, 13,000; 3c, 9800; 4c, 2000; 5c, 43,900, of which five per cent were red brown; 7c, 4700; 8c, 13,000; 10c, 11,800; 15c, 21,400; 20c, 4000; 50c, 8000; 1g, 5000.

INDIA. — The Philatelic Journal of India reports that several changes have been made in the stationery issued by the Indian Post Office. "The Indian Post Office has just received a supply of greatly improved international cards, single and reply, of substantially better texture than the old ones. They are of the maximum size (5½x3½ inches) admissible under the regulations of the Universal Postal Union; a new and distinctive design has been adopted for the impressed stamp, which is, as heretofore, of the value of one anna; and the stamp and other matter are printed in the same shade of red as the one anna adhesive stamp—the colour prescribed by the Postal Union for the value represented in Indian money by one anna. It has also been found possible to improve the texture of the inland postcards, single and reply; though in other respects these cards remain unaltered. Supplies of the new inland cards will also soon be available.

"As in the past, the new postcards, both international and inland, and whether single or reply, will be sold for the denominated value of the stamps they bear.

"The existing half anna embossed square envelope hitherto provided by the Post Office has never found favour with the public owing to the transparent character of the paper used in its manufacture. This was unavoidable so long as the maximum weight admissible for the half anna rate of postage was half a tola. Now that the maximum weight allowed for half-an-anna is three-fourths of a tola it has been found possible to introduce an entirely new half-anna square envelope of a substantial quality of paper and completely opaque. The size is 4¾x3¾ inches, the outer side being smoothly surfaced and the inner portion being tinted pale blue. The embossed stamp on the new envelope is the same as that on the popular half-anna envelope which is sold for the value of the stamp. In the case, however, of the new envelope a very small charge will be made to cover the cost of the stationery thus provided; but this charge will be so moderate as to bring the envelope within the reach of all; two annas per packet of 20 envelopes or six pies per five envelopes, as against 10 pies charged for five of the present envelopes."

We have been shown by the Eureka Stamp Co. the 1 anna carmine with the inscription "Postage and Revenue." We chronicled the ½ anna green with this inscription some weeks since.

Indore.—The ¼a on ½a, Scott's No. 14, has received the overprint, "Service," for official use, but whether in the new type noted last week is not stated.

Nabha.—The 12a King's Head stamp has been overprinted "Service" for official use in this state.

ITALY.—Offices in Crete.—The Monthly Journal reports that the new 10c stamp of Italy has been overprinted "La Canea" for use in the Italian offices in Crete.

JAMAICA. — Another value has been added to the arms series, according to Ewen's Weekly.

Adhesive.

5d yellow and black.

LUXEMBURG.—Le Journal des Philatelistes reports that new values are to be added to the new set, including a 15c stamp for the reduced postage between Luxemburg and Belgium, shortly to go into effect; and an 87½c stamp, for parcels post purposes.

NEW ZEALAND. — As we noted last week the 6d stamp has been reduced in size to allow the use of the same paper and perforating machine used for the ½d, 1d and 2d stamps, all of which are printed in sheets of 240 stamps. The other values have hitherto been of different sizes, which makes it difficult to get watermarked paper to fit the arrangement of the stamps on the plate. The new 6d is printed from a new plate, Ewen says, made from a new die, and is therefore practically a new issue, the differences being even more striking than those existing between the 2d stamps of 1898 and 1899.

Adhesive.

6d bright rose.

PERU.—We have already chronicled the 2c, 5c, 20c and 50c of the new series, through the kindness of Hermann Focke. We now take from Le Journal des Philatelistes further information regarding the designs of the new set. The 1c will show the Monument Bolognesi; 2c, portrait of Grau; 10c, Exhibition buildings; 1 sol, Hippodrome of St. Beatrice; 2 soles, monument of Christopher Columbus.

ROUMANIA.— Der Philatelist reports that 50,000 copies of the error, 25c green in the current bridge design, were printed, but as they have not turned out well as a speculation, the remainders are to be overprinted 5 bani for postal use. Since Jan. 1, 1906, 65 stamps have been issued by this country.

ST. VINCENT.—The new 1d stamp, chronicled in No. 856, shows the allegorical scene of figures of "Peace and Justice," the inscription being "Pax et Justitia". The design is of the same size as the King's Head stamps, but line engraved like the Grenada stamps in the De La Rue style. The new stamp is printed on ordinary multiple paper. The ½d of the same design has also been printed, according to Ewen's, but will not be issued until the current stock of 20,000, ½d King's Head stamps has been exhausted.

SIERRA LEONE.—Several of our English contemporaries chronicle the ½d in one color, bringing this colony in line with the others on the question of monocolored stamps. The new stamp is printed on ordinary multiple paper.

Adhesive.

½d green.

TRINIDAD. — Another of the monocolored stamps has appeared for this colony, printed on ordinary multiple paper.

Adhesive.

1d rose.

VICTORIA. — The 2d violet has now been issued on Crown A paper, according to the Australian Philatelist. Ewen's reports that the £1 rose has appeared on the same paper.

MAY MEETING COLO. BRANCH NO. 22.

DENVER, COLO., May 27, 1907.

The regular monthly meeting of the Colorado Branch No. 22, A. P. A., was held May 27th, at 424 Charles Building. The meeting was called to order at 8.30 P. M. with President Carstarphen in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. After discussion the secretary was instructed to address the Board of Vice Presidents, A. P. A., relative to the Nelson & Schwerzman-Bartels controversy.

C. A. Nast made a motion to withdraw Colorado's endorsement of the New England ticket. After a long and very warm discussion the motion was overwhelmingly defeated six to one.

Meeting adjourned 10.00 P. M.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHOEMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The 58th regular meeting was held Tuesday, May 28, twelve present. The St. Louis Manufacturers' Association, in whose comfortable quarters we have been assembling, is about to move to more modern and spacious apartments in the Wright Building (Rooms 803-805), 8th and Pine Sts., where we have been generously offered the same rare privileges enjoyed in the old rooms. On motion the Secretary was instructed to communicate the society's heartiest thanks to the Manufacturers' Ass'n.

Two highly entertaining prize contests were proposed. The first by Mr. Schoeman required the members to write off hand the name of the country issuing the greatest number of stamps and number issued. Of the three correct answers Pres. Cornwall's estimate of the number issued by Salvador (621) was closest and he accordingly was adjudged the winner. The second contest proposed by the President requires the participants to write in 15 minutes names of as many stamp issuing British Colonies and protectorates as possible. First prize carried off by Mr. Millhouse (60 names) and second by Mr. Slack.

The Exchange Department is being freely patronized and new books are in considerable demand. For this reason members will find it advantageous to enter such duplicates as they may possess promptly.

Next meeting Tuesday, May 11, Rooms 803-805 Wright Building, 8th and Pine Sts. Come and see our new quarters.

Regular meetings 3rd Tuesday in each month at Elks' Hall, Hayward Pl., at 8 P. M.

BOSTON, May 25, 1907.

The one hundred and sixty-sixth regular meeting of the Society was held in Young's Hotel, Boston, on Tuesday evening, May 21st.

This meeting was planned for the purpose of bringing this society to the attention of philatelists of New England, and was a great success. One hundred and fifty collectors were present and appeared to enjoy the program offered.

Application for membership was received from John J. Howland of New Bedford, Mass., proposed by Mr. Wylie.

Mr. A. Yaremdji of Constantinople was elected to membership.

After a brief address of welcome by President Howes and a response by President Stone of the American Philatelic Association, the meeting was placed in the hands of the entertainment committee.

President Howes gave a very interesting and instructive stamp study talk, emphasizing the pleasure and information to be gained from a close study of the emblems, etc., shown on stamps.

The regular event for this meeting was a competition in stamps of Canal Zone and three fine collections were shown—those of Mr. Parker, and Mr. Toppan and Mr. Tweedy of Washington—the two latter not for competition.

The following special exhibits were shown:

U. S. by C. F. Rothfuchs.—Among the U. S. stamps of interest was shown 1857, 5c brick red, unused valued $100.00, 1861, August 5c used, and 5c, 10c, 12c, 24c, 30c and 90c unused. These seven stamps were bought at the Post Office in 1861 for $1.74 and are now worth $2,500.00. His used 1870, 24c is valued at $100.00. State Department $5.00 at $135.00, Messenkopes P. O. New York on pink paper $500.00. A block of twelve 1866, 3c scarlet that cost 36c is now valued at $960.00. A sheet of ten of each of the $10.00 and $20.00 State Department stamps are valued at $1,500.00. This collection won first prize at the September, 1905, meeting of the Boston Philatelic Society and was on exhibition at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893.

Chinese Treaty Ports of C. A. Howes.—This collection included the collection of the local stamps issued by the Municipal Councils of the open ports of China during the years 1893 to 1897, when the Imperial post closed up these establishments and instituted a general postal service for the Empire. The port of Shanghai, however, where the largest foreign municipality has always been, began its local postal service in 1865. The stamps it then issued were the first in use in the Chinese Empire if we except those of the British Colony of Hong Kong. On all of these issues during the thirty-two years are found various curious designs as well as the peculiar characters of the Chinese writing. Mr. Howes has arranged these stamps and given translations of the various characters that appear on them and also told something about the various pictures and designs appearing in their make up. The collection is not absolutely complete according to the stamp collector's point of view, but contains practically all of the various types that can be found and the whole is arranged in a very neat and attractive form.

20th Century Collection of E. M. Carpenter contains nearly 6000 varieties, almost all of which are unused with original gum. Among the scarce things are Great Britain O. W. Officials, 5 and 10p, Queen, 2 and 2½p, King, unused, mint, R. H. Officials also unused, Danish West Indies, green surcharge and error of date 1901, Canal Zone 1st issue, Portuguese Colonial surcharges of 1902 complete, including the rare Mozambique and Timor, Cyprus single C. A. complete, Ceylon "On Service," Dominican Republic 1902, inverted centers, French and German Colonies almost complete, Italy and Eritrea Postage Due 50 and 100 lire, Lagos and Southern Nigeria single C. A.'s, Liberia "ordinary," Philippine Islands on U. S., both issues complete, Rhodesia 1901, £5 mint, Somali Coast and Somaliland Protectorate complete, United States Inter. Rev. $50.00 green and black, and 1c Pan American inverted centre, postally used, etc.

U. S. Envelopes of Mr. Mason.—One of the most interesting features of the exhibition by V. M. Berthold consisted of 36 U. S. envelopes which represented a value of $4000. They were the property of E. H. Mason, Esq., of 70 Kilby St., whose collection is second to none in the country. A very interesting envelope was an ordinary 2c green, die of 1887 on white paper, which, instead of the regular U. S. watermarks, shows the following inscription, "Parson Paper Company," believed to be unique. Another very valuable envelope, and one which represents the only entire copy in the U. S., valued at $250, is the 4c so called Die B of the 1899 issue. We were informed that only two of these exist entire, of which the other copy is in Europe. Two unique envelopes were the 10c die of 1886 on the largest size envelope on blue and on oriental buff paper each valued at about $150. The 1890 issue was represented by the extremely rare 1c Franklin on blue, as well as oriental buff, two copies of each one being known. Perhaps the "gem" of the entire collection, however, was a used envelope, 3c green, made by George H. Reay in 1871. The peculiarity of this envelope is that it is a shape which is entirely unknown, but which is called No. 31a. How this envelope could have been manufactured is a mystery which will probably never be explained. The value of this specimen is enigmatical.

Exhibit of L. L. Green.—The collection of Hawaiian Islands of Mr. L. L. Green is one of the best in this country if not in the world. Of the first issue or so-called "missionary" stamps he has three fine specimens. These stamps were issued in 1851 and are among the rarest of any ever issued by any country. The great strength, however, of this collection lies in the succeeding issue, 1859 to 1865, or "numeral" stamps, some of which are as difficult to obtain in fine condition as the missionaries. These stamps were issued in denominations of 1, 2 and 5 cents, and were type-set, showing a border of printer's rule enclosing the name of the country, value, etc., while the denomination was expressed by large numerals of value in the center. They were printed in black or blue ink on paper of various colors, in sheets of ten, each stamp showing differences from the others, due to the crude and often careless manner in which the type was set. Of these stamps Mr. Green has no less than 400 in his collection, some on covers or envelopes, others in pairs, blocks and even unsevered sheets (of which latter he has nine) while others are arranged in the form of reconstructed sheets of ten, showing all the differences in the setting of the type above alluded to. Of the subsequent issues, showing the portraits of native rulers, the collection contains many complete sheets, blocks of four and single stamps, all unused. These stamps are as pleasing and attractive as the earlier issues are homely.

Mr. Foster's Liberia.—The beautiful collection of Liberia belonging to Francis C. Foster, was shown by J. M. Bartels. The stamps of this country, especially the recent issues, are exceedingly well executed by a noted London firm, and the designs of some of the issues are among the most attractive stamps in existence. Several of the native animals, especially the hippopotamus, elephant, ape, tapir, lizard and birds of fancy plumage, also palm trees and attractive landscapes are among the designs frequently used. None of the stamps of this country rank among the great rarities with the exception of a few errors in printing. The 4c green of 1892 as well as the $5 stamp of same issue both exist with the centre picture inverted, and are very rare. Some of the early issues are also extremely difficult to obtain, especially the first set which was issued imperforate.

In addition to these Special Exhibits Messrs. E. F. Sawyer and H. S. Linnemann showed foreign envelopes—making a valued addition to the program. It was late in the evening when the gathering dispersed, the occasion being voted a grand success.

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED.

In Mekeel's Weekly Stamp News for May 25th, there appeared over this signature, "Yours for decency, Albert W. Batchelder, President Boston Branch, Chairman Executive Com. No. 20," the following:

"Now, I would suggest that every member who desires further light on this question write to Dr. Davis of Denver and get his statement."

Acting upon the suggestion of Mr. Albert W. Batchelder, manager of the New England Stamp Co., the following telegram was sent:

Chicago, Ills., May 26, 1907.

Holland A. Davis,
1622 Welton St., Denver, Colo.
When were you notified by secretary branch number one, you were nominated. Answer collect.

Eben S. Martin.

On May 27th, not having received a reply, and through the courtesy of the Postal Telegraph Co., another message was sent which brought the following reply from them:

Your telegram 26th, H. A. Davis, signed Eben S. Martin, delivered all right. Have requested an answer.
Denver, Colo., May 27th.

Out of courtesy to Mr. Davis a second wire was sent as follows:

Chicago, Ills., May 28, 1907.

H. A. Davis,
1622 Welton St., Denver, Colorado.
Reply my wire must reach here by eight tonight.

Eben S. Martin.

To prevent the possibility of non-receipt by Mr. Davis personally, the following letter was sent registered, No. 21753:

Chicago, Ills., May 27, 1907.

Mr H. A. Davis,
Denver, Colo.
Dear Sir:—Enclosed find confirmation of telegram sent you at 1.45 P. M. May 26. Up to this hour (10 A. M.) the 27th, I am without a wire, which was requested be sent, charges collect.
This is not a matter that you can ignore and I have too high a regard for your honor as a gentleman to believe you would willingly delay your reply.
Very truly yours,
ESM. GR. (Signed) Eben S. Martin.
Registered.

I hold registry return receipt signed by Mr. Davis personally and dated May 29th.

In order to give Mr. Davis every possible chance, a third telegram, as follows, was sent:

Chicago, Ills., May 31, 1907.

Mr. H. A. Davis,
1622 Welton St., Denver, Colo.
No response to my telegrams of Sunday and Monday. Wire immediately. Meeting to take action tonight.

Eben S. Martin.

Not receiving the courtesy of a reply and through the courtesy of the Postal Telegraph Co., a fourth message was sent eliciting the following information:

Yours 31st to H. A. Davis signed Eben S. Martin was delivered OK. Mr. Davis acknowledges receipt and says, no answer.
Denver, Colo., June 1st.

The above is presented for consideration of the membership of the American Philatelic Association.

It is evident from Dr. Davis's silence that he approves of Mr. Batchelder's campaign methods.

The statement that Dr. Davis had been nominated was an absolute falsehood and in the light of recent developments, it would seem, one that had been intentionally circulated by a person or persons knowing that it was a falsehood.

(Signed) EBEN S. MARTIN.

THE JUNE

contains, as usual, several pages of interesting news notes, "boiled down," a lot of bargains, also important changes in catalogue prices.

One man who subscribed with the first number, figures that in the ordinary course of his purchases he would have been about $18.00 "out" without the information obtained. The Circular warned him of the counterfeit Philippine surcharges, for one thing.

No wonder the "subscription list" grows.

We send the Circular for 12c a year, which is what the postage costs us.

U. S. REVENUE NOTES.

By CHARLES A. NAST.

A COUPLE OF ODDITIES.

The Doctor submits also two oddities in small revenues. One is the 2c receipt well known in black. This specimen is of a greenish shade. Whether it is a changeling or not I am unable to say, but as stamped bank checks were printed in varying shades, it is not impossible that this receipt stamp was also printed in green. We know it was printed in bronze as witness the overlapping in the celebrated "Tape Worm" stamp.

Another oddity is a print of the 1c black J. L. Thompson. Although the print is identical, in figures and wording with the regular stamp, it is evidently a photo engraving, having been used as a trademark, the parties so using having neglected to take out the figures and words "U. S. Internal Revenue." It is only another case of an inadvertant counterfeit, a la Walker's bitters stamp, which was used as an illustration in a medical almanac. I advise my readers to look for Thompson's eye salve or eye-water.

A RIDDLE ANSWERED.

In my last I had a little riddle. Question: what stamp was meant when the contractor carpenter mentioned "Truesdell" in a letter to the department. The best answer sent was that of Clarence B. Bishop, viz: Truesdell & Co. were one of the owners of "Soule's Pills." See page 344 Boston Rev. Book. He also states that he has just run across a copy of the U. S. Prop. Med. Co. 1c wrapper on Experimental silk, but I have not seen it, so cannot verify the rumor as the papers put it.

1c AYER, BLACK, VARIETY.

In a letter from Clarence H. Eagle, that gentleman says: "I don't know whether I spoke to you about a little variety in the 1c Ayer, black, which I noticed a month or so ago. It occurs on the wmk. and possibly the silk paper. The "Y" in Ayer usually is square at the bottom, but on some watermarked copies, I have found the "Y" pointed. The bottom has not been cut off in the square specimens (as for instance when cutting up a sheet) for I have a verticle strip of each kind, and there is always the two varieties found in each block, say of 4 or 5 stamps. It is a variety which might be classed with the "F. Brown" and "J Curtis & Sons." I wish my readers would look this up and report any findings for the benefit of this department.

A FEW SIDE LINES.

I was glad to see the communication from the Springfield publication committee anent the 33 1-3c beer stamp of the first issue. Three points were brought forward as a basis for listing it in their booklet "Side lines." First: W. P. Brown listed it in Sept., 1877. Second: In the May, 1897, number of the Metropolitan Philatelist some writer mentions it when describing Mr. J. N. T. Levick's collection. Third: The Bureau of Engraving & Printing include the 33 1-3c in their list of plates and rolls dated Sept. 4th, 1868. In spite of all this I still maintain the stamp was never printed. In Brown's leaflet all beer stamps are given, besides value and color, a number ranging from 1 to 9, according to the degree of rarity. He lists 33 1-3c, but does not give the color nor does he give it any rating to denote its scarcity. Why? Because he never saw one. As to Mr. Levick ever possessing it, if he is to be taken at his own word he never owned one. He told me personally he did not think it had ever been printed. I have written him lately but his family say he is too sick to write letters or attend to business of any kind.

As to the plates being made, that proves nothing in this question. We know that plates are made every month, numbered and recorded,—and then never printed from. Any plate number collector of stamps knows this. See Bartels' list for a verification of this. My question, has any one ever seen this stamp is still unanswered in the affirmative.

WEEKLY BARGAIN SERVICE

I have many small lots of stamps, varieties that I buy cheap enough to make bargains of but too few to advertise, not wishing to disappoint anybody. These I will submit on approval in weekly packets of 20 or more to those who will agree to make returns in five days or less. Stamps will be billed at net prices and they will be bargain prices—just such snaps as I am offering from week to week in this bargain corner. Just drop me a line saying, "send your weekly bargain lots," or words to that effect. You are under no obligation to buy anything unless stamps and prices are satisfactory in every particular. Send a reference if I don't know you. (A. P. A. membership is satisfactory reference.)

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

H. E. Deats, Flemington, New Jersey, has kindly written: "On page 185 of the WEEKLY of May 25th, the 'godet' referred to is a little glass can with a lid which in this country we call a watermark detector. Some dealer in France is advertising it as a 'godet philatelique.' You have probably not noticed this advertisement or you would have answered your correspondent that it was in this case a technical name for a French species of benzine cup."

A. M.:—We cannot speak for the American consul in the city in question, but perhaps, he will accommodate you by buying and sending you the stamps that you may order with cash remittance.

John Terry, Seattle, Washington, writes: "In regard to the query of O. P. L. in May 4th number, I should think that his specimen is Scott No. 106, lavender or rather, black on lavender, type I, 1899, and that the paper of the inquirer's specimen has been chemically effected and turned from lavender to greenish."

H. K.:—Your first drawing is that of a "paid" impression that was applied to envelopes before stamps were generally employed, to denote the payment of postage and is of no philatelic value. The second drawing is that of the 3c envelope, U. S., 1864, worth about five cents, and the third, that of a 3c envelope, 1857-60, worth about twenty-five cents. The postal card is an ordinary one.

A correspondent has sent for classification a handsome line-engraved stamp or label, the product of the American Bank Note Company. The central design is that of the goddess of wisdom, seated, with two kneeling students, open book in hand, at either side. At left and right are busts of "Komensky" and "Karel Jonas," respectively. A circle above the group contains an inscription, and a line of text is at the bottom of the stamp. "1c" is in the upper right and left corners. The color of this strikingly beautiful stamp is blue. We are informed that the label is sold for the purpose of collecting funds for the education of Bohemian students in America; and that it is purchased at several places in each of the large cities of America as well as in Hungary. The stamp has no postal significance whatever, but is often attached to mail matter, together with the necessary stamps, to advertise the worthy propaganda that it typifies. The inscriptions on the label read: "America and Hungary." and: "In work and knowledge is our salvation." Komensky (or Comenius) was a great Slavic educational reformer of nearly four centuries ago. Jonas is a modern statesman.

An inquirer who asked a number of questions included the following: "What caused the irregular variations in perforation in the issues of Brazil, 1894-97, and does the 10 r., for instance, come in all the perforations given?" The perforating pins were set by hand, and hence, the lack of precision. The 10r, for instance, comes 11 to 11½; 12½ to 14, and a compound of these two perforations. "When were the greasy ink varieties of the first issue Roman States printed?" In 1854, says the Catalogue for Advanced Collectors. "I have a copy of the 5-cent Omaha, canceled 'Cuba'; were U. S. stamps used on the island?" When the American army invaded Cuba in 1898, "postal stations" were established for the convenience of the troops, and American stamps employed for the payment of postage. "Are the 1900 Germany, perforated 11½, rare or common?" They are very scarce and priced at high figures in the German catalogues.

"Are the issues of Norway, minus period after 'Postfrim' worthy of collection?" Inasmuch as they are varieties that are on the plate, and not the result of vagaries in printing, they have an importance that would seem to make them collectible.

WHY I COLLECT STAMPS.

BY L.M.BAKER (Prize Winning Essayist)

For many years people all over the world have been making collections of almost everything conceivable. Being no different from others, I have tried many of the hobbies suggested, and tho all have their excellent features, none have proved as beneficial and interesting as stamp collecting. Yet in this late day of fads, from many, the subject philately evokes the question—"why is stamp collecting so attractive?" The following reasons should answer all such queries.

Of course, everyone admits that the pursuit of a hobby serves to relax the mind and overtaxed nerves after a hard day's work or play, but few realize how necessary such a stimulant is. To the average busy American, who seldom "wastes time" by resting, a hobby offers the best means of obtaining the much needed relaxation for the nerves.

But to the choice of the hobby itself. To win a new patron it must be, in a general way, superior to all others. It must not be bulky, exceedingly costly, or hard to obtain. None of these can be applied to stamp collecting; contrary to occupying excessive space, it seldom requires more than three or four volumes, and tho one may spend all one pleases, a fairly representative collection may be obtained for little money. Unlike coins, art treasures and antiques, stamps have fulfilled their mission when once used and thereafter are of little value to any but the collector. Their use being universal and in such great quantities, one encounters but few difficulties in obtaining numberless varieties.

Aside from being a pleasant pastime, stamp collecting, by constant reference and association, increases the enthusiast's knowledge of general history, of geography, of the postal system, and the world in general.

No doubt many other arguments might be mentioned, but the above have been sufficient to keep me an interested and studious collector for nine years.

Long live Philately!

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—A three night auction sale in June is rather unusual but a catalog just at hand from Drew & Co. indicates that Boston buyers are thus to be favored the latter part of the month, June 24, 25, 26, at Elks' Hall, being the time and place. The catalog before us comprises a wide variety of offers and is advertised as the "longest, biggest and best sale held in Boston since the halcyon days of 1896-8." Lovers of recent issues will find much of interest.

—A. Herbst sends us word that the New York Philatelist will be reissued early in September. Mr. Herbst proposes to make it a live monthly paper and his efforts in this direction in the past have been attended with such success as to warrant the belief that he will be successful in the new venture.

—We have received from B. Max Mehl the catalog of his 4th mail auction sale of coins, medals, paper money and curios. The date of the same ends June 22. The catalog before us is one of great interest comprising lots well worth careful study. We note that among other things offered are Confederate relics and curios, the property of Dr. H. C. Pope, Birmingham, Ala. Any one interested in the stock handled by Mr. Mehl should not fail to secure this catalog.

—Our readers will note the fact that a new advertiser has entered our columns, none other than The E. J. Schuster Co. of St. Louis. This company will use 2000 lines during the coming year and comes well recommended, so that our readers need have no hesitation in opening business relations. A new price-list is soon to be issued and a request for the same upon publication will no doubt be gladly filled by the Schuster Co.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Ulmont Stewart, F. D. Goodhue, R. K. Collins, C. H. Whitaker and S. A. Klemmer.

Our Premium Offers

We do not give any premiums on renewal of subscription or on transfers. They may be secured by old subscribers (paid up 3 mos. in advance) who send in new names, or by new subscribers themselves who remit 25c for six mos., or 50c for one year.

OUR BEST PREMIUM FOR THE NOVICE

OUR ORIGINAL GUM IS PURE.

"I noticed an article in a London medical journal recently regarding the presence of a poisonous salt said to be contained in the coloring matter of some of the English postage stamps." said a government official to a Washington Star writer.

"The journal in question, in sending out special supplement parcels which required 3-penny stamps, was struck with the brilliancy of their yellow coloring. An analysis was made and it was found that the coloring was due to a poisonous salt—chromate of lead—in each stamp. In a weight of rather more than half a grain the quantity of chromate was found to be 2.53 per cent. This was declared to be a fatal dose, and that one-fifth of a grain would be contained in 14 stamps.

"The fine coloring of our own postage stamps and the gum on the back of each is a matter of special pride with us, and they may be applied to the tongue for moistening purposes by the public without fear of poison or of contamination.

"Some persons imagine that the gum upon our postage stamps is some common variety of gum or mucilage, but in this they are much mistaken. It is perfectly harmless, and is composed of vegetable ingredients, consisting of dextrin and glucose, and it is as pure and as clean as modern methods and human skill can make it.

"In fact, it may be said that we go almost to extremes in the initial preparation of the gum and in its preservation and subsequent application to backs of the large sheets upon which postage stamps are printed. Its application to the sheets is made by mechanical process in a cleanly and sanitary manner and not by hand. The room in which the gumming is done is large and airy and may be said to be as free from dust and other contaminating influences as it is possible to make it—a far different apartment from that of the average place of business, even in modern shops. The windows are high and large, the room is kept well supplied with pure air, and it is situated in a portion of the new annex to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing far distant from the street.

"This same care and the exercise of sanitary precautions follow the stamp sheets from the moment the gum is first applied in the drying boxes until they are ultimately wrapped for shipment to postmasters. The sheets, when received from the printer for gumming, are unperforated. When they leave the gumming and the drying rooms and are passed into the perforating room—which is likewise a large and well-lighted building—they are handled in the same careful and cleanly manner.

"The perforating machines are all new and of the latest pattern, and, like the drying boxes, are kept free from dust and moisture. There is not a step in the entire process of the manufacture of our postage stamps, from the receipt of the blank paper itself to its transfer out of the building for shipment that rigid cleanliness is not adhered to."

WILL TRY STAMP SLOT MACHINE.

Postmaster-General Meyer has decided to have exhaustive tests made of several types of automatic stamp-vending machines, adapted to receive one-cent and five-cent pieces for the purchase of one-cent and five-cent stamps and postal cards.

For the purpose of the tests the Department will locate the machines at various points in the country. The great difficulty in this country is that there is no coin which is the equivalent of the two cent stamp, and therefore it will be necessary to use two one-cent stamps for letter postage.

EDITORIAL.

An Adjunct—One of the most interesting possessions that the earnest collector may have aside from his stamps is a scrap-book, in which articles and items on stamps and their collectors that have appeared in the non-philatelic press are preserved. Especially is such a compilation of significance if it was started years ago and continued to later days. The clippings of earlier times are the more distinctive in an irregular sense, as in them, the subject of philately is distorted amusingly, as a rule; and a comparison of the newspaper information of by-gone days with that of the present affords a striking illustration of the advance that philately has made in being properly presented to the public. Latterly, the activities of the National Stamp Committee have influenced the insertion of reliable articles in the newspaper press and a collection of all such contributions alone would make a scrap-book of not a few pages. The philatelist will feel amply repaid if once he begins a book on the line suggested; it will not be long before the clippings will savor of the past, and then not alone will they be of readable interest but also, of a mild form of historical value.

Interesting if not Valuable—It has been noticed that many collectors particularly in the past, attached to the blank pages usually at the back of their albums, clippings from the newspapers that impressed them as being in keeping with their hobby; thus, they showed an inclination to save references to stamp collecting in the outside press. It would be preferable, not to say, more orderly, for collectors with this instinct to enlarge their field beyond the narrow confines of a few pages in the album, so as to allow of a wider range of endeavor. The conveniences and ample space of a scrap-book are advantages that may well be improved by the collector to whom the idea of retaining the clippings appeals at all. Those philatelists who have given no thought to preserving say the most important clippings on philately, from the press, should know that there is enough satisfaction ultimately to be gained through the plan to justify the adoption of it. The scrap-book is an adjunct to the philatelic library or the collection, and as such has several points of commendation. It reflects a peculiar philatelic phase such as only the newspapers embody, and though there may be much chaff in the articles, kernels of wheat are not wholly lacking. If the book is extended over a period of years, it will show that, as time flies, a better understanding and appreciation of the hobby are evident on the part of the public. We say that comparatively few collectors who have a scrap-book of this sort would be quick to assert that the keeping of it was well worth while.

Waiting—A correspondent says that the uniform stamps for the Australian Commonwealth are in sight. This is not an echo of the past, even though it is remembered that for many years, the same prediction has been made. Our informant intimates that he has authority other than that carried by the newspaper statements in Australia for his promise. A committee has been appointed to consider the question of uniform stamps even to the length of passing upon suitable designs.

An Alien View—It has a salutary effect sometimes to hear a candid opinion of ourselves from one who is disinterested and not unduly given to an indulgence of a spirit of fault-finding. The editor of the Stamp Collector, Birmingham, England, in commenting on the contents of the issue of the WEEKLY of April 27th, that was dedicated to the American Philatelic Association and devoted in great measure to a glorification of the association, says in the course of his remarks: "It would appear that the convention is a mixture of holiday picnic, with an exciting political election in miniature. Business meetings are said to take place on two days and photographic groups are arranged and published, but what they do in the interest of philately is not at all evident." It has long been patent to observers that the American Philatelic Association has not been doing much to advance philately in a specific sense but none may gainsay that it is a tremendous moral agency for philatelic good and in consequence, achieves an end that while not of artistic impressiveness, is of practical advantage. Just why there are no sustained efforts to make the conventions the seats of real philatelic work has been variously explained. It has been said that the conventions are regarded rather as the goal of vacation trips than as gatherings for philatelic work. Yet, it must not be lost sight of that the association has not been wholly remiss in serious accomplishment. There have been valuable and instructive papers read at conventions; there have been collections embodying scientific principles shown; and important committee reports have been received and published. The publication of the old American Philatelist as a monthly by the association must not be forgotten in summing up the real work that has been done by the association.

Political Paroxysm—The reference to the "exciting political election in miniature" should be qualified, and our contemporary should understand that for not a few years past, there has been no excitement attending the elections. The contests, if such they could be called were very mild, and as only one ticket was in the field, the voting was perfunctory. This year, the election is proceeding along different lines, and we may not say that the conditions prevailing are the usual ones. In fact, the WEEKLY can no longer ignore the storm of protest from members of the American Philatelic Association at the manner in which the campaign has been conducted. For a time, we believed that it would not be possible for those who have the campaign in charge to allow bitterness of a common kind to enter it, but now, reluctantly, we are forced to reconsider our first idea and admit that developments have engendered so much hostility that if they proceed unchecked, harm will be done the association. This may be said without controverting the expression that has been made several times, to the effect that a show of political activity has a stimulating effect and conduces to an intelligent interest in the workings of the association, on the part of members. Extremes have been resorted to in the present contest, and now, the WEEKLY views with regret the pass to which matters have come, and will do what it can to discourage further license. When members who have shown their regard for the WEEKLY for many years past, reprimand it, as some are now doing, for accepting even as advertisements the campaign matter that has appeared in its columns, we are forced to the belief that a halt must be called.

Good Example—The subject of stamps for investment has been discussed periodically and various lines of attractive stamps have been advanced with plausible argument. In an English philatelic publication, a dealer advertises that a client has instructed him to invest an amount approximating fifty thousand dollars, in early imperforate rarities of colonials. "Sydney views, laureated issues of New South Wales, early Mauritius, Ceylon, New Zealand, Cape of Good Hope, Tasmania, etc." These stamps seem to be ideal selections for investment. They belong to a diminishing class and about all of them that are available for collecting purposes are in philatelic hands. The imperforate stamp carries a distinction with it that appeals to the collector and when in fine condition, it is worth more nearly catalogue than many of the later stamps in the estimation of the majority of collectors. The collector anywhere will find that he has made a good investment if he takes his cue from the action of the English investor and buys at the current reasonable prices at least the more moderate priced imperforate stamps of the British colonies.

—The Carolina Philatelist is a Vol. I, No. 1 from Abbeville, So. Carolina. It consists of four pages two columns to the page and is published monthly at 25c per year. A sample copy will no doubt be mailed upon application.

JOHN N. LUFF, New York City
Candidate for President of the American Philatelic Association.
(N. E. Branch Advt.)

COMMUNICATION.

BOSTON June 1, 1907.

TO THE EDITOR:

No one regrets more than the undersigned the recent development in the politics of the American Philatelic Association. For some years we have been quite free from the personalities which were a fruitful source of trouble in the early days of the Association, and it was hoped that all such child's play had been left behind in the childhood of the Association. Perhaps the fact that a certain faction had been practically left in charge of its policy and direction, while the rest of the membership adopted a laisser faire attitude, may have had the quieting effect which was unfortunately attributed to good sense and "years of discretion." But has this humdrum existence been good for the Association? Or what has the Association accomplished to refute the charge of "humdrumness?" The echo is about the only answer.

It became necessary some time ago to appoint a recruiting committee to revive flagging interest in the Association and build up its membership. Ninety millions of people in the United States, and not a thousand native members yet on our membership list! Yet our official journal has a subscription list of over six thousand. What is the matter? Are American stamp collectors only halfhearted; are they too busy collecting stamps (or money?) to look about them and join with their fellows for the good of the cause; or does the National Association fail in its duty toward its members by not providing them with proper returns for their support? I am afraid there is something to be said on all counts.

The past year has seen an excellent increase in membership, due principally to the untiring efforts of the recruiting committee. New branches have been formed and a revival of interest in Association affairs seems imminent. Along this line was the nominating of a ticket early in the year by parties other than the ones who have usually had their say-so. So far so good; a healthy political campaign is a good spring tonic for any society, and with the new blood coming in it should revivify our Association. But you know the result—more of the "child's play" of the early days which proved the measles, mumps and scarlet fever of the Association's youth. Shame on those, whoever they be, who cannot show a spirit of fairness, who must resort to personalities, to mud-throwing, the violation of personal correspondence and "I won't play" attitudes because things are not all their own way. We are making a spectacle of ourselves for others to laugh at and it is high time that the sober, common-sense opinion of the Association at large should make itself felt against such methods.

The above remarks have been called forth by the receipt of the English Stamp Collector for May. On the first page we read:

Judging from a very good summary of the twenty gatherings of the American Philatelic Association from its formation in 1866 [sic] just published in Mekeel's Weekly by the President, Mr. W. C. Stone, it would appear that the convention is a mixture of holiday picnic with an exciting political election in miniature. Business meetings are said to take place on two days and photographic groups are arranged and published, but what they do in the interests of philately is not at all evident.

In Germany, from what we can gather, there is more practical work done, and there are not "party" questions and struggles with columns of advertisements for these or those candidates for official posts, which seem to be the chief object in existence in the American Association, presumably because it is one body and not a number of different associations that are represented at these meetings

Is not this a castigation of which we all ought to be ashamed? And yet what can we say to refute it? The echo is again the only answer.

Once we had papers on philatelic subjects read and discussed at the conventions. What has become of this practice? Once we had an excellent official journal of our own. What do we do for ourselves now? Did we ever undertake any important philatelic work? Once we had a committee on a philatelic index. Lost, strayed or stolen? In short, what has the American Philatelic Association done for the practical advancement of PHILATELY? Echo? ?

MEMBERS—This is not a political document. It is a word of warning and advice. Put your shoulders to the wheel; make of the Association something worthy your support, and the support of others will come to it without the need of recruiting committees. Take an active interest in all the Association affairs; co-operate when you can; suggest improvements and new ideas; put your foot on all questionable methods, and when campaign time comes be fair and square; then vote for the men you feel best qualified for their positions, and who you think will best serve the Association, but always vote as a bounden duty; and when election is over don't be a "sore-head" but abide with good grace the decision of the majority. Thus only can we remove the stigma cast upon us from across the water and show that the American Philatelic Association can justify the middle word in its title.

Yours for PHILATELY,
C. A. HOWES, A. P. A. 1951.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Miss Amy L. Swift writes as follows: "Concerning the very minor varieties noted by you in current MEKEEL'S as occurring in the Jamestown issue I beg to remark that any one who will go over a sheet of the 1c with a glass will find dots a plenty in places where apparently they do not belong. On a block of 18 before me one stamp has a dot over Smith's head slightly to his right, and one each under E and S of 'States'; in the stamp below all three dots appear, but are more or less shifted, the first being high up nearly hidden in a shade line and the others moved along to the right so that one is under the O of 'of'. On neighboring stamps I find the A of 'Commemorative' with a nicked top, with the crossbar broken, in one case actually missing, covered with ink of course; and two varieties with broken V's, one with line at right broken near point and the other with break on left side. Don't let's get 'dotty' as our English cousins did over the O. R. O. surcharges. Let's take defective printing in a spirit of common sense! ! !"

ANTIGUA.—Ewen's Weekly chronicles the 1sh stamp on chalky CC paper.

BRAZIL.—Mr. Schachne notifies us of the receipt of more letter cards, with stamp of same design as on the cards noticed in No. 843. The headlines appear in white letters on a background of color in a very neat and mainly rectangular design at upper center. Each card all in one color. The perforations seem to vary with nearly every recent issue, as follows: 11 for the 1894, 5¾ and 6¾ for the 1898, 6¾ for the Pan American and 12 for this last. Size, 135x100.

Letter Cards.

300r gray brown on white.

CANADA.—Eric C. Woodcock has favored us with two 1c envelopes in which there are great differences in the shades of green. One is quite light and the other very dark but the difference is not more marked than often found in the printing of regular adhesives.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—The 4r and 5r stamps, large form, have been issued on chalky multiple paper, according to Ewen.

FRANCE.—We have been shown by the New England Stamp Co. the 30c Semeuse, in the new printing sans terre, the 5c and 10c having been previously issued. This value also has the "posterior line," showing that this is to be the permanent type for certain values.

Adhesive.

30c bright orange brown.

FRENCH WEST AFRICA.—The New England Stamp Co. has shown us the missing 45c value in three of the sets grouped under the above head,—Senegal, Haut-Senegal-Niger and Mauritanie. The design is of the upright palm type.

Adhesive.

45c brown violet on greenish.

GERMAN COLONIES.—We have been shown by the North Shore Stamp Co. several additions to our watermarked sets as given in whole No. 845. They are as follows:—

Ger. S. W. Africa, 3pf.
Cameroons, 10pf.
Ger. E. Africa, 45h.

HONG KONG.—The 8c has been issued on chalky multiple paper, according to Ewen's.

ITALY.—(Offices in Crete.)—The North Shore Stamp Co. have shown us the new 5c value surcharged for use in the Italian Offices in Crete.

LIBERIA.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie reports that a sheet of the 75c on $1 blue and black was issued with further overprint, "Official," in black.

NETHERLANDS.—We illustrate the design of the De Ruyter set, concerning which various notices have appeared in our columns:—

NICARAGUA.—Edward de Z. Kelley has shown us the following provisionals, overprinted on the 2c official of 1906. There are two types of the "1" in the "Vale $1.00" stamps.

Provisional Adhesives.

"Vale $1.00" on 2c rose, reading up.
"Vale $1.00" on 2c rose, reading down.
"Vale $2.00" on 2c rose, reading down.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—The 1sh stamp has appeared on chalky multiple paper, according to Ewen's Weekly.

PORTUGUESE COLONIES.—According to L'Echo de la Timbrologie full new sets are to be issued for all the Colonies, though whether in a new design or simply a change of color, like the recent new issue for the mother country, is not stated. The nine African colonies are to have 20 stamps each, including eight postage due stamps, while Portuguese Indies is to have 24, and Macao and Timor 22 each. How this will make some of our English contemporaries squirm, especially those who affect to believe that stamp collecting is the main part of the postal business. There are to be sure 248 stamps in the scheme noted above, but as the highest value is not above 65c in American money, the cost of the whole 12 sets is not prohibitive. Compare this with the £10 and £20 stamps, seldom if ever used for legitimate postal purposes, which these same contemporaries would have us believe are absolutely essential to a well-filled collection,—and in mint state at that.

ST. PIERRE ET MIQUELON.—Our French contemporaries announce that the official designs for a new series of stamps for the Colony have been adopted and have been shown to the interested philatelists. There are two types, one representing the head of a fisherman and the other a sea bird. The stamps will be of long form, and the engraving finely executed. Th. Lemaire says "if the stamps are printed with care, we shall have a series which will console us a little for the horrors of French Guinea and Guadeloupe."

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—Mrs. Grant Cordrey calls attention to an uncorrected error in No. 848, in which the 4c on 18c was chronicled overprinted in two lines in black. Our information came from Ewen's Weekly, and we overlooked the fact that in a later number, this was corrected, the surcharge really being in red. We also omitted to chronicle the fact that the following values of the Crown issue of Labuan had received the same surcharge, "Straits Settlements," in two lines in red.

Provisional Adhesives.

3c brown and red.
25c blue and green.
50c lilac and purple.
$1 orange and brown.

TRANSVAAL.—A correspondent of the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly reports that the 2d, 2½d, 3d, 4d and 6d are now printed on a very thick laid paper. The 3d, which for a while was issued in a very pale shade of yellowish green, has now reverted to its original sage green.

The £1 violet and green stamp has been issued on multiple paper.

TRINIDAD.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the £1 stamp on chalky paper with multiple watermark.

VICTORIA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the £1, perforated 11, watermarked Crown A.

The 2d brown and blue postage due stamp must now be added to those that have been issued on the Crown A paper.

The Omaha Philatelic Society met in society rooms for the regular monthly meeting and was called to order by Vice President R. C. Hoyt. All officers and members were present except President Geo. Marples, who has gone abroad for the summer. The principal business came up on a motion to have the society indorse the officers nominated by the Chicago Branch for the A. P. A. The motion carried and the Chicago Ticket was unanimously indorsed. At the conclusion of the business session H. A. Cameron exhibited his specialized collection, which was highly appreciated by the society.

To Our Members:

You have read the President's message printed in this paper several weeks ago. Why not heed same? Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and bring the membership of our society up to a corresponding standard of the other societies who are using this journal as their official organ.

To give an impetus to the matter, I will offer a fine used copy of $5.00 1902 U. S. stamp to the member securing 15 new members before Aug. 31, 1907, and to the one securing 5 new members an unused copy of the 1c Agriculture. Every new member will receive an unused pair of the new 1c imperforate U. S. and all new members paying their dues to Aug. 31, 1908, will receive a copy of Mr. Luff's book, "What Philately Teaches," an interesting book on our science.

Our dues are 75c per year, and 35c until Aug. 31st, 1907, which include all benefits. Application blanks and any information will be cheerfully furnished. Any collector in any state is eligible to membership. Our President and Secretary will not participate in above premiums.

I hope to see this month show a large increase in membership.

Two collections of the postage stamps of Hamburg were entered for competition. The judges, Messrs. Klemann, Mozian and Professor Loewy, awarded the first prize to Mr. Steinway. This collection is especially rich in stamps on entire covers. The gem of these is a beautiful pair of 9s imperforate with thin bar cancellation. Mr. Uhlmann's collection also deserves much credit and received honorable mention. Several volumes of philatelic literature were presented to the library by Messrs. Wolfrum and Klein. Thanks. Mr. Klemann of the Nassau Stamp Co. showed the auction lots of the Hohenstein sale. They were inspected by all present. Next meeting will take place June 19th. Open exchange.

PROVIDENCE, May 17, 1907.

The regular meeting of the Society was held in Room 6, Y. M. C A. Bldg., Vice Pres. Fleischer presiding. Minutes of two previous meetings approved as read. Mr. Mason proposed Oscar Nelson for membership and said application was referred to the Executive Committee. The invitation from the Boston Society to attend their banquet and entertainment was read by the Sec'y. It was accepted with a vote of thanks and as many as possible will attend. Geo. M. Linker, proposed for membership at the last meeting by Mr. Reichelt, was admitted to membership. Benj. T. Peck sent in his resignation and it was regretfully accepted. It was voted to have a copy of MEKEEL'S WEEKLY sent to the Y. M. C. A. Exhibitions of stamps and a spirited auction sale closed a most delightful evening.

The last meeting for the season until fall will be held June 21st.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF VICE-PRESIDENTS.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:—During the third quarter ending May 31st, in addition to much routine correspondence pertaining to miscellaneous matters, the Board of Vice-Presidents have had before them the following disciplinary cases. One complaint against two members, under investigation at the time of our previous report, has been referred to the Board of Directors.

Five complaints against applicants for admission have been received, of which one was not sustained and the applicant admitted; one was sustained and the applicant refused admittance; two are undergoing investigation, and one, being received after applicant was admitted in due form, has been referred back to complainant for further action.

Four new complaints against members have been received, one of which has been adjusted and three are under investigation.

We have drawn a warrant on the Insurance Fund for $3.15 in favor of the Sales Superintendent, Mr. P. M. Wolsieffer, to reimburse him for settlement made with the owners of two books from each of which a stamp, valued at $1.00 and $2.50 respectively, was abstracted or unaccounted for while the books were in circuit.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

THE JUNE

contains, as usual, several pages of interesting news notes, "boiled down," a lot of bargains, also important changes in catalogue prices.

One man who subscribed with the first number, figures that in the ordinary course of his purchases he would have been about $18.00 "out" without the information obtained. The Circular warned him of the counterfeit Philippine surcharges, for one thing.

No wonder the 'subscription list" grows.

We send the Circular for 12c a year, which is what the postage costs us.

BRITISH COLONIAL STATISTICS.

The following article provides in a more or less permanent form, much valuable information respecting the Colonies and we trust may be of some real benefit and value to collectors.

Antigua. Discovered by Columbus in 1493 and settled by the English in 1632. Seat of the government of the Leeward Is. Area 183 square miles. Population 34,053. Dependency, Barbuda and Redonda. Capital, St. John's, population (1901) 9,262.

Australian Commonwealth. Discovered by De Gouneville, in 1503. The whole of the eastern part of Australia received the name of New South Wales from its first explorer, Captain Cook, in 1770. A confederation of the colonies of New South Wales, Queensland, South Australia, Tasmania, Victoria and Western Australia. Area 3,173,882. Population (1901) about 5,000,000. Capital (temporary) Melbourne in Victoria.

Bahamas. Discovered by Columbus in 1492. The group consists of about 20 inhabited islands and an immense number of islets and rocks aggregating 5,794 square miles. Crown Colony since 1629, except in 1781 but restored in 1783. Population (1905) 58,175. Capital, Nassau on New Providence Island.

Barbados. British Colony since 1625. Area 166 square miles. Population (1904) 199,542, being about 1,200 to the square mile, and being the most thickly populated country in the world. This is the oldest British Colony. Capital, Bridgetown. Population (1902) 25,500.

Bermuda. Discovered in 1527 by Bermudez. British Colony since 1609. Area 19 square miles. Population (1901) 17,535. Capital, Hamilton. Population (1901) 2,246.

British Central Africa. British Protectorate since May 14, 1891. Area 42,217 square miles. Population 950,000 natives and 600 Europeans. Capital, Zomba.

British Guiana. British Colony since 1796. Area 90,277 square miles. Population (Dec. 1904) 301,923. Capital, Georgetown. Population 48,802.

THE ALL WHOLESALE SALE

is Saturday, June 29. The catalogue has been mailed to all our regular auction buyers, and you are just in time to send your bids.

This sale includes lines of U. S. Postage that cannot be bought from wholesale dealers, much less offered in auction sales. Don't let the summer or dull season racket keep you from bidding. The time to buy is when everyone wants to sell, then when everyone wants to buy you have the stock to sell. Let every day be your busy day, then at the end of the year you will have a good bank balance. Therefore act and cover this sale with bids.

Auctions 1907-8.

I intend to enter the auction business actively during the coming year. I shall open up the season with a very fine sale about Nov. 1st. I am now prepared to make arrangements for future sales—not over one per month. Want only good material and for such I can get as good prices as any dealer in America. Advances made to any amount consistent with sound business.

Frank P. Brown, 339 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

East Africa and Uganda. In 1888 the Imperial British East Africa Company received a Royal Charter to exercise jurisdiction over territories leased to it by the Sultan of Zanzibar. On June 18, 1895, they were proclaimed as a British Protectorate, and the Company handed over the administration on July 1, 1895. The country of King Mwanga, known as Uganda, was made a British Protectorate on June 19, 1894. In 1903, the two protectorates were united. Area about 500,000 square miles. Population about 7 millions. Capital, Mombosa. Population 30,000 (100 Europeans).

Falkland Islands Consist of East Falkland (3000 sq. miles), West Falkland (2,300 sq. miles) and 100 small islands comprising a total of 6,500 square miles. Discovered in 1592 by Davis, British Colony since 1771 but not occupied until 1833. They are the most southerly organized English colony. South Georgia (1000 sq. miles) is a dependency. Population (1897) 2,050. Capital, Port Stanley.

Fiji Islands. A group of 200 to 250 islands discovered by Tasman in 1643. The principal are Viti Levu (Great Fiji) and Vanua Levu (Great Land). Ceded to Great Britain Oct. 10, 1874, by King Cacambau. Area 7,451 square miles. Population (1901) 120,124. Capital, Suva, Viti Levu.

Gambia. Discovered in 1447. In 1588 Queen Elizabeth gave a charter to a British Company to trade with Gambia, but it did not become British until 1783, and now consists of various islands and territories on the river. The population (April 1901) was 13,456 (excluding Protectorate, 140,000). Capital, Bathurst. Population (1901) 8,807.

Gibraltar. Captured in 1704 by a combined Dutch and English force and ceded by the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713, to Great Britain. Withstood a siege in 1779–83 of 3 years and 7 months against a combined French and Spanish force. Area 1.87 square miles. Civilian population (1901) 20,355.

Gold Coast. First settled by the Portuguese. The first English company to trade with the Gold Coast was chartered in 1662. In 1821 the settlements were transferred to the Crown and placed under the government of Sierra Leone, from which they were separated in 1874. Area, including protectorate, 40,000 square miles. Population about 900,000 (exclusive of Ashanti, taken in war of 1873–4). Capital, Accra. Population 17,892.

Grenada. Discovered by Columbus in 1498 and named Conception First colonized by the French, seized by the English in 1762, retaken by the French in 1779 and finally ceded to Great Britain in 1783 by the Treaty of Versailles. Area, including the Grenadines, 133 square miles. Population 69,350. Capital, St. George's.

Hong Kong. Crown Colony since Jan. 1841. Area 30½ square miles. Population (1905) 377,850. Capital, Victoria. Population (1905) 201,227.

India Alexander's invasion of India (327 B. C.) is the first landmark of Indian history. The first English East India Company was incorporated in 1600. On May 10, 1857, the great "Indian Mutiny" broke out and was the death-blow to the East India Company. On Nov. 1, 1858, its entire administration was transferred to the Crown. In 1877 the Queen was proclaimed Empress of India. The land of Oman (Arabia) is nominally under the control of India. Area 1,767,000 square miles. Population (1901) 294,361,056. Capital, Calcutta, with (1901) 1,106,738 inhabitants.

Jamaica. Discovered by Columbus on May 3, 1494, who called it St. Jago. Captured by the British in 1655, and ceded to England in 1670 by the Treaty of Madrid. Area 4,193 square miles. Population (1905) 806,690. Capital, Kingston. Population 46,542.

Labuan. Is an island situated about 6 miles off the northwest coast of Borneo, with an area of about 31 square miles, and a population of 8,411. Ceded to Great Britain by the Sultan of Borneo in 1846. The government is administered by the Governor of the Straits Settlements. Capital, Victoria Harbor.

Lagos. See Southern Nigeria.

Leeward Islands. Consist of the five presidencies of Antigua, St. Christopher and Nevis, Dominica (under Administrators), Montserrat, and the Virgin Islands. The federal colony contains (1901) 127,536 inhabitants.

Malta. In ancient times it was occupied in succession by Phœnicians, Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans and Byzantine Greeks, as each nation secured the command of the Mediterranean Sea. It is said to have been converted to Christianity on the occasion of the shipwreck of St. Paul in 58 A. D. In the Dark Ages it was taken by the Moors and used mainly as a base for piratical expeditions. In 1090 it was again brought under Christian rule, being conquered by Roger of Sicily, but was in 1530 handed over to the Knights of St. John. In 1798 the Knights were expelled by Napoleon, but the Maltese arose against the French, and with the assistance of British and Neapolitan troops compelled the French to capitulate in 1800. The islands were then ceded to Great Britain, and confirmed by the Treaty of Paris in 1814. Area, including Gozo, 91½ square miles. Population (April, 1906) 205,059. Capital, Valetta. Population (1901) 30,768.

Mauritius. Discovered in 1507 by the Portuguese. Visited by the Dutch in 1598 and named Mauritius. Captured by the British in 1810 from the French. Area 705 square miles. Population (1901) 375,385. Rodrigues and the Chagos Archipelago are dependencies of Mauritius and contain (1901) 4,859 inhabitants. Capital, Port Louis. Population (1901) 52,740.

Montserrat. Discovered by Columbus in 1493, Crown Colony since 1784. Area 32½ square miles. Population (1904) 13,127.

Natal. Discovered in 1497 by Vasco de Gama on Christmas Day, hence its name. First European settlement by the English in 1824 and proclaimed as British territory in 1843, then part of the great Zulu Kingdom. Area 35,371 square miles. Population (1904) 1,108,754. Zululand was annexed to Natal in 1897. Capital, Pietermaritzburg. Population (1904) 31,199.

Nevis See St. Christopher.

Newfoundland. Discovered by John Cabot in 1497; the first land seen was hailed as Prima Vista—the present Cape Bona Vista. Area 40,200 square miles. Population (1905) 225,533. Labrador is a dependency, with a population (1905) of 3,994. Capital, St. John's, with 29,594 inhabitants.

DENVER'S WELCOME.

A Message to the Members of the American Philatelic Association.

BY C. A. NAST, Pres. Denver Stamp Club.

At the last regular meeting of the Denver Stamp Club the writer was directed to renew all the promises and pledges made in the past by the Denver Stamp Club for the entertainment of our guests in July.

Our club consists of 61 members, 17 of whom belong to the A. P. A. It is entirely independent of any other philatelic association or society, and stands alone as a body of enthusiastic stamp collectors, bent on entertaining a National Association interested in a like object.

As to the pending contest for officers of the A. P. A. we as a club are strictly neutral, having no preferences, and taking no part whatsoever in the matter, leaving it to the individual members who are affiliated with the national society to vote as they see fit.

As stamp collectors and citizens of Denver, we welcome you most heartily, and bid you bring your wives and sweethearts. We have made final arrangements to take you all to the summit of Pike's Peak, and there, if you will, you may have a short session of your Association. This will then have been the highest point ever reached in philately. This bright idea originated in the teeming brain of Walter Clarke Bellows, whose collection of Mexico is the biggest in the world.

Two specially chartered cars will take you about our city on a "seeing Denver" tour.

The Albany hotel, centrally located, has been designated as the official headquarters. The management of this hostelry has been most kind, placing their convention hall, parlors and committee rooms and their world renowned ladies' orchestra at our disposal. This orchestra will be heard at our receptions, dances and banquet.

On one night during the convention the entire delegation will be guests of Mr. Bellows at Elitch's Garden's Theatre, the stock company of which is direct from New York. These gardens are delightful spots and to those who wish to visit them in the afternoon, all attractions and concessions will be free also.

Nothing that would ensure your comfort, pleasure and happiness has been left undone. All that the members of the Denver Stamp Club desire is your presence. Come, and bring your treasures with you.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Robert E. Ramsay representing the "Philatelists Campaign Committee" sends us a complete ticket nominated for official positions in the M. P. A.

—H. E. Carpenter, Jr., of Bay City, Mich., is about to make a trip abroad accompanied by his invalid mother. He expects to be gone several months.

—F. D. Goodhue favors us with a clipping from the Chicago News illustrating the design of the new postal flag, the adoption of which is being considered by the postal authorities. The design is intended to represent an envelope, the seal of the post office being on the reverse side. Diagonal bars from corner to corner are in red, the field white with a circular band in the center of dark blue with white stars. This circular band surrounds a male rider and horse also in blue on white ground.

—A lengthy letter at hand from J. C. Piper which we are unable to quote in full gives the particulars of the exhibition of his collection at Marysville, Mo., June 1, 2 and 3. The press spoke highly of it and Mr. Piper was presented with a gold watch and chain for his courtesy.

—The Prospect Philatelic Club of Brooklyn, N. Y., has suspended its Official Organ, the News, during the summer months. It will be re-established the latter part of September.

—M. A. Lesser of New York City, who has charge of the claims against the Monroe Stamp Co., informs us that it is his intention to submit all papers in the case to the U. S. District Attorney with a view to a prosecution for fraudulent use of the mails. This item will be of interest to several who had unsatisfactory dealings with the above mentioned firm.

—We have received from The E. J. Schuster Co. of St. Louis, Mo., an eighty page price-list filled with matter of interest to the general collector. Those of our readers who wish to get an idea of the comprehensive stock carried by this company should send for a specimen copy which will no doubt be sent free upon application.

—Barclay Green, recently of Moose Jaw, Sask., has removed to Boharm, the same province. He informs us that recently an approval selection was requested by L. D. Aitkinson, 923 High St., Eugene, Ore., reference being given of James Howland, Albany, Ore. A letter being sent Mr. Howland, the same was returned marked "Undeliverable."

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from Dr. F. U. Ferguson (4), E. B. Fisher and Arthur L. Nelson (2).

—We have received from Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., a clipping from the New York Sun of June 16 dealing with "Uncle Sam's Official Stamps." It is an Adams article and is put together in the writer's usual interesting style.

—The Kansas City Stamp Club at its last meeting held a contest consisting of original humorous compositions dealing with stamps or stamp topics. Three prizes were given. At the meeting held May 31 the following officers were elected: —Pres., Chas. F. Rouse; Vice Pres., C. S. Davis; Sec. and Lib., Arthur L. Nelson; Treas., H. K. Poindexter; Sales Spt., F. Breisch Sargeant, Robt. Woodward.

A. P. A. CONVENTION ROSTER.

If you intend to be present at the Convention of the A. P. A. to be held at Denver in July, kindly send your name to this office as we intend to keep standing the roster of probable attendants.

ESPERANTO FOR PHILATELISTS.

BY JULIAN PARK.

Surely it is fitting that philatelists should have a leading part in the movement for universal recognition of Esperanto as a world language, for they have much to gain by it. At first glance it may not seem apparent why collectors should be interested in an artificial language any more than they should in an already existing tongue. Would it not be just as reasonable for us all to support French, which has for so many centuries been the only universal language in postal and diplomatic circles? Thoroughly understood though French has become, a moment's reasoning will convince one of the error of such reasoning. If, when corresponding with a German collector, you propose to use thereafter French as the universal language, the probability is that your German friend will not agree. If, on the other hand, you support English as the universal tongue when writing a Russian, or, possibly, a French exchanger, he will in his turn express his refusal. Since the universal language, then, is not, owing to international rivalry and distrust in matters of commerce, and in other respects, to be a living tongue, are there objections to Latin, which is taught every schoolboy the world over? But Latin has been dead hundreds of years, and our fast-moving civilization demands a language in which every idea of the moment may be expressed. Thus did the talented inventor of Esperanto, a Pole named Zamenhof, reason, and, accepting this finding as conclusive, he felt himself justified in working out his experiment.

Since, then, in his exchange relations it is not practicable for the philatelist when writing outside the two countries named, to use English, French, or Latin, he may with perfect assurance take up Esperanto. Let him not fear being considered either peculiar or ridiculous, for 400,000 people scattered throughout this globe of ours do use it, anl why may not our collector be the four hundred thousand and first? Surely if this multitude —and among them are many hundreds whom you and I know—use it successfully, there is no doubt at all but that our philatelist will find it of vast service. There is even at your disposal a thriving society, The Esperanto Speaking Collectors of the World with members scattered widely throughout the land,—gentlemen reliable, courteous, and anxious for mutual benefit by means of exchanging and correspondence. A significant instance of the remarkable way in which this language may be used to benefit our stamp and card albums, occurred to me but lately. I had received the name of a Portuguese army officer as a courteous exchanger, but the obstacle was that my knowledge of the Portuguese language (though it is the easiest of any of the European tongues to learn) is limited. Not to be daunted, however, I wrote him in Esperanto, enclosing some stamps, and slipped in the envelope an elementary Esperanto grammar and dictionary. The experiment had a happy ending when I received back, after an interval, a letter in perfect Esperanto, saying that after a very short time the officer had succeeded in mastering the language well enough to write a creditable letter, and expressing gratification at our being, so curiously, brought into such pleasant relations. He concluded by mentioning the fact that the Portuguese Red Cross officer at his post had recommended, following the lead of a prominent French officer, the instruction of Esperanto to all Red Cross employees so that it might be used if by any chance they should be campaigning with strange nationalities; blessing and commending Esperanto, he did not neglect to enclose a very fine selection of the stamps which I was so anxious to secure. This is but a typical case. Esperanto, I am firmly convinced, will prove no less beneficial to every collector who will have the foresight to take it up seriously. I can assure all who are too busy for conscientious study (and there seem several such) that the amount of work needed for perfect mastery is amazingly small—say half an hour a day, for only a week.

EDITORIAL.

Imperf. Horizontally—The following letter from a philatelist of standing in Washington is reproduced; the writer, in a sketchy way, records a discovery of somewhat sensational interest. There can be no mistake in recognizing the part perforates described, on the word of our correspondent, on whom we shall try to prevail to show us a pair or so of the part perforate, two-cent of the current issue, a companion to the imperforates recently issued. The letter reads: "I have just come in possession of a block of fifteen of the present issue, two-cent stamp (not Jamestown) imperforate horizontally. I secured them in this way; I needed a few stamps for some letters I wished to mail, and I asked a gentleman in my office to accommodate me with five. He pulled out this block of fifteen, creased it across one of the imperforate margins and was about to tear off a strip when I said: 'Hold on, let me have them all.' whereupon, he replied: 'Take them, I shall be glad to get rid of the blame things; I wish that they would finish up their stamps before they sell them.' I asked where he got the stamps in question; he said that he bought twenty-five at the main office, and did not notice their 'imperfection,' or 'I never would have taken them, you bet.'"

Among the "Consuls of Philately"—The great series of auction sales of the Le Roy d'Etiolles stock, nine in number, at Paris, have made a deep impression on philatelic observers, by reason of the striking manner in which the huge number of stamps were absorbed at prices that have maintained an ascending scale, as the sales progressed. We find that our foreign contemporaries are not slow to point morals of most hopeful tinge in consequence of the sales, and the London Philatelist in commenting on the final sales of the stamps of the European section, takes occasion to pay a deserved tribute to the stamps of Europe, whose philatelic merits by no means are overrated. In short, the stamps in question are seldom given their deserts. In view of the fact that prices realized on Europeans in the Paris sales were full continental catalogue, as a rule, and in some cases, greatly in excess of them, the statement is made: "The effect of this sale will inevitably be to place the European stamps among the consols of philately. This is a result that is eminently satisfactory, as it will encourage that enormous class of collectors who affect the stamps of Europe, and it deservedly sets the seal of approbation upon a group of stamps that, for variety and interest, are second to none, and that, for purity of issue and freedom from speculative taint, are certainly the first in the world of philately."

A Postoffice Flag—The Chicago News says that the superintendent of city delivery at the Chicago postoffice has submitted a design for a postal flag to the postmaster-general asking that it be accepted as the official insignia of the department. L. T. Steward, who proposed the idea, in his letter to the head of the postal department, wrote: "Several departments and services and certain government officials have official flags and it seems to me not only proper, but even desirable, that a great department like the postoffice should have a flag, which may be flown on occasions of ceremony and at such other times as may be considered desirable." The design of the flag follows that of an envelope, the reverse side being shown, bearing the seal of the postoffice in the center. "Diagonal bars are red, field white, and the circular band in center dark blue, with white stars. The mail rider and horse are also blue." The postmaster-general has the suggestion under consideration, and should it be acted upon favorably, the postoffice flag will be brought into service in various forms of philatelic illustration, so intimately are the postoffice and stamp collecting associated.

We Need One—The Royal Philatelic Society, London, has decided upon the formation of an official reference collection, to consist of "stamps, reprints, forgeries, proofs, essays, photographs, and other objects of value for reference purposes." Preliminary work has been instituted and philatelists generally, the amateurs and the trade, are invited to make donations of stamps. The prediction is not idly made that in time, under the powerful auspices of the Royal Philatelic Society, the collection will become one that will admirably serve the purpose for which it was created,—to afford a standard by which forgeries may be compared and classified according to their true character. It is apparent how an adequate collection of the kind would prove of untold value as a philatelic guardian. So strongly must the plan appeal to all philatelists that we make the suggestion that at the coming convention of the American Philatelic Association, the advisability of attempting work on similar lines in this country be discussed.

Modena Reprints—A dealer in Milan, Italy, is advertising by circular that, having secured the original steel die of the 1859 issue of Modena, he can supply reprints at a normal price for the set of five values. All the stamps of this issue were printed from the same plate, the proper denominations having been inserted in moveable type in the lower label. The reprints do not include the original type impressions of the values at the bottom, or even a facsimile style; an entirely different letter and figure have been employed. It would have been greatly preferred that the stamps of this interesting set of Modena be left to bask in full philatelic favor, as it is known that some collectors are so radical or so whimsical, as to attach some of the stigma borne by reprints in their mind, to the originals of the same stamps. However, if the reprints were inevitable, it is well that the plate came into the possession of the Milan dealer in question, as, instead of striving to make his productions, exact counterparts of the originals, he, purposely, selected a thicker paper and a type of inscription of value, different from that of the originals, for the reprints. The Modena reprinting presents a case almost parallel to that of the Luxemburg reproduction.

Effective—In the June number of the Wall-Paper News and Interior Decorator there is an interesting article, headed, "Most Expensive Wall-Paper," on the subject of Mr. Whitfield King's famous apartment whose walls are covered with stamps; our readers have heard of this wonderful philatelic room in Mr. King's residence at Ipswich, England, and we shall not refer to it in detail, just at present. It is the following relevant closing paragraph of the article, suggested by Mr. King's mural effects, to which we wish to call attention: "That is, perhaps, no more surprising than the statement of stamp collectors that a person may accumulate a collection of stamps during the year 1907, lay it away and forget it, and in 1915, and probably in 1912, it will have doubled in value; in fact, it is not infrequent for stamps to quadruple in value in a single year, and a decline in value is almost unheard of. A shrewd financier of New York who has followed stamp collecting as a recreation since boyhood, declares that stamps are a better investment, to say nothing of the pleasure of collecting, than diamonds of equal value." These words in a nonphilatelic class publication should have a highly beneficial influence on the receptive minds of the readers of this New York publication.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

TAX PAID NOTES.

By J. D. BARTLETT.

I have been asked by several collectors for information in regards to the 1-3 bbl. beer stamp. It has been used less than any other denomination. Yet from the very beginning the government saw the need of a stamp of that size. I take from the report of the Commission of Internal Revenue, dated Nov. 20, 1872:—"I recommend that section 18 be so amended so as to provide for packages known as 'Thirds.' This was authorized to accommodate brewers west of the Rocky Mountains who are compelled to send their product from their breweries to the consumer or retailer on the backs of mules. This size package being especially adapted to such mode of conveyance. 'Thirds' appear to have been omitted in the act of June 6, 1872, through inadvertance and they should be restored." Thev were restored and the 1-3 bbl. has been issued every year.

The 2, 3 and 4 oz. snuff stamps of the current issue are not very common, in fact 3 oz. of all issues appears to be the scarcest of the small snuff.

Two stamps for mixed wines were issued in 1872, 1 pint and 1 quart. They were in use but a short time when the law was repealed. The stamps are fine and a thing of beauty.

A U. S. stamp with the weight given in Chinese is a very peculiar thing, yet we have one as a result of the tax law of 1891. The stamp referred to is a 5 tael stamp used on cans of imported opium. The stamp is about the size of the ordinary cigar stamp and is printed in black. 5 tael equals about 6½ oz. The use of the stamp is almost exclusively confined to the Pacific coast. Another stamp issued under the same law but without denomination, printed in red, was also issued. This stamp is for use on captured opium smuggled to this country.

In the files of an old paper I find mentioned the discovery of a tobacco stamp with inverted Medallion. This stamp is the ½ lb. Tobacco of 1875. Have any of our readers seen a copy?

It was not until 1891 that the coupon stamp of the 5 lb. tobacco was issued, so it is well to look for the two varieties, as they are reported to have been printed by the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The stamps without coupon were printed in sheets and are of the size of the 1, 2, 3 and 4 lb., while the one with coupons are issued with stubs and are of the larger design, as the 10, 20 lb., etc.

WHY DO I COLLECT POSTAGE STAMPS?

Prize Essay by EDW. O. ASPLUND.

Philately, which is my favorite hobby, is really an educational pastime. It aids me in the study of languages, and also develops accuracy and quickness of perception, and gives a more thorough knowledge of geography. The engraving, printing, color, watermarks, perforations, varieties of paper, etc., met with, in the study of stamps, teach many things which we otherwise would not know.

The scenes, portraits, dates, etc, shown on the various stamps often lead me to the geography, history and encyclopedia for reference, in order to become more acquainted with them.

Philately affords me pleasure and amusement all the year around; never a dull season. A stamp collection is portable and always accessible for an hour of recreation, and increases in value every year, but costs nothing to keep.

What is more interesting, after your day's work, than opening a nice neat stamp album, its pages containing beautiful and well kept stamps, many of them real works of Art, with scenery of different countries, or portraits of famous men and rulers?

PHILATELIC PREACHMENT (No. 15).

By F. R. CORNWALL.

It has often occurred to me that many collectors are disappointed when, after an expenditure of several hundred dollars and a vast amount of time, they find that their labors are unproductive, and their investment, if they considered it such, is a losing one.

Mr. Nankivill, in his "Stamp Collecting as a Pastime," considers this in the chapter entitled "Stamp Collecting as an Investment," and gives an illustration. Mr. Nankivill says:

"The wholesaler buys by the thousand, stamps that are printed by the million. I refer, of course, to used stamps. In some cases the price paid per thousand is only a few pence for large quantities that run into the millions. The wholesaler sells to the retailer at a small advance per thousand. Those stamps the ordinary dealer makes up into packets at a further profit, but still at a comparatively low price. Good copies he picks out for sale in sets and separately. These have to be catalogued. Therefore, the catalogue price of stamps bought and sold by the million eventually comes before the collector at 'one penny each,' and the man who makes a collection of the 'one penny each' class can scarcely be expected to realize a fortune out of his stamp collecting. When he offers his gathering of years to the self-same dealer, and asks, say, only the half of what he paid, he is astounded when the dealer has the audacity to tell him frankly 'I can buy most of these stamps at a few shillings per thousand, and you want an average of a half penny a piece for them.' 'But,' retorts the collector, 'I paid you one penny each for them years ago, and now you wont give me half that amount. A pretty thing investing money in stamps.' The reply of the dealer will be 'My dear fellow you put your money into the wrong stamps. I bought, and can still buy, those stamps wholesale, at a few shillings per thousand; some of them at a few pence per thousand; but I have to pay clerks for handling them and sorting them out, other assistants for cataloging them, and the printers for printing the catalogue, so that in the end I cannot afford to sell them separately for less than one penny each, but if you want a few thousand of any value I can sell them to you at a price enormously below what you ask for your collection.' The collector's eyes are opened."

I wish to carry Mr. Nankivill's eye-opener a little further. It is possible to gather together stamps constituting a respectable collection, so far as numbers are concerned, and yet come out at the little end of the horn. To illustrate: A dealer offers the following numbers of postage stamps, at the indication prices at which I have taken the pains to determine the price per stamp:

Number.	Price.	Each.
3,000	$20.00	.006+
4,000	40.00	.01
5,000	75.00	.015
6,000	125.00	.02+
7,000	250.00	.035+
8,000	475.00	.059+
9,000	675.00	.075
10,000	850.00	.085

Still later, another dealer:

Number.	Price.	Each.
10,000	$750.00	.075
13,528	850.00	.064+

The last item is instructive. The advertisement in question appeared in the columns of this paper recently, and the publisher will verify my statement. Now, do you think that the "collector" who gathered together over thirteen thousand stamps, made anything out of his collection? Of course, there was the dealer's profit in the price of $850.00, I don't know how much, but probably not less than 10%. If guessing is in order, the "collector" paid on an average of not less than ten cents per stamp, or a total of $1,352.80.

Suppose, on the other hand, this amount had been spent in "completing" a few countries worthy of the name (philatelically). I do not mean Poland, Ionian Islands, Formosa, or any of the little fellows, but countries of respectable philatelic grade, size, and price. The chances are if the collector had collected "good stamps," the result would have been different. As it is, the only distinction the collection under analysis achieves, is that of a danger sign to others who collect for numbers, regardless of grade, (except the lowest). For investment purposes, in the making up of a stamp collection, there is danger, not safety, in accumulating a large number of low grade stamps. Give the medium and high grade stamps a chance, and you will not be so disappointed in results when you offer these for sale a year or two hence.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—The Precancelled Stamp Club reports the 10c postage due stamp, precancelled Buffalo, Type II.

W. R. Green reports the current 10c, 50c and $1 stamps precancelled Philadelphia.

L. Harald Kjellstedt reports having seen the current 4c stamp precancelled "Scranton—Penna," in two lines, with double surcharge. This double strike makes the cancellation illegible. One sheet, thus cancelled, was used by the International Correspondence Schools, June 11.

Stanley D. Darling reports having found some minor varieties in the 5c Jamestown stamps. The first one is the right "5," the curl being broken away from the rest of the figure.

On another stamp, the right "5" is divided into two parts by a break at the point where the upright joins the curved part.

The third variety shows a fine line of color running across the flag of the figure, near the right hand end.

CANADA.—Erwin G. Ward reports having seen the following precancellations in the regular form, with two rules between the two words.

"Montreal—Quebec," 50c Queen.
"Montreal—Quebec," 50c double strike.
"Montreal—Quebec," 20c King's Head, inverted.

HONDURAS.—Hermann Focke has shown us the new 5c stamp, 1907 edition.

JAMAICA.—By a slip the 5d Arms stamp was chronicled in No. 858 as being a new issue, when in reality it should have been chronicled as being now issued on multiple watermarked paper.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—The Metropolitan Philatelist reports that a new stamp may be expected shortly for this colony. The design consists of a superb portrait of King Edward in ermine robe, decorations, etc., with "Newfoundland" above, value below, and "N. F." in upper corners.

Adhesive.

1c green.

NICARAGUA.—Hermann Focke has shown us the 10c envelope, type of 1902, with "1907" overprinted in large figures with a hand stamp, "1907." The cover also has the 1c and 4c stamps, American print, and two 10c stamps, Waterlow print.

ROUMANIA.—According to L'Echo de la Timbrologie, all the commemorative, jubilee and charity stamps were to have been withdrawn from circulation May 23.

SALVADOR.—Hermann Focke has shown us an interesting cover mailed at Santa Ana, consisting of the new 1c envelope, with stamp like the current adhesive, but having in addition, the 1c, 2c and 3c current stamps, and also four of the 13c current official stamps, the words "Franqueo Oficial" having been obliterated with a pencil, and thus made available for ordinary postage. Mr. Focke reports having seen other values of envelopes in the current set.

Envelopes.

1c green and black.
2c carmine and black.
3c yellow and black.
5c ultramarine and black.

URUGUAY.—L'Echo de la Timbrologie chronicles the current 1c stamp in a change of color.

Adhesive.

1c blue.

WEST AUSTRALIA.—Ewen's Weekly reports the 3d brown as issued on Crown A paper.

—The Victor Stamp Co. reports Maurice Worrell of Clayton, Ind., as a fraud. This party received an approval selection and pays no attention to requests for its return.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

T. R. B.:—It cannot be known beforehand, as a rule, which new issues are destined to a short existence. Many considerations enter into a discussion of a question such as you ask, and in the absence of definite data on the subject we cannot make the predictions that you desire.

D. P.:—Our correspondent writes: "I have in my collection, two large stamps that are catalogued in the Scott catalogue but not mentioned by Gibbons, and should like to know what they really are: whether postage stamps, locals, or what? I refer to the Formosa, China, stamps, 20 cash red and 20 cash green. I obtained my two copies a few years ago whilst in Japan." Gibbons catalogues the Formosan stamps under locals, and in the last catalogue of locals issued by the firm, the stamps are illustrated and priced.

Beginner:—The specimen submitted is not an adhesive but a stamped envelope impression of Switzerland, issue of 1867; it has little value.

The following interesting letter has been received: "I enclose a Baltimore folded large '5' letter of 1847 for your inspection. You will note that the postmark and '5' are all underneath the address. Is it reasonable to suppose that this letter was taken to the postoffice postmarked and the address written afterwards? Is it not more likely that the paper was sold already postmarked and if so, what would you call it? I have an envelope of Norristown, Pa., with large 5 and part of the address written over postmark. Also. I have a complete file of correspondence from Philadelphia during the years, 1845, 46 and 47, several letters for nearly each and every month; a large number of them have the '5' and 'Philadelphia' under the address. These letters, folded, were written by a large firm, and I am unable to classify them." It is something of a puzzle to account for the presence of the paid impression and the postmark underneath the name and address in ink. It is often a matter of speculation however, whether a postmark for instance, is stamped over or under inked lines. The question of whether a suspected surcharge is over the cancellation on a used stamp has been known to cause a divided opinion. Granting that the Baltimore postmark and "5" impression are under the ink of the inscription, it is not easily explained how the sheets could be sold to the public bearing a dated postmark as well as the "5" impression. To establish a provisional possibility, it is necessary to prove that the stamped sheet or envelope was sold over the counter of the postoffice for cash; and that the letter when presented for mailing received the postmark. The letter sheet shown by our correspondent presents a confusing phase but it is doubtful whether it may be advanced favorably as possessing provisional significance.

T. R. C.:—As Aitutaki, Niue, etc., are under the control of New Zealand, it would be logical for the collector of stamps of Australia and New Zealand to include in his album the issues of the islands in question.

E. B. B.:—Your translation of the inscription on the one-penny 1895 special one-penny red, Transvaal is substantially correct. By referring to a stamp paper of 1895, we find the following official notice: "Notice is hereby given that the Government has resolved to issue a special one-penny postage stamp to celebrate the reduction of the inland postal tariff. Apology.

Owing to necessity of taking a holiday on account of my health, my wholesale list advertised for May last is postponed until July.

I thank the many readers of MEKEEL'S for their enquiries concerning the list, and a copy will be posted to every address received, as soon as it is ready.

stamps shall only be sold during the time from 6th September to 30th September, 1895. Before and after that time, the official sale of these stamps is prohibited. During this time, the ordinary one-penny stamp may not be sold to the public and the postmasters have therefore to obtain a sufficient supply of jubilee stamps for their offices. The jubilee stamps in their offices on the 1st of October must be forwarded by first post to the Assistant Postmaster-General who shall exchange them for the ordinary issue. Although no jubilee stamps may be sold after the 30th September, 1895, the public are allowed to use these stamps for postal purposes after this date." (2) Type A16, Transvaal, in the catalogue is a fiscal stamp that when surcharged became available for postal service.

E. G.:—The surcharge O. H. H. S., on the Egypt, 1888, signifies On His Highness' Service, we have read; these official stamps have been recently chronicled. (2) The New South Wales stamps perforated with the letters O. S. are official stamps; the collectibility of these and similarly perforated officials of other of the Australian states has been the subject of some controversy.

Miss Cressy, Saline, Michigan, writes: "I have seen references to several small varieties in the Jamestown stamps, and as I have a specimen before me, bearing a peculiar mark, I should like to report it. It is on the two-cent; above the left numeral in the oval is an uneven mark or line about one-sixteenth of an inch in length, close to the numeral but not touching it."

S. A. K.:—This reader says: "Enclosed find a clipping from to-day's Chicago Examiner. Is the editor's answer correct? I should be pleased to know through the columns of your paper." The question and the answer, which are headed: Invention of Postage Stamps, are as follows: "Kindly give me this bit of information: When and by whom was the postage stamp invented? In 1834, by Mr. James Chalmers of Dundee, Scotland." While there has been some controversy, as to whether James Chalmers or Sir Rowland Hill should be credited with the creation of the postage stamp, the preponderance of opinion favors Sir Rowland Hill. In the "History of the World," compiled by Nugent Robinson, we find on page 817: "On the morning of the 10th of January, 1840, the people of the United Kingdom were in the possession of a new power, the power of sending by the post, a letter not weighing more than half an ounce upon the prepayment of one penny, and this without any regard to the distance which the letter had to travel. The government adopted Rowland Hill's views reluctantly, strengthened in their hesitation by such a clear minded supporter of the government as Sydney Smith. Temperate opposers of the government, such as the Duke of Wellington and Sir Robert Peel, saw great danger and little good in the project. Mr. Rowland Hill, in 1837, published his plan of a cheap and uniform postage. A committee of the House of Commons was appointed in 1837, which continued its inquiries throughout the session of 1838, and arrived at the conviction that 'the mode recommended of charging and collecting postage, in a pamphlet published by Mr. Rowland Hill' was feasible and deserving of a trial under legislative sanction." Twenty years ago, there was a great division of opinion on the subject and many of the leaders of American philately in that day were partizans either of Rowland Hill or James Chalmers. Patrick Chalmers, the son of James, was indefatigable, up to the time of his death some years ago, in advancing the claims of his father for the honor; by pamphlet, circular and written words, he labored faithfully to achieve his object, the recognition of his father as the postal benefactor. The stanch loyalty of Patrick was almost a passion and it may have had something to do with crystalizing a kindly sentiment towards the father. At the convention of the American Philatelic Association held in 1887, the claim of Patrick Chalmers in behalf of his father James Chalmers was endorsed. Three years later at the St. Louis convention, it was resolved "that a committee of five, consisting of two of Mr. Chalmers' and two of Mr. Hill's adherents, there four to select a fifth member, be appointed to investigate the Chalmers-Hill controversy and report at the next annual convention." President Tiffany appointed the committee, but it never reported for publication, as specified under the text of the resolution.

O.:—The only reference that we can find to the use of Hong Kong stamps in China, is in the Philatelic Journal of India, of some time ago, wherein Mr. C. Stewart Wilson gave figures showing the sales of Hong Kong stamps at the following cities of China, during the year, 1905; Shanghai, Amoy, Canton, Chefoo, Foochow, Hankow, Hoihow, Liu Kung Tan, Ningpo and Swatow. We should be pleased to know the result of your investigations with which you speak of proceeding.

T. E. S.:—The following explanation from the advertisement of an Australian dealer may account for the "high premium" asked for the New Zealand exhibition stamps: "Owing to the unprecedented demand from New Zealand for these stamps, in consequence of the government limiting the issue, and the fact that we had to pay a premium in order to acquire a fresh stock, we are compelled to again increase our prices for these stamps, unused, and we are obliged to cancel all prices for used copies." (2) The prices on the Maldives are based on the limited number of the stamps that was issued. (3) The following varieties of the Waterlow print of the current design Nicaragua have been chronicled: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 15, 20 and 50 centavos.

W. W. N.:—Sterling's catalogue of the United States revenue stamps, published in 1888, which has been frequently referred to in this column, is out of print and is no longer obtainable from the publisher. The Boston Society's work on revenues is very complete and easily is worth the price asked for it.

D. L.:—The unsold portion of the printing of the Dutch stamps issued in the name of charity for the Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, has been canceled and placed into the hands of M. Z. Booleman, Amsterdam, as sole agent for their sale. (2) While the De Ruyter commemorative stamps of Holland may be called speculative, yet the face value of the three stamps, makes so small a total that it is hardly fair to say that they were issued with the idea of government profit.

M. B.:—The Great Britain "jubilee" envelope was issued during the year 1890, one penny blue on white. Only a limited number of these envelopes were printed and they were sold at the rate of one shilling each, the excess amount was applied to the "Sir Rowland Hill Benevolent Fund." A card with portrait of Sir Rowland Hill, and appropriate inscription was contained in each envelope.

reprinted with additional suggestions on the covers of the books. There is no separate Booklet of rules published that many members ask for and seem to think the Superintendent can furnish.

It is reported that a claim was made that books have been in the Department three years and the owner could not hear from them. This is a ridiculous statement as the present incumbent has only had charge of the Department twenty-one months and more than two-thirds of the first thousand books and all of those turned over by the previous Superintendent have been retired.

Also all important correspondence has received prompt and careful attention at all times.

Retirement of books is being made in regular order, and results from good books, priced right, has been very satisfactory indeed.

The average sales would show over 50% were it not for the many poor quality books sent in as well as many books that are priced entirely too high.

BRANCH NO. 18.

PHILA., PA., June 5, 1907.

The regular June meeting was held at Penn. School of Industrial Art, Pres. Haseltine in the chair. The attendance was the largest in the history of the Society and the best of feeling and good fellowship was apparent. H. E. Deats of Flemington, N. J., was present as visitor. Wm. S. F. Pierce was elected to membership and Edgar L. Green proposed. The Treasurer reported cash balance on hand, $70.10.

Mr. Steinmetz reviewed the mistakes that had occurred in regard to the endorsement of the candidates for the A. P. A. offices, causing much misunderstanding and disagreement among the members. He pointed out the folly of such a course, and pleaded that no further endorsement of candidates be made. At the close of his remarks he was greeted with a round of applause. Mr. Henkels, in response, stated that the opposing faction would gladly hold out the hand of good fellowship and accede to the proposition of Mr. Steinmetz which was unanimously carried.

Mr. Deats was called upon and gave a long and interesting talk about U. S. Telegraph Stamps, Confederate Locals and U. S. Die Proofs. He answered innumerable questions about the printing of stamps and kindred subjects. Mr. Deats was tendered a vote of thanks, and was elected to honorary membership.

SCRANTON PHILATELIC SOCIETY, BRANCH NO. 19, A. P. A.

On Tuesday evening, May 28th, the fourth regular meeting of the Scranton Philatelic Society was held in the Y. M. C. A. Parlors, all members but three being present. Among the old members present were Geo. Kinback, a new recruit, and Chas. Gorham, a visitor.

The records of the third regular meeting were read and approved.

Letters acknowledging the Society's gift of a year's subscription to MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS were read from the Librarian of the Scranton Public Library and Secretary Mahy of the Y M.C.A.

It was moved and carried that Mr. Ernst, one of the Society's members, be thanked for his fine donation to the Society's Library.

The Committee appointed to secure if possible information about a file of the Electric Philatelist of Scranton, Pa., published between 1892-96, reported but asked for an extention of time.

After some miscellaneous business was transacted the Society adjourned to enjoy a talk on color charts, by Mr. Kjellstedt. He illustrated his talk by a number of color charts of different kinds, including rare out of print charts, suggestions and substitutes for charts, and modern attempts to give collectors a color chart.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

BOGERT & DURBIN CO.,
732 Chestnut St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.
Established 1869.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY

"SEEING BERMUDA."

Personally Conducted by LOUIS G. BARRETT.

In glancing over a page of the early issues of Bermuda the most casual observer can hardly fail to notice the fact that certain of the stamps appear to stand out from the others in a manner which can scarcely be due to the difference in color or the slight variations in the design of the frame work surrounding the bust of the queen. A second and closer inspection will reveal that this distinction is due to changes made in the engraving of the die itself,—indeed there are three different dies to be noted.

If for example, the one penny stamp (either in dull-rose or carmine, but the carmine will show up to better advantage) is compared with the later half-penny stamp (either in brown or green) the difference will be apparent at once. Looking at the forehead and point of bust it will be seen that on the 1 penny stamp there is no shading at either place, while on the half-penny both forehead and point of bust are shaded in the same manner as the other parts of the face. At first one would be inclined to say, "Oh! only another case of worn plates!" and turn away as though that settled it once and for all.

But let us tarry a bit and look a little deeper. Naturally a good philatelist will turn at once to his favorite catalogue or hand-book to see wherein it may be of assistance in shedding some light on the subject; for everyone should realize nowadays how invaluable the descriptive catalogue has become. Immediately, however, he is confronted with the fact that there is no mention made whatever of any difference in the dies, but does grasp the rather disquieting fact that the one penny stamp with the unshaded parts was issued some fifteen years before the half-penny value with its shaded forehead and neck, so that the "worn die" theory is shattered at one blow.

Now the question arises: How many and what values are found in the two types noted? A short survey of the varieties will suffice to separate them into the two groups, and it will be found that the one penny in all shades, (Nos. 1, 17 and 20 in Scott's); the two pence, both in blue (Nos. 2 and 18) and in claret-brown (No. 21); the six pence in lilac, violet, etc., (Nos. 3, 3a and 29); the one shilling green (No. 4) and bistre (No. 24), and the one farthing gray (No. 25) are all found in the unshaded type or Type I.; while the shaded Type II. gathers to itself the half-penny brown (No. 15) and green (No. 19); the two pence half-penny blue (No. 22); the three pence buff (Nos. 5 and 6) and gray (No. 23) and the four pence orange (No. 16).

Of the four different values found in Type I. (for we will not consider the farthing as a separate one, as its monetary value is expressed by a surcharge over a shilling die) three of them, namely the 1d, 6d, and 1s, were issued on Sept. 13, 1865, and the 2d followed soon after on Mar. 14, 1866. Later on, from 1884 to 1903 all four of these values were printed in changed colors, but the dies were the same as used for the first printings, so that a beginner may be able to see the differences noted here, even if he has not the earlier and more expensive varieties in his collection.

It was not until March 10, 1873, that the first one, the 3d buff appeared, showing the shaded forehead, and at intervals thereafter as new values were required and added to the series they were all of this second type. Following the 3d came the half-penny brown and the 4d orange, issued together on Mar. 25, 1880, and on Nov. 10, 1884, the 2½d blue appeared, thus completing the number of different values of the head design. It may be of interest to note as well that the 4d and the 2½d were the only values of either type to appear upon but one variety of paper,—the former being found only on Crown CC paper and the latter only on Crown CA paper. Besides the shading already referred to as distinguishing Type II. from Type I., it should be further noted that in Type II. there is a line of color at the front of the neck connecting the ends of the first six shade-lines below the chin, similar in all respects to the line found on Die A of the Cyprus and other colonial types.

In the opening paragraph I spoke of three different dies, and thus far only

PHILIPPINE ERRORS.

On the 2c of 1903, catalogue No. 240, the "H" of the surcharge is so broken as to make the letter an almost perfect "E"; another is an equally perfect "L". These varieties were found only on the last lot of stamps sent to the Islands and it is reported that but from 250 to 300 escaped destruction.

I have a few of each; they are unused o. g. but are not well-centered.

Marks Stamp Co., Toronto, Canada. Remit in Stamps or Bills.

two have been considered. The third, which more properly perhaps should be called a sub-variety of Type II. is found in the 2½d blue. While conforming to the general details of the type, here there is a marked difference in the engraving of the crown; the escolloped edge bearing the little balls at its points is double-lined where in all the other values it is single lined.

The discovery of these differences in such a well known and popular series has at once opened up the most interesting question as to whether any of the values are to be found in more than one type. Personally I never have had enough specimens at my command to find out whether this was so or not, but surely some of the collectors who specialize in this colony, ought to be able to decide it, and with the hope of finding a great rarity it ought to be some incentive to the necessary research.

While gathering the information in regard to the dates of issue of the various values, so as to disprove if possible the worn-plate theory, it occurred to look into the matter with reference to some of the other British Colonials having a similar design. I found there were at least seventeen different colonies (not including Hong Kong, which I investigated along similar lines some time ago) which used this same profile bust engraved by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., at some time on their stamps. The stamps of British Columbia (A1 and A2) are of Type I.; those of British Honduras (A1); Ceylon, Dominica (A1); Gold Coast; Grenada; Lagos; Natal; St. Christopher; and Straits Settlements are all of Type II.; and Barbados (A6) and Trinidad (A7) fall in Type III. (like 2½d Bermuda).

Some colonies, however, show more than one type in their issues as did Bermuda, and in this class are Jamaica, which shows Nos. 13, 14 and 15 (A7) of Type II., while the other values are of Type I.; Sierra Leone, which has the 6d, No. 1 in Type I. and all other values in Type II.; Malta, showing the halfpenny (A1) in Type I. and the later values coming in Type III.; Bahamas, with the 1s (A3) in Type II. and the other values in Type III.; and Mauritius like Bermuda showing all three types as follows: (A9) are of Type I.; (A10) and the 1879-80 issue are all Type II., while the 16c (A27) is Type III. Besides this, the 1c violet (No. 87) although of the same design as the 2c green (No. 72) is Type III., where the latter is only found as Type II.

Again, in the "Mother country" and India are differences to be seen, where in the early issues of these countries in the De La Rue design is found a variation of the types already noted, being a cross between Types I. and II., inasmuch as they show the unshaded forehead of Type I., but have the point of bust shaded as in Type II. After A35 of Great Britain, however, we find that the stamps appear clearly in Type II., with the exception, however, that in the earlier 5s it shows Type I. where the later No. 108 and the 10s, No. 109, are of Type II. In India, No. 28 is Type I., while the earlier issues are same as Great Britain noted above, and No. 36 and the 1881-82 issue are of Type II.

Having thus covered much more territory than was intended when we started in to "do" Bermuda it is now time we were taking our departure from that island for the journey home; but find that the return trip will be somewhat slower than our outward one, as much to our regret, our good ship seen on the stamps of the "Dry-dock" type was unable to enter the dock for a thorough overhauling and cleaning, as will be plainly evident to any one who examines the stamps in question. The ship in the offing is much too large to enter the dock seen in the foreground and it is necessary to return to the "States" to find docking facilities; but with our albums open studying the new types, that have come to our attention the trip will end all too quickly and we will all agree, I hope, that it was not taken in vain.

In closing I wish to acknowledge the courtesies extended me by the New England Stamp Co. in placing at my disposal their stock-books, etc., for examination to aid me in my researches.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

W. S. B. writes: "Permit me to thank you, and through you, your readers for the interesting and (to me) valuable information regarding the Glen Haven locals, published in your paper recently in response to my request."

E. W.:—Our authority for speaking of a "sulphuretted" stamp in explaining a change of color is general in its basis. However, we are enabled to present the following testimony from a stamp paper of the past that has a bearing on the subject: "Mr. Ransom has given the most sensible explanation that has yet appeared, of the oxidation of stamps, as commonly called; but which he rightly says is a misnomer, and is caused by the sulphuretted hydrogen in the atmosphere acting upon lead in the pigment and forming black sulphide of lead. An oxide of lead was, for some sime, used in the coloured pigment of our one-penny line-engraved stamps; but this was only for a time. The principal action has been on stamps which contained red lead and chrome. Akin to this, we may mention the second and third issues of Prussia as having been printed on a burele paper, the lines of which, in nine cases out of ten, we failed to discover even with a high magnifying power, until we submitted the stamps to the fumes of sulphuretted hydrogen, when the line became clearly visible. Madame Nicolas, the dealer in Paris, told us in 1868 that she found a brimstone match sufficed for the purpose. In fact, the burelage was not intended to be visible, but was introduced as a means by which the authorities could test the genuine nature of the stamp." The first stamp mentioned is the one-penny red of Great Britain.

T. L. H.:—The stamps described are local stamps of Morocco that are not given a clean bill of health and so, no longer appear in the catalogue. There has been no government issue for Morocco, and the country is not in the postal union. In an article in the last number of the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly, we read: "Morocco is a nation that has lately become a bone of contention among European powers. France aims at making another Algeria of Morocco, but so acute are the jealousies of the contending powers that the Sultan of Morocco will probably be able like he of the Sublime Porte, to preserve his sovereignty inviolate. It is surprising that no national issue of Moroccan postage stamps has yet been issued." The so-called local stamps were accepted for a time as really performing postal service on routes in the different districts, but later their hollow claims for philatelic recognition were shattered.

L.:—The number of Maldives surcharges prepared is said to have been: 2 cents, 2,400; 3 cents, 6,000; 4 cents, 1,200; 5 cents, 4,800; 15 cents, 1,100, and 25 cents, 1,200. (2) The reference to forged surcharges on these stamps was made on the authority of a responsible correspondent at Colombo, none having been seen by us.

P. E.:—If you are inclined to study the stamps of the Ionian Islands intently, you will find a valuable article on the subject in the London Philatelist for March, 1907, in which authoritative and official information is submitted. The stamps of the Ionian Islands have not been reprinted; the unused sets available were included in the surplus stock or remainders that were disposed of to a stamp dealer, when the islands were ceded to Greece by Great Britain in 1864. In explanation of the presence of the transposed watermarks on the one penny and the two pence, we quote from the article that we have just commended: "It is quite evident from Sir G. F. Bowen's letter of 28th June, 1858, and from the watermarked numerals on the stamps, that the red stamp was intended to be used as a one penny value and the blue stamp as two pence, no doubt to correspond with the colours of the Great Britain stamps then in use. From some advertence or other unknown reason, the values of the two stamps were reversed when they issued for postal use in the islands, and the red stamp did duty for two pence and the blue was sold for one penny."

D. FIELD,

Philatelic Expert, Dealer and Publisher,

4 and 5 The Royal Arcade, Old Bond Street, LONDON, W., ENGLAND.

U. S.:—Some years ago, a reprint of the 10c envelope stamp of 1857-60 upon white wove paper was recorded, and at the time, it was said: "Heretofore this has been known upon the regular paper with the laid lines running vertically instead of diagonally. In this instance, however, while the paper shows a portion of the regular Nesbitt watermark, there is absolutely no trace of a laid line." No doubt, you have noticed the catalogue reference to the reprints of this issue, as being on vertically laid paper, instead of diagonally laid. It is possible that your specimen is a counterfeit, as forgeries of this set of envelopes are met with occasionally; they are on a nondescript paper and the workmanship of the impression is crude, differing from that of the originals in many details. (2) The 5c Columbian envelope in slate brown has, long been regarded as a "genuine variety."

H. M. R.:—This correspondent says: "The Scott catalogue lists the 4c Danish West Indies, No. 19, diagonal half, used as 2c, but does not mention No. 7, as existing in this codition. I have a existing in this condition. I have a diagonal half of the 4c, used on original cover, but it is perforated 13½, brown and dull blue; consequently, it must be No. 7."

E. W. S.:—It is generally understood that the addition of the "thunderbolts" to the Russian stamps was to signalize "the union of the postal and telegraph administrations." (2) Unless your intention is to specialize in the stamps of Russia, it is optional whether you remove the stamps of the earlier issues of Russia from the covers; the general collector is likely to find it more satisfactory to retain the stamps only. Ordinarily, unless a stamp is a rarity or a variety worth much more used than unused, or, again, authenticated in some way by the envelope and its markings, it is not kept on the cover.

Dr. Randall, Graceville, Minnesota, writes: "I have been awaiting a decision in regard to the French stamp referred to by O. P. L., in the WEEKLY of May 4th, but have seen nothing but the opinion of Mr. Terry that it is probably a changeling. I have a specimen of this stamp in type II, and while it is impossible for one not an expert to say that it is not a changeling, the uniformity of color would lead me to think otherwise." The stamp in question is the ten centimes, Peace and Commerce type of France, black on greenish paper and type I. We suggested at the time that our reader send his stamp to some authority for expert examination.

G. F. F.:—"In an article I noticed a remark about 'spectrum colors' that I do not understand. Can you give me any information?" The Standard Dictionary, under "spectrum," says: "The most common form of spectrum is that produced by the light of the sun passing through a triangular glass prism and falling on a screen. The component colors, being unevenly refracted, are spread out into a band displaying the seven rainbow colors, having the red at one end (that of least deviation) and the violet at the other." We refer stamp student who seeks the fullest information on the color question to the masterly treatment of the subject, with tables and color chart, in the work that has been named.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—We have been favored with a communication from W. H. Faber of Charleston, S. C., lamenting the difficulty attendant upon securing nice copies of old issues. He says, "it is getting harder and harder every day to fill one's album with choice old issues, many of these having been and being even now absorbed by the increasing number of private and government collections. Today fine condition is more and more being called for and a collection of old issues, even though numbering but few stars of the first magnitude, particularly when neatly mounted, is indeed a pleasure and perennial joy to contemplate." Mr. Faber closes with a fervent hope that the commercial side of stamp collecting may not be brought to the front, but that stamps for love of the stamps themselves should be the true philatelist's seeking.

—The Georgia Stamp Club has been organized at Fitzgerald, Ga. L. L. Dickerson, the Sec.-Treas., who acquaints us with this fact, tells us that the organization will prove a very lively one.

—Rev. G. W. Welsh informs us that out of curiosity he counted the new issues credited in the Standard Catalog to the years 1905-6. They number 1352 as near as could be figured so that when adding to his collection a thousand new varieties each year the collector is gaining considerably on the world's output.

—W. C. Burtis informs us that on December 19, 1906, he sent an approval selection to M. M. Campbell, Washington, D. C., and although Campbell has been written several times no returns upon the selection have been made. Interested parties having claims will kindly file the same with F. D. Goodhue, 514 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

—The Chicago News contained a copyrighted stamp story by W. Werner, entitled "My New Brunswick Shilling," in the issue of June 20th. A collector hearing of an "old New Brunswick shilling stamp" in the possession of a poor country family, sought their home. When the visitor offered twenty dollars for the stamp, the members of the family exchanged suspicious glances. The evening was rainy and the visitor remained over night; he was bound and gagged in the room he occupied and next morning was carted away to an insane asylum. Explanations ensued and the simple family thought that anyone who offered twenty dollars for an old postage stamp, perforce was crazy!

EDITORIAL.

The Summer Season—This is the time of year when the optimistic philatelic writer is prone to descant with glowing satisfaction upon the "equalization of the philatelic seasons." By this sounding phrase, he wishes to convey the impression that each summer season, the diminution of philatelic interest during the hot months becomes less marked; and usually, he ends his observations by expressing the creditable conviction that in a short space of years the philatelic temperature will be equable almost the twelve-month around, be the weather cold or hot. Discounting a natural enthusiasm a bit, the writer has tenable grounds latterly for his hopeful remarks, and this year, he is securer than ever before in his stand. Various indications afford a basis for this statement; and allowance is made for the delayed advent of warm weather. The columns of the stamp papers do not show the customary curtailing of advertising and this argues that buyers are still true to their stamps. Several letters have been seen in which the writers instructed dealers to send them occasional lots of stamps for inspection at their summer homes or resorts; and the WEEKLY has received thus far, an unusually large number of orders to send the paper to recreation spots where the busy man is wont to spend some weeks each summer, so that the vacation may have a philatelic tinge and that they may "keep in touch with stamps while away from home." It is pleasing to notice that philately is entering more and more firmly into the life of the stamp followers, in season and out of it.

Good Time for Buying—Every encouragement should be offered to collectors to sustain their interest in stamps during the hot months and one is in the advantages that follow stamp buying during the summer months, when dealers try to attract trade by reducing prices. This consideration is a material one; it pays the collector to buy when all others do not. It is true, however, that there is a physical objection more or less mild to handling stamps in the hottest weather, which while minimized by care may not be wholly overcome. So, it is not likely that the summer will soon compare with winter, in stamp activity, but much may be done to counteract the somewhat enervating influence of summer on stamps themselves by cultivating the asides or accompaniments of philately and rendering them so attractive that they will not be dislodged from the mind. In this manner the philatelic theme will be prominent the year around, and there will be no time when there is an absolute cessation of philatelic thought on the part of the collector.

Color Problem—The Chicago Tribune recently contained an account of the discovery by an artist of its city whereby "harmony of color, heretofore depending solely upon the training and taste of the individual handling the pigments, has been reduced to as exact a science as harmony in music." Now if some plan could be evolved so that ink mixers who prepare the colors for stamp production could always attain a standard, the shade problem in philately would be simplified; and then every variation from the prime or normal color could be regarded as a sort of error. Whether or not to collect shades is a question that confronts some collectors, making them uncertain as to what course to pursue; they would be disposed to favor them if they felt convinced that they could place with precision the variants of color. The color question is one that is not without its difficulties, which, however, do not submerge its fascinations in the estimation of many collectors. The one way by which shades could become generally popular would be by charting them all, so that the collector would have a basis for comparison; but the production of such a guide is almost among the impossibilities.

It Deserves Success—In the earlier days of stamp collecting, proofs and essays were more commonly referred to in philatelic parlance than now. When the range of specimens available for collecting was not a wide one, in the number of postal emissions, anything that suggested a stamp was eagerly welcomed, and these classes of preparatory stamps held fairly well established positions. Latterly, proofs and essays are given honorable place in specialized collections, where their historical phases make them figures of interest and importance, in the albums of thorough collectors. The proofs and essays of the United States are manifold. A few collectors have long been engrossed in gathering these auxiliaries of postal specimens and they have been content to pursue their way without attempting to exploit the neglected field. Thus, several strong collections of these items have been formed; and some time ago, one of them was used as the foundation for the "tentative" check-list of the proofs of the adhesive postal and revenue issues of the United States. There has been some demand for this compilation, and both proofs and essays are now the subject of some inquiry by a fair number of collectors who have preferential regard for the issues of their own country. The manifestation of this desire has lead several thoughtful collectors to propose a "call" to collectors of United States proofs and essays to organize a "U. S. Proof Society" for mutual assistance in the study, classification and valuation of United States proofs and essays. The object of this prospective society is a worthy one and it should be encouraged by all who have the slightest predilection for these specimens; the possibilities that such a society will carry for adding to the instructive information about the stamps of the United States will make it a deserving addition to the roster of stamp organizations in this country.

An Error's History—A dealer's price-list is sometimes a most readable sheet to the collector, affording data that is appreciated aside from any commercial significance that it may possess. For instance, in a list recently received from abroad, we find the following reference to a rarity that has caught the eye (in the catalogue) of many a modest collector, the 32c rose, 1894, Straits Settlements, which is listed as a sub-variety at the commanding price of an even hundred dollars. One of these rarities was pictured with proper companions, in an illustrated page of rarities from American collections in the WEEKLY some years ago. In this connection the following statements of the dealer into whose hands the errors fell is worth attending to: "This is one of the rarest of stamps, only sixty having been issued in 1894. A special printing in carmine-rose was made from the plate of the 32c, for the purpose of being overprinted 'Three Cents,' this overprinting having been done in London by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. The surcharge was accidentally omitted from a pane of sixty on one sheet, the remainder of the sheet having been correctly overprinted; the error passed undetected, and the sheet was in due course sold at the Singapore post-office in the usual way. One of the stamps was used on a registered letter to England (there being no other stamp on the envelope), and subsequently sold for forty-five pounds; the remaining fifty-nine stamps were acquired by us in 1895, together with the adjoining pane of sixty stamps, unsevered. The unsurcharged errors are nearly all sold, and we now offer the remaining few at the low price of twenty pounds each. * * * There are probably in existence almost as many Post Office Mauritius as of these, whilst of the Moldavia, 81 paras, 1173, were issued, one of which recently sold at auction for two hundred and fifty pounds." While it may be questioned whether there are so many of the Mauritius in existence as inferred in the advertisement, it is clearly shown that the Straits Settlements error numerically speaking is a rarity of the highest order; and collectors will draw their own deductions as to the propriety of a price of one hundred dollars for a stamp of which sixty copies exist."

Expected—An effort is being made at a convention in Mexico City to form a federation of the Central American republics under one governing head. This scheme is not a new one, and it is not unlikely that in this instance, it will be carried out to a successful issue—of a special set of postage stamps.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70 00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [62

WHICH ISSUE IS IT?

By F. W. REID.

(A few notes on how to distinguish certain issues of Australasian stamps, the differences between which are not made plain for the beginner in the Standard Catalogue.)

Cook Islands.—1898 to 1900 issue are wmk. Star and N. Z. Perf. 11. The distance between the point of Star and bottom of N. Z. is a good ¼ inch (about 7mm.). 1902 issue, same wmk. and perf. but there is less than 2mm. between Star and N. Z. Also the paper of the later issue is much thinner. The changes in color of ½p, 1p and 2½p are, of course, sufficient to place these values.

Fiji Islands. — While the following differences are shown in the illustrations in catalogue, many collectors fail to see them, as I often have inquiries. 1871 issue has C. R. under Crown. 1872 74 issues are various surcharges over these. 1876-78 issues are surcharged with fancy V. R. in monogram over C. R. 1880-92 issues have V. R. engraved as part of design.

New South Wales—1851-53. The 2p blue (No. 11) has background of crossed wavy lines. No. 12, same issue, re-engraved, has background of straight vertical and horizontal crossed lines. The head looks more narrow, in fact has a "skinny" appearance. The wmk. stamp (No. 24) is from this plate also. No. 13, same issue, has stars in corners. 1871-78 issue, wmk. small Crown, and 1882-88, wmk. large Crown, can be distinguished with a little practice, provided any considerable portion of Crown shows on stamp. The illustrations Nos. 65 and 66 in back of catalogue (page 768 in 1907) give a good idea of the two shapes and relative sizes though both illustrations are of course about half size. I am often asked for No. 68 (9p, wmk. large Crown). It does not exist. The only 9p, wmk. large Crown, is No. 96 with surcharge 13½mm. The surcharge on No. 59 is very nearly 15mm. Nos. 70 and 71 and also Nos. 85 and 86 are wmk. N. S. W. only. The letters are much larger and there is seldom more than one or two letters showing on a stamp, often only part of a letter. Illustration No. 69 at back of cat. shows this wmk. reduced in size.

New Zealand. — The differences between Nos. 73 and 74, types A21 and A22, are: No. 73 has "Postage & Revenue" under New Zealand, "Mt. Earnslaw" at bottom and the name of the lake is spelled WAKITIPU. No. 74 has "Postage & Revenue" at bottom and the name of lake is spelled WAKATIPU. No. 86 and also No. 356 are re-issues of the old Queen's Head stamps on the paper wmk. double line Star and N. Z. This wmk. is seldom plain even in the benzine cup but the thick paper of these re-issues is an easy test.

Queensland.—The large Star wmk. on 1860 issue is like illustration No. 10 (at back of cat.) but about 16mm. from point to point. The small Star, 1860-61, is similar in shape but 13mm. across. The truncated Star, 1868-75, has broad short points as in illustration No. 12 and is 11mm. across from point to point. 1882, No. 66, has period after Penny. 1887-95, Nos. 84, 87, 90, 98, 102, have no period. 1882, No. 67, throat and neck are completely and evenly shaded all over. 1887-95, Nos. 85, 88, 91, 99, have white space down front of throat, i. e., only the first three lines of shading below chin reach to front outline of throat. 1882, Nos. 68 and 69, are perf. 12. 1891-94, Nos. 94 and 95, are perf. 12½ to 13. 1882-85, Nos. 74 to 78, are on thin paper, the wmk. being sideways usually shows in two places on one stamp. 1886, Nos. 79 to 83, are on very thick paper, wmk. larger Q and Crown, upright and joined together. This wmk. however is seldom plainly visible even in benzine, the thick paper being the easiest test. 1887-89, Nos. 84 to 86, are perf 12. 1891-94, Nos. 90, 91 and 97, are perf. 12½ to 13, also differ in shade. 1895, Nos. 98 to 100, and also No. 107 are on the thick paper described for 1886 high values, wmk. large Q. and Crown joined together. Nos. 101 and 102, the "moiree on back" is a band of wavy, greenish blue lines 6mm. wide on back, right across stamp; a similar band is also found on Nos. 62, 63, 64. The color used was not "fast" in the early issue, however, and the 1sh, No. 64, is often seen with the band almost entirely washed off if gum is lacking. The lack of wmk., however, identifies the stamps. Nos. 108 to 109a are the subjects of more inquiries and misunderstandings than any stamps I know of. The use of the term "embossed" for the U. S. stamps of 1867 with "grille" leads many collectors to look for something similar on the Queensland stamp. Gibbons' description, "thin paper with Crown and Q faintly impressed," is better. The best description I can give is thin, "shiny" paper, no wmk. The impressed Q and Crown was no doubt impressed alright, but don't look for it if you value your sight.

Similar notes on other Australasian issues will appear later if the foregoing prove of general interest.

A STAMP THEFT.

Charles A. Taussig, 202 Broadway, N. Y. City, informs the WEEKLY that some time between the 9th and 13th of June his general collection of about seven thousand varieties was stolen from his room at the hotel in N. Y. City, where he has been residing. This collection had been gathered during the past fifteen years and was prized very highly by Mr. Taussig.

A few countries like the Netherlands, Funchal and Guatemala were practically complete. South American countries were pretty well represented while there were not a few stamps that stood out prominently because of their value. The collection as a whole was of a very good quality in an International Stamp Album, 1901 edition, brown cloth cover.

We hope that the thief may be apprehended and dealers are invited to communicate with Mr. Taussig should any trace be found.

CHANGES OF ADDRESS.

Subscribers will greatly oblige us if they will favor this office with but one change of address at a time. It will only take a postal card to notify us of the second change and will relieve us of considerable office detail. It seems a small thing in the case of one subscriber, but where we have six thousand to care for, it becomes quite a labor. We are always pleased to have the WEEKLY follow our subscribers to vacation addresses and consider it quite a compliment that even upon a summer vacation the reading of our paper cannot be dispensed with. We shall, however, be obliged if the second notice of change reaches us upon the return home of the subscriber.

—We have received from Rochester, N. Y., a paper entitled The Collectors Magazine. It is edited by Wm. B. Leonard who gives his age as 14 years. The paper is typewritten but we are unable to quote subscription price, a careful search failing to reveal the same.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed.

AUSTRIA.—A new value has been added to the current set, and has been shown us by Stanley Gibbons, Inc. This value has not been previously printed in the heller set, though there was a 12k value in the 1890 set. The new stamp has the figures of value in the corners in the same color as the rest of the stamp, and is without the shiny bars.

Adhesive.

12h violet.

BAHAMAS.—We have been shown the new 2½d stamp, all blue on ordinary multiple white paper, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

Adhesive.

2½d blue.

BRITISH CENTRAL AFRICA.—Ewen's reports that the 1d and 6d stamps of this Protectorate have appeared on chalky multiple paper.

CANAL ZONE.—Gerald D. Bliss has shown us specimens of the current 2c Zone stamps, with variations in the placing of the head of the portrait, showing quite a marked contrast when compared with the normal printing. These varieties are not common.

CAYMAN ISLANDS.—As noted in No. 855, various values of the current King's Head stamps are coming in new colors. Robert S. Nelson has confirmed our note there printed, and has submitted for examination the 4d, 6d, 1sh and 5sh stamps. Of these the 6d and 1sh were chronicled in No. 855, though not seen. All are on ordinary multiple paper.

Adhesives.

4d brown and dark blue.
5sh orange and green.

FRANCE.—G. de Lachasse sends us information regarding the new 30c stamp chronicled in No. 859. Mr. Lachasse calls attention to the fact that the color of new stamp is exactly like the 40c of 1870, Paris issue. This suggests the probability of many shades in future printings.

We understand that the 20c value has been issued in the new design, but we have no information yet as to color, etc.

NICARAGUA.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., have shown us the 6c slate 1905 with vertical surcharge reading down "Vale 50c" in brown. The previous surcharge of this value on this stamp was in carmine.

PANAMA.—Gerald D. Bliss has sent us a specimen of the new Panama post card, with 1c stamp of the current two color design. This is also to be surcharged for use in the Canal Zone as soon as the present stock is exhausted. The inscriptions are in both French and Spanish, and all printed in dark green.

Post Card.

1c dark green and black on white.

ROUMANIA.—It appears that the commemorative stamps issued for the Bucharest Exposition, and chronicled in No. 834, received an official surcharge before they were made obsolete. We have been shown a complete set by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., the surcharge consisting of the letters "S" and "E" at the left and right respectively. These letters are very small and might be easily overlooked. This surcharge adds materially to the list of varieties credited to this country in the last year.

COLLECTORS OF U. S. PROOFS AND ESSAYS!

Why not organize a "U. S. Proof Society" for mutual assistance in the study, collection and valuation of U. S. Proofs and Essays? There is still so much unknown in connection with the beautiful material that forms the subject of our interesting branch of philately, that we would have a fertile field for our labors. If you are interested in this proposition, kindly communicate with SHADES.

BY L. G. DORPAT.

A difficulty that presents itself to the collector, who uses a printed album and at the same time pays attention to minor varieties mentioned in the catalogues, is this: How far should varieties in shade be considered in making a collection? or, How shall one decide which shades should find a place in a general collection? The specialist will work out his own plan. But for the general collector the following ideas may be of some service.

If the album provides a space for any shade, collect it if you can, and if there are any other decided shades for which room can be found in the album, put these in too. Beware of changelings, however, for these are nothing more than damaged stamps.

If the album does not provide spaces for shades and does not permit of making room for them, though they are found in some catalogue or recognized by the collector personally as of a decided difference, then there is hardly any other course open than to start a "side show" of shade varieties. I have started several such "side shows" of plate numbers, pairs, strips and blocks and similar things, and find them quite as entertaining as my principal collection.

Such a side show may be mounted on loose sheets kept in a suitable paper box, or they may be mounted in a blank album, stock-book or the like. Here there is plenty of room to show hospitality to mulattos, quadroons, octoroons or any other shades of color, and the collector may indulge in this particular pursuit to unlimited extent.

To make this sort of play a little more fascinating and to give it a scientific tinge it may be well to accompany the several shades with notes as to the time of their appearance, the cause of their creation, the number issued, or similar items of interest. If the collector be fortunate in getting some original and authentic information in regard to his shades, and if he provides for the preservation and classification of such information, he may after some time find that he has built well, perhaps better than he knew. He may have some item in his "side show" that many a specialist would be willing to pay for.

Shades will often mark different steps in the manufacture of stamps and will help to distinguish different printings, re-engravings or other developments in the process of their manufacture. They will co-incide with or overlap other minor varieties, and the more completely they are represented, the more light will they give, helping to establish a complete history of the stamps they deal with.

Had a collector started such a shade-collection of Greece in 1861 and carried it to date, it would now be an object of respectable value, because the stamps of that country have undergone many changes, making that country especially rich in minor varieties, in fact so rich that few collectors now dare to collect them.

Countries which experimented with the manufacture of stamps and which lacked the skilled workmen to turn out a uniform article, are usually the most prolific in turning out shades and the more one has of such stamps the more is he apt to have some good things among them.

In collecting shades it is desirable to get them unused, because used stamps are more likely to have changed from their original shades by some outward influences, and to get them in pairs or strips (if not whole sheets) with marginal imprints, because thus there will be additional opportunities for study besides those offered by the shades themselves.

Unless a collector has an especially good opportunity to get the stamps of any one country, he can hardly hope to carry out the idea set forth. But if he has influence—postal clerks, or friends of postal clerks, or persons living near the printery or distributing office,—then this idea may be of some value to him.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—The meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society held June 20th was devoted to the lantern slide lecture, the society's most important practical contribution to advance philately. On this occasion the lecture was given for the edification of the members of the Estimators' Club in particular and it was a gratification to find that the members of this non-philatelic club were present in good number; and they expressed themselves as having been delighted with the lecture and its illustrations. Mr. Rosenthal read the lecture in an effective way and there was no slip in the presentation of the eighty-four slides The lecture, delivered under the conditions that it was, does more to propagate philately in a human, taking way than the propounding of dozens of hign-plane theories for aiding philatelic progress.

—Fred J. Melville kindly favors us with a remembrance in the form of an autograph post card. By courtesy of Mr. Melville a party of Swedish philatelists assembled at his new home, 14 Sudbourne Road, Brixton, June 8 and the following were in attendance: Hilmer Djurling, Louis Zetterstein, Edwin P. Seebohm, F. E. Terry, H. Patricia Terry and Lisa Djurling. The card bears the signatures of all seven of the names mentioned above, and we are very grateful to Mr. Melville for the kindness which prompted the remembrance.

R. KRASSA,
71-73 Nassau Street, - New York, N. Y

—We have received from Lyman H. Low, the well known coin dealer, the catalog of his very important sale of Spanish coins and medals collected by the late Senor Don A. Gonzalez del Valle, a military officer of the Island of Cuba during the Spanish Regime until 1896. We can assure any of our readers interested in coins that this catalog will possess much of interest to them, a copy no doubt being obtainable for the asking. Mr. Low feels that this sale will be one of the most important ever held in the United States, part two being advertised for September when a fine lot of silver and gold coins and medals, ancient and modern, will be offered.

—F. R. Cornwall, St. Louis, was a recent visitor to Chicago; he had a part of his fine collection with him, the inspection of which highly pleased his friends.

—The catalog of the United Stamp Co. just at hand lists the stock of the former Hussman Co. in wholesale lots. This sale may well be called the "dealers' opportunity."

—The managing editor of the WEEKLY will leave Boston July 10 for a trip to the Pacific coast prior to his attendance upon the convention of the A. P. A. to be held in Denver. He will be in Chicago July 12, in Seattle July 16–22 and Los Angeles July 24–26. He will be pleased to meet any friends of the WEEKLY who may wish to make his acquaintance.

—The Victor Stamp Co. report that they have had unsatisfactory dealings with Michael Kolechman, Joseph M. Pastor and Harry Glickman, all of Woodbine, N. J.

BRITISH COLONIAL STATISTICS.

New South Wales. British Colony since 1788 originating as a penal settlement under Captain Arthur Philip, R. N. Area 310,367 square miles, being six times the size of England. Population (1906) 1,514,240. Port Jackson (Sydney) is the finest harbor in the world. Capital, Sydney. Population (1905) 529,600.

New Zealand. Discovered by Tasman in 1642. Captain Cook, of H. M. S. Endeavour, landed at Poverty Bay, Oct. 8, 1769, but the first settlement was not made until 1814. In 1841 it was made into a separate colony distinct from New South Wales. The colony consists of North, Middle (or South) and Stewart Islands together with several groups of smaller islands. The entire area is 104,751 square miles, including the Chatham, Cook and other Pacific islands now under the administration of New Zealand. Population (1906) 948,753. Capital, Wellington. Population (1906) 63,807.

North Borneo Discovered in 1521. Ceded to the British North Borneo Company in 1881; now a British Protectorate. Area 31,000 square miles. Population 175,000. Chief Town, Sandakan.

Northern Nigeria This Protectorate was established on Jan. 1, 1900, and includes the country formerly known as Niger Coast. Area 256,400 with a population estimated at 9,000,000. The seat of administration is Zungeru.

Orange River Colony. Independent state from 1854 to 1902 when it was made a British Colony. Area 50,392 square miles. Population (1904) 387,315. Capital, Bloemfontein. Population (1905) 33,632.

Queensland. Colony since 1859, originally part of New South Wales. Area 668,497 square miles. Population (1905) 528,048. Capital, Brisbame, with (1906) 129,736 inhabitants.

Rhodesia. This territory was first opened to British influence by Dr. Livingstone, and is divided into Northern and Southern Rhodesia, under the administration of the British South Africa Company, chartered in 1889. The Victoria Falls, in Rhodesia are the largest in the world. The colony is named after Cecil Rhodes. Capital, Salisbury.

St. Christopher, commonly called St. Kitts, has been a Crown Colony since 1625, and is the principal island of the Presidency known as St. Kitts-Nevis, since 1882. Nevis has been a Crown Colony since 1628. With the island of Anguilla the total area is 150 square miles, with a population (1901) of 46,446. Nevis is practically but a single mountain, 3200 feet high, having an area of 50 square miles. Capital, Basseterre in St. Christopher.

St. Helena. Probably the best known of all the solitary islands in the world. Discovered May 21, 1501 (St. Helena's Day) by the Portuguese. In 1673 it was taken by the East Indian Company and held by them until 1834, with the exception of the period from 1815 to 1821, during which the government held it as a residence for Napoleon Bonaparte, who died there May 5, 1821. The island was ceded by the Company to the Crown in 1834. Area 47 square miles. Population (1905) 3,512. Capital, Jamestown. Population 1,439.

St Lucia. British Colony since 1803. Area 233 square miles. Population (1905) 53,389. Capital, Port Castries, with (1901) 8,000 inhabitants.

St. Vincent. British Colony since 1783. Area 140 square miles. The island was the scene of a tremendous eruption in 1812 and 1902. Population (1906) 50,170. Capital, Kingstown. Population (1891) 4,547.

Sarawak The government of this district was obtained in 1842 from the Sultan of Borneo by the late Sir James Brooke, who became known as Raja Brooke of Sarawak, and was uncle of the present Raja. Area 50,000 square miles. Population 600,000. Capital, Kuching.

Seychelles number altogether 89 islands and have been British possessions since 1814, although captured by a British ship in 1794, from the French. Area 148½ square miles. Population (1905) 20,767. Capital, Victoria on Mahé.

Sierra Leone. The peninsula of Sierra Leone (Lion Mountain) was ceded to Great Britain in 1787 by the native chiefs to be used as an asylum for the many destitute negroes then in England. Great numbers of liberated Africans from America and the West Indies, besides those taken in slavers on the coast, have from time to time been settled there. Area 4000 square miles. Population (1901) 76,655, of whom 493 were resident Europeans. No less than 60 different languages are said to be spoken in Freetown, where almost every Christian denomination is represented, besides Pagans and Mohammedans. The protected area comprises about 30,000 square miles, with a population of 500,000. Capital, Freetown.

Somaliland Protectorate was declared in 1884 over part of Somaliland, a country now subject (except where reserved by Great Britain and Italy) to Abyssinia. Area 68,000 square miles with an estimated population of 300,000.

South Australia. Established as a British Province Dec. 28, 1836. Area 903,690 square miles. Population (Jan. 1, 1906) 374,398. Capital. Adelaide. Population (1905) 173,235.

Southern Nigeria. The Colony and Protectorates of Southern Nigeria includes the territories situated on the Bight of Benin, between Dahomey on the west to the Cameroons on the east, and the administration of Lagos and the Protectorates previously styled "Southern Nigeria," having been carried out May 1, 1906. Area 77,260 square miles. Capital, Lagos.

Straits Settlements. The settlements forming what is known as the Colony of the Straits Settlements are Singapore, Penang (with Province Wellesley and the Dindingo), and Malacca. The island of Singapore was first occupied in 1819, and formally ceded to Great Britain in 1824 by the Sultan of Johore. The Cocos or Keeling Islands and Christmas Island are dependencies. Area 1,500 square miles. Population (1901) 572,249. Capital, Singapore, with (1901) 228,500 inhabitants.

Federated Malay States. These States on the Malay Peninsula consist of Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan, Pahang and Sungei Ujong. They are under the jurisdiction of the Governor of Straits Settlements. Johore is an independent state.

Tasmania. Discovered by Tasman in 1642 and named "Van Diemen's Land." The first settlement was formed in 1803 but in 1825 it was severed from New South Wales and formed into a distinct colony. Area 26,215 square miles. Population (1904) 180,200. Capital, Hobart. Population 34,949.

Tobago. Annexed in 1889 to Trinidad and on Jan. 1, 1899, it was constituted a ward of that island. Area 114 square miles. Population (1904) 19,000. Chief town, Scarborough.

Tonga. A protectorate over the Tonga Islands was proclaimed May 19, 1900. The islands consist of three divisions, Tongatabu, Haapai and Vaavan. At the former is the seat of government, the king being Jioaji (George) Tubon II. Area 385 square miles. Population (1905) 21,600.

Transvaal. Established by the Boers in 1848, annexed in 1877 by the Cape Colony but later restored.

Trinidad. Discovered by Columbus in 1498; captured by the British in 1797. The island contains a remarkable phenomenon in the shape of a pitch (asphalt) lake 110 acres in extent. Area 1,750 square miles. Population (1906) 315,000. Capital, Port of Spain. Population 56,100.

Turks and Caicos Islands. Crown Colony since 1783. In 1873 they were made a dependency of Jamaica. Area 170 square miles. Population (1901) 5,287. Capital, Grand Turk, with 1,751 inhabitants.

DENVER, COLO., June 5, 1907.

The 19th regular meeting was called to order at 8.30 by President Nast. Minutes of the previous regular meeting were approved as read. The secretary made a report of what had been accomplished by the Arrangement committee of 22d annual convention A. P. A. Communications were read from R. E. Gerspacker and M. Ockenfels. By a vote of the Club it was decided to take no further action on membership of M. Ockenfels for 60 days. R. E. Gerspacker tendered his resignation, which was accepted.

By a vote of the Club the time of holding the regular monthly meetings was changed from the 1st Wednesday to the 2d Tuesday of each month. A. H. Hoffman showed a completed sheet of 400 1c imperforate current issue. H. E. Munger was elected to membership. It was decided that each member should bring a rare stamp to the July meeting to be photographed and displayed with an article in the daily papers. A short note including the value of the stamp and any interesting bit of history concerning same should accompany the stamp. The complete photograph with article made up from notes submitted, a history of the D. S. C., notes on the A. P. A. and the coming convention will be exploited in the daily papers in the hope of arousing interest of non-collectors. Meeting adjourned 11.00 p. m.

is being favorably received and all that is necessary for collectors to be convinced that it is to their interest to trade with us is a comparison of our prices with those of other dealers.

Mr. Piercy writes June 17, 1907: "I was very pleased with the stamps you sent as per my order being such clean good specimens and what was better exactly what I ordered."

Mr. Klatz writes June 22, 1907: "I am very much pleased at the way you fill my orders and shall continue to purchase stamps from you."

You run no risk in trading with us as anything not satisfactory in every way is returnable at once and your money is immediately refunded. We make no substitutions.

STAMPS OF THE DANISH WEST INDIES.

BY WM. E. AULT.

Read before the Louisville Philatelic Club.

For me the stamps of the Danish West Indies have always possessed an unusual interest. The issues have been clean, without any unnecessarily high values and with the exception of one stamp, the surcharged 10 cents on 50 cents of 1895, they are without suspicion of speculation. While the stamps, as a whole, are very simple, yet there are enough varieties to attract the specialist, as, witness the fine line of shades, to say nothing of the type varieties of the 1873-79 issue, the change of perforation in 1900 and the varieties of the overprints of 1902, but there is nothing complex or that requires a great deal of study as do the stamps of some countries. Until 1905 all the designs were copied after the then current stamps of Denmark. There are no reprints.

The Islands, and consequently their stamps, obtained great publicity several years ago when they were offered for sale to the United States by the Danish Government.

In view of the recent burning of the remainders of all the stamps of all issues up to the current set we cannot help but commend the postal authorities for the act, as from a philatelic standpoint, it is certainly much better than, as is usual, unloading them on the market at a fraction of the face value, causing a great depression in the value of the stamps. Unless there is a very large stock of these stamps in the hands of dealers, which I much doubt, I do not see how there can but be a marked increase in the value within a very short time.

I will not go into the history or geography of the Islands, as you no doubt know as much about that as I do, but let us take up the study of the stamps themselves.

First Issue, 1855-72.—This issue consisted of two values, 3 cents and 4 cents; of the former there are several varieties. The design, modelled after the stamps then current in the mother country, is practically square, measuring 18½x19 mm. In the center is the crossed sceptre and sword of Denmark surrounded by a wreath on a background of dots, the whole inclosed in a colored square bearing on its sides the abbreviated inscriptions, K. G. L. on the left and F. R. M. on the right, the word POST at the top and value expressed in both figures and word below. In each corner there is a small posthorn in color on a small white square. The stamps are typographed and watermarked with a small crown, which shows many variations in its shape on the same sheet.

The first of the stamps to make its appearance was the 3 cents printed in dark carmine, in 1855. It was imperforate and was printed on a yellowish paper with yellow burelage, light wavy lines covering the entire surface of the paper. This stamp is listed with two varieties of gum, and thereby hangs a tale. It seems a package of stamps consigned from Denmark on its way to the colony became damp and stuck together, rendering it necessary to re-gum the stamps before use. Part of them were sent to a pharmacist named F. Benzon, who used a poor gum in doing the work, giving us the brown gum of the catalogue. The other part of the stamps were given to another pharmacist by name of Riise, who used a pure gum arabic, making the yellow gum. In an unused condition the latter is much rarer than the stamps bearing the brown gum.

In 1867 the color of the 3 cent stamp was changed to a rose, but otherwise the stamp remained the same. There are some copies known rouletted, which appeared about 1871, but this was not an official production, being due, no doubt, to private enterprise in order to render the separation of the stamps easier. 500,000 copies of the imperforate 3 cent stamps were printed. They were withdrawn from use in January 1872.

The next change in the stamp was made in 1872, when it was issued perforated 12½. The color was rose or carmine. The design remained the same. 250,000 copies of this stamp were prepared. It was withdrawn from use in September 1873.

The 4 cent stamp appeared in the later part of 1872 or early in 1873 being of the same design, on the same paper and with the same watermark as the 3 cent stamp, but without the burelage. It was perforated 12½ vertically. 250,000

WEEKLY BARGAIN SERVICE.

My weekly bargain lots have caught on—collectors are finding them indispensable and wonder how they ever got along without them. They say: "Stamps received and much pleased with them, enclosed find remittance for the whole lot and send them regularly." "Am pleased with condition of stamps you offer and prices of same, and shall be glad to receive further selections." "I wouldn't have believed so many fine stamps could be bought for so little money, don't let me miss a single bargain."

Are you on the list? If not, do it now! A reference will be necessary if I don't know you (A. P. A. membership is sufficient).

DOLLAR HOSPITAL SERVICE

Breaking up a number of collections during the season, and handling dozens of odd lots, job lots, etc., I find quite an accumulation of stamps off center, corner perforations missing, creased and more or less damaged. I am going to close these out in dollar "hospital" lots—over $10 00 catalogue in each lot, at least $5.00 of which will have nothing more the matter with it than "off center." Dollar bill, dollar money order, dollar check, dollar in unused stamps—dollar back if not satisfied.

S. B. HOPKINS, 5728 Julian Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

CANAL ZONE

The demand for these stamps is growing steadily and my stock of many of them is being rapidly depleted. The natural consequence is that prices MUST advance.

No. 20c, 8c on 50c With "8 cts" Double

But twenty-five of these stamps were issued, of which number I have had twenty-four. At first I sold them at $12 50 each; then when I found out how few were issued I advanced them to $50.00. On January first last, having but ten left, I again advanced the price to $75.00. I have now JUST THREE LEFT, for which my price is

$100.00 EACH

They are unused but have no gum.
I have other things, too; both common and rare, so, if you do not SEE what you want ASK for it.

copies were printed. The stamp was withdrawn from use in September 1873, along with the 3 cent just mentioned.

Forgeries of these 3 and 4 cent stamps exist, but as they are lithographed and printed on paper without the watermark, and in the case of the 3 cent stamp, without the burelage, they should be very easy to detect.

While I have seen no figures giving a record of the destruction of any remainders of these stamps it seems there can be do doubt but what there must have been a great many disposed of in this manner, as the prices quoted on and the quantity printed of these stamps show too much of a difference for the original quantity to have ever been sold.

Issue of 1873-79.—This complete series comprises nine values, 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, 10, 12, 14 and 50 cent stamps. It is, like the first issue, copied after the Danish stamps used at that time. In the center of the stamp is the figure or figures of value on a colored circle, which is surmounted by a crown and surrounded on its sides and bottom by a wreath, all this being inclosed by a colored oval bearing the inscription DANSK-VESTINDISKE OER above and value in figures and word below. This is contained in a fancy rectangular frame measuring 17x 20½ mm. The stamps are typographed and printed in two colors, with the exception of the 50 cent stamps which is in only one color, and are watermarked with the crown and perforated 13½ or 14x13½.

The paper on which these stamps are printed varies a great deal in thickness and can be divided into two general classes, a thin semi-transparent paper and the other a much thicker paper, although if we consider only the unused stamps the latter can be divided into two sets distinguished by the gum. To sum up the paper and gum varieties of this issue we can make the following list.

1st. Thin paper, with yellowish gum which is sometimes found almost white.

2nd. Smooth thicker paper with yellow gum applied only in ordinary thickness.

3rd. Thick white paper with a very thick gum which has a tendency to crack. The stamps of this set look very fresh and are no doubt the last printings of these stamps just before the perforation was changed in 1896.

However, I do not want you to think that all values are found each with these three varieties of paper and gum. To the contrary they can be classed as follows:

1st. All the values are found on the thin paper.

2nd. All values with the exception of the 14 cent are found.

3rd. In this series, with the crackley gum, only the 1, 3, 4, 5, and 10 cent stamps are noticed. These five values only being found with this gum would strengthen the supposition that this is the last printing with the small perforation, as only these values are found in the larger perforation.

The stamps of this series did not all appear at the same time. The 1, 3, 4 and 14 cent stamps were issued in September 1873, the 7 cent in June 1874, the 5, 10 and 12 cent stamps in September 1876 and the 50 cent, last of all, in July 1879.

Shade varieties can be found of all the values, amounting in some of the stamps, the 1 and 3 cent in particular, to almost entirely different colors. These shades are due, no doubt, to the different printings and to the fact that this series was in use for an average of about 20 years.

The 3, 5 and 10 cent stamps have been listed and mentioned at various times as being known in imperforate condition, but these stamps are only proofs.

Of the type varieties I can mention the following:

3 cents. There is a variety of this stamp in which a small wedgeshaped flaw without color projects into the left of the crown, being due doubtless to a defect in the plates. This variety is found in all the printings and is the 78th stamp in the sheet.

5 cents. There are two varieties of the central figure. In the one the whole figure is thin and the ball being so much so that it resembles a hook. In the other the figure is much thicker, the ball being better formed and distinct. The first is found only in the early printings on the thin paper, and the latter is confined to the thicker paper sets.

7 cents: Two varieties of the figure 7 can be found, differing principally in the shape of the upper horizontal stroke of the 7.

10 cents: An interesting variety of this stamp occurs with a period between the T and S of CENTS. It is found nine times on a sheet and is in all the printings, being the 11th, 22nd, 25th, 37th, 61st, 70th, 82nd, 92nd and 94th stamps in the sheet.

The 50 cent stamp seems to have been made from an entirely different plate, or die, than the others of this series. There is no period after CENTS, as is the case with the other values, and the crown is of a different shape, besides there are other smaller differences.

The colors of the stamps of this issue are as follows, the second color being that of the central portion of the stamp:

1c green and brown-red.
3c blue and carmine.
4c brown and dull blue
5c green and gray.
7c lilac and orange.
10c blue and brown.
12c red-lilac and green.
14c lilac and green.
50c purple

The following are the only figures which I have been able to obtain as to the quantity printed and the date of withdrawal of the different values:

	Printed.	Withdrawn.
1c	1,000,000	1899
3c	1,400,000	1899
4c	350,000	Sept. 1901
5c	1,110,000	1898
7c	350,000	July 1896
10c	1,400,000	April 1901
12c	301,000	1905 (?)
14c	100,000	Sept. 1877
50c	150,000	1905 (?)

On the fact of the above figures there seems to be a great discrepancy between the price of the 14 cent stamp and the quantity issued but about 98,000 of this stamp were destroyed after its withdrawal, thus leaving a net issue of only about 2000 copies.

The forgeries of this series of stamps are lithographed on unwatermarked paper and lack the hyphen between the words DANSK and VESTINDISKE.

First Provisional Issue.—On May 12th, 1887, the colony issued its first provisional or surcharged stamp, it being to supply a shortage of the 1 cent value and was in use only a few days. The then current 7 cent stamp was used, being overprinted with the new value 1 CENT in plain block letters in black in one line. This stamp is found only on the thin paper. There are copies known bearing a double surcharge and triple

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE

But this is the limit. A "knocker" from Knoxville writes, "I would advise you not to follow the advice of your Waterbury friend; I would say 'If you have the D—— T——s, EAT ON but don't drink much.'"

Now I might say, that this Gentleman is always WARING, and is evidently looking for trouble. Moral: Don't look for trouble, it will find you.

Marks Stamp Co., Toronto, Canada. Remit in Stamps or Bills.

surcharge, besides which can be found stamps with the figure of value of the surcharge with almost the entire upper portion broken off and a fourth variety with a period after the word CENT. However, no suspicion can be attached to this stamp as it was in no wise speculative, being created to meet an actual demand awaiting the arrival of a fresh supply of the 1 cent stamp. I can find no record of the number issued.

Second Provisional Issue.—In 1895 we were treated to another surcharged stamp, this time with altogether different purpose for the overprinting. It seems there was quite an accumulation of the 50 cent stamp on hand, a value evidently little used, and it was the desire to get rid of this surplus that gave the postmaster the idea of surcharging this stamp with a new value, 10 CENTS 1895 in three lines in black. This stamp is found on both the thick and thin papers, and there are two minor varieties of the type, in one the 9 and 5 of 1895 are very thin and narrow and in the other the top of the figure 1 of 10, including the serif, has been broken off, making the figure shorter and flat-topped. Mention has been made of some sheets getting out without the date 1895 and also some with the surcharge inverted, but these varieties have no legitimate standing No figures are obtainable as to the number issued, but the stamp was withdrawn in 1896.

Issue of 1898-1901.—This issue consisted of five values, 1, 3, 4, 5 and 10 cents, of the same type as the 1873-79 issue, but with the perforation changed to 12½, 13 and compound of these two gauges, instead of the 13½ and 14 of the earlier issue. The shades are slightly different but of course the perforation is the distinguishing mark. The 1, 3 and 5 cent stamps were issued in 1898, the 10 cent in April 1901 and the 4 cent in Sept. 1901. No figures are obtainable as to the quantity printed. The 1 and 5 cent stamps were withdrawn in Feb. 1900, the 3 and 10 cent on Jan. 1st, 1902, when the rates of postage were reduced, but the 4 cent continued in use until the appearance of the issue of 1905. To preserve a true chronology of the issue I should really not have mentioned the 4 and 10 cent stamps until after the following issue, but as these two were the last of the old type of 1873 I grouped them with the 1, 3 and 5 cent stamps in order to make it easier to follow the text of my paper. The same varieties of the 3 cents with the flaw and the 10 cents with the period between T and S are found in this series also.

Issue of 1900.—In February, 1900, a new design of the 1 and 5 cent stamps were brought out, corresponding to the 1882 issue of Denmark, perforated like the last issue, 12½, 13. The 1 cent was printed in green and the 5 cents in blue. Shades can be found of both of these stamps. The design consists of the coat of arms of Denmark in the center, on each side of which is a white circle with the figure of value. Connecting the tops and bottoms of these circles is an oval band containing the words at the top DANSK-VESTINDISKE, and at the bottom POSTFRIM and value. This is all inclosed in a rectangular frame measuring 17x20½ mm., in each corner of which, on a white circle, is the figure of value.

Provisionals of 1902.—Following a reduction in the postal rates on the colony, it was necessary to have two new values, 2 cents and 8 cents, and the first supply was obtained by surcharging respectively the 3 and 10 cents stamps of the old type, these being the two values which the new rate rendered useless. Both surcharges are in three lines in black, the figure of value at the top, the word CENTS on the second line and the date, 1902, at bottom.

We have three settings of these surcharges, the first two being made in the colony measuring about 14 mm. from top to bottom and differing only in the arrangement of the minor varieties found on the sheet, the same type being employed in both cases. The third setting is said to have been made in Denmark measuring 11½ mm. and differs from the former settings in that the word CENTS is printed with capital C and "ents" in lower case, while in the local printings the word CENTS was all capitals. The first local printing occurred about December 1901 or January 1902, the second some time between January and May, probably in March, and the third, or the Denmark print, in May of the same year. There are numerous minor varieties of the first two, or local printings and to better understand them we will consider each stamp separately.

1st. 2 cents on 3 cents: Perforated 12½, 13. Local print.

Var. a: The 2 of 1902, normally with a curved tail, comes with a straight tail eight times on each sheet of 100 stamps, this variety being the 13th, 16th, 18th, 58th, 66th, 71st, 84th and 93rd stamps in the sheet of the first printing, and the 6th, 33rd, 47th, 58th, 74th, 84th, 95th and 98th of the second printing.

Var. b: With date 1901 instead of 1902. I cannot state whether this variety extends through both printings or not, nor how many times nor in what position it occurred on the sheet.

2nd. 2 cents on 3 cents: Perforated 14, 13½. Local Print.

In March, 1902, a few of the old style of perforation of 1873 were issued with this overprint. It would seem from this variety that March must have been the time of the second local printing of these surcharges and that through error some of the 3 cent stamps with the early perforation were used. We also have the straight tail of the 2 of 1902 on this stamp, presumably of the arrangement given for the second setting mentioned for the normal 2 cents on 3 cents stamp.

3rd. 8 cents on 10 cents. Perforated 12½, 13. Local print.

Var. a: This stamp also comes with the straight tail 2 arranged in the same manner as described for the 2 on 3 cent stamps.

Var. b: There is a space of about 2 mm. between the 1 and 9 of 1902, being No. 21 on the sheet, but this is found only in the first setting, and even then does not extend through the entire printing, seemingly having been corrected before the entire quantity was printed.

There is also listed in the Scott catalogue, but in no other that I can find, a variety of the 2 cents on 3 cents, perforated 12½, 13, with the surcharge in green instead of black.

I can find no figures showing the quantities printed of the local settings. They were withdrawn on the appearance of the Denmark print in May 1902.

4th. 2 cents on 3 cents. Perforated 12½, 13. Denmark print.

5th. 8 cents on 10 cents. Perforated 12½, 13. Denmark print.

The three lines of this surcharge are set much closer together than in the local printings, the surcharge measuring from top to bottom 11½ mm., and we have no minor varieties at all on these two stamps. 32,000 of the former and 107,000 of the 8 on 10 cents are said to have been printed. They were withdrawn in June and July 1903.

Split Provisional 2c 1903.—Owing to a temporary shortage of the 2 cent stamp some of the 4 cent stamps of the 1898 issue were cut in half diagonally and each half used as a 2 cent stamp. This stamp is listed in Scott's catalogue under the issue of 1901. Quite a number of this split stamp was used, mostly in order to create a supply for collectors, and were sold within a short time after their appearance for about 10c each on original cover and from a recent advertisement of an auction in which a few more than 1000 copies were offered it was stated that the purchaser of this lot would no doubt control the supply of this provisional. While there may have been some actual demand for a 2 cent stamp, but certainly not enough to have caused such a great quantity to have been used, it can hardly be said to have been a speculative issue, as the government made little out of it only a slightly increased demand for stamps than would ordinarily have been used, but they had to do the work in cancelling this stamp before it had any philatelic value at all.

EDITORIAL.

A Comparison—We believe that the first stamp album of any pretensions that was published in America was the production in 1863 of that well-known New York firm, D. Appleton & Co., long identified with the publication of volumes of sterling merit, particularly those with an instructive or educational side. This pioneer stamp album was spoken of in this paper on a former occasion, but now we draw on the "Preface" of the old album, for the following paragraph: "Another important feature in this work, and one that must greatly enhance its value as a book of reference, is the introduction of maps. It is further embellished with representations of the flags of many of the countries considered, and the seals of the several states of the Union. These illustrations will catch the eye, even as the leaves are casually turned, and will thus, without any effort or consciousness on the part of those consulting, be the means of fixing important facts in the mind." Without reverting to the clever psychological suggestion embodied in the second sentence of the quotation, this levy on the past, year of 1863, affords a basis on which to institute a present day comparison when the maps in question are examined. Asia and Africa now teeming with stamp issuing countries were almost blanks in a philatelically geographical way. On an interesting double page map in this "Album for Postage and Other Stamps, American and Foreign," showing the mail routes between Europe, Africa and America, with distances in miles, the map of the United States shows no indication of Denver, for instance, the city that is the philatelic capital this year, by reason of its selection as the seat of the great convention; and four proposed routes for a Pacific railroad give the sentimentalist who studies the map, an opportunity to ponder upon the later achievements, then only in the minds of the empire-builders. Recently, the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly after having mentioned a few British possessions that were eligible for place among the stamp-issuing countries, supplemented the lean list by the addition of a few possibilties in the foreign or "rest of the world" section. This compilation, too, was sparse and spare; and it has been shown conclusively that there is very little of the world left for philately to conquer. A wonderful contrast is found when the philatelic map of the early 60's is compared with that in the album of to-day; and the lesson that may be read is that there are but very few lands left to adopt the philatelic ensign for the first time.

Political Possibilities.—The collector with an eye to stamp changes, knowing how slight a provocation causes them, may be interested in the prevailing conditions, in the countries to the south. President Caceres of the Dominican Republic is reported to have decided to approve the much discussed Santo Domingo treaty, submitted by the United States, after the adjournment of the Dominican congress, a body that has not expressed friendliness to the treaty. The proclamation of the ratification of the treaty may cause a revolution, but Caceres seems confident that he can maintain his supremacy and assume the dictatorship, if necessary. The boundary question between the Dominican Republic and Hayti embodies possibilities of war between the two countries, although the United States stands ready, and probably, determined, to use its good offices to prevent serious trouble. President Zelaya has restored peace in Nicaragua by his military methods, and is ruling with the iron hand of the soldier. Moreover, he is charged with exciting disorder in Salvador and Guatemala, to further his ambitions as conqueror of Honduras, to organize a union of the Central American republics. Costa Rica is represented as the most stable and only constitutionally governed country of Central America; and its security is threatened periodically by conspirators of the neighboring countries. The United States and Mexico, it is expected, will soon arrange to take joint action to discourage, if not prevent, the ever-recurring outbreaks in the politically turbulent states of Central America, on the score of serve progress and prosperity.

Philately on the Platform—Philately was not ignored in the graduation day exercises held at the countless seats of learning throughout this broad land. This year is not the first, however, in which the philatelic theme has been entered upon the program of the final day; attention has been called before to the fact that it is recorded that ardent philatelists in the past have utilized stamp collecting, or its suggestions, as a subject for graduation day discourses. This season, a graduate in Pennsylvania delivered a thesis, "What the Postage Stamp Has Done," while a reader wrote some time ago for information on a subject, directly philatelic, that he wanted for the purpose of incorporating in an essay that he was to read on the "last day of school." We are pleased, indeed, that philately is considered a standard topic worthy of exploitation on the day that is of solemn significance to those who are honored. It may not be amiss to add, in this connection, that a dealer says that he sold a stamp album to a parent who wanted the volume as a graduation present for the son.

The Squealer of Puggsville—There is an interesting article of no mean order of merit in the latest number of Alfred Smith & Son's Monthly Circular, entitled "On Philatelic Libraries." The article was written by the editor and treats of its subject with appreciation. So rarely does one who really is equipped to write about philatelic literature, prepare an article for publication that when something is printed, it has a flash of novelty. It may be somewhat of a surprise to hear that Mr. Smith advocates the retention of even the "most trumpery rags," saying: "For purposes of philatelic research, it is almost impossible to say what is worth collecting and what is not, for even an obsolete article or obscure advertisement may serve to elucidate some point of interest." Roughly, philatelic literature is divided by the writer into two divisions, the issues of before "say 1874," and those of subsequent date; almost anything that appeared during the first period is of rarity. In contending that the Chipmunk State Philatelic Squealer, is entitled to place in the library of the philatelic literature collector, the very human argument is proclaimed: "A hundred years hence, when Puggsville dominates the United States, will not a crumbling copy of the little Squealer have an interest for some student of things past? As for the youthful editor-publisher of the Exchange, may he not perhaps, become a 'world's universal' celebrity, or the writer of the pamphlet of a second Philbrick or Lindenberg?"

Number Is Not Increasing—A recent expression in print was to the effect that each year sees a greatly increased number of new stamps over that of the year preceding. This statement is erroneous, even though it is accepted by the collectors who do not inquire closely. M. Adam, a French writer, who for years past has compiled statistics of the number of stamps issued annually, gives the number of novelties during 1906, as 582; this total is lower than the number of stamps issued in any year since 1898, except 1901, with 548 varieties, according to M. Adam's table. The average annual output, since 1898 to date, is 791 stamps. It should be remembered in this connection that only straight varieties are taken cognizance of by the statistician, and variations of watermark, perforation and paper are not included. The restrictive tendency in this regard is one that is noticed with satisfaction and it shows that there is a disposition on the part of the governments to consult real postal needs rather than the sale of the issues to collectors.

Lot of Filled Approval Sheets
FOR DEALERS

A lot of filled approval sheets all in perfect order and all ready to send out. The sheets contain 50 stamps each, priced according to catalogue and running as high as 25 cents and over that. Here and there a 35c, 50c stamp. There are about from 30 to 40 sheets in the lot and contain large variety. Stamps both used and unused, no U. S., no cut envelopes, no postal cards. A very fine lot for anyone doing an approval sheet business, as you can send them out the day you get them. Have never been folded nor soiled in any way. This lot of sheets price up to $70.00, and they usually run a little over that but not below. Price $6.75. You can give 50%, 60%, 75% or even 80% discount and still more than double your money.

This is a great bargain and almost every order has been duplicated or trebled in a very short time. [62

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—In a letter just at hand from the firm of Theodore Champion & Co., Mr. Champion writes, "We are always pleased with the results of our advertising in MEKEEL'S WEEKLY, and trust that next season will prove as successful as the one now ending which has brought to our firm a great many clients amongst American collectors."

—June 28 at the meeting of the Kansas City Stamp Club a contest was held, members being required to name the continents upon which some twenty stamp issuing countries or colonies are located.

—The Swedish Philatelic Society proposes to extend to American members the services of its Sales Department. L. Harald Kjellstedt, the American representative of this society, will be pleased to hear from any interested parties. The opportunity is also offered American members of placing their stamps on circuits in the Scandinavian countries.

—Among the prices realized for a number of stamps that are unusually offered at auction at P. M. Wolsieffer's last sale, the following are of particular interest: Inverted center, two-cent Pan-American, unused, $151.75; four-cent, inverted center, Pan-American, surcharged "specimen," $30.50; Philippines 1901, $5, unused, cat. $9.00, $10.15; U. S. 1883, unused 2-cent, No. 210, on laid paper, not listed, $25.10; State, ten-dollar, unused, $42.75; State, twenty-dollar, unused, $31.50; Southern Nigeria, one pound, 1902, $20.50; Brazil 1844, unused, 300 reis, cat. $30.00, $22.25; Two Sicilies, 1859, ½ t, unused, $68. The "tretio" error of Sweden, 1872, 20 ore, No. 33a, unused, not centered, sold for $48.50; and the total realized in the 664 lots was over $3200. Practically, every stamp of merit in the sale brought a price that was the despair of the bidder accustomed to the usual discounts.

—Our attention has been called to an editorial in the Ohio State Journal of Columbus, Ohio, of June 29, entitled "Stamp Collecting." The endorsement given philately is a hearty one and is only another evidence of the hold that the Columbus Philatelic Society has upon the public interest in that city.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from W. Barclay, F. D. Goodhue, J. J. Ruzicka, Axel Johnson, T. C. Mann, Arthur L. Nelson, W. D. Rodier and Paul Mason.

—A new philatelic paper has made its appearance, Redfield's Stamp Weekly. Mr. Redfield again has entered the publishing field of philately, and his second venture takes the form of an eight-paged, wholesome-appearing sheet. The paper is edited by L. G. Quackenbush, one of the ablest of philatelic writers, particularly a decade ago; latterly, his contributions to our press have been infrequent, but we assume that he never wholly dismissed from mind the philately that he once knew so well, even though he was not active in a public sense. The managerial combination is one to argue well for the future of this creditable publication.

THE PHILADELPHIA STAMP CO.

With this issue of the WEEKLY the Philadelphia Stamp Co. makes its initial bow. Its manager, Percival Parrish, has for years been the manager of the Philadelphia Branch of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co., this Branch being discontinued June 20. The new company proposes to make a specialty of the Scott Stamp & Coin Co.'s packets, sets and publications while catering also to lovers of new issues, foreign catalogs, rare stamps, etc., etc. Mr. Parrish informs us that the company has already acquired a collection of over 22,000 varieties practically all unused, that catalogs over $20,000.00. We give the Philadelphia Stamp Co. a hearty welcome and trust that it may be able to secure its full share of business.

Written for MEKEEL'S WEEKLY.

PHILATELIC AUTHORITY.

BY L. G. DORPAT.

One of the most detrimental things in philately is the attempted imposition of rules, laws or doctrines by a few on the many. On the one hand it provokes opposition, while on the other it creates thoughtless submission, mediocrity and loss of interest. Broad-minded philatelists have therefore insisted on the necessity of declaring and emphatically defending individual liberty against all dictatorial attempts, and it is to be hoped that by and by the maxim: "Let every one do as he pleases," shall be accepted by all.

We must, however, beware, lest we go too far and simply deny all authority in philately, for that would be as grave an error, as the other one.

There is a legitimate, and necessary authority in philately as well as in anything else, the authority of experience, and this can not be disregarded except to the detriment of the one who disregards it.

For an instance, we can not know a stamp, unless we see it, or get our knowledge from somebody else who has seen it. Thus anybody who comes into the possession of facts concerning stamps by actual observation, is an authority in so far as his actual observation and his possession of real facts go. He is not usurping authority by laying his facts before other collectors.

What is objectionable is this, that now and then a pretender will try to foist on the credulity of philatelic readers his own imaginations, as philatelic truth, thereby creating illusions and laying snares for his fellow collectors.

Theories and opinions are all right, as long as they are given as such and submitted for criticism. But as soon as a theory takes the plaec of a fact, we have usurpation of authority, which deserves being stoned by universal contempt and ridicule.

We have some collectors who have given much more time, more labor and more money to collecting and studying stamps than others. Naturally they are in a position to know more about stamps, and their word carries weight.

Again we have collectors who are naturally more gifted than others, better fitted for the study of stamps than their brethren, and who have shown by their success, that their observation is keener and their judgment wiser. They have built up collections which are the admiration of the beholder, and these men too have a right to speak of their experience and to point out what they have found beneficial or detrimental to our pursuit.

The beginner may profit a great deal by noting the experiences of others; while on the other hand he, who neglects the experiences of successful men, invites failure and has nobody to blame but himself, if he is side-tracked.

Important then as it is to emphasize individual liberty, it is equally important to admit philatelic authority and to use it rightly. Our most successful men climbed the ladder not upon their own merit alone; they made the right use of the authority that went before them, and that raised them into the position, where they themselves are authorities.

Time and again we find a collector who thinks himself wise enough to go his own way without the help of philatelic journals or newspapers, who sees no object in buying philatelic handbooks or catalogues, who scorns the idea of learning from anybody else, and who is ever ready to quarrel with everybody else for his own notions and conceptions. Such an one is certainly much in error.

The money that we spend on our philatelic library is not lost. It brings us into touch with philatelic authority and thus helps to make us more competent to collect intelligently, to say nothing of the pleasure we find in reading the experiences of those who are in the lead.

Besides that, the support that we give the philatelic press, be it the newspaper-press or the book-press, counts for something too. If all collectors refused to read what is printed, the printing would soon stop, and then collecting itself would languish and die, and the pleasure that we now derive from it would be largely lost.

Philatelic authority and its proper estimation is necessary for the life of philately and for the pleasure philately affords. What is to be desired is this, that no false authority be usurped and that the true authority be rightly used. With that in mind we may be glad that there is such authority and that it is made accessible.

—The junior philatelists of Coldwater, Mich., have organized an American Junior Philatelic Association with John Champion, Pres. and John Walker, Sec. It has voted to invest the dues received in a philatelic library. For particulars apply to either of the above officers.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

AITUTAKI.— The 2½d has appeared in darker blue shade, with overprint "Aitutaki."

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.—The 4d green postage due stamp has been issued on the new Crown A paper, according to Ewen's.

BRAZIL.—The following wrappers have been added to the stationery chronicled in No. 859, according to the London Philatelist.

Wrappers.

20r green on yellow.
40r orange on yellow.
60r brown on yellow.

CEYLON.— According to Ewen's the 75c King has again appeared in the pale blue shade.

DOMINICA. — Ewen's reports the 1d carmine and gray on chalky multiple paper.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC.—We are informed that another change has been made in the stamps of this Republic. The colors and design of the new set are the same as last set, but the paper is watermarked. The new stamps reached Santo Domingo June 3, and are being put on sale as those of the old issue become exhausted. Our correspondent has seen the 1c and 5c values on the new paper.

DUTCH INDIES.—According to L'Echo de la Timbrologie special stamps are to be issued in Java and Madura. The stamps sold at these offices will bear the surcharge "Java" or "Madura," while the stamps used in the other islands,—Sumatra, Borneo, Celebes, etc.,—will remain without surcharge.

Le Journal des Philatelistes reports a change of color in the current 10c stamp, which has been hitherto printed in slate or gray.

Adhesive.

10c dull blue.

ECUADOR. — The London Philatelist chronicles a new post card for this Republic, the stamp being in the design of the 5c adhesive of 1899.

Post Card.

5c lilac on greenish blue.

GERMAN COLONIES.—The $1 value on watermarked paper must be added to those previously chronicled for German China.

HONG KONG.—The 50c and $1 stamps have been issued on chalky multiple paper, according to Ewen's Weekly.

ICELAND. — A new series of stamps has been issued for this country, we have been informed by W. T. Wilson, of Birmingham, Eng., who has kindly sent us a specimen of the new design. The frame is similar to the previous set though the ornamentation is changed, and the inscriptions are in white instead of colors. The inscriptions show "Island" at the top, the value at the bottom, and "Frimarki" or "Pjonusta" at the sides. Some of the stamps are printed in one color but most of them are in two colors, the second color given below being that of centre. The distinguishing feature of the series, however, is the double portrait, showing profiles of King Christian and King Frederick, the latter superimposed on the former, both facing to the right. Full postage and official sets have been issued.

Adhesives.

3a yellow brown.
4a gray and carmine.
5a green.
6a gray.
10a vermilion.
16a brown.
20a blue.
25a gray brown and blue green.
40a red lilac.
50a gray and red lilac.
1k ultramarine and brown.
2k black brown and blue green.
5k pale brown and slate.

Official Adhesives.

3a buff and gray.
4a green and gray.
5a orange and gray.
10a blue and gray.
16a lake and gray.
20a yellow green and gray.
50a mauve and gray.

LUXEMBURG.—Two reply post cards have been issued with stamps in the new design, according to the Philatelisten Zeitung

Post Cards.

5x5c green on yellow.
10x10c red on yellow.

MEXICO. — The Monthly Circular chronicles some new stationery for our southern neighbor.

Post Cards.

1x1c lilac on yellowish.
2c dark green on yellowish.
2x2c dark green on yellowish.

Letter Card.

2x2c dark green on yellowish.

NEWFOUNDLAND.—The 1c, 2c and 3c stamps have been issued on thinner paper and printed in slightly different shades than the previous issues, according to Ewen's.

NEW ZEALAND.—Gibbons' Monthly reports that the following quantities were printed of the exhibition stamps: ½d, 200,000; 1d, 175,000; 3d, 80,000; 6d, 45,000.

NORTHERN NIGERIA.—Ewen's reports that the 6d King's Head stamp has appeared on chalky multiple paper.

NICARAGUA.—Several new values of surcharged stamps come from this country, our regular correspondent having shown us the 2c rose official stamp of 1906 surcharged "Vale 10c" and "Vale 20c," both in black and reading up. There are two varieties of each value, thick and thin "0" being the difference. The same correspondent has also shown us the 1c green official of the same set surcharged "Vale 15c" reading up. Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the 5c blue official of the same set, surcharged "Vale $4.00," and L'Echo de la Timbrologie adds the "Vale $3.00" on 2c rose official.

Provisional Adhesives.

"Vale 10c" on 2c rose official.
"Vale 20c" on 2c rose official.
Both above have thick and thin "0."
"Vale 15c" on 1c green official.
"Vale $3 00" on 2c rose official.
"Vale $4.00" on 5c blue official.

PÉRU.—A valued correspondent has shown us the 1c of the new set, a very handsome design by the way, showing the Monument Bolognesi, with a handsome frame, with "Union Postal — Universal Peru" in two curved lines above the central picture. The figures of value appear in all four corners, those at the top being in color, while those at the bottom are colorless. "Un Centavo" is printed at the bottom. The stamp presents a handsome appearance, and is even prettier than some of the others in the new set. Le Bulletin Philatelique reports that a 4c value is to be issued, the design showing a llama.

Adhesive.

1c green and black.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.—Ewen's reports that the current ½d green has been issued on Crown A paper. Le Timbre-Poste chronicles the 2sh 6d as issued on the same paper.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS. — Malay States.—The 8c blue and black Tiger stamp has been issued on ordinary multiple paper, with the watermark normal, that is horizontal like the design.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—Le Bulletin Philatelique reports the 4d red brown as issued on Crown A paper.

CHANGES OF ADDRESS.

Subscribers will greatly oblige us if they will favor this office with but one change of address at a time. It will only take a postal card to notify us of the second change and will relieve us of considerable office detail. It seems a small thing in the case of one subscriber, but where we have six thousand to care for, it becomes quite a labor. We are always pleased to have the WEEKLY follow our subscribers to vacation addresses and consider it quite a compliment that even upon a summer vacation the reading of our paper cannot be dispensed with. We shall, however, be obliged if the second notice of change reaches us upon the return home of the subscriber.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

T. R. M.:—If you wish to gain a thorough understanding of the stamped impressions of Sardinia which are sometimes referred to as the predecessors of all stamp certificates, having been issued, as they were, about 1819, we recommend the most exhaustive article on the subject, that appeared in Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal, for July 1906, in the shape of the first instalment of "The Postal Issues of Italy and the Italian Colonies."

Several Inquirers:—Non-members of the American Philatelic Association will be welcome to attend the business sessions of the convention at Denver, even though they are allowed no voice in the proceedings.

T. L.:—The newspaper clipping in question is antiquated; it is safe to say that the project of printing the city names of the different postoffices on the current stamps has been abandoned.

STAMPS OF THE DANISH WEST INDIES.

Issue of 1903.—In June and July of 1903 we were given a permanent issue of the two new values created by surcharges in 1902, the 2 cents and 8 cents. They were of the type of the 1900 1 and 5 cent stamps and were printed in carmine and brown respectively. They were withdrawn in 1905 and I can find no record of the quantity printed. Perforated 12½, 13.

Provisionals of 1905.—In 1905 the currency of the Islands was changed from dollars and cents to francs and bits and to provide a temporary supply of stamps the 4 cent stamp of 1898-1901, the 5 cent stamp of 1900 and the 8 cent stamp of 1903 were surcharged 5 BITS 1905 in three lines in black. At first there seems to have been an impression that these surcharges were going to be scarce. I remember the experience I had in trying to obtain my copies of the three stamps. They were advertised by an eastern firm at, I think, 30c, and I sent in my order, only to have my money returned with the information that this supply was almost exhausted and that they understood the stamps were not being offered and raised their price to $1.00 per set. In the meantime I had received an English paper advertising the set at 25c, which I accordingly took advantage of. I received the set in due time, but before their receipt the stamps were being offered in our own country by different firms at about the same price. There are no minor varieties of these overprints and I can find no record of the number of stamps so surcharged, but there must have been a goodly number if we can judge by the amount, a little over 180,000 which were recently destroyed. They were withdrawn in the latter part of 1905.

Permanent Issue of 1905.—In the latter part of 1905 there appeared a series of stamps of entirely new designs, consisting of nine values. In this issue the colony discarded the designs of the mother country and produced a distinctive series. For the six lower values, we are shown a silhouette of King Christian in the center on a white circle with the word CHRISTIAN on the left side of the head and DEN-NIENDE on the right. This is surrounded by a square containing a crown in a diagonal position in each corner with DANSK at the left, VEST-at the top, INDIEN at the right and POST at the bottom. Across the bottom of the stamp is a label with the value expressed in figures at each end in white on a colored square with the word BIT in colored letters between. The stamps measure 17x20½ mm. The perforation measures 12½, 13.

The franc values are much larger, measuring 21x27 mm., with same perforation. The central part of the design is a two-masted ship at sail with a background composed of mountains or hills. In each corner of the central portion is the figure of value in white on a colored circle surrounded by a heavy semi-circle of color. At the top is a label containing the words DANSK VEST INDIEN in white letters and at the bottom a similar label inscribed FRIMERKE with the figure of value followed by the word FRANC or FRANCS. The values and colors, are as follows:

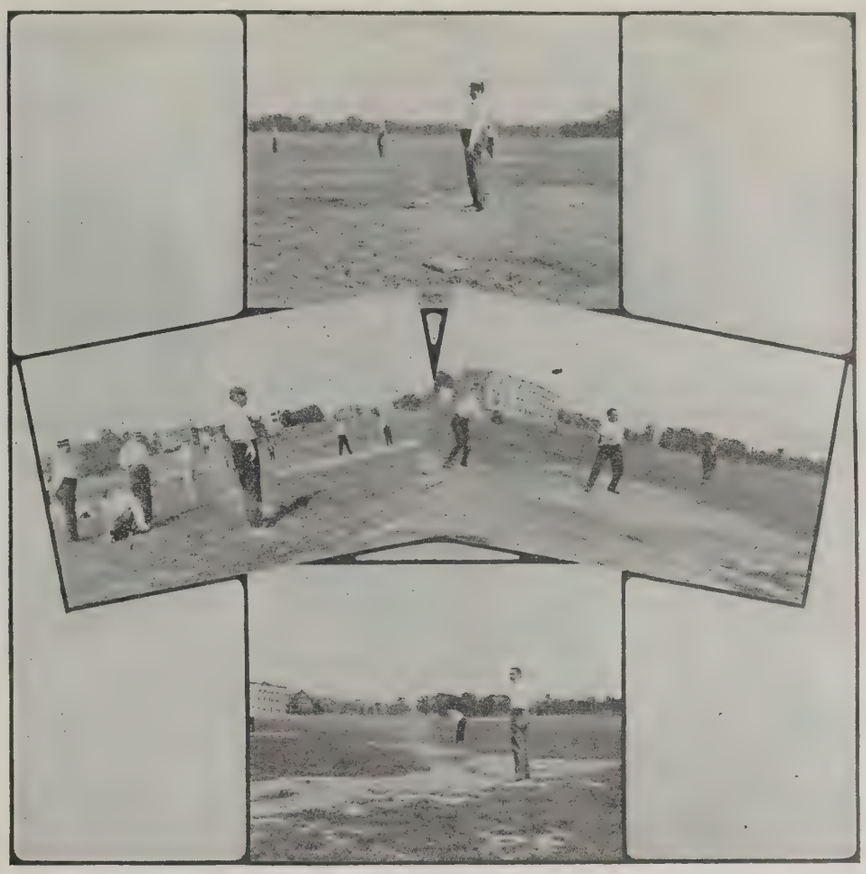
10b red.
20b light green and blue.
25b blue.
40b red and gray.
50b yellow and gray.
1fr green and blue.
2fr brown and orange-red.
5fr brown and yellow.



OUR NATIONAL GAME AT THE BOSTON CONVENTION.
(1) Wylie on 1st Base. (2) Batchelder Coaching. (3) Rosenthal at the Bat. (4) Wolsieffer on 2nd Base.

We may expect to hear of new stamps at any time bearing the head of the new king, Frederick, and from reports to this effect it seems they will use the same general design of the above issue, simply inserting the head of the new king instead of that of King Christian, as they have already done in Denmark.

UNPAID LETTER STAMPS.

In 1902 there were issued the first series consisting of four values, all printed in blue, 1, 4, 6 and 10 cents, and Scott's Catalogue tells us that it is not the custom to cancel these stamps when they are used, adding that copies without the gum have probably passed through the posts, but of course there is no way of telling that this is the case. There are, however, three varieties of the 4 cent stamp, distinguished by the different shape of the first stroke at the top of the 2 figures 4, which slants either to the right or left or in combination.

In 1905 a new series was issued with the change of currency. Again four values only were employed, the 5, 20, 30 and 50 bits, all printed in red and gray. The workmanship is very poor and with the rather peculiar design the whole has anything but a pleasing appearance.

DESTRUCTION OF REMAINDERS.

This article would hardly be complete without a list of the stamps included in the destruction of remainders to which I alluded in the early part of my paper. I have thought best to wait until the end to give a list of these stamps in order to make it the more intelligable. The following figures show the number of stamps with date of their issue so destroyed, which took place on November 15th, 1906, at the Royal Institute of Destruction at Fredericksberg, near Copenhagen, Denmark. Each sheet contained 100 stamps.

574 sheets	1898	4 cents
1511 sheets	1898	5 cents
692 sheets	1873	7 cents
440 sheets	1903	8 cents
338 sheets	1898	10 cents
782 sheets	1873	12 cents
486 sheets	1873	50 cents
1839 sheets	1905	5 bit surcharges
138 sheets	1902	4 cents Unpaid
297 sheets	1902	6 cents Unpaid
172 sheets	1902	10 cents Unpaid

The figures given for the 5 bit surcharges of 1905 include all three varieties. There was in addition to above a large quantity of envelopes and postal cards destroyed at the same time.

The sixtieth regular meeting was held Tuesday, June 25, 1907, at usual time and place, twelve members being present. President Cornwall's superb collections of Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon and Queensland on exhibition, were highly admired and voted magnificent, the only criticism being that one collector should be permitted to "corner" such a splendid "aggregation" of stamps of which most collectors consider themselves fortunate to possess a single copy. In the prize contest to identify enlarged drawings of familiar (?) watermarks, your secretary carried away the prize offered by the President with seven correct answers out of ten items.

After a brief discussion of the advisability of adopting an official emblem, a committee of three, Messrs. Hopkins, Kring and Long, was appointed to report at next meeting with designs, prices, etc. Thanks are due Mr. Long for his kindness in furnishing the Society with a complete set of addressograph stencils. Next meeting Tuesday, July 9th, Rooms 803-805 Wright Bldg. We want YOU there.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 10, 1907.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:

The Twenty Second Annual Convention of this Association for the election of Directors, and the transaction of such business as may legally be brought before it, will be convened in the City of Denver, State of Colorado, upon Tuesday, the thirtieth day of July, 1907, and upon the succeeding days, until all business shall have been disposed of.

I hereby appoint the following gentlemen to serve as the Committee on Credentials: A. W. Batchelder, of Boston, Mass., Chairman; F. M. Rosenthal, of Illinois; C. B. Duffy, of Ohio; O. K. Carstarphen, of Colorado; and S. B. Hopkins, of Missouri.

I have also appointed the following gentlemen as the Committee of Arrangements: C. A. Nast, Chairman; H. A. Davis, W. G. Swart, O. K. Carstarphen, and W. C. Bellows, all of Denver, Colo.

Due notice will be given through the official Journal of the location of the Convention Hall and the hour for assembling of the convention.

WILLIAM C. STONE, Pres.
A. F. HENKELS, Sec.

SUPPLEMENTAL NOTICE.

June 25, 1907.

Headquarters of the Convention will be at the Albany Hotel, and the first session will be called to order there Tuesday, July 30, 1907, at 7.30 a. m. that an adjournment may be taken to reassemble on the summit of Pike's Peak at 3.30 p. m. for the formal session.

O. K. Carstarphen, member of the Committee on Credentials, finding that business will keep him from Denver until after the convention, has resigned his position and I have appointed in his place August H. Hoffman of Denver.

Please bear in mind that the polls close at noon July 29th and ballots must be in the hands of the committee by that date to be counted.

WILLIAM C. STONE, Pres.

CONVENTION REPORT.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., June 25, 1907.

To the Members:

The question has been brought up as to whether it would not be well to discontinue the custom of having printed a verbatim report of the doings of the convention. The President would be glad to hear from the members at large briefly as to their feelings in the matter. Reference to the reports of the treasurer will show that the expenses of the stenographer range from $50 to $75 and the cost of the Annual is now about $300. Let me hear from you promptly so that I may be able to speak intelligently in making any recommendations at the convention.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

SALES SUPT.'S REPORT NO. 28.

401 Ft. Dearborn Bdg., CHICAGO, June 29, '07.

June 17th to 29th:

136 books rec'd, priced at		$ 2464 09
2387 previously reported		59,819.50
2523 books	Total,	$62,283.59
From which deduct
160 retired priced	$4592.82 sold	$1905.12
705 previously retired	17153.70 "	5535.68
865	Totals $21,746.52	$7440.80

For the general information of many members who have been writing on the question of new books now being sent in, I would say that all books that have not had full circulation by Sept. 1st will be turned over to the new Superintendent.

The Sales Department is conducted on the continuous plan, there being no change whatever except the officer and location of his office, so members need not fear that their books recently sent in or to be sent in later will not receive proper circulation.

I would urge any member who may be holding a report of stamps taken from circuits to send it in at once with remittance. I am at work on my Annual Report, the Board of Vice Presidents will shortly audit my books and accounts, and any amount owing to this Department will have to appear in said report which is published each year.

Members should not overlook the fact that the Superintendent is not permitted to extend credit, and that they are violating one of the rules of the Department by withholding payments, be the amount either large or small, for circuits are only sent to members at their own request and their promise to obey the rules and regulations of the Department.

The retirement of books shows some remarkable difference in sales. Some books sold out almost completely while others were hardly touched. With all the drawbacks of many poor books, improperly priced, marked and mounted, the sales average as a whole over One Third to date.

THE 2c PLIMPTON DIES—C, C2, C3 AND D, 1874-5.

BY VICTOR M. BERTHOLD.

In bringing before the Boston Philatelic Society the result of a prolonged study of these dies prior to a general publication to collectors, I adhere to the principle that any addition to our knowledge of United States philately, due to a member of this Society, should first be announced here, and so recorded in our minutes. This is the main reason that I ask you to give your attention to a subject which may be foreign to many members, and which, therefore, cannot claim your interest from the start. Still, if you will bear with me, I promise to be as brief as possible, and perhaps something may be brought out that is not barren and wearisome.—At any rate, as the identification of the Plimpton dies C2 and C3, of which the latter is a newcomer, will make some changes in and additions to the catalogues imperative, you will concede that a half hour of our meeting devoted to this subject is not a philatelic waste.

All the dies under consideration belong to the Plimpton issues of 1874 and 1875. Dies C and D are well known, C2 is wrongly described in the Scott Catalogues of 1905 where it was recognized for the first time, while Die C3 is yet an almost unknown quantity; but the envelopes and wrappers bearing this die are most certainly rare and of great intrinsic value.

Let us commence with a short historical sketch of the Plimpton Die. As far as we have been able to ascertain, the original Die C of brown color was first described in European stamp papers about Feb. 1875. It replaced what are known as "temporary" Plimpton two cent Dies A, B, B2, and B3, with which I assume you are well acquainted. Prior to Feb. 1875, the stamp had been announced in a circular issued to postmasters Jan. 1st, 1875. Certainly, the two cents brown, Die C, is entitled to claim the record of the shortest philatelic life, nine months, for in a subsequent circular, dated June 21, 1875, postmasters were informed that the January schedule was recalled and that the contemplated changes in colors of stamps and shapes of envelopes would be announced later. The new schedule appeared, as promised, July 1st, 1875.

Among other novel features we find the color of the Two Cents Brown changed to Vermilion. The stamp remained in use from July 1st, 1875, to Sept. 1, 1883, when the bust of Old Hickory was replaced by that of Washington. En passant, I may state that the change was necessitated by an Act of Congress, March 3, 1883, reducing the single rate of postage on letters from 3 cents to 2 cents per half-ounce on and after October 1, 1883.

We have seen that the Two Cents Red, Die C remained in use from July 1, 1875, to Sept. 1, 1883, or nearly eight years, and as this period embraces an occurrence of much moment to United States philately and especially United States impressed stamps, it is not strange that Die C underwent alterations and decided changes. Of course you recall at once the Centennial Exposition when the Post Office Department for the first time attempted to exhibit all its postal issues. The collector of adhesive stamps owes to the Philadelphia Exhibition some of its choicest specimens, and there is no doubt that both Dies C2 and C3 made their appearance during the Centennial. It is a curious fact, however, that the earliest specimen of Die C3 is found on the first form of Plimpton Wrapper.

I wish here to emphasize the fact that we owe to collectors of entire envelopes and wrappers the knowledge of the early existence of Die C3, which later on reappeared on envelopes watermarked U S P O D and Star, U S P O D and 82, and on the Plimpton wrapper of 1879 watermarked Star.

To the majority of collectors of adhesive stamps it is an old story that the gum on the back of the stamp is often a clear and perhaps the only indication of the time of its issue, but you may not be aware that in the Plimpton series the difference of square or round gum on the inside of the upper flap of the envelope is a first class birthmark. Ever since the issuance of U. S. envelopes the gum had been applied by hand. The same process was employed when the Plimpton Manufacturing Co. obtained the contract in August 1874. Gumming by hand necessitated laying

DOLLAR HOSPITAL SERVICE

Breaking up a number of collections during the season, and handling dozens of odd lots, job lots, etc., I find quite an accumulation of stamps off center, corner perforations missing, creased and more or less damaged. I am going to close these out in dollar "hospital" lots—over $10 00 catalogue in each lot, at least $5.00 of which will have nothing more the matter with it than "off center." Nothing included cat. less than 5c. Dollar bill, dollar money order, dollar check, dollar in unused stamps—dollar back if not satisfied.

PHILIPPINES.

It is rumored that the "O. B." (Official Business) surcharge is to be PRINTED upon the stamps in future. This would give them catalogue standing at once and bring the older ones into much greater prominence.

I have a fine lot of the current ones on the surcharged series of 1899 and 1902. Better let me send you an approval lot.

I can also supply all values of the regular stamps.

JOHN R. MILLER,
134 West 79th St., New York City

a number of envelopes so that the loose flap of each projected some distance beyond the one above it. A brush was then drawn down the entire lot, leaving the ends of the gum on each square. This was both expensive and slow work. Naturally the manufacturers cast round for a device which automatically would accomplish the stamping, printing, folding, pasting and gumming, and after various trials brought out a successful machine which considerably reduced the cost of manufacture. The name of the patentee was Horace J. Wickham, who assigned his invention to the Morgan Envelope Co. and the Plimpton Manufacturing Co., the patent bearing date of May 2, 1876. In accordance with the new process the gum was applied by a pad and the ends rounded. The subject is fully discussed in the report of the Postmaster-General for the year 1876. The machine was first exhibited at the Centennial Exhibition, and kept in operation from May 10 to November 10, 1876.

We now come to another important point. In the early days of envelope manufacture by Nesbitt, the knife used for cutting or shaping the envelope was made of a heavy thick bar of steel, bent into the required shape and having its ends welded together. The inner face of the knife was nearly vertical, the outer being ground off until the lower edge became a cutting knife. The Plimpton Co. employed much thinner steel bars and as such are likely to spring by use and get a dull edge, they required frequent regrinding and sharpening, which gradually changed the knife and consequently the shape of the envelope. This is the reason why, in the Plimpton issues, we find that the original knives 39 & 40, changed to 41, and knife 42 to 43. Again these altered knives are another clue to the period of issuance of the envelope.

For the benefit of the collector of entire envelopes I subjoin a table of Plimpton Sizes and Knives, which bear the Two Cents Dies:—

C

C²

In spite of the decided advantage which the new machine offered, for the manufacture of envelopes, the contractors found it impossible to build quickly a sufficient number to fill the orders of the Department, and thus it happens that while such sizes of envelopes that were in great demand (i. e. 3, 4½ and 5) Full and Extra Letter appeared at once with round gum, sizes 1 and 2 respectively, Note and Ordinary Letter continued to be made with square gum; in fact, round gum was not applied to size 2 until the latter part of 1877.

Bearing in mind the date of the introduction of the new machine it is evident that, with the exception of sizes 1 and 2, the collector of entire envelopes is in a position to distinguish solely by means of the gum envelopes manufactured prior to October 1875 from those issued later.

Size.	Knife.
2	38	from Oct. 1874 to July 1875, also used for specially prepared envelopes made for the Centennial.
3	39	changed prior to the Centennial to Knife 41.
4½	44
4½	45	used July 1875 and during 1876.
5 or 6	42	was changed prior to the Centennial to Knife 43.

From 1878 to 1881 we find
Size 2 represented by Knife 47.
Size 3 represented by Knife 48.
Size 4½ represented by Knife 49.
Size 5 represented by Knife 50.

So far for changes in the shape of the envelopes. Many points of value to envelope collectors should be added here, but bearing in mind that such details would tax the forbearance of my audience, I hasten to that portion of my paper in which a good many members may be interested.

As has been stated before, when the Department decided to exhibit all its postal issues at the Centennial, the various old schedules were consulted for shapes and dies, and, as quite a number of dies had already become obsolete and no stock was found in the vaults, it was decided to *re*produce all missing links. This is the origin and the raison d'etre of what are known as Centennial Envelopes. Nearly all of these differ from the original issues in paper, shape of knives and in shade of stamp. This difference is very noticeable with white paper which for Centennial envelopes is decidedly bluish, while the amber by transmitted light has a strong greenish hue. The former orange paper is changed to yellow; it is coarse and strongly red when held up to the light. On account of the varieties in paper the collector of cut squares can find plenty of striking shades in the Plimpton issues.

Of vastly more significance, however, than the use of knives differing from those used for the dies when first issued was the decision of the Department to retouch some dies that showed signs of deterioration. Due to this decision of the Department the original Die C, two cents brown, and, two cents vermilion, were taken in hand and carefully gone over, before being reprinted. The shade of the reprinted brown shape is noticeably different and the red reimpressions of the same die are also easily seen.

Thus in addition to the original Die C, two cents brown, and vermilion, we now have a reimpressed and strengthened die found on paper distinctly different from that used for the original die and differing also in the shade of the color of the stamp. Nevertheless, aside of the strengthening of the lines the reimpressed dies were in all other respects the equivalent of the original Die C. This reimpressed die has frequently been mistaken for Die C2.

But, while it was the intention of the Department not to change any feature of Die C, probably due to the carelessness of an engraver, one of the working dies suffered a decided alteration, and the strangest thing about this changed die is that we do not find it on any envelope issued 1875, but only on the first Plimpton wrapper, which has the well-known characteristic that the top of the wrapper gradually curves

According to my understanding, the die should be called C2, but as the U. S. cataloguers have already introduced such a die, the youngest child has been baptised C3.

A clear description of the different dies is now in order. And first, Die C. The drawings which I have here show the original stamps eight times enlarged. The stamp called Die C is an oval measuring 24x28mm, with an inner oval 14x19mm. Both the outer and inner ovals are surrounded by a white frame line, and in turn a red broader line surrounds the white outside frame line. The inner oval on a colored background shows the bust of Old Hickory-Jackson. The hair falls slightly forward over the forehead, the mouth is large and shut tight, and the wrinkles in the cheeks behind it are very marked. A considerable portion of the ear is visible. The muscles of the neck are well defined. The inscription on top is U. S. POSTAGE in broad heavy letters. Note the large square dots after letters "U" and "S". In ovals at the right and left are figures 2 also short and thick. The engine work is beautifully executed and gives the appearance of fine lace work. The inscription below is TWO CENTS also in bold, heavy type. Please notice the heavy letter "N," also that the figures 2 in the side ovals do not touch the white outline of the latter, also that these outlines are very fine and in turn do not touch the white frame lines.

Both Dr. Horner and Messrs. Tiffany, Bogert & Rechert mention a variety distinguished by a large nose, and Mr. Toppan states "A variety is found in which the bridge of the nose is higher, making its tip nearly double the regular size and the chin is larger." I do not advise any collector to hunt for this variety which, in my opinion, is flimsy.

As stated before, the Centennial reimpressions of Die C are distinguished from the original die by much heavier frame lines and heavier ovals containing figure 2.

Next comes our new die, C3. The die has been recut like the Centennial reimpression of C. Note that the inner frame line shows the thickening up plainly under E of POSTAGE, and opposite the centre of right figure 2. The frame lines touch the side ovals. The characteristic feature of Die C3 is however the letter "N" of CENTS which is tall and slim, quite different from the ordinary heavy and thick lettering of Die C. The stem of letters T in TWO and of CENTS is also thinner. As the letter N of Die C3 is so palpably different, it is indeed strange that this characteristic feature has not been detected long ago. Once being pointed out to collectors, Die C3 may become a rival of the famous Plimpton Die C Three Cents Green. It is found on the wrapper and on white and amber envelopes, the latter are very rare.

You will recall that in my introductory remarks I stated that Die C2 was mentioned first in the 1905 Scott Catalogue. The main description is: "The tail of the figure 2 at left touches the oval." However the student of United States envelope stamps well agree with me that one may well apply to this luminous description the motto "now you see it, now you don't." Indeed, as a guide, philosopher and friend to the unitiated philatelist, this description is a snare and delusion, and I personally recall what a puzzle it was to me to decide in many specimens if the tail of figure 2 touched the oval line. No wonder that collectors did not take much stock in such fugitive die, coy and elusive as a sixteen year old bud.

D

But a careful observation proves that we have a first class Die C2, and that it bears an unfailing hallmark, sharply and clearly differentiating it from all its congeneers. If you will observe the various diagrams showing Dies C, C3, and D, you cannot fail to see that in neither C, C3, or D does the engine work touch the outer frame line at any point. On the contrary, due to a slip of the engraver, as he retouched or recut the original die, we have a plain white line slanting from the outer limb of letter "U" and touching the frame line. Again the periods after letters "U" and "S" are no longer perfect squares but rectangles.

Moreover the vast majority of Die C2 show a fine white line in the colored background of the inner oval near the inner frame line opposite the chin of Jackson. It is also true that in many instances the tail of the left figure 2 touches the small oval, but this is a mere accident. The real feature of Die C2 is the line opposite the outer limb of letter "U" and henceforth this should be the descriptive feature in the catalogues, proving the unimpeachable evidence of reengraving or retouching. This die is found only on envelopes bearing either the Star or 82 watermark, i. e. it originated after the Centennial issues, probably early in 1878.

The last die of this group, and doubtless the rarest on an envelope, is Die D, where we find in the bottom of the bust a nearly circular cut. This die also shows difference in lettering, for instance, the first limb of "N" of CENTS is very thin, both letters "O" of POSTAGE and TWO are oblong and netted in their centres. The left figure 2 leans clearly to the left and its tail is smaller than that of the right figure 2. Again, the face of Jackson is a new portrait, showing the eyebrow of the right eye, the hair is different and the ear is completely visible. The die is found only on paper bearing the Star watermark, which would indicate that it came into existence after October 1878.

I have made out a complete list of the sizes and knives bearing the various Two Cents Vermilion Dies, but as I do not intend to weary you I will mention only briefly the additions and changes that are required in the catalogues.

The Scott Catalogue should add:

DIE C3 White paper, No. 1418a
Amber Paper, No. 1446b
Manila Wrapper, No. 1719a

The only other change required in Scott Catalogue is the description of Die C2, and I do not doubt that the next catalogue will rectify the error.

Again, Bartels' Catalogue should chronicle

DIE C3, 1874 Issue:

No. 278 Manila Wrapper Form 1, instead of the present No. 278 which is wrongly given as Die C2.

No. 423a of the Seventh Issue catalogued as Die C2, Manila Wrapper, should be omitted.

Insert under the Eighth Issue, Plimpton and Morgan, 1879 Star Wmk.

No. 498e White, 139x78, Size 2, Knife 47.

No. 498g Manila, 160x235, Wrapper Form 2.

Also under Plimpton and Morgan Issue, Wmk. 1882:—

No. 579e White, 139x83, Size 3, Knife 48.

No. 579f Amber, 139x83, Size 3, Knife 48.

I believe that No. 576, Blue Paper, Size 4½, Knife 49, Die C, wmk. 82, should be omitted. So far, all blue paper envelopes bearing wmk. 82 which I have examined have turned out to be Die C2 (Bartels' No. 579c).

EDITORIAL.

Twain as Reformer—Mark Twain in his character of "the real American ambassador to Great Britain," as a London paper called him, has interested himself in Henniker Heaton's campaign, having for its object, the reduction of the postal rate between the United States and Great Britain to two cents, or in English money, one penny. Mark is advancing the project in his effective way and recently, in speaking in favor of the plan, he delivered the following delectable discourse as quoted in the Chicago Tribune, that stamp collectors particularly are in a position to appreciate: "Speaking postally, my mind goes back to the days, when it cost as much as a quarter to send letters to New Orleans. We did not have stamps in those days. My father used to give me the letters with the money to take them to the postoffice. This constituted my one source of income, as it did for most of the youths of Missouri. I pocketed the money and the letters went just the same, only the receiver had to pay. I believe this system did more to undermine the moral fiber of the boys of Missouri than anything I know. Fortunately, my moral character since has been rehabilitated. When England invented stamps my feelings were decidedly anti-English, as America took up the system and my income disappeared, as my father used to buy stamps, put them on the letters, and I had to trudge to the postoffice and mail them without any recompense. At that time when the proposition was advanced to reduce postage to five cents for short and ten cents for long distances, the same cry was made which is now raised, that the reduction would ruin the postoffice but the cry was false. The reduction increased the revenue. A reduction in postage between the United States and Great Britain to a penny would have the same effect."

A Matter of Record—Mark, in his interview, shows an unusual knowledge of the old postal regulations as up to 1845, a single letter sent four hundred miles was charged at twenty-five cents. Mark's scheme for the conversion of funds was rendered fruitless by the Act of March 3rd, 1855, which made the prepayment of postage obligatory, even if, before that time, his father did not always use stamps on the letters. After 1855, Mark could not reap even the slightest rewards of enterprise, should a letter by chance have been presented for mailing, with payment of postage only partially made, as when the omission to pay the full or correct amount was known to have been intentional, the missive was treated as a letter that was wholly unpaid. Evidently, Mark has the postage stamp much in mind; we believe that he originated the phrase, which has since enjoyed some popularity, "Flatter than a postage stamp," having used it in one of his earlier works.

Early Recognition—Speaking of writers of international reputation in connection with casual references to stamps, mention should be made of the following excerpt (as translated) from Balzac's "Cousin Pons," which has place in the chapter telling of Pons' passion as a collection for objects of arts. While the paragraph is embracive in its application and stamps are cited as an instance of the extreme, yet the glowing tribute to the value of a hobby would seem to have pointed reference to philately, today: "All ye who can no longer drink from the vessel which has in every age been termed the cup of pleasure, apply yourselves to the task of collecting—no matter what; even postage stamps have been collected—and you will find the solid ingot of happiness coined into small change. A mania! why 'tis pleasure idealized!" It must be remembered that the genius of Balzac that enlightened so wonderful a range of subjects could not know of later-day philately; Balzac died in 1850, and consequently, in this instance he reflected conditions that prevailed a few years after the very advent of postage stamps.

Assurance Doubly Sure—George L. Toppan confirms the discovery of the two-cent current issue, imperforate horizontally, by Charles R. Morris of Washington, and now there can be no question, if any existed, heretofore, of the truth of the circumstances as detailed in the issue of June 22nd. Mr. Toppan says that upon learning of the existence of these imperforates, he went through the different postoffices but was unable to find any more. Mr. Toppan says: "There is no doubt but what it is a bona-fide error, and unless others turn up, I am rather inclined to think that they will turn out to be 'good things.'" The indications are that the two-cent current type, imperforate horizontally was an accidental variety, and that in consequence, the supply may have been limited to one sheet, a good part of which was lost to philately.

A Novel Notice—One of the liveliest notices of the new Jamestown stamps that we have seen in the newspaper press appeared in the Calaveras Chronicle, of the county of that name in California. We read: "So if you get a letter bearing a stamp on which, instead of the benevolent features of George Washington, you see a man with anarchist whiskers, do not get alarmed and imagine that the 'Black Hand' or the Mafia are after you. It is only a picture of a gentleman named John Smith who landed in this country a great many years ago with a few companions and a permit from the King of England to light anywhere they pleased on a strip of land not to exceed four degrees in width, bounded on the east by the Atlantic ocean and on the west by the Herperian gardens which were supposed to be the last stop before getting to the jumping off place." An account then follows, a column in length, telling what John Smith would do if he were alive today; altogether, the conceit is a quaint and breezy bit of humor, and incidentally the best kind of advertising for the Jamestown stamps.

Turkey's Enterprise—An Associated Press despatch has been given prominence in the newspapers in which the statement is made that the Turkish minister at Washington has announced that the Turkish government has ordered that an aggregate of seventeen million postage stamps of obsolete issues of the Ottoman empire be disposed of at auction. This huge number of stamps is to be sold for the benefit of the fund for the completion of the Hagiz railroad, which is in course of construction from Damascus to Beirut. The road is financed by the government of Turkey, some of the municipalities, and many of the citizens, and so, the contribution of "more than one hundred denominations which have been issued by the government during forty-three years" is not a wholly sordid transaction, in a utilitarian sense. Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister to Washington will forward bids that may be sent him to the Golden Horn. An intimation that the Turkish government contemplated the course that now seems to have been decided upon was given some time ago, and opinion was offered as to the philatelic consequences of this wholesale contribution to the available supply of stamps for collecting purposes. Many of the Turkish stamps are very desirable unused and some collectors will argue that it is an advantage for them to be afforded an opportunity to secure the specimens at the smallest fraction of present prices, as will be inevitable if the great bulk of remainders is thrown on the market. This argument is about the only favorable construction that may be placed on the impending transaction, that is to be consummated in August, as philatelists must study effects; they cannot be expected to enter into the sentiment proper enough in itself, that surrounds the sale, the furtherance of a benefit to all Turkey, we suppose. It is the collector who bought his unused Turkish stamps at prices based on catalogue who complains of the method that causes a depreciation in the price of his stamps, after he had got them; and every sale of remainders has a tendency to cause him a disquiet that is not wholly warranted by the comparatively few number of such sales that have been made.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

E. M.:—Aniline colors usually are a bit brighter than mineral colors, and are as you say, quite soluble in water. Comparison with ordinary colors will often reveal the characteristics of aniline prints; and in time, one may become expert enough distinguish between the two. (2). It is sacrilegious in a philatelic sense, and wholly indefensible to clip off the perforations of one stamp, with the intention of having the mutilated specimen masquerade as an imperforate of the same design; we believe that this folly is rarely committed nowadays, and no collector with the true spirit could rest content in knowing that his imperforate was a manipulated specimen.

M. E. G.:—Postal packet stamps are used on packages that are sent by railroad train under postal supervision. (2) "The letters 'D.P.' surcharged upon the Hong Kong stamps stand for Daily Press, a local newspaper which is allowed to mark its stamps to prevent theft." (3) A specimen showing only a part of the watermark that appears normally entirely on the stamp gives no added value to the specimen. (4) Nearly any dealer can furnish the stamps named; send a want-list, which, as the name implies, is a list of stamps wanted in particular.

Through the courtesy of J. J. Ruzicka, Chicago, we are enabled to give information, rather more reliable in its character, than that incorporated in the original item concerning the handsome line-engraved labels, the product of the American Bank Note Company, that were referred to in this column several weeks ago. Our correspondent writes: "These are charity stamps in a sense, only we call them 'National Revenue' or 'Tax Stamps,' as the proceeds from their sale are applied solely to the creation of a fund for the education (college and higher education, in general) of young Bohemian-Americans. The movement was started by Mr. W. F. Severa of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and the stamps are sold in blocks or sheets of 24 and 160 respectively. The labels have nothing to do with Hungary; they were issued on behalf of Bohemia, and were designed by a Bohemian-American artist of Chicago."

C.:—The Nicaragua, 1906, surcharged "Vale" and new value are reported as being overprinted vertically or horizontally with equal frequency. (2) "I have a French stamp, Peace and Commerce type, 15c blue, with a six-pointed star cut in it, between the two allegorical figures. The stamp is on a piece of the original cover and the star is not cut through the envelope; this shows that the star was so cut before the stamp was placed on the envelope. I should like any information on the subject of this stamp." Unless there is some reason accounting for this mutilation that has escaped us, the marking is done with governmental permission, no doubt, by some large firm of stamp users with the intention of preventing the theft or unauthorized use of the stamps. (3) No. 758, United States, is perforated. (4) The designs of the 1905 issue of Spain are based upon incidents described in Cervantes' immortal "Don Quixote;" the set celebrated the tercentenary of the appearance of the first part of the work in 1605.

A friend to the WEEKLY who read in the issue of June 22nd that Sterling's catalogue of United States revenue stamps issued in 1888 was out of print and no longer obtainable from the publisher, writes that he has several copies, that he will probably be willing to dispose of to students of U. S. revenues. We shall not hesitate to place any reader who may write in reference to the catalogue in communication with our patron.

W. C. Stone, Springfield, Mass., writes: "Gibbons' Weekly (Volume II, I think) had an article on Hong Kong cancellations that may help 'O' to what he asks in the issue of June 22nd." In this connection, William Herzstock, Chicago, writes: "I have a Chinese one-cent postcard with two ½ cent stamps, No. 64, and two 2-cent stamps of Hong Kong, No. 34, affixed. Chinese stamps canceled, Canton 18 Apr. 98; Hong Kong stamps canceled, Hong Kong Ap. 19. 98."

M. P. P.:—Generally speaking the counterfeit of a watermark stamp cannot be successful as to the watermark. However, forgers have been known to trace the outlines of watermarks on their counterfeits by using a fatty substance of some kind, with the result that when held to the light, the stamp seems somewhat translucent along the markings. Perhaps, acid solutions have been used in an endeavor to simulate watermarks; and we have read in an old stamp paper of the sixties describing a forgery of the rare "V. R." of Great Britain, one penny black: "In some cases, the mark of the small crown is produced on the paper, probably by some application of acid. This leaves a white outline, but no one need be deceived, for, on holding the stamp to the light, there is nothing that has gone below the surface: the apparent watermark is a mere surface sham." Thus, it is seen that all the imitations of watermarks are superficial and not the result of a thinness of paper caused by the wires in the manufacture of the paper. (2) Your complaint about the obscurity of watermarks is a common one. Practice in searching for watermarks will make the task easier; and since the advent of the benzine cup, it is only rarely that serious trouble is found in descrying the most elusive watermark. (3) It was about 1888 that watermarks were generally given attention by cataloguers in this country. Very many collectors, however, here, gave heed to them before this time.

Several readers have inquired about inverted and reversed watermarks, and one of them, Mr. Steinmetz, Philadelphia, who has the one penny, St. Vincent, pale lake, perforated 14, type I, with crown and CA reversed, and reading CA, instead of AC, when viewed from the back, calls attention to an article on watermarks that appeared in the Australian Philatelist for May. In this article, we find several paragraphs that are pertinent in view of the specimen just mentioned. For instance: "Another factor in favor of the study of watermarks is that their variations are usually of a distinctive character, and not so minute in detail or the result of accident as is often the case with those on the face of the stamp:" and "If not of equal importance with other branches of philately, the investigation of watermarks, including those inverted and reversed, is not only exceedingly interesting but very profitable." An inverted watermark is usually caused by feeding the sheet into the press upside down, while a reversed watermark is the result of placing the sheet in the press wrong side up. "A watermark may be both inverted and reversed, caused by feeding the sheet to the press both upside down and wrong side up." The tendency has been not to attach much importance to watermark varieties of these kinds, but it is noticed that an English publication is now compiling a list of all the current stamps that show the watermark inverted. We cannot tell what cataloguers of the future will do with varieties of the kind, but now they dismiss them with scant ceremony in some general note of information on the subject. The specialist, we take it, is prone to give the inverted and reversed watermarks some attention.

L. S.:—The envelope described is a Confederate provisional, that is now catalogued under Montgomery, Alabama, 5-cent red; it was one of the later varieties that were admitted into the catalogue some years ago, and the value of your specimen and that of others under this section is not so well established as that of the specimens long recognized in the work. Auction prices on these provisionals range around fifteen to twenty dollars in many cases of similar provisionals. (2) The two revenue stamps are private proprietary issues, 1861 period, E. A. Wilson, 12 cent blue, catalogued at two dollars on silk paper, and Edward Wilder, 4-cent lake, die cut, catalogued at one dollar on watermarked paper. There is one paper variety of each of these stamps, priced at somewhat higher figures. (3) Your green stamp, no value given, picture of Jefferson, we cannot place.

Reader:—This correspondent describes a label, 32 by 22mms, in size, printed by the American Bank Note Co., perforated 12. "In the lower left hand corner is a tablet with the inscription, 'In Wyoming, Utah, and Idaho, women vote on equal terms with men.' The principal design is that of a college girl." This label has no philatelic interest and no doubt was issued to advance the cause of "woman's emancipation."

—F. D. Goodhue of Cincinnati, Ohio, sends us printed matter of the Return Postage Association of New York and Washington. Frequent references to the purposes of this association have been seen in the general press. Its object is to supply return post cards and envelopes to the public, those to be paid for that have actually been put into use. A great deal is claimed for the enterprise, and its originators are certain that it will be only a short time before the government will take advantage of the "return postage" proposition.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was not ced

UNITED STATES.—J. R. Hammerle is the first to show the Chronicler the new post card, with portrait of McKinley in a new engraving. The card is of the regulation size and printed on the usual quality buff card, but the engraving is entirely different. The stamp is of small size, upright, with square corners and straight sides. After the more recent fanciful issues this one seems very plain, even severe. The head of McKinley is printed within a circle, facing to the left. Around the circle is "United States of America," while below on ribbon is "McKinley" and the dates, "1843" and "1901." At the bottom in two lines is printed "Postage—One Cent." There are only two lines of printing on the card outside of the stamp, "Postal Card," in large shaded type, and "The space below is for the address only" in the usual skeleton letters. These two lines are printed just above the centre line, while the stamp is in the upper right corner.

Post Card.

Reginald W. Orcutt has shown us a specimen of the new "American Consular Service" stamps, the $2.50 value. The stamp is of small size, with plain rule border, the above three words appearing in two lines at the top, while "Fee Stamp" is printed in one line at the bottom. The value appears in an ornamental frame in the centre.

AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH.— According to the Melbourne Argus, the Postmaster General is apparently in earnest in the effort to bring about a uniform series of stamps of approved design. The membership of the proposed advisory committee is being considered, but the employment of experts in connection with such questions as designing, engraving, printing, finances, watermarks, paper and precautions against forgery has been definitely decided upon. Gum, colors and permanent or fugitive inks are also matters for consideration by experts. A representative of the Philatelic Society will be on the committee, the unofficial members of which are to be paid for their services.

The Postmaster General hopes to secure the consent of the Australian Federal Parliament to establish penny postage throughout the Commonwealth, with uniform rates on magazines, books, etc. The questions of defining what constitutes a newspaper, and establishing reasonable rates of postage for the same are involved.

AUSTRIA.—A foreign paper calls attention to the fact that next year is to be jubilee year in Austria. The Emperor Francis Joseph, now almost if not actually the Patriarch of European sovereigns, will celebrate the 60th anniversary of his accession, and the occasion is to be commemorated by a series of stamps, which is to reflect the history of interesting periods of the Imperial dynasty. The series will consist of ten stamps, and the portraits are to be taken from Austria's gallery of Emperors, beginning with Charles VI, father of Maria Theresa, and including that famous Empress, Joseph II, Leopold II, Francis I, Ferdinand I, and several of the reigning Emperor. The values will be from one to 35 heller.

CHILE.—Gibbons' Monthly illustrates some curious provisional official stamps recently issued in this country. The design is an oblong rectangle, with a foul anchor in centre, placed diagonally; at top the words "Correspondencia Oficial," and at foot "Chile—Ministerio de Marina," in two lines. Each stamp is overprinted "Carta" or "Oficio," and is numbered consecutively in violet or black.

MONTENEGRO. — L'Echo de la Timbrologie chronicles an entirely new set of stamps for this country, the values being expressed in paras instead of hellers. In the new issue the Prince is represented in Montenegrin dress, wearing a cap. The values and colors of the new set, which includes postage due and A. R. stamps, are given below.

Ewen's reports that there are a number of varieties of the issue surcharged "Constitution—Ustav—Nikoljdan" arising from differences in the size of the overprint.

WESTERN AUSTRALIA.—The 5d yellow stamp has been issued on Crown A paper.

BISECTED STAMPS OF BR. GUIANA.

BY E. A. V. ABRAHAM.

It has always been a matter of doubt whether the bisected stamps of British Guiana were genuine. I am glad to say that after careful research and much worry I have been able to settle the matter once and for all.

From information given me by the late Postmaster, the Honourable N. Darnell Davis, and the older members of the staff of the post office, Messrs. Charles Chapman, William Mortimer, George Goring and others, there can be not the slightest shadow of a doubt that the stamps were either bisected at the counter of the various post offices of the colony and affixed by the Postmaster himself on the envelope and then handed to the person presenting the letter for throwing in the post box, or bisected by the sender himself.

That this was the case, and that it was is evidenced by the information given by the gentlemen already referred to, is further authenticated by the fact that I myself went to the post office at Capoey, Essequebo, with a letter to post. On applying for a stamp at the counter of the post office I was told that there were no stamps of the value asked for, namely, two cents, and the letter was taken away from me by the then Postmaster, and he in my presence bisected a four cent stamp and placed the same on the envelope afterwards giving me the envelope to put in the post box, which I did. I afterwards saw the same envelope in the possession of my brother, Mr. William Abraham. With the half stamp duly cancelled.

I have also on various occasions when I was the Registrar of Court posted letters from Suddie, Essequebo, and from New Amsterdam, Berbice, the stamps being bisected in my presence and placed on the envelopes. I have seen these envelopes afterwards in the possession of various parties but as I was not collecting stamps at the time I did not think it worth my while to get specimens.

The late Mr. Wm. H. Campbell, LL. B., who was well known to me as a solicitor of the most methodical habits, always on receiving a letter carefully opened the same with a knife, and after reading the letter would replace the same in the original envelope, and endorse on the back thereof the subject matter with the name of the person in some instances and the date. After his death a raid was made on his papers, and a great quantity of stamps were found on the original envelopes. Several of the bisected ones were brought to me for purchase but as I said I was not collecting at the time, and I unfortunately allowed the opportunity to slip.

I have seen several of these envelopes with the bisected stamps lately, in the possession of Mr. Whitehead, and these envelopes have the endorsations in the writing of Mr. Campbell on them. Those that I saw are genuine.

The postmarks on the stamps referred to are mostly the old marks, but there are some of them with corked postmarks, and a few of them with the postmarks the style of which is now in use.

It is said that at the time an official notice appeared in the Official Gazette, and this is the concensus of opinion of the gentlemen who were in the post office at the time of the issue, but I have failed to find such an advertisement, although the Hon. Mr. Darnell Davis is keen on the point that such an advertisement appeared. Mr. Goring says that he would swear that it was made out. At any rate whether there was such an advertisement or no, the fact remains that the issue was sanctioned by the government.

The stamps which were thus bisected and which have passed through my hands and which I have pronounced as genuine, are:—

On orig. env., 2c, 1860, bisected diagonally.
On orig. env., 2c, 1860, bisected diagonally.
On orig. env., 2c, 1860, bisected triangularly.
On orig. env., Idem right half of stamp.
On orig. env., 4c, 1860, bisected as 1, 2, 3 and 4.

These are in the possession of Mr. Whitehead, Mr. J. F. Green, and myself:—

On original envelope, twelve cent stamp, 1860, bisected in half in the possession of Mr. Whitehead.

Twelve cent stamp bisected for a quarter stamp in the possession of Mr. J. F. Green, on the original envelope and bearing the Berbice postmark and got from the upper reaches of the Berbice river; in excellent condition.

One cent black 1860 on Official Gazette bisected horizontally.

When I speak of the stamps of 1860, I am referring to the stamps with that date on the stamps.

Collectors should be wary of purchasing these stamps, except they are guaranteed genuine in writing by the seller, as there are dozens of the bisected stamps on original envelopes which are cleverly bisected and placed on the envelope in the following manner. An envelope with the original stamp is obtained, the stamp is carefully taken off and cut, and as carefully replaced, and then the piece on which the stamp is, is cut off from the original envelope and sold, and on one occasion, when the craze was on at the time of the finding of the stamps and envelopes, some one planted a lot of them on various persons in the city and these have also been through my hands and have been pronounced as forgeries.

I was glad to get a copy of a twelve cent 1860 bisected in half vertically from Mr. Ginn of London, guaranteed as genuine, as this tends to show that any rate the dealers are awakening to the facts, and I hope soon to see that they are catalogued by all the dealers.

Besides the postal officials I have seen several persons who remember the use of the bisected stamps and who have used them for postal purposes.—Br. Guiana Phil. Journal.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The WEEKLY extends its hearty congratulations and well wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Bertram W. H. Poole, whose wedding announcement just at hand, conveys the information that they were married at St. John's Church, Stamford, June 22, 1907. They will reside at Berwood, Alexandra Road, Croydon, London, England. The many friends of Mr. Poole will rejoice that he has become a benedict.

—In a clipping just at hand, we find that Mark Twain, in company with Mr. Henniker Heaton, recently called upon the postmaster general of England, to urge the establishment of penny postage between the United States and Great Britain. Mark ridicules the present rates, especially in comparison with the postal charges on printed matter.

—A. W. Batchelder, president and manager of the New England Stamp Company, Boston, was in Chicago July 6th, for a day, on his trip to the coast, which among other cities, is to include Victoria, British Columbia. He will time his return so that he will be at Denver for the convention of the American Philatelic Association. While in Chicago, Mr. Batchelder made his headquarters at the office of P. M. Wolsieffer, where many friends and customers called on him. As customary, Mr. Batchelder carried with him a fine selection of stamps of substantial grade.

—Those members of the American Philatelic Association who must pass through Chicago on their way to Denver are requested to notify some Chicago member when they expect to reach Chicago. Arrangements no doubt will be made so that the Chicago delegation and those who pass through the city may travel to Denver in one party, and thus not alone have the pleasure of fellowship en route but also the material advantage that a large party sometimes may command.

M. P. A. CONVENTION.

In recent years few philatelic conventions aside of the A. P. A. have met with much success, however the fourth annual gathering of the M. P. A., which will be held in Syracuse, N. Y., on August 6th and 7th, will doubtless prove a huge success and a credit to the Association. A goodly number have already agreed to be in attendance and judging by the arrangement of the program everybody should be able to find something of interest.

Convention headquarters will be at Vanderbilt Hotel and all meetings will be held in the City Assembly Hall. The convention is not alone confined to members of the association but to any one interested in stamp collecting. The complete program is as follows:

Tuesday, August 6th, 7.30 P. M. Reception to visitors by Syracuse members.

Wednesday, August 7th at 9.30 A. M. Business meeting; Exhibition of stamps on original covers, John F. Seybold; Exhibition of general collections, L. M. Mintz, Lynn Crandall. 12 M. Convention photo at City Hall. 2 P. M. Visit to Syracuse University or ball game, New York League championship game. 8 P. M. Trip to "White City," the Coney Island of Syracuse.

Thursday, August 8th, 9.30 A. M. Business meeting; Exhibition of Precancelled stamps, John A. Solomon; General collection, Harland D. Munger. 2 P. M. Visit to Salt Yards or Valley Variety Show. 8 P. M Theatre party to "Keith's Theatre" or trip to Brighton Beach."

For any further information write John A. Solomon, East Greenwich, R. I., Chairman of Committee on Arrangements or Lynn Crandall, Ithaca, N. Y., Chairman of Committee on Credentials.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 10, 1907.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:

The Twenty Second Annual Convention of this Association for the election of Directors, and the transaction of such business as may legally be brought before it, will be convened in the City of Denver, State of Colorado, upon Tuesday, the thirtieth day of July, 1907, and upon the succeeding days, until all business shall have been disposed of.

I hereby appoint the following gentlemen to serve as the Committee on Credentials: A. W. Batchelder, of Boston, Mass., Chairman; F. M. Rosenthal, of Illinois; C. B. Duffy, of Ohio; O. K. Carstarphen, of Colorado; and S. B. Hopkins, of Missouri.

I have also appointed the following gentlemen as the Committee of Arrangements: C. A. Nast, Chairman; H. A. Davis, W. G. Swart, O. K. Carstarphen, and W. C. Bellows, all of Denver, Colo.

Due notice will be given through the official Journal of the location of the Convention Hall and the hour for assembling of the convention.

AN EASY METHOD TO COPY STAMPS.

BY J. LEIBLINGER, U. S. Army.

Some time ago I was called upon to copy a number of stamps to illustrate an article for publication. I succeeded fairly well, but the task consumed several hours of an afternoon, and it appealed strongly to me how beneficial a simple and easy method of stamp reproduction would be,—especially to philatelists not acquainted with secrets of photography.

To duplicate stamps by means of photography requires a good lensed camera, with careful and experienced manipulation. The chief difficulties rest in the preparation of the plate. It takes a good photographer to get a successful negative plate and not all good philatelists are experienced photographers. With a simplification of the negative the chief difficulty would be removed. The printing from the negative is considerably easier, and easy of understanding, particularly to the layman. My attention was directed toward the solution of this problem. I experimented on all occasions and spare hours, my efforts being rewarded with success. In place of the negative plate, the stamps themselves were used to print from. Stamps printed on thin or medium thick paper gave excellent copies on photopaper, while those engraved on thick paper (old Austria, Denmark, Greece), or printed in pale inks (Portugal, Austria, Sweden, etc.), on heavy original covers, or postalcards, gave resistance and refused special treatment.

The advantage of this method of reproduction is manifold. It copies the stamp in exactly the same size, it shows the structure and defects of the paper, perforation, imprint, brings out errors, surcharges, errors in surcharge; it shows cancellations, secret marks, defects in gum, etc. The time required to prepare the photo-negative, made from the stamp is saved. The use of darkroom, of extensive knowledge of photography, discarded, the cost of material greatly reduced, and above all, the simplicity of manipulation, accessible to most anybody—the young as well as the advanced philatelist—without previous knowledge of photography.

It serves for scientific purposes, for investigations and identifications; it serves to beautify the collection; can be used to index and record the treasures of a collection; to illustrate articles on stamp topics; to serve as mounts; to fill vacant spaces in the album; to bring out the watermark and the error or structure of paper, and pasted near the stamp as a record. During exchange with other collectors, a stamp copy can be sent in place of the original stamp for selection; whole sheets and pages from approval books photographed for protection and as a record.

The outfit for this kind of work is not extensive, nor expensive. It consists of:

One printing frame, 4x5",	.25
A glass plate to fit frame, without defects,	.05
One package, printing paper (solio or other printing out paper),	.20
A bottle of combined toning and fixing solution with all directions of its use,	.25
Total,	.75

Stamps, selected for reproduction are soaked in water to remove adherent paper and hinges from back. O. G. stamps are scraped carefully and freed from interfering defects, placed face down into frame, and arranged according to taste and requirements. The photopaper with glossy or sensitive side down, is laid on top of the stamps and the whole secured with the frame-cover. The frame should be exposed to strong uniform sunlight and left in position until a darker shade, as required from the finished print, is obtained. Under no condition should stamp or paper be moved while printing is going on, to avoid double impression or blurred appearance. Upon completion of the printing the photographic paper with its impression is subjected to the action of the toning and fixing both as directed by the manufacturers of the solution and printed on the bought bottles. After final washing of the copy, the paper is cut to shape and used as needed. The finished copy has a negative character. This fault can be corrected by a subsequent process, described in near future. The print as it appears now will find

AUSTRALIAN NOTES.

Some of our readers are anxious to know which was the first type of lettering of the word "Queensland" on the current 9d Commonwealth stamps, and have asked us for more precise information regarding the mixed types, which appeared subsequently. Our investigations have convinced us that the small type was first. This is corroborated by three facts: first, The Australian Journal of Philately, which chronicled the issue of this stamp on the 20th July, 1903, has an illustration of the stamp with small lettering. Second, our publishers' catalogue, 1904 edition, has a similar illustration with the same lettering. And third, Messrs. Gibbons' catalogue contains an illustration exactly similar to the two already mentioned. It is only natural to assume that these illustrations were prepared from the first stamps which came to hand, but Messrs. Gibbons have confused the matter somewhat by showing the word "Queensland" in large type (a) first, and in small type (b) second; undoubtedly they ought to be reversed. The large type is the one now in use.

Although we were under the impression that three different plates existed, Mr. Appleby has imformed us that a fourth existed also, which was followed by an issue of plate 1. The following is an extract from his letter in reply to a request from us that he would endeavor to elucidate the matter;—"Three plates existed, plate 1 has the word 'Queensland' in small letters, plate 2 has the letters in large type, and plate 3 contains three stamps of plate 1, the rest being of plate 2. There was a plate 4 also, which showed only one stamp of plate 2. This was followed by an issue of plate 1, and the last issue of the V and Crown watermark was plate 2, as was also the first issue on Crown and A."

We can only assume from these remarks that two plates were in existence at the same time and probably used concurrently, or it may be that the words "Queensland" being type set were prepared and altered according to the whim of the person entrusted with the work. It is certainly news to us to learn that the small lettering is to be found so recently as the issue on Crown and A paper in September last. Even now we are not sure that our poor brains can grasp the exact state of affairs, but what we have written will give those of our readers, who are anxious to know, something to think about.

Several correspondents have at various times directed our attention to the fact that the 2d present issue has been re-drawn. We were under he impression that we had referred to this matter several months ago, but we cannot trace it. The alterations are slight, and we think they have been done when a new electro or zinco plate was being prepared. Our opinion is that the design of the stamp is built up, so to speak. This is borne out by the fact that the same design is used for most of the values, and that, in the process of "building up" the new electro, the matrix has been "improved" by the artist in charge. A somewhat similar occurrence took place in connection with the present issue 1s Victorian stamps, which were not really re-drawn at all. It was an impression from the original die which was "operated" on. The proper term would be "re-touched."

The Philatelic Journal of Great Britain illustrates what it terms the "re-drawn" type, and gives the following description of it:—The front of the crown is higher and touches the oval frame line, the curl at the back of the head is higher, the coil of the hair touches the frame, the chin recedes more and has a somewhat "weaker" appearance, the ear is small, the point of the bust touches the frame line of the oval, and the shading on the face and neck is heavier.

Punctured Officials are now receiving more attention from philatelists than when they came into vogue. The method of producing the letter T on the Tasmania stamps is somewhat crude. A short row of needles punches first the vertical line and then the horizontal, or vice versa. The letters O.S. and O.S. N.S.W. on the New South Wales stamps were at first punched on one stamp at a time, of late they have been done in rows. The number of holes in the letters of the current set of needles differs from the first setting, but we have forgotten which were first.

The Brisbane printing office must have had a large stock of Q. and Cr. paper, as none of the Queensland stamps except the 9d printed in Melbourne, have yet come along on Commonwealth paper.

The New South Wales 10sh stamp, which was issued as a provisional in 1885 and is still in use, is a costly stamp to produce, three printings being necessary. Its withdrawal in the very near future may be anticipated.

New Zealand ½d and 1d stamps are coming over in varying shades. This is due to the following facts, viz., that supplies are only printed to requisition; small quantities are run through at one time; and the preparation of the inks is a matter evidently considered of little importance by the printers.

Judging by events, the 1d New Zealand Commemoration stamp will be much the scarcest of the whole series. In that colony one penny is the rate for the first four ounces, consequently penny stamps were mostly used in sending letters to friends from the Exhibition, and were probably in many cases destroyed. The halfpenny stamps were not used to the same extent, and like the 3d and 6d values, were purchased by or for collectors. In all probability they would be preserved, and as an equal number of each value were printed it will be seen that the pennies are not likely to be so plentiful as the others.

In some respects Gibbons' Catalogue is misleading in the description of the papers upon which these stamps were printed. As both values were in use concurrently it is only reasonable to assume that similar papers were employed for the 1d as the 2d, and yet while "thick yellowish wove" is given for both, "bluish wove" only is given for the 1d value, and "greyish wove" only for the 2d. I have frequently seen both values on the two latter papers, and of varying shades also. In fact, some of those printed on the greyish wove are so like yellow that many collectors think they really have the scarcer variety. I may say with regard to the latter that the paper is much thicker, and in the case of the 1d value especially, the stamps have a more yellowish appearance altogether, both values differing materially in shade from the bluish and greyish wove papers. Those on thick yellowish wove are fully as scarce as their price in the catalogue would indicate them to be, the 2d more so than the 1d.

It may be asserted that, following the same line of argument as the above, I should also contend that the 2d value, like the 1d, should be catalogued on "laid" paper, but I must confess I have never seen it. Perhaps that is a surprise in store for us; it is quite a possibility.—Australian Philatelist.

Are you interested? We have just received an interesting lot from the Islands, and would be glad to show selections to cash retail buyers known to us, or who furnish satisfactory references. We do not care to submit approval lots of these stamps to 10c buyers, so unless you really mean business, we should prefer not to bother, as we have no time to make up approval lots, just to show you how they look. There are all kind of "O.B.'s" in this lot, with different colors of surcharge, and varieties enough to satisfy the most exacting specialist.

We still supply stamps at 1c each, and have hundreds of varieties at that price. Lists free.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

T. F. F.:—An unused stamp may or may not have gum; if there is no cancellation or obliteration on the face of a specimen, even though the stamp may have paid postage and inadvertently not been canceled, it is yet unused. The dealer is right in his contention, in a technical sense, and his claim would be approved by almost anyone to whom you might submit the case. In "Stamps and Stamp Collecting," Major Evans says, under the head of "Unused": "Strictly speaking a stamp that has not been used for postal or fiscal purposes; but the word is frequently employed in the sense of unobliterated, in the same way as used and obliterated are too often treated as synonymous terms. It is evident that a stamp may sometimes be used and yet escape obliteration, and it is very necessary to remember that an obliteration is not always a proof that a stamp has been used."

E. D.:—We have no record of the rates of foreign postage in 1861 at hand but in 1865 when the same charges prevailed, the postage on a letter to Great Britain or Ireland was twenty-four cents; hence, the twenty-four cent stamp on your cover. In 1874, the rate to the German states were: "For every half ounce, or fraction thereof, via N. German Union direct, 6 cents; closed mail, via England, 7 cents, prepayment optional." Thus, it is seen why your cover has a seven-cent stamp on it. A few collectors would regard the two stamps in particular as being of more interest on the envelopes than otherwise; consult your own feelings in this case, and if you find that the postal markings on the covers possess an attraction for you, do not remove the stamps.

T. R. S.:—We should not care to give you advice that would be so radical as to eliminate all considerations of watermarks in your collecting, as watermarks serve a practical end in some cases, and as a cautionary measure, the collector must attend to the varieties of watermarks if he would know values. As an illustration of the usefulness of watermarks, we quote: "Take the Tuscany lions; how is it possible to tell the white from the blue paper issue? Simply by the watermarks; the blue paper has a crown and the white, lozenges for a watermark. You collect perforations and come across a Ceylon stamp that is cut close and you reject it because you cannot tell whether it has ever been perforated. Look through it and if you find a crown with the letters CC under it, you may know that it has been perforated."

Beginner:—In the following quotation from the West End Philatelist, you will find an adequate explanation of two terms concerning which you ask enlightenment, and no doubt the further information that it contains will be acceptable to you and other beginners:

"A stamp collecting expression that is in constant use is mint, or mint condition. A stamp is said to be in mint condition when it is in precisely the same state as a specimen newly issued from a stamp manufacturer's premises. That is, it must be unused, perfectly clean and fresh-looking, with full gum and without defects of any sort. An unused copy without gum, even if in the most perfect condition otherwise, could not be properly described as mint.

"In a description of a mint stamp, that is in the most perfect possible condition from a philatelist's point of view, the words well centred are often included. A mint stamp, is of course, not necessarily well-centred, for lots of the stamps issued from the post offices are more or less off centre, as it is termed. A well-centred stamp is one in which the design is as nearly as possible equidistant from the perforations on all four sides, or with a fair margin all round in the case of imperforate stamps. Where one or more sides of the design are cut into by the perforation or other method of separation the stamp is said to be off centre. Perfect centering is of course impossible in the case of some old stamps, where the specimens were arranged so closely together that no room was provided for the perforations.

"Millimetre is a familiar term in connection with all sorts of stamp-measurements and one that is now adopted universally. It is, of course, a measure in the metric system signifying the thousandth part of a metre. Perforations are gauged by the number of holes or teeth that can be counted in the space of 2 centimetres—i. e., 20 millimetres. Measurements of stamps and of surcharges are all expressed in millimetres, so that a collector will find a millimetre gauge a very useful item in his collecting equipment.

"Another familiar philatelic expression is obsolete. Stamps that are no longer on sale at a post office owing to the fact that they have been replaced by a new issue are said to be obsolete. Many obsolete stamps are available for postal duty long after they have ceased to be issued, but occasionally old issues are not allowed to be used in franking postal packets, and in this event they are said to be demonetised. A demonetised stamp, therefore, is always obsolete, but an obsolete stamp is not, of necessity, demonetised.

"Sometimes the letters o. g. follow the description of an unused stamp, and the uninitiated may be puzzled as to their meaning. These letters are a contraction of the term original gum, which refers to the fact that a stamp has the full gum with which it was originally issued. This is often important, for in many stamps the genuine legitimately issued specimens can only be identified from reprints by means of the gum."

A.:—The foreign stamp papers some months ago reported that it was the intention of the Austrian government to celebrate in 1908 the sixtieth anniversary of the Emperor Francis Joseph by the issue of a special portrait set of the various rulers of the Hapsburg line. The clipping that you mention is a reference to the plan, no doubt.

O. T.:—The Hamburg locals are no longer recognized by the makers of stamp albums. The private enterprises and their postage stamps "were suppressed after December 31, 1864, by reason of a decree of August 10, 1864, emanating from the senate and the burghers. By this decree a great number of letter-boxes were established in the city, its outskirts and rural suburbs, not only for local letters but also for international correspondence." An article by Jules Bouvez in the American Journal of Philately for March 1905, is recommended as exhaustively dealing with these private stamps. (2) Write for circulars describing the various albums, printed and blank, that are offered for sale by different publishers.

EDITORIAL.

An Instructive Plan—The specialist who is responsive to the most advanced and progressive ideas, as reflected on his study, must now not alone show stamps on the pages of his albums, but also, he must present written descriptions, brief but comprehensive, embodying all the salient reasons for the issue and use of each stamp or set of stamps, on the pages. Needless to say, such a manuscript record is of patent historical value, as well as of philatelic interest; and the evidences of study that such annotations, even if they be no more, carry, are such as to impress all who examine the collection. A collector will pore over the collection that is "written up" and bestow almost as much attention on the explanations as on the stamps, while the outsider will recognize at once the instructive bearing of the information that accompanies the stamps, no matter what his opinion may be of the stamps, themselves. The special collection that is spread on pages bearing written explanations as to the reason for the various stamp issues, attains dignity and scientific weight through the adoption of the plan. That the system is approved in the highest circles of philately is shown by the fact that in competitive exhibitions abroad, any favor that was shown in the selections by the judges of winning displays, speaking of the last year or two, avowedly centered on those that combined the written data with the stamps.

Stupendous Specialism—The extreme of thoroughness observed in the collecting of the issues of a single country by some specialists must be impressive to many collectors who are content to pursue the even tenor of their collecting way with all satisfaction to themselves. At various times in the past, references have been made to surprising special collections that evoked the wonder even of those who are accustomed to the most elevated walks of philately; and these collections seem to have reached the pinnacle of research. Still, there are always indications to prove that as philately grows, there are still greater heights to attain through specialistic endeavor. The following account of a special collection of the stamps of Alsace and Lorraine that appeared in a contemporary recently is submitted as an example of most noteworthy specialistic endeavor. It is known that the stamps of Alsace and Lorraine are limited to a single issue, comparatively few in number, yet a collection of these stamps shown at the Milan philatelic exhibition last year was of the astounding magnitude that it required fifteen volumes for its reception. The albums contained nearly eleven thousand specimens, used and unused, the used stamps on original letters and on postal cards. The Alsace and Lorraine cancellations have long been regarded as affording a fascinating field for study particularly in the estimation of French and German collectors, and in the collection under view, the markings were classified according to the following arrangement: 1, French; 2, provisional; 3, permanent; 4, military posts; and, 5, cachets of free military postage. While this great collection was not written up, according to the scheme outlined in the preceding paragraph, yet a special volume was devoted to articles, works and decrees relating to the stamps of Alsace and Lorraine.

Importance of Cancellations—Cancellations in many instances are very significant adjuncts to the stamps and this fact is often brought to the notice of the ordinary collectors who do not always ignore their claims to recognition. The collector who has a blank album is likely to give place to the Indian stamps with Zanzibar cancellations, as forerunners to the first issue of Zanzibar, even though he does not call himself a specialist. Colonial cancellations on the regular issues of Great Britain and France are watched for, and it is remembered that the German stamps with colonial postmarks were very popular before the distinctive stamps were prepared for the respective possessions. During the Spanish-American war, the military postmarks on United States stamps used in Cuba, the Philippines and Porto Rico were much esteemed, and later, the military postmarks employed on American stamps in China were welcomed. The most striking illustration afforded recently, of the value of a postmark is that of the authentification of the C. T. surcharge on the one shilling South Australia, in error for G. T. (Goolwa Tramways) by the postmark, Goolwa, a stamp in Lord Crawford's collection.

Rather Rough—Among those who attended the annual dinner of the Herts Philatelic Society, England, was Sir Harry Johnston, the well-known African explorer, who kept his auditors in merry mood by his well turned wit. As to the Liberian stamps, said he, their designs were much admired by him, even though he could not commend the artist upon his delicacy in the choice of subjects, as "his selection of the chimpanzee for one of the stamps was not received as a happy idea: in fact, in the eyes of some mistaken folk the picture was regarded as so very like other inhabitants of the country that he had been very unfortunate in his design." This cut, indeed, is unkind, coming, as it does from an African explorer, supposed to speak ex cathedra, but the attention of the indignantly protesting freemen of Liberia should be called to the fact that only "some mistaken folk" made the error. Still, the Liberians may not be disposed to exculpate Sir Harry and to receive mollifying explanation, as they nurse the affront given them some years ago, by a German philatelic editor who said that the face of the venerable President Gibson, on the 1903 registration stamps seemed to be that of a poodle dog. Now, say the Liberians sarcastically, they suppose that some one will find fault with the Agama lizard on one of the stamps of its latest set.

In Favor—From the Australian Philatelist, we learn that arrangements are in progress to place the British Solomon Islands stamps on an international basis, and that the stamps were issued with due authority. The Resident Commissioner of these islands says that the stamps were printed in Sydney, New South Wales, but that he is not entirely satisfied with them, and this, together with the fact that some of the colors of the stamps do not conform to those stipulated by the postal union is almost assurance that the first set will have but a short career and be replaced by other stamps. Referring to the Papua surcharge, the information is given to account for the change: "It is quite permissible to change the name of the country under the new regime if it is considered desirable to do so. The inhabitants have all along been known as 'Papuans,' and the new name is much more applicable than the old was, seeing that the latter had to be shared with German New Guinea and Dutch New Guinea."

Denver Awaits You—The Denver convention of the American Philatelic Association is within hailing distance, and we have reason to believe that the gathering will be one that will register a progressive step in the affairs of the association. The decidedly spirited political campaign is practically at a close and the energy of the members that for the time being was centered in the promotion of candidates will be applied to the furtherance of the welfare of the association and well-being of philately. The indications are that the attendance at Denver will not be restricted to those whose names are appearing on the roster and not a few members have written saying that while it was morally certain that they would attend the annual meeting, yet for different reasons, they would not certify to that effect. Denver has made adequate preparations for the entertainment of a large number of guests and is prepared to receive one and all with sincere hospitality.

NATIONAL STAMP COMMITTEE WORK.

Resume of Results under the Leadership of Mr. Burroughs.

WEST ARLINGTON, BALTIMORE, MD.,
July 1, 1907.

GENTLEMEN:—

As all reports made to you heretofore pertaining to my stamp publicity work have been of a fragmentary character, and as I am able now to give you a more tangible idea of what I have done under your auspices during the past nine months, I beg to submit herewith some observations upon this work together with figures which will doubtless prove of considerable interest and of possible value.

Throughout this work I have tried to bear in mind the fundamental principle upon which was founded my plan of action as originally laid before you. That is, that it was my purpose to go to the newspapers of the country with readable stories free from technicalities that would tend to discourage and prove uninteresting to the average patron of the papers. I did not presume to write with the authority of an expert, for I am not an expert. I did not presume to write for the edification of those experienced in philately for I was more fitted to learn than to teach. But I wrote to reach and to interest the thousands and tens, and hundreds of thousands of people in this country to whom the world of philately is as a closed book; to reach and to interest those hordes who misunderstandingly regard stamp collecting as a trifling hobby of early childhood, and to show them—not by argument—but by the presentation of simple facts, the value and fascination of the science to all men of every condition. I worked to invade a field in which stamp literature has never had more than an occasional foothold.

Without egotism I may say that philatelic stories never had a larger general circulation than they have had under the system I have been following as your agent. To what extent they have been successful in bringing converts to the shrine and in awakening interest among the indifferent it is not within my power to say, but certainly it is reasonable to suppose that some of the seed fell on good ground, and that it may bring forth fruit an hundredfold is no more the desire of the most earnest philatelist than it is of your humble servant.

I present herewith a record of each story sent out by me under your auspices. This record is as accurate as it is possible to make it, but, for reasons which your committee may understand, is not complete. This is due to the fact that in spite of all efforts made to secure information concerning the disposition of the stories by the newspapers after they receive them it is impossible to learn of every case in which a story is used.

In communications to your secretary I have referred to the various methods adopted to secure the fullest information of the circulation of the several stories, but these methods, while as thorough as could be applied with the means at hand, have not proved infallible and I do not believe in the case of any one story have I been able to obtain a complete list of the papers using it.

Some of the editors regularly mail me copies of their papers containing these stories of mine; others do so occasionally; some drop me a line informing me of the use of the articles; but by far the larger percentage put themselves to the trouble of neither of these forms of acknowledgment. For information concerning this latter class I have to rely upon two sources; first, the exchanges of the local newspaper offices to which I have access; second, the kindness of friends to whose observation have come clippings from papers not accessible to me.

In the table accompanying this I have indicated the papers known to have published the stories, this knowledge having been obtained in the several ways I have referred to. It is my conscientious belief that if it had been possible to carefully follow up each manuscript it would have been found that at least 25 per cent. more papers used it than I have been able to record.

It has frequently been possible to fill in blanks in the record many weeks after dates set for publication. Editors lay aside stories on account of the pressure of other stories deemed of more necessity, and then use the pigeonholed articles at the first convenient date. For instance, I have recently received a copy of the Providence Tribune of June 16th publishing the Cretan stamp story. That story was mailed February 9th for use February 17th, and appeared four months after I had reason to suspect it had been consigned to the waste basket.

I have not attempted to furnish a list of all the papers to which the stories have been sent. Their name is legion. As a rule 75 to 100 copies of each article have been sent out. In the case of "Philately a Science" story it was sent to several hundred editors. Here follows a table (Omitted from lack of space—ED.) showing the papers known to have used the various stories.

NOTE A. The very large number of copies of the "Philately a Science" story sent out made it impracticable to keep such a record as I was able to provide for each of the other articles. This story went into every State in the Union and throughout Canada, and if the same per cent. of papers used it as used my other stamp articles it must have been published in more than one hundred of them.

NOTE B. I include in this table the George Washington story. This was not sent out under the auspices of the National Stamp Committee, however, but was syndicated by me without expense to the committee, save that it furnished me with cuts as usual for illustrating. The fact that the article was offered for sale to but a few papers and was not given away accounts for its small circulation.

NOTE C. There has not been time yet to hear from several papers which I am confident used the Flower stamp article.

NOTE D. The A. P. A. Convention story is in preparation.

From the detailed table I have compiled the following summary showing the number of papers known to have used each story and the circulation of those papers according to the newspaper directory:

Name of Story.	Released.	Used by.	Circulation.
Rare Stamps	Oct. 21	24	911,500
Animals	Nov. 11	30	1,245,500
Xmas (Cross)	Dec. 23	35	1,277,500
Birds	Jan. 13	28	999,500
Science (King Edward)	Jan. 21			Note A
GeorgeWashington	Feb. 24	6	155,000	Note B
Crete	Feb. 17	28	1,123,500
Don Quixote	Mar. 31	28	1,078,500
Jamestown	April 14	26	890,500
War	May 26	22	807,500
Flowers	June 30	17	884,000	Note C
A.P.A.Convention	July 28			Note D

If I am correct in my conclusions based on the incomplete figures I have given in the two tables the stories have been used about 400 times and have had a combined circulation approaching 15,000,000.

I wish to thank your committee for its many courtesies and kind co-operation in the work I have odne, for the suggestions made and for the data furnished. Your worthy secretary, Mr. Wylie, has been of immeasurable assistance. I am also indebted to Mr. Howes and others for valuable material for my stories.

If, when my present labors for the cause of philately are concluded, you feel that my work has been worthy and deem it the part of wisdom to continue the crusade I shall be glad to resume the task, which I have found a most pleasant, interesting and instructive one.

With sincerest regards for each individual member of your committee and executive board, and with very best wishes for philately, I am

Respectfully,
DWIGHT BURROUGHS.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed AUSTRIA.—Mr. Schachne has the latest change on the current 5h card for Bohemia. Instead of "(Deutsch—Bohm.)" in the lower right hand corner we now find only ("d. b.)"

Post Card.

5h green on buff, "(d. b.)"

BAVARIA.—Mr. Schachne informs us of the arrival of the "07" card of 5x5pf, which is identical with that of last year.

Post Card.

5x5pf green on buff, T. 3.; date "07."

CANADA. — C. W. Cruickshank has shown us a specimen of the new "Third Class" precancel, on 1c King's Head stamp, with "Bridgeburg" at the top, and the whole surcharge inverted.

A. McKechnie writes that he has been officially informed that the Dominion Post Office Department will shortly issue a series of wrappers, of the values of 1c, 2c and 3c, to meet the requirements of the new postage rates on periodicals, etc.

Later, Mr. McKechnie sends us a clipping from the Ottawa Journal, saying that the distribution of the new wrappers had already begun. They are issued for the exclusive use of publishers when prepaying postage on second-class matter addressed to the United States. The wrappers are considerably larger than the ordinary post band, and bear the following restrictive clause: "This wrapper to be used only by publishers and for the sole purpose of mailing second-class matter to the United States."

HONDURAS.— Fetherston Bros. have favored us with used copies of the 1c and 6c values of the 1907 set. The differences between this and the previous set were described in No. 840.

IVORY COAST. — The North Shore Stamp Co. has shown us the 20c value in the new French West Africa set, which was described before, though this value is just at hand.

LUXEMBURG.—A new series of postage due stamps has been issued by the Grand Duchy, according to Champion's Bulletin. The stamps are of the same size as the regular postage set, but have no portrait of the Grand Duke. The arms of the country appear on a large shield at the top, while the value appears in a large white octagon in the lower part of the stamp, the figures of value being double lined. "Grand-Duche" reads up at the left, and "de Luxembourg" down at the right, while "à payer" is printed across the bottom. The stamps are perforated 12½.

THE DENVER STAMP CLUB.

C. A. NAST, Pres.; O. K. CARSTARPHEN, Vice Pres,; H. A. DAVIS, Sec'y, 1622 Welton St.; W. G. SWART, Treas.; S. SCHWERZMANN, Sales Mgr.; Trustees, A. M. BALLAU, J. S. DAVIS and W. W. BIGLER.

DENVER, COLO., July 9, 1907.

President Nast called the 20th regular meeting to order at 8 o'clock with 18 members present. The minutes of the 19th regular meeting were read and approved. Printing Committee submitted their report which was accepted. The Committee received a vote of thanks and were discharged. A new Committee was appointed by President Nast to issue hand programs of entertainment during convention week; Hoffman, Gething and Vanderhoof have this matter in charge.

The Club voted to purchase two barrels of foreign stamps to be given to the daily papers which will be distributed in packets of 25 different, to want ad patrons of the Denver dailies. The stamps will be put in envelopes bearing a suitable inscription to advertise Philately and the Denver Stamp Club and the Junior Stamp Club of Denver.

The Club then went into committee of the whole to perfect arrangements for entertaining the A. P. A. delegates. Meeting adjourned 11 00 p. m.

H. A. DAVIS, Sec.

NOTICE TO MEMBERS.

A special meeting of the Club will be held July 23d, regular time and place, to complete all arrangements for entertaining our visitors. It is desired that every one of the 44 city members be present at this last meeting previous to the opening of 22d Annual Convention, A. P. A.

Members who have not done so will please send a nice copy of a rare stamp to President Nast, Box 14, to be photographed and published in the Sunday papers. A stamp printed in dark colors is most suitable for this purpose.

H. A. DAVIS, Sec.

St. Louis Stamp Collectors' Society.

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHOEMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-first regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, July 9, 1907, usual time and place, President Cornwall presiding and thirteen members present.

The amusement of the evening was furnished by a prize contest requiring the identification of enlarged drawings of Surcharges reproduced from the Catalogue by President Cornwall, who also offered the prize carried off by Mr. Hopkins, who correctly listed eight out of ten items. An impromptu auction, "swapping" of stamps and stamp stories and discussions of topics of the day completed a most enjoyable meeting.

Next meeting Tuesday, July 23d, Rooms 803 805 Wright Bldg. Don't miss it.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Joseph L. Weber of Osborne, Kans., sends us a copy of the local News, which refers at length to the immense accumulation of postage stamps that Mr. Weber has made during recent years.

—Dr. F. P. Luellen, in renewing his sub. for two years, states that he has been a reader of our paper for four years and while he has read many other philatelic papers "MEKEEL'S is head and shoulders above them all."

—The Richland Stamp Co. reports unsatisfactory trade relations with the Oregon Stamp Co., 16 Oregon Av., Chicago, Ill. The manager of this company is S. M. Ettinger.

—The American Envelope Society admitted 22 members at its last meeting. Two of this number are foreign collectors, one of them the Baroness de Heusch, Germany. The society is going right along, and is destined to occupy an important position in the philatelic world.

—Elsewhere in this issue will be found an index for the year 1903. Reprints will be made and any subscriber wishing a specimen will be accommodated upon application to this office.

—R. E. Scheerer, Pottsville, Pa., is another Campbell victim. Jan. 1 of the present year an approval selection was sent and no notice is taken of letters sent requesting return of selection.

—The Ilium Stamp Club of Troy, N. Y., is holding successful meetings during the summer months. The club has been distributing free packets of stamps among the school children and in other ways working to bring about an interest in philately. The members feel very much encouraged with the success of the club work.

—Thomas F. Nelson of Washington, D. C., submits a proof from a photo negative of a cover, both back and front, which illustrates the method in vogue prior to the issue of stamps, indicating "postage due." It consists of a label signed by John C. Montgomery, postmaster at Phila., with the date Sept. 17, 1842. We quote the notice in full:—

Your Correspondent, as you will perceive, has written "PAID" on this letter; but I conceive it to be my duty to inform you that the postage was not paid. Will you have the goodness to ascertain whether or not the money was sent to this office for that purpose? I am induced to be thus particular, because I have known so many instances in which faithless messengers have retained the money, and deposited the letters unpaid,—thereby committing a fraud, disappointing the intentions of the writer, and reflecting unmerited censure upon the Post Office Department.

The word "PAID" on the face is cancelled and "not" inserted before it.

MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS.

INDEX TO VOLUME XVII : 1903.

NOTE.—Regular features, to be found in almost every issue, are not indexed. These include: Editorial, Chronicle, Weekly Review, Boston, Chicago and Washington Notes, "In a Few Lines," "Philatales," and Society Reports. Items of special importance, however, which occur under these headings, have been indexed by their subject matter. References in general are to subjects rather than in the exact form of the titles.

The first four numbers of this volume were paged consecutively from the previous volume. Pages 483–516 should therefore be pages 1–34; and both numbers are given in the index—the former in parenthesis.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., May 10, 1907.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:

The Twenty Second Annual Convention of this Association for the election of Directors, and the transaction of such business as may legally be brought before it, will be convened in the City of Denver, State of Colorado, upon Tuesday, the thirtieth day of July, 1907, and upon the succeeding days, until all business shall have been disposed of.

I hereby appoint the following gentlemen to serve as the Committee on Credentials: A. W. Batchelder, of Boston, Mass., Chairman; F. M. Rosenthal, of Illinois; C. B. Duffy, of Ohio; O. K. Carstarphen, of Colorado; and S. B. Hopkins, of Missouri.

I have also appointed the following gentlemen as the Committee of Arrangements: C. A. Nast, Chairman; H. A. Davis, W. G. Swart, O. K. Carstarphen, and W. C. Bellows, all of Denver, Colo.

Due notice will be given through the official Journal of the location of the Convention Hall and the hour for assembling of the convention.

WILLIAM C. STONE, Pres.
A. F. HENKELS, Sec.

SUPPLEMENTAL NOTICE.

June 25, 1907.

Headquarters of the Convention will be at the Albany Hotel, and the first session will be called to order there Tuesday, July 30, 1907, at 7.30 a. m. that an adjournment may be taken to reassemble on the summit of Pike's Peak at 3.30 p. m. for the formal session.

O. K. Carstarphen, member of the Committee on Credentials, finding that business will keep him from Denver until after the convention, has resigned his position and I have appointed in his place August H. Hoffman of Denver.

Please bear in mind that the polls close at noon July 29th and ballots must be in the hands of the committee by that date to be counted.

Many members have ordered Blank Books but only used part of them so I would be glad to have any unused books returned to me as the supply is almost exhausted and I do not intend to print another edition, leaving that for the new Superintendent, so he will have new books with his address on.

All members participating in the Dept. are particularly requested to be prompt in sending in report slips with remittance in order that the accounts can be properly closed. Credit cannot be allowed under any circumstances, the By-Laws prohibiting that feature, as the Dept. is conducted on a strictly cash basis whether you have books circulating in the Dept. or not.

New members can only be placed on circuits and receive books if they request it. No circuits are sent to members unsolicited and notice must be given to the Superintendent if you desire to be placed on a circuit.

Also if you desire to be taken off the circuit list you must allow sufficient time for any circuit that may be on the way to you.

Regular meetings 2nd Monday at Oppenheimer's Hall, 514 9th St., N. W.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8, 1007.

The twentieth regular meeting of the Washington Philatelic Society was held on the above date at home of Prof. Milton Whitney, Takoma Park. In the absence of the president, Prof. Whitney, Vice Pres., called the meeting to order. The usual routine business was transacted, after which those present inspected the fine collection of the host.

His collection contains about 14,000 varieties and includes so many good things that to particularize would extend beyond the limits of this notice. He has an exceptionally fine lot of original covers, both United States and foreign. The viewing of the collection was a treat and was enjoyed by all.

ENVELOPE COLLECTING AS A SUMMER PASTIME.

BY L. G. BARRETT.

Now that vacation time is at hand and most collectors are putting their treasures in cold storage against the sticky season, it seems an opportune time to remind them of the advantages of envelope collecting during this period of rest with adhesives.

To begin with a true philatelist never tires of collecting and there are many who believe the summer is the time to pick up bargains in their favorite countries, contending (not always successfully either) with the combination of original gum and humidity, and the curling propensities of various kinds of paper.

This is all very well for those who prefer to take such risks, but why should the remainder stop collecting entirely in summer, when envelopes, either entire or cut square are easily handled and carried around with little if any of the dangers effecting adhesives?

Again, during the summer nearly everyone tries to get away on a vacation for a more or less extended period, and generally the place selected for this change of scene is at some distance from ones home, often in another state or remote section of our country, but never very far, wherever you may go, from one or more of Uncle Sam's post offices. So, this summer in particular, is especially favorable to the collecting of U. S. envelopes, for with the issuance of a new series scheduled to appear on the first of July, many offices will have portions of both the new and the current series on sale and sometimes even of the one preceding with the oval die.

Probably most collectors are aware by this time that the series of 1903 (now obsolete) was full of varieties, due to the retouching of worn dies of the 2c denomination.

As every post office, whether it be in a large city or in a cross-roads grocery store has its own special printings of stamped envelopes known as "Office request" envelopes, and as these were almost sure to be from a retouched die it will be seen that the chances are pretty good of picking up many of the varieties at a merely nominal cost, if one will only take the slight trouble to call at every P. O. he may be near and purchase two envelopes of this description. The cost will be five cents and you will have a copy for your own collection and a desirable duplicate for exchange purposes. In what other line can so interesting a collection be gotten together with so little expense and trouble? Besides, every envelope, bearing its town or office name, serves as a reminder of pleasant days when in the future you look them over, and can recall the incidents connected with the trip and their purchase.

Also when you are at a post office ask if there are any of the 1899 issue left over. Generally you will find that there are, tucked away below the counter or on upper shelves.

If you will look at the back of one of the envelopes of the 1903 series with the top flap open, you will notice that the two side flaps do not meet by about one inch, and that the bottom flap is gummed over these side flaps. This particular "cut" of the flaps, or "knife" as it is technically called, was adopted only about a year before the 1899 series was succeeded by the 1903 issue. So if you find copies of the 1899 issue with this style "knife" the chances are that you have found a good thing, especially if it be on colored paper or on an uncommon size. Some of these have only just been found, four years since their issue, and more are liable to be found at any time if we will only look for them.

For the first three years of the 1899 series the side flaps met with the right hand one gummed over the left, and there was only a slight curved thumb notch at top to facilitate the removal of the contents of the envelope. The envelopes of this style "knife" are naturally in most cases much the commoner.

While I am on the subject of envelopes, I will make some corrections in my descriptions as published in the WEEKLY on April 6 and 13th. Since then the following types have been found to be the same as others in the is now on hand. It contains 40 pages and brings the work down to May 31, 1907.

list:—

Types 102 and 116 were same as Type 126, but as the printed description of Type 126 fitted the variety better it was retained and the type remained as Type 126, this leaving 102 and 116 vacant.

Type 109 was found to be same as Type 72; Type 117 was found to be same as Type 106; Type 131 was found to be same as Type 98; so Types 102, 109, 116, 117, 131 of the published list were vacant.

Recently, however, three new varieties have come to light, and they have been put in to fill the gaps, being numbered 102, 109 and 116 respectively, so at the present writing only Types 117 and 131 are vacant. The descriptions of these new varieties follows:—

Type 102. (Size 3 on W, BU, BL; Size 5 on W, A, BU, BL; Size 7 on W, BU, BL; Size 8 on W, A; Size 11 on W; Size 13 on W, A.)

This variety is very similar to the original die, but is much heavier cut and has a sharper, clearer appearance than any original ever had.

(a) There are from 4 to 6 shade-lines in left swallow-tails where the originals, even in the earliest scarlet printings never showed more than 3.
(b) The shade-lines at both ends of lower ribbon are heavier than in the originals and the lower lobe at left end of lower ribbon has a continuous outline, where the originals seemed to be in two parts.
(c) All the inscriptions seem to have been recut.

(Note:—It has been asked whether a worn printing of this die could be distinguished from the original die impression. I can only say that it has appeared so late in the series that it was probably never used enough to become badly worn.)

Type 109. (Size 5 on W.)

(a) Three very long shade-lines at left end of lower ribbon.
(b) T of TWO low down and W tall.
(c) C of CENTS far from E, nearly midway between O of TWO and E.
(d) Second T of STATES leans back towards A.
(e) A and E of POSTAGE small.
(Earliest date seen, June 15, '07.)

Type 116. (Size 13 on W.)

(a) U of UNITED very large, extending full width of ribbon.
(b) E of STATES leans back, and A has outwardly curving side strokes.
(c) POST of POSTAGE very close, PO touching.
(d) TWO low down in ribbon.
(e) Both halves of left swallow-tail broad and sparsely shaded.
(f) At right end of lower ribbon the remnants of old shade-lines show between the newer ones.
(g) Third shade-line at left end of lower ribbon is very short and close to lower line of ribbon.
(Earliest date seen, June 18, '07.)

A different quality of amber paper has been used lately, of a very pale color which might be called manila-amber. It is very distinct and can be picked out easily,—so far these types have been found on it:—Original die; Spurred 7 variety of original; 7; 84; 90; 111; 126.

The 1c, Size 5, has also been found on the new white paper and watermark as described in any former article.

The corrected list of types appearing on the various sizes to date are as follows:—

Size 1, Types 32, 42, 54, 57, 63, 76;
Size 2, Types 29, 32, 42, 54, 63, 76, 108, 126;
Size 3, Types 17, 20, 38, 42, 43, 84, 102;
Size 4, Types 16, 34, 112;
Size 5, Types Re-engraved,—2, 2a, 2b, 2c, 4, 4a, 5, 6, 6a, 7, 7a, 9, 10, 13, 15, 16, 18, 19, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 32, 33, 33a, 35, 36, 36a, 37, 39, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 49, 50, 51, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 69, 70, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 82, 83, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 95, 96, 97, 98, 101, 102, 105, 106, 108, 109, 110, 111, 118, 119, 122, 124, 125, 125a, 126, 130, 132;

QUEEN'S HEADS.

By C. S. F. Crofton.

We learn from Philbrick and Westoby's book on British stamps that the English mint was re-organized in 1852 and the embossed stamp work which had hitherto been done there was handed over to Warren de la Rue, the chief engraver to the Commissioners of Inland Revenue. This is evidently intimately connected with the first issue of surface printed adhesive stamps made by De la Rue & Co. which took place in September, 1853. The issue in question consists of the blue receipt and brown draft stamps, of which eight plates were made during the year the stamps were in use. It will be observed that the style of these two stamps is very different from and much inferior to their successors. The Queen's head, which is the same for both, is on a solid background and the majority of specimens show bad flaws in the printing, while the designs are far from being accurately symmetrical.

From the next year, however, the firm employed as their chief engraver M. Joubert de la Ferte, a gentleman who was apparently of their own nationality. His work has recently come to light through the discovery of a remarkable series of die-proofs of all the more important De la Rue stamps from 1855 to 1865 in various stages of completion. It is satisfactory to be able to state that the bulk of these proofs now repose in the collections of three members of our Society. The period in question represents the golden age of surface printed stamps before the dread of forgery which used to haunt the authorities sank into the background to make room for cheaper methods of production and less expensive workmanship. The die-proofs as originally found were in a book bearing the engraver's name and they stopped at 1866 although the book was by no means full. It seems probable, and it is corroborated by evidence from the stamps themselves, that whether by death or otherwise, M. de la Ferte's connection with the firm was severed in the latter year. One of the most interesting facts made clear by these proofs is that the preparation of the dies took place in three generations or stages. First the Queen's head with the exception of the crown was cut in soft steel. This was approved and hardened and impressed on to several fresh soft dies constituting the second stage. On these different crowns were engraved for different Governments and the dies were hardened after approval. These again were struck on to soft metal to form the nuclei of the various stamps that were engraved round them. It is therefore possible to trace the history of the head dies in the second stage independently of the numerous third stages prepared from each.

The first head to be engraved by de la Ferte does not, however, come into the above category. It is a copy of the large De La Rue head of 1853 enclosed in an oval. It is best known in the die for the "Draft payable on demand or Receipt" stamp which took the place of the brown "Draft" and blue "Receipt" of September, 1853, and was prepared in October, 1854. Thirty-one plates were made from this die. The same head was used for twenty-five dies of Foreign Bill stamps in September, 1854, and for six dies of Admiralty stamps in December, 1854, after which it was abandoned.

Head No. 2 was copied from Heath's design of the English penny postage stamp and was prpeared in June, 1855. The diadem consists of Maltese crosses alternating with small roses. It was used for the five values Indian postage stamps and the English fourpenny postage in 1855, after which it was reserved for all English stamps postal and fiscal, until the end of de la Ferte's employment.

Heads 3, 4 and 5, differing of course only in the diadems, were all prepared in the latter part of 1857. No. 3 has a curved floral spray and belongs to Ceylon. It was only used for two stamp dies, namely, the half-penny postage 1857 and the one penny receipt November, 1861.

No. 4 has alternate rows of diamonds and pearls and is an exclusively Indian type. It was used in September, 1857, for the Electric Telegraphs, in May, 1859, for the eight pies postage, in March, 1860, for the one anna receipt and in December, 1860, for the half anna receipt and the first of the Foreign Bill stamps. It was abandoned in August, 1861, on the completion of the Foreign Bill set but was disinterred in 1866 for the second type of the eight annas postage to which reference will be made further on.

No. 5 has a wreath of bay in place of the diadem and will be recognized as belonging to Jamaica. It was used in 1857 for the large "postal fiscals" and in September, 1860, for the first five values of the postage set.

No. 6 has a diadem consisting of a Maltese cross in front and a single fleur-de-lis at the side. This form seems to have been rejected, firstly because no stamps are known for which it was employed, and secondly, another die, somewhat similar but with slight modifications was prepared so soon afterwards. I have proofs of this No. 6 in three states dated the 8th, 12th and 20th January, 1859.

No. 7 is similar to the last with the fleur-de-lis closer to the Maltese cross and the addition of a shamrock. I have two states of this dated the 10th and 12th March, 1859. It formed the first general colonial type used in November, 1859, for Vancouver Island, 2½d, Sierra Leone, 6d, Mauritius, 1, 2, 4, 9d in January, 1861, for Malta, ½d, and in 1862 for Hongkong, New South Wales and Mauritius, 3d, 6d, 1s and 5s.

No. 8. Balls, with thistle, shamrock, thistle between each in turn. The proofs of this design are dated the 4th, 15th and 28th July, 1862. The die has been used for all colonial stamps since the above year.

No. 9. At the beginning of 1863 a new head-die came into use for India. It is a fairly faithful copy of No. 4, but the large diamonds are now each surrounded by minute pearls, and the top row of pearls look larger and are somewhat differently placed. This was used for the customs and share transfers in January, 1863, the special adhesives

MARKS STAMP CO., TORONTO, CANADA

STAMPS OF GRENADA.

By P. L. Pemberton.

In the space of a short article it is impossible to give a full history of the stamps of this Colony, and I have to be content with briefly referring to the most interesting points connected with them from a specialist's point of view. Those who wish to go more deeply into the subject are referred to Messrs. Bacon & Napier's remarkable work, entitled "Grenada," which is published by Messrs. Stanley Gibbons' Ltd. To this I am indebted for much of my information, particularly the dates and the numbers of the different printings.

ISSUE OF 1861, NO WMK.

The main interest in the stamps of the first type, which, it is hardly necessary to say, were produced by Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co., is to be found in the varieties of perforation and watermark. During the ten years 1861 to 1871, only two denominations were in use, viz.:—the 1d and 6d, but during that time three separate consignments of the 1d and six of the 6d were sent out to the Colony, and the stamps of each of these printings differ to a sufficient extent to enable them to be discriminated. The first two consignments of the 1d and the first of the 6d were on unwatermarked paper. The latter value is found in one shade only, dull rose, and the former in green and blue-green, the latter being the scarcer, especially unused. The perforation is very rough owing to the perforating machine being at that time not in good enough condition to make sharp, clear punches with the needles. The paper of this issue varies from medium to very thick. Proofs of both values are known printed in rose-red on unwatermarked paper and not perforated.

1863-79, WMK. SMALL STAR.

The 6d first appeared with wmk. in 1863, and the 1d in the following year. The perforation is the same as that on the no wmk. issue, viz., very rough, the pins having simply made indentations in the paper without cutting it away, though occasionally on one or two sides the holes appear fairly clean-cut. With this class of perforation the two values remained in use until 1872, when they were issued with a somewhat different perforation, caused by a new set of pins being fitted to Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co.'s machine. The stamps thus perforated have fairly clean-cut holes which, however, are neither so clean-cut nor so large as those of the clean-cut perfs. of Trinidad, Queensland, etc., which were done by the machine when it was quite new. There should be no difficulty in discriminating between the rough and the clean-cut when it is remembered that any stamp having two contiguous sides with blind or rough perforation must belong to the former class. Almost immediately after the repairs were made to the machine, giving this different style of perforation, the watermark was changed from the small to the large Star, but not before a supply of the 1d with the small Star had been perforated. This was the deep green stamp given in Gibbons' Catalogue as No. 7. The other two shades of the 1d, and the 6d of this group, were not issued until 1878-79, but it is well in a general collection to arrange them all together in order to prevent further sub-division. To distinguish the deep green 1d of 1873 from the two printings of 1878-79 it is important to remember that the perforations are sharper, the colour is deeper and the watermark is almost invariably sideways, whereas in the later ones the perforating pins have become blunter, the shades are lighter and the watermark is sometimes upright and sometimes sideways. The 6d of this issue is a very bright vermilion, quite different from those with the rough perforations.

THE 1d and 6d, WMK. LARGE STAR.

These two stamps are easy to distinguish by their colours. The 1d is a very decided blue-green, quite unlike that of any other printing, and the 6d is orange-vermilion. The perforation is always clean cut.

THE 1d and 1sh, PERF. 14, 1875.

There is a mis-print in Gibbons' catalogue giving the date of this issue as 1871. Messrs. Bacon & Napier give the date of the 1sh as July, 1875, and of the 1d as December, 1875, though no dated copy of the latter is known earlier than January, 1876. The 1sh was made from the plate of the fiscal stamps, printed in purple and overprinted with the word "Postage" above the head and the value below, in blue. Both values have the large Star wmk. and were perforated 14 at Somerset House. Presumably Messrs. Perkins, Bacon & Co.'s machines were in full use for other stamps when these two printings were required, and, as with the ½d, 1d and 3d Barbados of 1873-74, the 1d and 3d Natal of 1859-60, the 1d and 2d Queensland of 1861, and the 1d, 2d and 4d Western Australia of 1861, the sheets were sent to Somerset House to be perforated by one of the machines used for the English stamps. No mistake can possibly be made in picking out the 1d of this issue, as the perforation is sharp and exact and is the only one that gauges exactly 14. There are numerous minor varieties of the 1sh caused by defective type used in setting up the overprint. Of these the most prominent are those in which the "o" is omitted either in the word "ONE" or "POSTAGE." There is also the distinct error in which the value is spelled "SHLLING." The so-called error "SHILLINS" is only an optical illusion produced by a combination of a defective "G" and the reticulated pattern in the background.

The 1d is known cut in half diagonally for use as ½d stamps, vide Philatelic Record for August, 1880.

THE ISSUE OF 1881. PERF. 14½.

On entering the Postal Union in 1881 further denominations were required and stamps of 2½d and 4d were issued. At the same time a ½d was added to the set. It is curious that the Colony should have been for so long unprovided with a halfpenny stamp since the rate for newspapers had been fixed at that amount so far back as 1861. It is evident that before 1881 the postage on newspapers and circulars was prepaid in cash except on those rare occasions on which the 1d stamps were bisected. The three new values were made, in the same manner as the 1sh, by printing sheets from the fiscal plate in deep mauve for the ½d in rose-lake for the 2½d, and in blue for the 4d. The new value was printed in a straight line on the lower and higher values, but in a curve on the 2½d. The wmk. is the large Star.

There are again numerous small varieties in the overprint but only two can be really termed errors, these are the ½d with "P" of "POSTAGE" omitted, and the 2½d with "PENCF" instead of "PENCE." The former is No. 100 on the sheet and the latter is No. 96. The ½d is also known with double surcharge. The watermark on the ½d is almost invariably sideways, but the two higher values always have the Star upright. The 2½d and 4d are also found watermarked with the broad-pointed Star like that used in South Australia, but these are much scarcer than the others. There is a very rare shade of the 2½d with this watermark, viz., claret, instead of rose-lilac, and this is a variety well worth hunting for.

Quite a different perforating machine was used for these stamps, which gave a gauge of slightly more than 14 and which is generally referred to as 14½. It is quite unlike the Somerset House gauge of 14, as the holes are very small and the distances between them are somewhat irregular. This serves to distinguish the 1d value which was issued at the same time, though with the small Star watermark.

THE PROVISIONALS OF 1883.

To provide stamps of ½d and 1d which ran short in 1883, the 1d fiscal stamps were overprinted "POSTAGE." For the higher value the overprint was impressed once, but for the ½d it was printed twice, diagonally, both reading upwards.

The stamps could then be cut in halves between the two surcharges and each half used as ½d. The word POSTAGE was in Roman capitals and measured from 16½ to 17mm in length and 3¾mm in height. For the diagonal overprint a different and smaller type was very soon brought into use. In this the letters were rather more shapely and measured only 2½mm in height, and there was no full stop. The total length of the surcharge was 16mm. The method of printing was also changed, the overprint on left reading upwards and that on the right downwards. The watermark of this issue is a small Star and the perforation 14½ small holes. The large horizontal surcharge on the One Penny is known with double surcharge and it also exists cut in halves and each half used as ½d.

ISSUE OF 1883. WMK. CR AND CA.

The contract for printing the stamps of Grenada passed into the hands of Messrs. De la Rue & Co. in 1883. The stamps supplied by the new firm were in the accompanying design. They were, of course, surface printed, watermarked from December, 1865, to March, 1866, and the four annas postage of March, 1866, and all subsequent "East India" postage stamps except the second die of the eight annas which was from head-die No. 4. To those who have followed the drift of the above history of the head-dies, it will by now be evident that the usual explanation given for the change in the latter stamp "to generally improve its appearance" is pure rubbish. To change, in the case of one isolated Indian stamp, for aesthetic reasons, from a design used and approved for every English stamp for the last ten years to an old Indian die that had been discarded five years previously, is manifestly untenable. No. We may far rather suppose that for some reason or other, after lying idle for ten years, the original eight-anna die was not forthcoming or was unfit for use and a new one had to be made as like it as possible. It was recognized that the current head-die (No. 9) was not the die for the purpose so the first Indian head-die of 1857 was fished out and used, quite omitting the fact that it was not the original first head-die of 1855, since the latter had been carried off for English stamps, and was used for the 10d, 2s and 5s in 1867.

The above nine head-dies are all that were made by de la Ferte for the British Empire, but it may be mentioned that he did one for Italy, one for Portugal and two for Belgium. At the end of 1866 two new Queen's heads were prepared for England and India respectively. The first of these, No. 10, is characterized by two floating ribbons at the back of the neck. It was used in November, 1866, for the set of Companies Registration, in May, 1867, for the small receipt stamp, in 1868 for the Irish Admiralty and Chancery Fee Fund and in June, 1872, for the unappropriated dies.

The Indian head, No. 11, has two bands beneath the chignon and only one row of diamonds in the coronet. It was used in December, 1866, for the double-headed telegraphs, in June, 1869, for the High Court and Small Cause Court, in September, 1869, for the one anna revenue, and in June, 1871, for the Court Fee set.—*P. EDITORIAL.

The New and the Old—The story of the discovery of the two-cent current issue, imperforate horizontally, by Chas. R. Morris, Washington, D. C., as it appeared in the WEEKLY recently was all the more interesting because of the dash of realism in the telling of it. This error seems to be an authentic one, and, no doubt, the several collectors who now have blocks of the specimens are felicitating themselves upon the happy circumstances that allowed them to make the unique additions to their collections. Mr. Morris' recital has points of similarity to the account given by a collector "on the spot" of the discovery of the celebrated "Cardiff error," one penny red, 1870, imperforate, Great Britain. This imperforate stamp was issued in January, 1870, and is of plate 116; in the minutes of a recent meeting of the South Wales and Monmouthshire Philatelic Society, the following allusion is found to the error, a stamp in which the society naturally displays the deepest interest: "Mr. Walter Scott, the society's first honorary president then exhibited a fine mint specimen of the 'Cardiff Penny Red,' plate 116, issued imperforate, and gave an exceedingly interesting description and history of this rarity. It appears from his story that on 18th January, there were four postoffices in Cardiff—the general postoffice in Church street and three sub-offices. Mr. Scott, towards the evening of that day, required some stamps, and so sent his office boy to the General postoffice in Church street, for three shillings' worth of stamps, penny denomination. The boy was so long on his errand that Mr. Scott found occasion to reprimand him for wasting time on the way. The lad replied that he had been delayed at the counter, where (he said) a number of people were kept waiting for stamps, owing to the officials having to send out for scissors to sever the stamps with. He went round himself to try and secure a few more but was unsuccessful. He had, therefore, between thirty and forty copies of these. He posted a few to friends on letters, and sold the remainder, except one mint copy, to a firm of stamp dealers for double face value. In those days, collectors gave no heed to perfect condition. Such things as blocks, strips, pairs, full margins, gum, etc., were never considered then, and it was still customary to trim stamps to fit the spaces in the albums, this being the state of philately in 1870. It is needless to say he (Mr. Scott) had not retained a pair for himself, nor even what modern philatelists would call a perfect specimen, his copy not being cut so as to show full margins all around. He had often since regretted his 100 per cent. profit on that transaction, and had carefully sought for copies of the stamp since, but in vain. Probably, there are less than forty copies in existence."

Questionable—In the minutes, as published, of a philatelic society in Great Britain, a paragraph of somewhat sensational interest is noticed that will bear reproduction: "Mr. T. Edwards exhibited and described an unusual specimen of United States Journal stamp in black instead of blue, the normal colour. He had been unable to get a satisfactory account of its origin; it was postally cancelled and undoubtedly engraved from original plate. This curious stamp provoked great interest and much interesting discussion." The description of this specimen is somewhat vague and an inconsistency may be claimed in the statement that the stamp is postally canceled. The large blue newspaper stamp of the 1865 issue was canceled by broad lines of blue ink, applied by brush; subsequent newspaper or journal stamps were never postally canceled and were retained as vouchers of the payment of postage by the postmasters. In view of the indefinite information given, it is not easy to speculate as to the character of the stamp.

High Values—Every now and then, inquiry is made by readers whether there is really any legitimate need for a five-dollar stamp in this country, and answers are dutifully returned specifying instances where the need of a stamp of this denomination is imperative. In this connection the following item that appeared recently in the Wall Street Journal may be a rather astounding revelation of the dependence that is placed upon the United States mail and of the enormous postage bills that are a consequence: "The steamship Pennsylvania, which arrived at Seattle July 4, from Nome and St. Michael, brought about $1,000,000 in gold forwarded by mail. The gold was put up in sealed tin cans which were inclosed in ordinary United States mail bags. It is not unusual for gold coin to be sent from San Francisco to New York by registered mail, but shipments of gold bullion by mail from Alaska to Seattle were made for the first time this year." The stamp collector may let his imagination run riot as to the amount of postage required on shipments of this kind, as, it is taken for granted that the postal charges were paid by postage stamps.

A Possibility—A trade paper describes an improved reply postal card that will appeal to firms that send out large quantities of the present cards. Various suggestions have been made in the past with the intention of curtailing the loss that follows the enclosure of addressed postal cards, in letters sent out by large firms that take this means to encourage a reply. The plan devised by a Chicago man is as follows: "Imagine a regular postal card with a fac-simile of the two-cent due stamp in one corner, instead of McKinley's picture, and you will have a sample of the new form of 'reply postal card' which is receiving so much encouragement and support that it seems likely to be adopted saving business firms, etc., considerable expense. The two cents due is to be paid to the carrier upon delivery of each postal returned just as if it were ordinary letter on which two cents were due." It is asked that this card be printed by the government, sold for a little more than the actual cost of preparation and restricted to the use of those who need large quantities.

Substantiated—Mr. Charles L. Pack, whose remarkable collection of the stamps of British North America includes a superb lot of the issues of Canada that has won universal fame for this American collector, contributes some valuable notes to the London Philatelist, following Mr. Horsley's study of the stamps of Canada, that appeared in a previous number of the London paper. It will be remembered that Mr. Pack was awarded a gold medal at the London Exhibition last year for his collection of Canadian stamps; and it is seen that he is well equipped to write authoritatively on the subject of these stamps. Concerning a variety of that popular rarity, the twelve pence black, Mr. Pack, says: "I would like to add that after a very careful investigation, I believe that the 12d, on wove paper, was issued, and that the stamp was on sale at the Post Office, in Hamilton, Canada West." While some cataloguers list the twelve pence on wove paper, others maintain that the stamp was never postally used.

At Denver—The convention of the American Philatelic Association will be called to order at Denver on July 30th, 1907, and many members are on their way to the convention city to take part in the business proceedings and social pleasures. The WEEKLY will be represented by Messrs. Wylie and Severn, and following the usual custom, reports of the transactions of the body will be given prominence in our columns. The indications are that there will be a fair attendance from the east, while it is expected that the west will furnish a good complement of members.

THE CORRIENTES ISSUE.

BY BERTRAM W. H. POOLE.

One of the most curious and romantic philatelic histories attaches to the crude looking postage label that was issued in Corrientes in 1856. Probably most philatelists know that Corrientes is one of the departments of the Argentine Republic, and are also acquainted with the roughly executed stamps that were issued for use in this province.

No one who has the slightest knowledge of South American history will be surprised to learn that fifty years ago the monetary system of the Argentine Republic was in a somewhat muddled state, and there was a good deal of difficulty in obtaining a circulating medium. At that time the province of Corrientes had its own paper money and, owing to the fact that a dollar was the face value of the lowest note circulated, all kinds of dodges had to be adopted to meet the situation when it was necessary to deal with sums of a less value than $1. Postage stamps were then somewhat of a novelty, and when Mr. Paul Coni, director of the State printing establishment, suggested to the Governor of Corrientes that an issue of stamps might do away with some of the inconvenience, the Governor was delighted, and at once fell in with the idea. Mr. Coni was duly authorized to carry out his suggestion, but here a difficulty, which at the time seemed insurmountable, arose. No engraver could be found in Corrientes capable of engraving a plate or die.

By a lucky chance it happened that one day while Mr. Coni was lamenting to a friend on the untoward course events were taking, the baker's boy called with the daily supply of bread. The youth overheard the conversation, and offered to execute the work, stating as an inducement that before emigrating to South America he had been apprenticed to an engraver in Italy.

Mr. Coni was hugely delighted on hearing this, and hope ran high that the postage stamps would be produced at last. The lad was given a copper plate and one of the first issue of the stamps of France (which had appeared only a few years previously), which he was told to use as a model. The boy did as well as he could, and copied the head and border of the French stamp, placing "CORRIENTES" at the top and "UN REAL M. C." at the base, and what a caricature of the lovely Ceres design it is! In a few days the boy took the plate to Mr. Coni, having engraved eight stamps on it (two rows of four), each, of course, differing slightly from the others. The work was a great disappointment to Mr. Coni, for he had expected a far more artistic result than the very rough production executed. However, he showed the design to the Governor, who, evidently deciding to make the best of a bad job, promptly accepted it, and gave orders that the stamps were to be printed and issued at once. As only this one value was issued it is somewhat difficult to understand in what way the currency troubles benefited by its appearance.

Stamps were evidently not in great demand in Corrientes, for this one plate was the only one ever prepared. Between the years 1864 and 1875 it was decided to issue three values, and as only the original 1 real plate was available the inscription "UN REAL M. C." was erased from it, and impressions were taken on variously coloured papers to denote the different values.

Unfortunately the name of the Italian boy, who played such a prominent part in this little philatelic romance, has escaped the memory of Mr. Coni who is, we believe, now living in retirement in France. These stamps have the unique distinction of being the only ones ever designed by a baker's boy!—West End Philatelist.

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 820 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

R. S.:—The two stamps are of the new set of Internal Revenue stamps of the Philippine Islands. (2) References have been made to the postal savings bank stamps of the Philippines, and a description of the labels given in our columns.

B.:—"Hair lines" is the term applied to the narrow engraved lines that cross the extreme outer corners of a few types of some of the stamps of Great Britain; they served the purpose of distinguishing between the plate impressions of the certain stamps. (2) The three stamps of Great Britain, issues of 1847 to 1855, have been called temporary stamps, but they were issued as adhesives to meet certain needs. For instance, the one shilling "was created to pay the rate to the United States and certain British colonies, as also to defray the registration fee of one shilling then chargeable. It was designed by Mr. Ormond Hill, and the head sunk by the late Mr. W. Wyon from the original die constructed for the envelope of the one penny. Die 1 (registered 25.6.47) and die 2 were used, and the stamp remained in use till November 1856, when it was superseded by the surface-printed one of the same value." The ten pence "was created to pay the rate to France. Like the one shilling, it was designed by Mr. O. Hill, and the head sunk by the late Mr. W. Wyon. Six dies were prepared, though only four appear to have been used, die 1 being registered 23.5.48. The stamp continued in use till 1855, when the further issue was suspended, the rate to France having been reduced to four pence. The remaining stock was issued in 1863 to supply some temporary requirement." As to the six pence: "This stamp was created to pay the rate to Belgium, and was also used for the registration fee, which had been reduced to sixpence in 1848. Like the preceding, it was designed by Mr. O. Hill, and the head sunk by Mr. W. Wyon. Dies 1, 2 and 3 were registered 11.1.54, though it is doubtful if more than die 1 was used for the adhesive stamps. The stamp remained in use till October, 1856, when it was superseded by the surface-printed one of the same value."

L. K. L.:—Your mistake in saying that the prepayment of postage was not enforced in this country after 1855 despite official announcement to the contrary is a natural one, as the cover that you send for inspection is a "ship letter" and is so marked. The order in regard to letters of this kind was that ship letters, "as they cannot be prepaid, and are not supposed to be embraced in the new act, will continue to be despatched agreeably to the provisions of the fifteenth section of the act of March 3, 1855." (2) With so much that is new to constantly engage the minds of collectors, it is not likely that the time will come when the "paid" impressed covers of early days will be collected.

T. H.:—The peculiarity of the second issue of Sirmoor in having the perforations drawn as a part of the stamps is accounted for in this way, in Gibbons' catalogue: "These were originally made as reprints about 1891 to supply collectors after the first issue was exhausted, but there being very little demand for them they were subsequently put into use. The original stone having been cleaned off, the design was copied (perforations and all!) from an illustration cut from a dealer's catalogue." Another authority says that the stamps in question were sold by the authorities either unused or canceled to order, as desired. (2) You will find that the catalogue just named will be of much assistance to you in explaining some of the obscure points in the stamps of the Indian states.

M. N. C.:—The differences between the reprints and the originals of the 1879-80 issue of Persia are mostly in the aigret on the shah's head-piece. In the imitations, it shows weaker color than in the originals and it also touches the inner circular line surrounding the portrait, while in the originals there is a bit of space between. The reprints are perforated 12 by 13, the scale used on some of the originals, and are to be found canceled. They are known, also, in colors different from those of the originals. (2) Up to the present writing, no notice has been served of the intention to discontinue the use of the U. S. special delivery stamps, even though their use, since July 1st, 1907, is optional with the sender of a letter, who may use ordinary stamps, rating ten cents' postage; some time ago, the authorities said that it was not anticipated that the issue of the special delivery stamps would cease.

C.:—The following explanation of the term "Maori art," that appears on the one penny New Zealand exhibition issue, appeared in a contemporary:" The picture represents Maoris engaged in carving the prow of a war canoe on the maræ before the carved meeting house. The palisade surrounding the pa at the rear, with other embellishments makes the design thoroughly characteristic." (2) In the item quoted, evidently a technical discrimination between the meaning of "color," "shade," etc., was not made. Speaking strictly, color refers to one of the primary colors of the spectrum; hue is a compound color; tint is a dilution with white and "shade," a mixture with black.

W. E. S.:—On the authority of the Stamp Collector, the information is given that the ten and twenty pound stamps of Natal "are invariably used for cablegrams and insurance and, until quite recently, the ordinary letter postmark stamp was also used for obliterating parcels, telegrams, cables, etc." (2) Of the five shilling, Leeward islands, 1897 surcharged set, 900 were issued and of the one shilling just double this number was prepared; consequently the scarcity of these two jubilee stamps is well established.

H. G. W.:—The surcharge, Dos Centavos, in purple on the 12c 1905, Peru, is a recent issue that appeared at the same time the stamp was surcharged in red; it will be catalogued in due course.

R. R.:—The information about Philippine revenue stamps supplied by Mr. Siddall that appeared in the issue of May 18th, 1907, will set the sequence of issues in mind. (2) In the "Hints for Collectors" preface to the catalogue you will find several of your questions fully answered.

M. A. D.:—You cannot rest under the assurance that the stamps that you order from the various postmasters of far-away places will be sent you, even though you remit with order, as we have known of cases where the money sent for the stamps was returned with the statement that the stamps were on sale for the convenience of residents only. Few collectors nowadays attempt to make direct importations of new issues as it seems easier and safer to make purchases from dealers at a small advance over face. (2) For the information desired of the British colonies named consult "Whittaker's Almanack," published in London and for sale in all large cities.

New:—The stamps of the first issue of New South Wales are oftentimes called "Sydney Views" because of the design that is depicted on them. However, the picture is not a view of Sydney but is "a copy of the original great seal of the colony, which was brought here on September 21, 1791. The three figures on the right are convicts landing at Botany Bay, received by Industry, who, surrounded by her attributes, a bale of merchandise, a beehive, a pickaxe and a shovel, is releasing them from their fetters, and pointing to oxen ploughing and a town rising on the summit of a hill, with a fort for its protection; the masts of a ship are seen in the bay. In the margin are the words, 'Sigillum Nov. Camb. Aust.' (Seal of New Wales, Australia) and for a motto, 'Sic fortis Etruria crevit,' (Thus mighty Etruria grew). The seal was of silver and weighed forty ounces." (2) Seebecks have not been issued by any country since 1899. (3) From evidence submitted several years ago, it was decided that all the Heligoland stamps have been reprinted.

T. E. R.:—The boundaries of the Straits Settlements were extended in the latter part of 1906 to include the colony of Labuan. (2) In some instances the stocks of single CA stamps were destroyed, while in most cases, the numbers of the stamps with old watermark were so small in number that they were soon exhausted.

E. H.:—It is not safe to buy a rare surcharge from a non-established dealer under his guarantee that he will refund the money paid for the stamp, if your suspicions of its genuineness are confirmed. The seller may not be on hand when the authority renders his verdict on the stamp, and unless you can find some one to guarantee the guarantor, it may save worry and money to miss the "bargain."

W.:—If you will look up the sixth issue, playing card stamps, in the catalogue, you will find the two-cent ultramarine playing card, listed but not priced in perforated condition,—No. 2969b.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

BRITISH GUIANA.—Ewen's reports that the 1d is no longer on chalky paper, and is now printed at one operation in a non-fugitive ink.

CYPRUS.—Ewen's notes that a new post card has been issued for the Island, with King's Head stamp.

Post Card.

1pi carmine.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—The 20r stamp, large size, has appeared on multiple chalky paper, according to the London Philatelist.

FRANCE.—In No. 861 we announced, on the authority of a foreign contemporary, that the 20c had been issued in the latest type of the Semeuse pose. This proves to have been a mistake, the 25c value being evidently the one meant. We have now been shown this value (the 25c) by Stanley Gibbons, Inc., the type being the permanent one with the Sower standing in air, and with the posterior line. The color is a very deep shade of blue.

Adhesive.

25c dark blue.

ICELAND.—We have been shown the full set of the new postage stamps, chronicled in No. 862, except the 2k and 5k, by Stanley Gibbons, Inc. The colors there given are correct except that 1k has the frame in blue, the same color as the 20a, instead of ultramarine. Comparison shows that the new set is much superior to that which preceded it, both in design and execution.

The same firm has also shown us the full set of official stamps chronicled in No. 862. The 3a is very nearly an orange, perhaps it might be called orange buff, while the 5a is an orange brown, otherwise our original chronicle was right.

Curiously enough, while on the regular postage stamps the word "Frimerki," which appears at each side, reads down on the left and up on the right, bringing the top of both inscriptions towards the central portraits, on the official stamps both side inscriptions read up. On the left "Pjonustu" has its top turned towards the outer margin of the stamp, while on the right "Frimerki" appears in the same position as the regular set.

LEEWARD ISLANDS.—Stanley Gibbons, Inc., has shown us the new 2½d blue, on chalky multiple paper.

NEW ZEALAND.—The 8d stamp in the current design has been issued perforated 14, we are informed by Stanley Gibbons, Inc.

PERU.—A correspondent, to whom we are indebted for many valuable items, has shown us the 1 sol stamp of the new series, which is certainly the prettiest of the set. It is a large oblong in shape, the frame being similar in general design to the others in the same set. "Union Postal—Universal Peru" appears in two curved lines at the top, with figures of value at each side, and "Un Sol" at the bottom. Under the picture, printed in the frame, are the words "Hipodromo de Santa Beatriz," in very small type. All the inscriptions are in white.

We have now seen all of the new set except the 4c and 10c. The former is illustrated by Champion's Bulletin, the design showing a llama on a suitable background. Champion chronicles it in one color while all others of the set have been bi-colored.

Adhesive.

1 sol purple and green.

SPANISH GUINEA.—Champion's Bulletin reports that the 1p, 2p, 3p, 4p and 5p value of the 1906 Elobey set have appeared with overprint "Guinea Continental," as previously noted for the centimo values.

TRINIDAD.—According to Champion's Bulletin the 3d, 4d, 5d, 6d, 8d and 1sh postage due stamps have appeared on multiple paper. The supplement to Scott's Catalogue, just issued, notes the 1d, 2d, also on multiple paper.

TURKEY.—The 1905 postage set has been seen perforated 13½, according to Champion's Bulletin.

STAMPS OF GRENADA.

Cr. CA, and perf. 14, in conformity with most of the other stamps printed by the same firm for other Colonies. A very curious method of constructing the plates was adopted, every other horizontal row of stamps being inverted, the result being every vertical pair has the stamps tête bêche. As the paper on which they were printed was the usual paper with all the watermarks in the normal position it follows that every other stamp has the watermark inverted.

THE 1886 PROVISIONALS.

Various fiscal stamps were again surcharged to supply a deficiency of 1d stamps, the values used being the 1½d and 1sh wmk. large Star and the 4d wmk. small Star, all perf. 14 (Somerset House). The surcharge consists of the value 1d with the "d" directly above the "1," and the word "POSTAGE" below; all in black. The position of the "1d" in relation to the word below differs considerably and it is said that a different setting of the surcharge was used for each of the values overprinted. Messrs. Bacon & Napier say that the sheets of fiscals were divided in two horizontally and the provisional one penny stamps were printed in half sheets of sixty, five rows of twelve stamps each. The 1d on 1½d provides the most varieties which are as follows:—

a. Surcharge "1d Postage" inverted.
b. THRFE for THREE.
c. PFNCE for PENCE.
d. Half used as ½d.

THE 1d of 1887.

The 1d in the design of 1883 but with the inscription in the top label altered to GRENADA—POSTAGE & REVENUE in two lines, was issued in January, 1887. The arrangement of the stamps in tête-bêche rows was adhered to and the plate number, as in the case of all values of 1883, remained "1."

THE 4d ON 2sh OF 1888.

For this provisional the sheets of the fiscal 2sh stamps were divided as in the case of the 1886 provisionals and overprinted with the new value and the word "Postage" in half sheets of 60. There are two varieties of this surcharge which denote two different settings. In the first the space between the "4d" and "POSTAGE" is 4mm, in the second it is 5mm. The "d" of "4d" is italic with the exception of one stamp on the first setting in which it is upright. This was number fifty-four on the sheet, and is, of course, one of the rarities of this Colony. Wmk. small Star, perf. 14½, small holes.

THE ½d ON 2sh, OF 1889.

The surcharge Half—Penny—Postage is in words in three lines on the 2sh fiscal, wmk. small Star, perf. 14½, small holes. The only marked variety of this stamp is that with the double surcharge, though it is sometimes found with the surcharge very much misplaced.

THE 1d ON 2sh, OF 1890.

This provisional differs from any of the others in that the surcharge d.
"1—REVENUE" was first made for fiscal purposes, and it was converted into a postal stamp by the addition of the words "POSTAGE—AND." In this stamp the "d" is directly above the "1." The only varieties to be found are caused by the varying relative positions of the parts of the overprint, which were printed at different times. The wmk. is the small Star and the perforation 14½, small holes, as before. It is known bisected for use as ½d stamps.

THE SURCHARGES OF 1891.

The three surcharged stamps of this date were, very mercifully, the last provisionals issued in this colony. They consist of the 2sh fiscal, same perf. and wmk. as before, and the 8d De la Rue type of 1883, overprinted "Postage and Revenue 1d" in four lines, and the 8d surcharged "2½d." On the first two there are varieties without stop after "1d." This is number thirty-two on the sheet of the 1d on 2sh and is caused by the stop, which in that particular stamp is defective, failing to print in some of the sheets, while on other sheets it appears as a small triangular shaped blotch. The surcharges had to be set up again to print on the 8d, which was in different shaped sheets, but provision was not made at first for the fact that every alternate row was inverted, thus giving thirty inverted surcharges on each pane, but this was quickly corrected and the inverted surcharges are exceedingly scarce. Curiously enough the battered and the missing period varieties are also found on this stamp, and the inverted surcharge is found on the 2sh.

In the 2½d on 8d, there are two distinct varieties of the "2" in the fraction. One has a much thicker body than the other and the head curls right round and inwards. They are equally common as there are thirty of each to the pane. The following varieties are known:—

a. Surcharge inverted.
b. Surcharge double.
c. Surcharge double, once inverted.
d. Surcharge triple.
e. Surcharge triple two inverted.

ISSUE OF 1895-99.

With the advent of this issue, which is in the type of one of Messrs. De la Rue's key plates, we come into calm, if uninteresting waters. The values are as before with the addition of the 2d and 3d, the former not being issued until 1899; being first chronicled in the Ph. J. of G. B. for October that year. All values were printed in sheets of 240, divided into four panes of sixty, with the jubilee line round each. The ½d and 2d are from plate 3 and the other values are all from plate 2.

COMMEMORATION STAMP OF 1898.

A stamp of the value of 2½d was issued on August 15th, 1898, to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of Grenada by Columbus. The ship in the centre of the design is a representation of "La Conception" in which Columbus first arrived at the island. Being twice the size of an ordinary stamp it is printed on paper watermarked Cr. CC and perforated 14. In all, the issue amounted to 240,000 stamps.

THE KING'S HEAD ISSUE.

This set contains the high values 2sh, 5s and 10sh but omits the 8d. All values appeared at first on paper having the single Cr. CA. wmk. but since 1904 when the 1d appeared with the multiple watermark, all values have come out with this alteration, while the 3d and 2sh have also appeared with the further change to chalk-surfaced paper. At the present time the ½d, 1d, 2d and 2½d King's Head are not in use, having been withdrawn until the stamps of the Ship type (described below) have been sold out. If the next issue of these values is on chalky paper, those on the multiple ordinary paper should be fairly scarce as comparatively few were issued.

1905 ISSUE. "SHIP" TYPE.

This issue is, apparently, the aftermath of the 1898 commemorative. No reason appears to have been assigned for its being and nothing is known in its favour from a stamp collector's point of view. The four values are printed on chalk-surfaced paper with multiple watermark.

FISCALS ALLEGED USED POSTALLY.

No fiscal stamps were ever authorized for use as postage stamps in Grenada. The fiscals with genuine postmarks (which form a very small percentage of those one sees) have either passed through the post unnoticed or have been obliterated to order by some obliging official; they have no philatelic standing.

POSTAGE DUE STAMPS.

In 1892 three stamps were issued for the purpose of denoting postage due on unpaid letters. They are printed in black and watermarked Cr. CA.

Towards the end of the same year the 1d and 2d became used up and provisionals were made by surcharging the 8d of 1883 issue with the new value 1d or 2d and the words, "Surcharge—Postage," in two lines. Two or three months later the 6d mauve was treated in the same way. All these stamps are scarce unused, especially those on the 8d. There are numerous minor varieties such as stop or colon after "Postage" or "Surcharge," or both.—P. J. of Gt. Britain.

QUEENSLAND.

Identification of the Re-touched 2d of 1890-4.

By W. APPLEBY.

The sheet consists of electrotypes of a block of four. No. 1 in each block (i. e., the top left-hand stamp), and No. 4 (i. e., the bottom right-hand stamp) are not re-touched, but No. 2, which originally showed LA, and No. 3, which had a long-tailed P, have these defects corrected.

No. 2 can be distinguished by a small crack in the plate, which on the stamp shews to the left of the letter T, and gives the appearance of a tail to the ninth dot from the bottom in the outer frame, extending inwards towards the T. The bottom horizontal line of the background in the lower right-hand spandrel terminates a millimetre from the corner, where it should form a right-angle with the vertical spandrel frame. In the other three stamps of the block this line is nearly always broken up, and generally very little of it is to be seen, thus giving the appearance of a horizontal white space below the floreate ornament; but I have seen it very nearly complete, though not on No. 2. In the lined background surrounding the Queen's head there are several white spaces—due to incomplete horizontal lines—the more remarkable of which are three which are contiguous to the inner oval—

(a) One in front of the forehead, caused by the background line extending little more than half-way to the inner oval frame, towards the letter Q.

(b) One almost in front of, but a little lower than, the lowest part of the chin.

(c) One nearly opposite—i. e., back from the nape of the neck.

In the earliest printing of these stamps these white spaces are less distinguishable, as the corresponding portions of the background lines are more visible.

There is a small horizontally oblong spot of colour in the white space on the Queen's forehead directly above the eyelid.

The dots in the frame at the top of the stamp are continued over the oval, while in the other three stamps they are absent where the oval cuts into the frame.

No. 3 is distinguished by an upper projection of the left-hand side of the outer frame, accentuated by a break in the horizontal top and the absence of two or three of the white dots in that corner. The upper line of the background of the right-hand top spandrel is not complete, but stops short about half a millimetre from where it should make a right angle with the vertical frame line of the spandrel, leaving a white space. The ends of the background lines impinging upon the nose just in front of the eye are not evenly finished off, thus giving to the nose a somewhat malformed appearance.

I do not think that the re-touched stamps were ever printed in the distinct blue shade in which the LA and long P were first issued and the later issue of these was generally in a duller shade of pale blue than the re-touched issue; but, of course, in the cases of the two stamps which are not re-touched, the particular shade of pale blue is immaterial.

The re-touched electrotypes were, of course, printed from, when the 2d stamp was issued on the thick beer-duty paper and on the thin "secret watermark" paper; and as the former is common enough in unused blocks, it affords a very ready means of comparison and identification of single stamps of the scarcer issue of the re-touches on ordinary paper.—Australian Philatelist.

A STAMP COLLECTORS' CLUB FOR BOYS.

By H. S. LINNEMAN.

A club similar to the one described below was formed and carried on in connection with one of the Troy, N. Y., Sunday Schools and proved very successful, which leads the writer to think that an account of it might be of help to others interested in similar work.

The object of such a club as the one here described is two-fold. First, to interest boys in the collection of postage stamps, a hobby, among the advantages of which may be mentioned; the training it gives in the power of observation, the knowledge of geography, history and numismatics, the opportunity for study in the following related subjects: botany, zoology, chemistry, electricity, philology, art, engraving, printing, paper manufacturing, and color mixing; the habits of neatness, accuracy and patience; and secondly, to train the boys in the knowledge of missions, and thereby to cause them to desire to actively do something to help others less fortunate than themselves.

The following constitution may be adopted with changes as are found necessary:

Article I:—This club shall be known as the Stamp Collectors Club of ( ).

Article II:—The object of the club shall be the collecting and studying of postage stamps and assisting in some mission work.

Article III:—The officers of the club shall be a President, a Secretary and a Treasurer, each elected for a term of four months, and whose duties shall be the usual duties of such officers.

Article IV:—The dues shall be ten cents a month payable during the months of October to May inclusive.

The equipment which it will be necessary for the one who is to organize and lead the club to procure will be:—a package of 1000 stamps, all different, costing from $4.00 to $5.00, and which forms the stock in trade of the club; a standard catalog in which to look up prices and varieties, costing 50c; a number of Imperial Albums costing 25c each, one to be given to each new member joining, unless he cares to provide himself with a more expensive kind.

The meetings are opened by the president, after which the secretary calls the roll, each member present responding by giving the number of stamps he has added to his collection by exchange or gift, but not by purchase, since the previous meeting, which number the secretary enters against the name.

The treasurer collects the dues from the members present and then each member is allowed to select from the club's stock two stamps to add to his collection, as a reward for his being present. The secretary reads the name of the member who has secured the largest number of stamps since the previous meeting, and he is allowed to select five stamps from the stock.

The members exchange duplicates with each other and with the leader whose private collection preferably ought to be larger than that of any member, and which should be brought by him to every meeting for inspection and comparison. The leader should also have his own private book of duplicates.

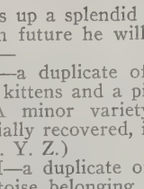
When a new member joins the boys start him collecting by giving him some of their duplicates.

The club makes up a packet which is sold at the end of each year for the benefit of the treasury, the stamps being the gifts of the members from their duplicates. The meeting is closed with prayer. The money in the treasury received from dues, and from the sale of the club packet is given to some mission, the object being selected each year, by the members on vote.

The trading is done as much as possible, stamp for stamp, not paying too much attention to catalog value, except where the difference is considerable.

TOPICAL NOTES.

The Standard of June 1st, with reference to the supposed poisonous nature of the 3d English stamps, says:—"Each three-penny stamp weighs it seems rather more than half a grain, and the quantity of chromate of lead present was found to be 2.55 per cent; on this basis 70 stamps would contain 1 grain of poisonous lead salt."



This opens up a splendid field for the specialist—in future he will classify his stamps thus—

Variety I—a duplicate of this stamp poisoned 14 kittens and a pig.

(NOTE.—A minor variety, in which the pig partially recovered, is in the collection of X. Y. Z.)

Variety II—a duplicate of this stamp killed a tortoise belonging to the child next door, upset four parrots and a weasel, and gave the cat a pain in its Little Mary.

Possibly the following two well-known epitaphs refer to the dangers of the 3d stamp:

Johnny had a label purple
Over yellow, which he found;
Little Johnny licked that label—
So poor Johnny's underground.

Boy fun, lead— salt
Poi— son, dead, vault.

Another stamp fakir has been caught and sent to jail—hear, hear!

Herr Heinrich August Streichert has been sent to durance vile
For forgery and faking, so he's "resting" for a while.
Five little months he's gotten, for to ponder o'er the sin
Of his dirty little dodges that have let collectors in.

There is another man, down Geneva way, whom we should like to see laid by the heels—he adds to his original sin by the rank hypocrisy of calling his manufactures "forgeries." Occasionally these productions get into wrong hands—and who knows what that Geneva-wallah's hands are like sometimes. A man who would make a forgery might—well, well, the greater the truth, the greater the libel.

Some Philippine stamps have been found overprinted "O. B."

We've heard of O. K. and I. O. U.
And of course I. M., O. G.
But never before have seen a stamp
With the mystic sign O. B.

Major Evans suggests that "Oh Bother" is a possible meaning—it may mean "Ordinary Bunkum," "Only Brummagem," "Orders Booked" or "Oblige Benson." Our tame lunatic swears so fearfully at surcharges that possibly "Orful Billingsgate" would be a suitable explanation.—"TANCRED" in P. J. of India.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

Present 35.

The following program was decided upon for the fall season.

September 2. Competition for honors. Each member will show the rarest stamp he owns.

October 7. Prize competition, North Borneo. Mr. Julius Levy will read an original paper on the issues of this interesting country.

November 4. Prize competition, Jamaica.

After conclusion of the business meeting refreshments were served and an entertainment provided. Needless to say that Professor Loewy mystified all with his wonderful card tricks. An informal dance concluded the evening. Members dispersed with pleasing memories of our housewarming.

Next meeting will take place August 5, 1907, at 641 Lexington Ave.

"SEEING BERMUDA."

Under the caption "Seeing Bermuda," Louis G. Barrett leads the reader into the tropical mazes of philately; but fails to bring his ship to the dock. On the face of it the story told of the stamps of Bermuda reads very well, but when he endeavors to elaborate and try to make the stamps of other colonies fit his theory he goes astray, and himself is forced to speak of a cross between Type I and II.

It is not my object to disparage the efforts of Mr. Barrett in his philatelic work but rather to set the matter straight and sift the material brought before us so that the value of his discovery may be judged by all.

Unfortunately the writer looked at the face only and did not take into consideration the other parts of the head and ornaments, otherwise he would not have mixed the several distinct dies in his list with that used by Messrs. De La Rue & Co. for the stamps of Bermuda.

Mr. Barrett will certainly not contend that the Malta ½d, the Sierra Leone 6d or the stamps of Mauritius of 1860-72 are made with the same die as the Bermuda type A1, nor that this die was used for the stamps of India. Look at the crown or diadem that adorns the head of Her Majesty. These are such well known and markedly different dies that really no further comment is necessary than call it to the attention of philatelists.

On the stamps of Jamaica the ornament crowning the head of Her Majesty is a laurel wreath instead of a diadem.

The stamps of the "Mother Country" like those of India differ in the crown from those of Bermuda and are therefore not to be taken under discussion. The stamps of British Honduras likewise do not belong in this list for they have a portrait distinctly their own.

To answer one special example mentioned under India,—No. 28. The famous pearl tiara adorns the brow of the Queen on this stamp. The same die was used for the 4 anna green, but this stamp being printed in a heavier color shows the shading on the forehead as in fact traces of it can be found on heavy impressions of the 8 anna rose.

Having thus cut out of the list all the stamps of different dies there remain only Bermuda and Br. Columbia, as showing Type I according to the article, but I'll refer to these once more later on.

The great point raised by Mr. Barrett in his contention to establish the several types is that a long interval of time elapsed between the issuance of Types I and II. This may be true for Bermuda but the contention falls to the ground and comes to naught when some of the stamps of the other colonies named are taken into consideration. According to the article the stamps of Bermuda Type I were issued Sept. 13, 1865, and March 14, 1866.

How about the Bahamas 1s, perf. 12½, issued in 1863 and listed as Type II? Here is a stamp of the so-called later type issued two years prior to the Type I. Ceylon and Natal followed in 1867, Straits Settlements in 1868, St. Christopher in 1870.

The fact is that the true die is the so-called Type II and the stamps listed as being Type I are such in which faint lines have failed to print.

In my collection I have a number of Bermuda stamps showing traces of the lines on the forehead. The same is true for British Columbia. On the other hand I have some Ceylon stamps that Mr. Barrett would certainly have classed as Type I, others that are hybrids and the balance Type II as listed by him.

The specialist will do well to include these variations but they are not constant enough to be called a separate type as all the gradations between the two extremes can be found.

The merit in the article before us lies in the fact that the writer calls the attention to the new die used for the Bermuda 2½d, Barbados 1882-85, Trinidad 1882; Malta, Bahamas and Mauritius 1c violet, 16c, 15c.

A profusely illustrated article on the different portraits of Queen Victoria represented on stamps was published in 1901 in English papers, shortly after her demise. If I recollect correctly there were thirty to forty listed.

NOTES ON U. S. STAMPS—THE 3c STAMP.

BY HOLLAND A. DAVIS, M. D.

No. 3 of a series of papers read before the Denver Stamp Club.

The first classification of the 3c value includes those stamps issued from 1851 to 1857 and are to be compared with the series issued from 1861 to 1868. Before taking up this study, however, I wish to say a few words regarding what we have been calling creamy paper. I refer particularly to the stamps issued by the National and Continental Bank Note Companies as regular issues. This paper has been called, buff tinted, yellow tinted, brownish and creamy. As a matter of fact it is, strictly speaking, none of these; however, we must use some term to distinguish between these issues and the pure white paper of the reissues, reprints, and special printings. I have used the word creamy because it comes nearest the mark.

If you lay side by side two stamps, for instance, the 2c black regular issue of 1862 and the 2c black reissue of 1875, you will readily see the difference. It is not so much that the regular issue is on creamy paper, but that the reissue is of a whiter paper.

The first 3 cent stamp was issued July 1st, 1851. Of this there are five main varieties—two imperforate and three perforated. I find in my collection counting minor varieties of shades and frame lines, 37 different stamps. The stamps are all printed in red, rose and lake shades. We see at a glance, bust of Washington after Houdon in profile to left, on an ovan disk surrounded by small diamond shaped ornaments formed by very fine lines. In each corner nearly touching the oval is set a single rosette, which together with the central oval and labels constitute the distinguishing difference from the 1861-68 issue. The labels and inscriptions are in single straight lines, "U. S. Postage" above and "three cents" below the oval. There are other distinguishing differences; it is the only three cent stamp without the numeral 3, and the perforated stamp is perforated 15.

Let us compare this issue now, with that of 1861-68. The latter also has bust of Washington after Houdon and also appears in shades of rose and red, but the bust is in a rectangle instead of an oval. There is also the numeral 3 in each upper corner, and the letters U and S in lower left and right corners, respectively. There are no frame lines to the labels; the words "U. S. Postage" are in two curved lines at the top and "three cents" in two curved lines below the bust on engine turned lathe work, and the stamp is perforated 12.

Now let us look at the main varieties of each of these series. The issue of 1851 is imperforate and there are two main varieties; one in which there is a double frame line on each side of the stamp, and one in which a single line only appears. Our Scott's Standard Catalog lists but one variety, there are stamps with three and four lines, with half lines, quarter lines appearing in different positions; these, I think we should relegate to the minor variety class, and collect generally only the two main varieties, unless we wish to specialize. This stamp was issued perforated Feb. 24th, 1857; this brings us to the consideration of three main varieties of 1857.

First, exactly like No. 1 of the 1851 imperforate, a double frame line on each side and a single line at top and bottom. 2d, a single line at each side and at top and bottom. 3d, a single line at each side, but no outer line at top and bottom.

Of the main varieties of 1861-68 issue we find two main shades in 1861 without grill, rose and pink. We find several minor varieties in shades such as red, dull red, lake, scarlet, etc. Scott lists the lake and scarlet as main varieties, but I would much rather see them in small type. Scott lists the scarlet as having been issued in 1862. I quote from Tiffany regarding this stamp. "There are a few specimens known of a scarlet tint. They resemble the ordinary stamps of this value in all other particulars, and it does not appear to be settled whether they were ever used or not. Proofs, both perforated and imperforate, exist in this shade, and the better opinion would seem to be that all of this shade are proofs. It is claimed, however, that a sheet, or part of a sheet unused, was picked up at the New York post office by a collector."

We must remember that this view was given in 1887. I am unable to say whether it is right or wrong, but I

General or Special collection of American Stamps in good condition. State number of stamps, series and price. No agents. Address have never seen a copy that I thought was a genuine regular used copy, altho I have several in my collection which I have placed in my collection of proofs. Most of the used copies, or rather cancelled copies are pen cancelled.

H. G. WEICKER,
80 Beekman St., NEW YORK.

In 1867, there were issued no less than six varieties of grill. First, with grill covering entire back of stamp, 2d, grill measuring 18x15 mm., 3d, grill 13x16 mm., 4th, grill 12x14, 5th grill 11x13, and 6th grill 9x13. I also have a copy measuring 11x14 mm. It might be interesting to quote from Tiffany on this subject. "It is not uncommon to find parts of two grills on the same stamp, at a distance from each other, part of the grill being at the top and part at the bottom, or part of a grill on each side. The oddity noted presents two grills touching by the top and bottom, one a little further to the left than the other, making a strip of squares from the top to the bottom of the stamp."

Both of these issues were reprinted in 1875, the 1857 and the 1861. The reprints of 1857 may be distinguished by being perforated 12 instead of 15; those of the 1861 by being in more of a red brown or rather brownish red on pure white paper.

The next issue is that of 1869, printed in blue, stamps nearly square, with picture of a locomotive, and a grill 9½ mm. square. There is a variety without grill; also, a reprint issued 1875 without grill. The latter may be recognized by being on very white paper, and usually without gum. When gum is present, it is colorless, while the original without grill has brown gum.

The next series, 1870-89, comprise eight main varieties all practically of the same general design, and are to be distinguished by grill secret mark, paper, gum and color. This series comprise the following issues: 1870, 1871, 1873, special printing of 1875, 1879, special printing of 1880, reengraving of 1882 and the issue of 1887.

This series bears a bust of Washington after Houdon, in an oval on a shield back-ground, U. S. Postage in a single curved line at top and three cents in single wavy line at bottom divided by a large numeral 3.

The first seven issues are in shades of green, while the last or 1887 is printed in vermilion.

The 1870, printed by National Bank Note Co. is on hard paper, slight creamy tint, and presents a grill measuring 8½ to 9 by 10½ to 11½ mm.

The 1871 is exactly the same, but is without the grill; also printed by the National Bank Note Company.

The 1873, printed by the Continental Bank Note Company may be recognized by the Bank Note Company's secret mark, this being a heavy shaded line underneath the left ribbon tail directly under "re" of "three," while the 1871 by the National Company has a thin colorless line bordered by a very fine line of color.

The special printing of 1875 may be distinguished by being on very white hard paper, usually without gum; and the green is of a bluish cast.

The 1879 by the American Bank Note Company is printed on soft porous paper. This is to be distinguished from the reprint of 1880. The latter is of a blue-green color, usually without gum, also on soft paper.

The 1882 or re-engraved issue has a straight short line under the "ts" of "cents," and the shading around the lower right part of the oval is very narrow. The 1887 is like the 1882, from the re-engraved die, but the color is vermilion. The series of 1890 and those following are too well known to merit a description.

TOPICAL NOTES.

It does not seem to be generally known that the final "K" in Malay languages is not pronounced as a "K" but as an "H." For instance, Sarawak is not Sárawák but Saráwah; Bangkok is Bankó, and Perak is Peráh—perhaps the following may impress this fact:—

There once was a stamp of Paráh
With an error in placing the "R"
It's catalogued "Preak"
And this valuable freak
Is a very-much-sought-after var:—

When will that manufacturer of forgeries, who protects himself by admitting that he sells his stamps as forgeries, be run in, and his games stopped—he ought to be "attended to" with the business end of something.

There's a man by Geneva's fair lake,
Who continues to forge and to fake,
We should like to get at him,
And lustily "pat" him
With the spike iron end of a rake.

The Australian Official Stamps are not catalogued by Gibbons, as the official marks "O S," etc., are punctured and not overprinted—it does not seem to be very logical; for if the stamp possesses any characteristics by which it can be distinguished from the normal stamp—whether by an overprint, a puncture—or even a bit cut off—it surely becomes of equal interest. They don't look beautiful, and when used and heavily obliterated, they are loathsome and bad-language-provoking.

I am certainly bound to confess
That Australians when punctured "OS"
Are terribly riling
And language defiling,
Producing a "dash" (more or less).

M. Pierré Mahé in his "Reminiscences of a Veteran" now appearing in the Monthly Journal, says: "When my stamps are attacked by an affection of the spinal column, that is to say, by a parasitical adhesion, I apply to them a superficial hydrotherapeutical treatment."

Goodness gracious!—here is another new form of specialized classification, we may yet read of a stamp in the last stages of Xylopoditis, or of another with housemaid's knee, contracted from a bad hinge; and the only known treatment would be—laviation of the perypheral granulations at bedtime, and a double internal dose of peroxide of hydrogen, before meals.

A friend, writing on the poisonous nature of the English 3d stamp (chromate of lead), send me the following epitaph:—

Buried in lead beneath this slate,
Lies one who swallowed lead chromáte,
He did not know at first his fate,
Or where it led him, till too late.
He licked an English threepenny label,
And so he's cut his earthly cable,
To longer stay he was not able.
[Erected by his daughter Mabel.]

QUERIES AND COMMENT.

Edited by C. E. SEVERN.

Our readers are cordially invited to ask the editor for any information desired concerning stamp collecting. Should a personal reply be desired kindly enclose postage. This department is for the beginner as well as the advanced collector. Address, C. E. SEVERN, 721 Oxford Bdg., Chicago Ill.

T. T. T.:—This correspondent says: "I have two telegraph stamps issued by the Postal Telegraph Company, catalogue numbers 2130 and 2131; both have the signature of Clarence H. Mackey, instead of that of John W. Mackey. Are these minor varieties? What causes them and what is the market value of the stamps?" Varieties of this kind would be considered prime, and if listed would be catalogued as such. We do not know why the two stamps in question are not listed and we trust that if this item meets the eye of a student of telegraph stamps, he will enlighten our inquirer.

E. F.:—The word "complimentary" on various United States telegraph stamps means that the specimens were for gratuitous distribution to employes and other persons to whom the companies wished to show courtesy or consideration. The meaning of "commutation" on other of the stamps may be gathered from the explanation that is printed among the "instructions" in a book of commutation stamps. We quote from Mr. Rich's work on telegraph stamps of the United States, published in 1900: "Commutation. This book of stamps has been issued for the convenience of customers in prepaying telegrams. For example, a telegram with sufficient stamps affixed to cover the tolls will be accepted for transmission in the same manner and on the same conditions as if the cash accompanied such telegram. * * * This book contains 24 one-cent, 36 five-cent, 30 ten-cent, 24 twenty-five cent stamps, face value being $11.04, and can be purchased at the principal Atlantic Telegraph offices for $10.00 each. Stamps should be affixed to the telegram on the upper right hand corner."

G. D.:—Our correspondent says: "I noticed in the issue of the WEEKLY for June 29th, an article mentioning variations in the placing of the portrait on the two-cent stamps of the current Canal Zone issue. I have before me three specimens of this stamp. In the first, the head of the portrait is so close to the line as to almost touch it. In the second, the printing below the portrait almost runs into the line of the frame below it, and in the third, the entire portrait is placed in the extreme lower right hand corner. The three when placed side by side show a marked contrast. You will greatly oblige an interested subscriber if you will tell me how these mistakes are possible, and what you think the value of my three specimens is." These varieties usually are characteristic of stamps that are printed in two colors and are due to inexactness of "registration" in printing. A dictionary definition of this printing term is: Exact correspondence or adjustment in position of the lines, columns, margins, etc., on one side of a page or leaf with those on the other side of a page or leaf, or correct relation of the colors in color-printing, so that no color overlaps or falls short of its proper position." From the foregoing it is seen that the irregularities noticed in the current two-color stamps of Panama and the Canal Zone are due to mechanical faults and there is no disposition to give the examples of erratic printing more attention or value than that bestowed on the normal varieties. When the Pan-American issue was in use, many collectors gave heed to varieties of the kind described, and though some strikingly abnormal prints were produced, yet they were given no added value, by the general run of collectors.

R. E. A.:—The sheet of "all Japanese stamps" that you describe is one that is sold in this country in Japanese shops, etc., and to visitors in Japan, and contains counterfeits only, so far as the stamps that would have some value as originals are concerned. These Japanese imitations first became known to philatelists about 1888, and since that time have often been described and warned against in the stamp papers. In this connection, we submit the following paragraphs from a newspaper article that touched upon this species of downright fraud that is practiced on uninformed tourists, in particular, who if they have some leaning towards stamps, often buy in the hope of pleasantly surprising some collecting friend at home, with a gift of the stamps: "When a steamer arrives at Yokohama or any other of the big Japanese seaports, it is a common thing for Japanese peddlers to come aboard with nicely mounted sheets bearing all issues of the common and rare Japanese and Formosan stamps. The whole set is offered for five yen, which amounts to about $2.50. This is apparently dirt cheap for such stamps. The rare stamps on these sheets are counterfeit in every instance. The commoner varieties can be bought for ten cents a hundred and these are mixed with the imitations so that the whole outfit has the appearance of being genuine. The Japanese government does not prohibit the imitation of the stamps, but they must bear the word showing that they are copies. The word is printed, as a rule, in such a manner as to convey no information to foreigners." False cancellations are sometimes applied to the forgeries to cover the Japanese characters that signify "fac-simile."

A. Blanc, Philadelphia, writes in answer to inquiries that appeared in the WEEKLY of May 4th and June 29th, respectively: "Is not the 10c black on greenish, Peace and Commerce type of France, the enclosed cut from a postal card, of which perhaps type I exists?" The specimen submitted for inspection is imperforate, of course, but in a catalogue of postal cards, no mention is made of type I, the specimen shown being type II.

W. L. J.:—The Confederate provisionals were not furnished by the postoffice department of the Confederacy and their use was allowed only until the authorities could furnish a general issue of uniform design. (2) None of the towns named in your list is accredited with a local issue Confederate envelope, and from the description that you furnish of the impressions, it is evident that they were applied to the envelopes at the time they were handed in for mailing to mark the payment of postage in cash.

S. A.:—The list of Pietersburg (Transvaal) provisionals, in Stanley Gibbons' catalogue is the most embracive published. An article on these stamps appeared in the Monthly Journal of September, 1901. The Pietersburg provisionals are local stamps, and their philatelic merits have been the subject of some discussion.

P.:—After reading the following explanation, it will be seen that you are probably correct in assuming that the cancellation on the four pence rose Ceylon, surcharged "Postal Commission," etc., is a postal obliteration: "The surcharges denote the extra commission charged by the postoffice on postal orders which had not been cashed within three months of the date of issue. For a short time the postoffice did not object to the use of these stamps on letters."

E. O. A.:—We suggest that you write to F. L. Smith, secretary of the Precancelled Stamp Club, for information as to the number of varieties of U. S. pre-cancelled stamps there are. (2) A catalogue of pre-cancelled stamps was published some years ago, and probably Mr. Smith will be able to furnish you with some information regarding it.

EDITORIAL.

Printing Methods—The details of the printing of stamps form a staple subject for presentation in stamp papers, and the great average body of collectors are always ready to attend with keen attention to descriptions of the different methods of stamp manufacture. Indeed, a stamp paper could with propriety revert to the subject periodically, with no protest from those who understand it thoroughly, and with satisfaction to those newer collectors, always present, who wish to be informed in the important particulars. At a recent meeting of the Chicago Philatelic Society, H. N. Mudge, the president, gave a lecture illustrated by actual printing surfaces, such as, plates engraved in relief and sunken, respectively, wood cuts, lithograph stone with primal design, etc. The members expressed the utmost appreciation of the instructive discourse, which was made easy to understand and all the more effective by the exhibits. Officers of other societies may feel that it would be desirable to give a lecture, similarly illustrated, before their organizations. However, collectors, as a rule, must obtain their information from printed descriptions, such as they find in the stamp papers and works of the sterling character of John N. Luff's "What Philately Teaches."

Difference Not Always Plain—In the course of his remarks, Mr. Mudge said that an expert plate-worker gave it as his opinion that an early lithographed impression was so clear that it was difficult to tell from the surface-printed plate impression, and that even a sunken plate impression sometimes gave an impression when the paper was not nicely appropriate or dampened just right that would puzzle one to assign to the correct classification of printing. This is repeated so that the collector who finds that it is difficult to distinguish between a lithographed and engraved stamp may know that he is not always alone in his perplexity.

Voice of Authority—In the first number of the Colonial Office Journal, London, a publication whose official character is shown by its name, is an admirable article on the manufacture of British colonial stamps that embodies much information that may be accepted as authoritative. In speaking of the so-called copper plate and the surface printing methods, it is said: "The former is the older way, and that by which the most artistically successful results have been obtained as anyone may see who turns over the pages of a stamp album. The necessary plates are also cheaper, although the actual printing is a little more expensive, and, where large numbers of stamps of the same duty are required, much more expensive than the surface method. The most important difference between the two kinds of plates is that, in case of the copper-plate the ink enters the sunk portions of the plate and is completely cleaned away from the surface of the printing plate before printing takes place. In the case of the surface plate, which is really a stereo, the ink lies on the raised, engraved portion of the plate, and never touches the flat surface." The two principal methods outlined are used in stamp printing generally, although, in relation to British colonials, only one colony, Falkland Islands, used the copper-plate process for King's head stamps. The usual plan for producing colonial King's head stamps is "to use the surface process and to print the body of the plate from a key-plate bearing the King's head and words, 'Postage' or 'Postage and Revenue,' which is shared by all the colonies and can be set up either 120 or 240, according to the set of the overprint plates which bear only the name of the Colony and the duty, and one of which is therefore required for each colony. Colonies which issue large numbers of stamps of certain values, often find it worth while to go to the expense of a special plate which, for each of such duties, prints the whole of the stamp at one operation, and naturally, therefore at a very much cheaper rate. Of course, the special plate costs a good deal more money than the overprint plate." It will now be understood by the reader why there is a marked uniformity of design in the King's heads colonials, as a rule.

A Criticism—It will occasion surprise to some to hear that there are two strong objections to printing stamps, especially of high values, by the copper-plate process, particularly if the specimens are used for revenue as well as postal purposes. First, "such stamps are more easily forged than surface printed stamps," and secondly, "as the paper has to be wet when printed on, it is necessary to use ink of a very stable character, with the consequence that ordinary ink cancellations can be removed without damaging the stamps." The reference to forgery in connection with line-engraved stamps is based in part no doubt to the fact that certain details entering into the preparation of the surface printing plate are a trade secret.

Concerning Ink—Collectors who have soaked British colonial stamps latterly to find that the immersion in water had a somewhat disastrous effect on the colors of the specimens should know that the stamps are printed in inks that are "singly fugitive" or "doubly fugitive." The first named ink is supposed to be sensitive enough to make it impossible to remove ordinary cancelling ink without effecting palpable discoloration, while "doubly fugitive" ink is so responsive that it is said to prevent the cleaning of ordinary writing ink from the surface without leaving tell-tale marks.

Two Color Work—We shall finish our levy on the article from the Colonial Office Journal by a few words that tell of the disadvantage in printing in two colors in copper-plate printing. The following quotation will explain why variations are found, say, in the central design, in relation to the frame, in bi-colored line-engraved stamps, a fault commonly attributed to, and in many cases, rightfully to inaccurate "registration:" "The copper-plate process is not very suitable for printing stamps in two colors, owing to the necessity of wetting the paper for each printing. Each time the paper is wetted, it alters in size, sufficiently to make it very difficult to make the second impression exactly fit the first."

First Instalment—In this number, we include a few bare details of the convention proceedings at Denver, together with several important reports of officers, and in the succeeding issue, the story of the convention will be given at length. An unusual degree of attention has been attracted to the convention of the American Philatelic Association this year and no doubt, all our readers, the majority of whom are not members of the association, will read of the convention transactions with interest.

Almost Blotting Paper—The newspapers say that in consequence of complaints because of the poor quality of stock in the current postal cards, the postmaster-general has changed the business managers at the manufactory at Rumford Falls, Maine, and the government agent at that place.

The Summer Season—Here is a bit of verse written by an enthusiast, thirteen years of age, that breathes a "seasonable philosophy" that is especially commendable as entertained by a boy during the out-of-doors months:

There comes a time of silence when,
After the heat of summer tramps
I steal into my little den
For half an hour with my stamps.

WHY COLLECT STAMPS?

Prize Entry by HARRY E. HARRIS.

I find in stamp collecting a most fascinating and instructive recreation from which I derive a great deal of knowledge as well as pleasure. One of the advantages of this hobby that appeals especially to me is the various lines of interesting study which are opened through the collecting of stamps; their mechanical production; their history and that of the country by which they are issued. Even with a moderate sized collection one has a small history, art gallery and museum among his treasures. The many pictorial issues give miniature reproductions of scenery from all parts of the world while a good illustration of the history contained in a set of stamps is afforded by our own Columbian issue; another by the Cabot issue of Newfoundland.

A good stamp collection can be formed with a comparatively small outlay of money. It is not bulky and can be easily displayed, while it costs nothing to keep after your album has been bought, and increases in value with age. The value of stamps as an investment is well known and the beginner need never regret the money spent for stamps if he buys right.

The value of a hobby to young people cannot be over estimated. It serves to occupy their minds with something entertaining and at the same time educational, keeping them off the street where their time is either wasted or spent in acquiring bad habits. Nothing affords a more exciting pastime than looking over old letters or documents in search of stamps, where there is always the chance of finding rare copies of considerable value.

As an occupation for spare moments I find that stamp collecting combines most perfectly recreation, instruction, utility and pleasure.

Member A. P. A. and C. P. S.

AN AERIAL ADVENTURER.

By OLD GRILL.

Grill was smoking an after-dinner cigar in his office when Dr. Hargrave 'phoned.

"Can I see you professionally right away if I call?" inquired the Doctor.

"Come right over," replied Grill.

When the Doctor was comfortably seated Grill said, "Well, what's the trouble?"

"I have, as you know, a fine collection of stamps I keep under lock and key in my study. It has been some days since I looked it over, and placed it away in the usual place. Tonight I opened the bureau; an album was there like mine, but not mine, and contained only a few common stamps. My son, Herman, and myself alone know the whereabouts of the key. Herman had the album out since I had, but is quite positive he replaced it properly. I wish you would look into the matter," said the Doctor.

"All right; I will do my best. Send Herman over to see me and have him bring the album substituted. As he handled your collection last, we must interview him as to his recollections of the affair," said Grill.

"He's a good lad, Grill; does well in school, has everything he needs or wants."

"I do not doubt that, but send him over; I will treat him well," said Grill.

"I will bring him in my carriage and call again for him in half or an hour," said the Doctor.

"All right, I will be here," said Grill.

Wilson came in as the Doctor left. "Grill," said Wilson, "I have bought a balloon."

"Good, I'll let you take my cook along for ballast. When you cross the county line, just shy her over gently," said Grill.

"This is no joking matter; I have purchased a very new and practical invention It's run by two twin gases lately discovered. By the use of high pressure and excessive heat they supplant one another when you push a button, so you rise and fall at will," said Wilson.

"So you will not need my cook?"

"We do not carry ballast; a light metal, a composition of other metals, holds the gases. I have made a short trip in the balloon today. It works like a charm."

"How many passengers can you carry?" inquired Grill.

"She carries three well," replied Wilson.

"You astonish me. I bought a talking machine once, but I draw the line at balloons," said Grill.

"The car is very comfortable."

"What did it cost?" asked Grill.

"Well, it cost a good deal; so I rented it, and the man is to run it for three months."

"Where are you going with the balloon?"

"If you come with me you can name the destination."

"Well, I will look the machine over tomorrow. You don't want to go tonight, do you?"

"No."

"Then if it's all right I go. It will be an excuse for dismissing the cook. Have you a library aboard?"

"Why—do you want to bring your stamp album?"

"No; I risk my neck but not my collection."

"Shall we need a horse?"

"Why?" asked Wilson.

"Why, to bring the thing back when she breaks. You say it will carry three."

"We have to take the operator; that makes three."

"Speaking of this operator, the third party to the trip. Does he wear boots, or is he purely mechanical?"

"He is a nice man; his name is Jones."

"Yes, I think I know him. I have seen his name in the directory."

"Well; we pack up tonight and start tomorrow at ten."

"Good," said Wilson.

"Shall I need a night shirt?"

"No; take your big coat, pipe and pocket album, and I will be going; I call for you at ten tomorrow."

"I will drive you out to the farm where we start."

"Sit still and smoke, Wilson, I have a caller coming up the stairs. Dr. Hargrave lost his collection, and has given me the case."

Herman Hargrave entered.

"Be seated," said Grill.

"This is the substitute album," said Herman.

"Look that over, Wilson, and see if you see any earmarks. This a great detective, Herman, I have retained to assist me in finding your father's collection. Mr. Wilson, master Hargrave; Herman, Mr. Wilson."

The lad bowed and said, "I thought Mr. Wilson was a famous artist. I did did not know he was an officer."

"Be easy in your mind, Herman, we are all friends of your father. When did you see your papa's album last?"

"Friday evening; he loaned it to me to help me mount my own stamps. I was sick three days at home. I took the album from its place, taking the key from father's desk. I opened it on the study table; I did not leave the room; I placed it back again, locked it up and put away the key; locked papa's desk, gave him the key when I bid him goodnight."

"Did any one call that evening?" asked Grill.

"Yes; a gentleman came in to see me about school. He said he was a member of the educational department of the city. He inquired about my teacher. I answered him. He wanted to know if I would return to school Monday. He said stamps were all right. He had just had a present of some, and gave me a few duplicates, and said he had no time to look at ours. He asked for a drink of water. He wore a great coat. I gave him the water. I had closed papa's album. He left at once. I put the album away. I took mine to my room."

"Did the gentleman drink the water in the hall or in the study?"

"I brought a clean glass from the hall table; the water was in the study. Papa keeps filtered water in a big urn in the study for his patients. The hall table is just opposite the study door. He stood by the urn and drank and left."

"What was his name?"

"He did not say."

"How did he look?"

"Large and smiling, big coat, blue eyes, no beard."

"Any servants come into the study?"

"No."

"Who let the man out?"

"I believe Mary did; she answered the door for papa."

"Well, go home and ask Mary if the gentleman had a bundle going or coming, and 'phone me her answer."

"That's all, my boy."

"Well, Wilson, I can't go up in a balloon until I find the Doctor's collection."

"Very well, I will wait; call me up when you're ready to examine my new purchase."

"Where are you going?"

"I am going over to the stamp auction."

Wilson went home first. A caller was announced while he was hurrying to get ready to attend the auction. A gentleman introduced himself and said:

"I know you by reputation, Mr. Wilson. My name is Clark. My wife is ill in Detroit. I must have some money to reach her, and I do not wish to borrow. I have here a fine collection of stamps I will sell for thirty dollars. Look it over and see if you can help me."

Wilson looked it over and was surprised—it was a bargain. He gave Clark thirty dollars and he departed.

After he was gone Wilson noticed that Clark had left a small package on the table. He did up his collection in the paper Clark brought it in, and left it on the table. Going out he told the maid: "Clark, the man that was just here, left some of his goods behind him; let him in if he calls for them."

He had not been long on his way to the auction when Clark returned. Said he to the maid, "I left my bundle in the library," passed her and returned at once with the small bundle.

The maid looked in the library and saw the collection lying there.

Wilson returned from the auction, and lighting a cigar sat down in his library to look over his last purchase, but when he opened up his bundle he found that his album was empty. He rushed to the 'phone. "Is that you, Grill?"

"Yes, what's the matter—has the balloon burst?"

"No; but I bought a collection of stamps this evening of a man named Clark for thirty dollars. In some way he substituted a blank album for the one which I thought I bought all right."

"Lock up every thing well, and come over here and stay tonight and we will talk the matter over; bring the substituted album with you. Describe Clark to me."

"Had on a big coat; had blue eyes; a large man with rather taking face. He made the substitution when he came back for the bundle he left."

"I deserve to lose the money, but on reflection thought this case something like the one you're working on."

"We'll go to bed, we can not do anything tonight."

* * * * * * *

Herman Hargrave 'phoned Grill that Mary, the maid, thought the man had no bundle going or coming unless it was under his great coat.

Wilson rushed off to the farm in the morning to see his balloon.

Grill was reading the morning papers. Sam let in a gentleman to see him.

"My name is Clarkson," he said.

"Well, state your business," said Grill.

"I have here a collection of stamps I would like to sell, and knowing your reputation as a philatelist I offer it to you at a bargain price of thirty dollars."

Grill looked it over and bought it, and placed it behind him in the back of his easy chair and Clarkson departed.

"Sam."

"Yes, sir."

"Hand me an old album that is empty."

"Here you are, sir."

"Take this album I have just bought and lock it up in the safe."

"Yes, sir."

"It's done, sir."

"Wrap this old album up and place it in that chair. I am going out. A man, the one just gone, will come back and say that he left a package in my office. Show him in and give him this bundle."

"Yes, sir; I understand."

Grill had got well round the corner when back come Clarkson and told Sam he left his bundle, he thought, in Grill's office.

Sam showed him in.

"Is that it?" pointing to his sham.

"Yes," said Clarkson, taking it and departing.

Grill returned the back way.

"Sam, did it work?"

"Fine."

"An aid of mine is following. We will see where he puts up."

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Thomas Semmes, Jr., is the first to show us a copy of the new 2c envelope, the specimen submitted being from a lot of return envelopes furnished to The Cotter Stevens Co., Smithfield, N. C. The stamp is an oval, the design very strongly suggesting that of the 3c and 6c envelopes of 1864. The head of Washington faces to the left, and is enclosed in a thin oval colorless line. The inscriptions read "United States" at the top and "Two Cents" at the bottom, with large figures of value at each side. There are no separating marks between the inscription and the figures and all appear in white. A heavy white line, and a colored line of the same width complete the oval. The engraving is poorly done, the embossing is faint, and altogether the envelope is far below the usual standard of the Department. The color is a deep brown lake, which would hardly seem to comply with the regulations of the Postal Union. The paper is watermarked like the 1903 paper, with date changed to "1907."

Envelope.

2c brown lake.

The Precanceled Stamp Club reports the following new precancels:

Chicago, Illinois, in caps and lower case in two lines between single lines 1c Jamestown.
Akron, Ohio, 2c due, type I double.

Just as we go to press we have been shown further specimens of the new 2c envelope by Henry MacConnell and a correspondent in New York, the latter also including one on canary paper, also with the 1907 watermark. Evidently the envelopes are getting to be quite common in number, as well as "common" in appearance, and hereafter we shall only be able to chronicle the appearance of the different papers. There should also be other denominations, and we trust our correspondents will remember us promptly when anything new comes to hand.

CUBA.—J. Leiblinger calls attention to various minor varieties in the United States Stamps, surcharged for Cuba. All the varieties exist in the surcharges, about 2000 copies of each stamp having been examined by Mr. Leiblinger:

Scott's No. 221—1c on 1c yellow green, no period after "c".

Scott's No. 224—3c on 3c purple, the "O" of "Peso" is imperfect, making it appear to be a "C"; the period is very small, hardly noticeable, but not missing.

Scott's No. 301—1c postage due, half of the "O" of "Peso" and the period missing.

Scott's No. 302—2c postage due, the "O" of "Peso is often imperfect, though not always in the same way. Generally looks like "C" though sometimes the break is near the top, sometimes near the bottom, and again is in the right center so as to make a good "C". The period is missing in all cases of imperfect printing of this value, and the imperfect stamps occur very frequently.

Other imperfections occur on several values, and include an imperfect "U" in "Cuba" making it appear to be a "J", and portions of the "A" in "Cuba" and most of the letters in "Peso" missing.

Whether these result from broken letters or imperfect impressions, Mr. Lieblinger is not at present able to say.

ECUADOR.—We have been shown several values of a new series of stamps for this country. The designs are the same as those of the two sets for 1899 and 1901, with new portraits and changes in colors. The 5c has a portrait of "Urvina," the 10c one of "Garcia Moreno" and the 20c one of "Carrion." Presumably the usual series of eight stamps has been issued, but as yet we have seen only the three values chronicled below. We announced the approaching issue of these stamps some time since.

Adhesives.

5c lake and black.
10c dark blue and black.
20c yellow green and black.

PHILIPPINES.—J. Leiblinger reports having found Scott's No. 214, with double surcharge, so placed as to form a perfect St. Andrew's cross. The normal surcharge has the usual depth of color, but the one reading downwards towards the lower right corner is very faint. Mr. Leiblinger has had this stamp in his possession for three years, which would remove from it the suspicion of being included in the recent counterfeits.

Mr. Leiblinger has also discovered a copy of No. 213 with the initial letter "P" so broken as to make a perfect letter "I".

PORTO RICO.—J. Leiblinger reports having found the following variety in the 1c on 1c United States, with surcharge reading "Puerto Rico". The "U" of "Puerto" has the serifs at the top removed on the outside so that the letter more nearly resembles "O" than "U".

MALTA.

By P. L. PEMBERTON.

The history of stamps used in Malta begins in 1857, when the ordinary, then current, stamps of Great Britain were issued by the British Post Office, for use on letters going out of the island. I have always held that a specialized collection of a Colony should, in a case like this, comprise specimens of the English stamps employed there, but this is a controversial point on which every collector must please himself. At any rate, I do not propose, in this article, to give a list of the English stamps and plate numbers so used.

While the British Post Office did the work of receiving and despatching letters to and from abroad, the work of dealing with local correspondence in and between the islands of Malta and Gozo was performed by the local Maltese Post Office. Before 1860 the postage on local letters was paid in money, and as the British Post Office did no distributing business within the island, a charge of ½d was collected for every letter delivered from abroad.

In order to facilitate the work of the Local Post office it was decided to have a stamp of the value of ½d prepared, and a Government notice of Nov. 10th, 1860, announced that the stamps had been distributed among the various post offices. The design of the stamp is remarkable for the fact that in no part of it is there a representation of the national emblem—the Maltese Cross. This omission, by the way, was lavishly repaired in all following issues for the island. The half-penny stamp remained the only denomination issued by the Maltese Post Office for upwards of twenty years. During that time the charge for local letters remained at ½d, while newspapers were carried for nothing. Strictly speaking all the yellow ½d Malta stamps were locals as they had no franking power beyond the confines of the islands. They were printed by Messrs. De La Rue & Co., and the first supply was on paper without watermark. In an article by Mr. Rizzo published in the Melita Philatelic Chronicle and Advertiser, in 1899, it is stated that all indents made to the Crown Agents were for £40 worth of stamps at a time, and it seems fairly certain that, owing to the rarity of the stamp on blue paper, there could not have been equal numbers of those on white and on blue, and from this it may be deduced that the first supply was made up of both varieties, with that on white paper very much in the majority. There has always been some doubt as to which variety was used first, but the evidence of dated copies has recently proved the priority of the blue paper stamp. There are two shades of the white paper variety, one being described as buff and the other, which is somewhat scarcer, as brown-buff, though the shade is neither so dark nor so brown as the brown-orange, wmk. CC, of 1876.

The next supply of stamps was received in 1864 and was in the same shade of buff as before, but on paper watermarked Cr CC, and still perforated 14.

This was followed in 1868 by a supply perforated 12½. Of this again there were two shades, namely buff and yellow-buff. I may here mention that in my opinion the relative rarity of these two shades is not correctly indicated by current catalogue quotations, and while the former is put too low at 5sh, the latter is much too dear at 25sh. In my experience I have found them to be in the proportion of about two to one.

In 1872, a further supply was received from Messrs. De La Rue & Co., printed in yellow-buff, but perforated 14 once more. This stamp varies a good deal in shade, some being very pale. The next stamp to be mentioned is that very gorgeous shade known as the golden-yellow. This is quite an unmistakable variety and is one which is well worth catalogue price in mint condition. It was chronicled on its appearance, as saffron-yellow, and this fairly describes it. The colour had the peculiar property of soaking through the paper and staining the gum a rich yellow. Used copies, or specimens without gum, rarely reveal this peculiarity and these might easily be mistaken by a novice for the yellow-buff, though the latter is never such a warm tint.

In 1876, Messrs. De La Rue evidently tried to revert as nearly as possible to the shade of the early issues and sent over a supply printed in what is termed brown-orange. In order that collectors may recognize it, they should remember that it resembles the early buff stamps, but is considerably darker and has a more reddish tone. It is rather difficult to get, either used or unused, in fine condition.

The compound perforation 14x12½, which is the next in chronological order, is printed in yellow-buff, exactly the same shade as that of the CC 14 stamp. At one time this was very scarce unused, but owing to one or two sheets turning up a year or so ago, it can now be bought cheaply and is worth procuring at the present price.

The watermark was changed, in 1881, to Cr CA, the colour remaining yellow-buff, generally of a rather deeper tint than that of the last CC stamp. When this ceased to be issued, in 1884, the postmaster, it is said, laid in the remaining stock as a private speculation, and, as a consequence, the price was high for many years, but of course it has now found its level.

ISSUE OF 1885-86.

In December, 1884, Malta joined the Postal Union, and a set of stamps available for foreign, as well as local, correspondence was issued on the 27th of that month. This issue was proclaimed by a Post Office Decree dated December 9th, 1884, which, at the same time, announced that British stamps would cease to be available for postage after December 31st. The new set consisted of six values from ½d to 1sh, the ½d being in the same design as before, but changed to green. The 2d, 4d and 1sh were all in the same design, having the profile of Queen Victoria to left on a lined ground within a circle, name in a straight band above and value below, while in each spandrel was a Maltese Cross. The 2½d had the profile of the Queen in an oval, inscribed with value and name, a Maltese Cross appeared in each corner. The 1d had the portrait in centre with curved labels above and below containing the name and value while at each side were six Maltese Crosses. The design was completed by a Maltese Cross in each corner, making sixteen Maltese Crosses on one stamp. In 1885 a 5sh stamp was added to the set. This was of large size and had a profile of the Queen in the centre of a large Maltese Cross, which formed the central design. Between the four rays of the Cross were four more Maltese Crosses, and two more appeared in the upper label containing the name. This high value, in conformity with all the other stamps of similar size printed by Messrs. De La Rue, was on Cr CC paper. The perforation was 14.

The lower values were all on Cr CA paper, and their interest for the specialist lies in the varieties of shade which it is possible to get; the 1d, 2½d and 1sh being the most prolific in this respect. Whenever possible collectors should obtain pairs or blocks with that part of the margin attached which bears the plate number.

In the early part of 1894 a sheet of the 4d was accidentally issued imperforate. This is the rarity of the Colony and one which, necessarily, every collector cannot hope to possess. I have seen a used pair.

ISSUE OF 1899-1900.

During these two years five new denominations were added to the set, all the stamps being very pretty and in the case of all except the 2sh 6d, bearing devices typical of Malta. They were as follows:—

¼d brown, View of Valetta.
4½d brown, Maltese fishing boat.
5d vermilion, Old Maltese galley.
2sh 6d greenish-grey, Britannia.
10sh deep blue, Shipwreck of St. Paul.

The first three stamps are water marked Cr CA and the two high values Cr CC, all perf. 14. There are two marked shades of the ¼d, both are common.

THE ONE PENNY PROVISIONAL OF 1902.

On July 4th a provisional 1d stamp was put on sale, made by surcharging the 2½d blue, with the words "One Penny" in two lines, in black. In each pane of 60 occurred an error, in which the word "PENNY" was spelled "PNNEY." This was the second stamp in the 9th row. Much speculation took place in this stamp locally, and this was the cause of a very curious and unique variety being issued, the history of which is as follows:—The Malta postmaster bought up, as a private speculation, as many of the errors as he could get, removing them from the sheets before they were issued in the post offices, and then, as he said, to minimise the possibility of people making forgeries of them, he caused the unsurcharged 2½d stamps to be marked in red ink with a small tick in one corner, so that any imitations might be readily detected. For this ridiculous action, which could only safeguard his own investment, without being of any benefit to the post office, he was dismissed from the service. Specialized collections of Malta should certainly contain specimens of the 2½d stamp with the red tick, but they are not easy to find as only a small number was done. The 2½d with the surcharge "one penny" is found in various shades of blue and ultramarine, from pale to dark.

THE KING'S HEAD ISSUE, 1902-3.

The design of the stamps of this issue presents a pleasing contrast to the uniform design of the corresponding sets for most of the Crown Colonies. The portrait of the King is in an upright oval, surmounted by a crown, this portion of the design being in a colour dif fering from the rest in all values except the ½d. Only the values which had born the head of the late Queen appeared in the King's Head set and one new value, the 3d was added.

STAMPS WITH MULTIPLE WMK.

During 1904 and 1905, all values from ¼d to 1sh, with the exception of the 3d, appeared on paper watermarked multiple Crown CA. These include the King's Heads and the pictorial stamps of 1899-1900. The shades differ in many cases from those of the single CA issue, and, as a general rule, are paler, noticeably so in the 4d and 1sh. Quite recently the 1d has been changed from black and red to a uniform red colour. —Phil. Jour. of Gt. Britain.

REPORT OF BOARD OF VICE PRESIDENTS.

suggested we bring before the 22nd Annual Convention. The feature criticised is that in some instances an applicant's commercial reference has been the firm name of which his proposer is a member, thus making it possible for the two to be practically one and the same. The question of commercial reference was placed in the law as it now stands after considerable discussion in the twentieth Annual Convention at Minneapolis, and while this special phase of the matter was not touched upon, it seems to us that the underlying thought of the discussion, as shown on pages 69 to 73 of the 1905 Year Book, was to the effect that at least one reference should be distinctly independent of the one who proposes. We, therefore, recommend, that Section I of Article II of the By-Laws be amended by the insertion of a new clause after the word "references" in the eighth line, making the fifth to the eighth lines read as follows: "Signed by one member of the Association, and, if the applicant is of legal age, accompanied by one or more commercial references, which commercial references shall not be the firm, or a member of a firm, of which the proposer is a member."

We also recommend a further change in Article II, Section I, by the insertion at the end thereof of a new sentence to read as follows: "In case the Secretary is advised that objections to an applicant have been received by the Board of Vice Presidents, he shall continue to publish the applicant's name until it has appeared in four consecutive issues of the Official Journal, but under such circumstances the applicant shall not become a member until the Secretary be advised by the Board of Vice Presidents that they, after investigation, have accepted the applicant." This is recommended for the following reasons: The custom of recent Secretaries has been to drop an applicant's name from the Official Journal on receipt of advice that objections to him, or her, had been received by the Board of Vice Presidents, completing the four publications of the name after being advised that the applicant had been accepted. This not only puts the accepted candidate to the annoyance of an unnecessarily long delay in being admitted, but, on account of more effective publicity in four consecutive publications of a name, it possibly deprives the Vice Presidents of additional information in regard to a candidate to whom objection has been made.

Finally we would suggest that this Convention request the compiler of the 1907 Year Book to include in some conspicuous place therein, such as following the list of officers, a complete list of the Branch Societies of the Association. This in addition to the showing already given them in their proper place as stockholders. Aside from the convenience of this assembled showing, it provides to a certainty for all societies being represented, which is not the case under the present showing, for, Branch Societies need not necessarily be stock holders, and unless they are, they at present have no representation in the Year Book, notwithstanding they are chartered adjuncts of the Association.

Accompanying and forming a part of this report is the annual report of the Sales Superintendent, whose books of account we have audited and found to be correct and the business of his Department to be in accordance with the showing of his report.

Respectfully submitted,
(Signed,) H. N. MUDGE,
HENRY ADES FOWLER,
FRED MICHAEL.

REPORT OF SALES SUPERINTENDENT.

CHICAGO, July 10th, 1907.

To the Board of Vice Presidents, American Philatelic Association:

GENTLEMEN:—Herewith I tender my Annual Report of the Sales Department which includes all business from July 26th, 1906, to date.

But little trouble of a serious nature occurred during the year and in nearly every case was adjusted without reference to a higher authority. Most of the troubles are caused by carelessness of members and in some few cases, unreasonableness.

There have been a number of cases subject to fines as provided for in the By-Laws but in no instance were they imposed and only a few cases were referred to the Board of Vice Presidents.

The Department has grown to such proportions that no member can conduct it in his spare time or even if he gives it his entire time and attention for it will require the entire time of at least two persons to attend to the many details, correspondence, etc., and if it continues to grow it will be a problem to be solved in the future as to how to care for it.

The possibility of dividing the several sections of the country with a Superintendent for each section has been suggested and may prove feasible.

There is no way of simplifying the work or abolishing any of the many details required to properly conduct the Department, and the suggestions of some members to give credit on sales, keep a separate account of each book and remit for sales on account at stated intervals, would mean an extra bookkeeper to keep account with each of the two thousand or more books. besides creating additional expense for postage, correspondence, etc.

I have continued the monthly and semi-monthly reports for the general information of the members and consider that the publicity of these reports in the official Journal has had much to do with the success and big increase in the business of the Department this year, which is nearly double that of last year.

In addition to the general result of the business of this Department for the year as given in the balance sheet, there are many interesting facts and figures, which can only be noted from a close examination of the books and accounts.

For instance, the consistency with which one member has purchased from every circuit sent him is shown by his ledger account. This member has a very large collection, over fifteen thousand varieties, yet managed to find something on every one of the 80 circuits sent him in two years. Many of these circuits went through other hands, the owners of smaller collections who claimed they could find nothing they could use.

The ledger account of another member shows that he purchased one-tenth of the total amount sold during the year, also a remarkable fact considering he has a very large collection and that there are so many duplications of stamps in the various books.

Other ledger accounts show where members received circuit after circuit yet kept little or nothing.

During the year 750 circuits were sent out which means that the bill for postage Uncle Sam collected for carriage from the Superintendent was $180.00, and as each circuit consisted of ten members, that amount was increased ten times or $1,800.00, which is more than twice as much as the Sales Superintendent received for his commission in attending to the work and responsibility of running the Department and out of which he had to pay all the expenses.

TOTAL NUMBER OF BOOKS RECEIVED AND RETIRED.

From previous report,	998 priced at	$27,691.52
From members,	1472 priced at	31,766.77
Total,	2470 priced at	$59,458.29
Books retired,	927 priced at	23,124.77
In circulation (none on hand),	1543 priced at	$36,333.52

Sales from books retired during this year were $8,809.14, being 38.093 per cent of their value, a large increase over last year when the percentage was only 24.781.

INSURANCE.

Since last report there have been retired 927 books priced at $23,124.77, on which the assessed insurance amounted to $149.05.

Included in this amount was the insurance on 7 books received from the previous Superintendent, amounting to $1.30, which had been formerly remitted and included in last year's report, and $43.44 overpaid, leaving amount due the Insurance Fund $105.31, which has been sent the Treasurer.

ANNUAL ADDRESS OF THE PRESIDENT.

Fellow Members of the Association, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Greatly to my own regret I send you today my greetings by proxy. I regret exceedingly that circumstances do not permit me to present them in person. Twenty years ago this month I attended my first convention in the city of Chicago and but few years have passed since that date when I have not been able to renew my acquaintance with the many good friends whom I have made at the annual gatherings of our association.

Last year with a membership of a trifle over eight hundred I ventured a prophecy that when we gathered at Pike's Peak we should be one thousand strong. The splendid work done by our first recruiting committee under Mr. Rosenthal, has been kept up during the past year by his successor, Mr. Johnson, and not only have we reached the one thousand but have almost attained to the twelve hundred mark. By the report of the secretary which will shortly be laid before you we find that our present membership is 1174, the high water mark of our history! The number of members who have brought in recruits is much larger than last year, but there are still many who have not sent in an application. During the past year I have signed over four hundred new stock certificates but I sincerely trust my successor will be compelled to break my record! Is fifteen hundred members too high a mark to set for our next goal? It is for you to say. I think not.

For the details of the work of our Association I refer you to the reports of the various officers and committees which will shortly be laid before you. Most of them show great activity and if there has been any falling off it is most certainly not the fault of the officers but of the members who fail to take advantage of the departments affected.

There is little need of my enumerating the numerous issues of new stamps put forth during the year for they have all been chronicled in the magazines and papers. In comparison with some previous years the number is quite moderate. The editor of the Revue Philatelique Francaise in his annual statement gives 582 as the total issues of the year 1906, the smallest figure since 1901. The introduction of the multiple watermark and chalky paper has been responsible for many of the new varieties among the British colonials. The Australian Commonwealth seems but little nearer a federal set than it was before. Most of the current stamps of the various states have appeared on the Crown A paper which is about as far as the famous "bookkeeping clause" will permit at present. A very handsome set of pictorial stamps has appeared for Bosnia and Herzegovinia depicting the scenery of the country. The entrance of Brunei into the fold of stamp issuing countries has resulted in the issue of a surcharged set and a pictorial. The absorption of Labuan by the Straits Settlements and the annexation of British New Guinea by Australia have presented us with other surcharges while the Solomon Islands are a new candidate for our albums. In our own country we have to record a new postal card, a new series of stamped envelopes and the Jamestown Exposition set. The United States of Brazil after many years experimenting with local printers have issued a beautiful portrait series containing the likenesses of the great men of the nation, engraved and printed by the American Bank Note Company. New issues with portrait of Frederick VIII. are appearing for Denmark and Iceland and probably for the West Indies.

The new series for the Philippines is in regular use and like the previous issue can be found with assorted surcharges "O. B." for official business. The Spanish colonies now present the king as a young man and in all likelihood the mother country will shortly follow their example. Of French colonials there has been quite a good crop with several sets for some of the Chinese offices which have rather a shady pedigree. The Republic of Panama has at last done with surcharges let us hope, in the issue of a portrait set which has also been surcharged for use in the Canal Zone.

Barbados, New Zealand, Brazil, the Netherlands, and Roumania have issued commemorative stamps of the usual pictorial type in addition to the Jamestown set alluded to above. But with the supplementary catalogues recently issued by the leading English and American cataloguers a further enumeration is unnecessary.

An event of more than usual interest is the placing of our hobby on a par with that of the learned societies in the granting of a charter to the London Society as the Royal Philatelic Society. This can not fail to be of service to advertise the plane upon which our hobby is now conducted and will tend to show that it is by no means child's play. We should feel a special interest in the action taken for among the "Fellows" of the new society are many of our own number.

The question of our association library is one to which I commend your careful attention. Since its formation but little use has ever been made of it and even since it was placed with the Carnegie Library and a catalogue published it has languished. I am informed that it will probably be some time before a new list of the books will be issued on account of more important work now in progress by the library. I would recommend that the association print each year the catalogue in the Annual, revising it to date. Then it would be more available to the members. If the list were set on a linotype and the association owned the slugs, the cost in future years would be slight.

In regard to the matter of printing our convention proceedings in full I recently took a vote of the Board of Directors to secure informally their opinions on the matter and also asked for the opinions of individual members through the medium of a notice in our official journal. The answers have been numerous and varied. Those who have held official positions, particularly in the Directorate, urge the retention of the verbatim report as a necessary record. To this view I add my testimony. Many times during the past years I have had occasion to refer to the Annuals to ascertain certain facts which could not be gotten elsewhere. That we must have a stenographic report seems quite probable. Whether we shall print it entire or condensed is the main question to be decided only by the wish of the members. I would suggest that on the ballots for the next election the members be given an opportunity to express their opinions on the subject.

And now a few words for the future of the association. Our membership is on the upward grade and we must keep it moving still higher. To the Board of Vice Presidents is committed the trust of seeing that the quality of the membership is up to the standard of honorable business dealings and of conduct becoming gentlemen. How well they have attended to their work during the year you will learn from their report. Let the standard never be less and be our membership large or small, let us remember the motto of Webster's Dictionary, "Get the best!"

WILLIAM CARLES STONE.

REPORT OF BOARD OF VICE PRESIDENTS.

CHICAGO, July 27, 1907.

To the Stockholders of the American Philatelic Association:

On its election by the Board of Directors, the Board of Vice Presidents organized by the election of H. N. Mudge as Chairman and Henry Ades Fowler as Clerk.

Since our last report of June 1st, 1907, duly published in the official journal, we have considered three cases of complaints against members, and two cases of objections to applicants for admission to the Association. Of the latter, one was not sustained and the applicant admitted, and one applicant was denied admission. Of the complaints against members, one case is now undergoing investigation, the charges were not verified in one and the case was dropped, and the other was referred back to the complainant with full explanation on our learning that the matter complained of was undoubtedly due to peculiar conditions in conection with severe illness, the latter still making it impossible to take action for the time being.

In connection with this same case of illness it became necessary for this Board to have a special messenger to recover for the Sales Superintendent books of stamps of his Department valued at $415.55. Hence, for expense incurred in the recovery of these books we have drawn on the insurance fund as follows: $8.50 in favor of J. Delano Bartlett, $1.14 in favor of P. M. Wolsieffer. We have also drawn on the insurance fund to the amount of $3.15 in favor of James Guy, account of substitution in one of his books while in circuit in the Sales Department. Total draft on the insurance fund during the period under consideration, $12.82.

During the year the disciplinary cases coming before this Board have been as follows: Objections to the admission of twelve applicants, of which seven were not sustained and the applicants were admitted to the Association, three were sustained and the applicants rejected, and in two cases the applicants themselves withdrew on learning that objections had been made to them. There were complaints against ten members, of which five were referred to the Board of Directors, after being investigated by this Board. Of the remaining cases one was withdrawn by complainant, one was adjusted to the satisfaction of the complainant, charges were not sustained in one case, one was dropped account of illness as explained elsewhere in this report, and one is still pending.

We have drawn on the insurance fund, as shown in our quarterly reports, nine items in sums ranging from $1.12 to $9.00, and aggregating $36.02; and have turned in to the fund mentioned $2.60, leaving a net draft on the insurance fund for the year of $33.42.

A criticism has been made during the year by a member of the application that has been made of the eighth line of Article II, Section I of the By-Laws in regard to commercial references of applicants for admission to the Association, which matter the President has

F. R. CORNWALL, Pres.; J. H. HUMES, Vice Pres.; WALLACE DELAFIELD, JR., Treas.; CHESTER MYERS, Sec.; S. M. SCHOEMAN, Exch. Mgr. and Lib.; Governing Board: above named officers, DR. J. W. HIGSON, F. MILLHOUSE and G. SCHELLHORN.

The sixty-second regular meeting of this Society was held Tuesday, July 23d, 1907, at usual time and place. Due to inclement weather only ten members were present.

Formal business was dispensed with and an impromptu entertainment taking the form of prize contests served to amuse those in attendance until a late hour. The first of these contests required those competing to name the British Colonies which have never issued a stamp bearing the late Queen's picture, resulted in a draw between Messrs. Hopkins and Schoeman, which was decided in the good old way of chance selection of the winning or losing slip from a hat, the latter gentleman being the favorite of Fate.

The second contest, proposed as was its predecessor by Mr. Long, required a listing of the portraits appearing on the regular current issue of U. S. stamps, stating at the same time the face value of the specimen on which each picture appears. It was a revelation to learn that out of ten active American stamp collectors but three could name the faces appearing on stamps in current use with any degree of accuracy and at that it is hardly to be believed that any one of the three prided himself on the fact that he named all but four correctly. And yet in all probability this same showing might result in any gathering of collectors when the question is asked off hand without any previous preparation by the answerers. Messrs. Hopkins, Schoeman and Myers divided the prize equally.

A. P. A. CONVENTION AT DENVER.

A LARGE AND ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING OF PHILATELISTS MET IN CONCLAVE.

By WILLARD O. WYLIE.

President: John N. Luff, New York.
Board of Vice Pres: C. A. Howes, L. L. Green, E. de Z. Kelley, all of Mass.
Secretary: Dr. H. A. Davis, Colorado.
Int. Sec.: L. Harald Kjellstedt, Penn.
Treasurer: H. G. Smith, Minnesota.
Directors at Large: H. J. Crocker, California, F. R. Cornwall, Missouri.

FIRST DAY.

Denver is certainly fulfilling every pledge. She promised the American Philatelic Association a great convention and the pledge is being faithfully carried out. From all quarters of the country philatelists have gathered here to attend what is the most representative meeting ever held. Boston clasps hands with San Francisco, north, east, south and west, all send their representatives. On Monday evening a reception was tendered the convention attendants and was a very successful affair. Detained by the failure to make proper railroad connections, the writer cannot from personal observation speak of this event, but contact with the delegates has shown their delight in the entertainment offered. Music was rendered by the hotel orchestra and the following collections were shown:—

Chinese Treaty Ports by C. A. Howes.
United States by E. H. Hall.
U. S. Entires by D. T. Eaton.
Mexicans by Walter C. Bellows.

Dr. H. A. Davis exhibited stamps showing an original method of mounting and later on reference to the same will be made in these columns. The reception was held in the hotel convention hall, which was decorated in a very handsome manner with flags and bunting.

The first session was called to order at 7.30 a. m. by the Vice Pres., H. N. Mudge, in the enforced absence of the Pres., W. C. Stone. Adjournment was immediately made to meet at 3.30 on the summit of Pike's Peak. It was a merry party of some 75 persons that later left Denver for the mountain session. Dinner was taken at Manitou and the ascent of the Peak made without accident and with everyone keenly alive to the glories of nature spread out in the grand panorama below. Our pen is unequal to the situation. The scene beggars description. How small man seems when he can thus behold the majesty of his Creator. Truly "the firmament showeth his handiwork." At 3.30 a short session was held, when the address of welcome by Pres. Nast of the Denver Stamp Club, and report of Committee on Ballots, were the only features yet sufficient to establish the historical fact of "highest altitude at which the A. P. A. has ever convened." The Committee on Ballots reported through its secretary, S. B. Hopkins, showing the election of the N. E. Branch ticket by good majorities. The result was as follows:—

F. R. Cornwall, 906; Henry J. Crocker, 580; Edw. de Z. Kelley, 576; L. H. Kjellstedt, 576; C. A. Howes, 575; L. L. Green, 574; H. A. Davis, 571; H. G. Smith, 564; John N. Luff, 535; E. Doeblin, 380; D. T. Eaton, 339; F. W. Coning, 342; C. F. Mann, 340; H. W. Wolseley, 339; F. Michael, 337; J. W. Prevost, 334; J. A. Klemann, 329, and scattering 10. Total ballots cast was 935, of which number 18 were for various causes rejected.

Acting Pres. H. N. Mudge then appointed the convention committees as follows:—

By-Laws—Mudge, Wylie, Eaton, Phillips, and Wolsieffer.
Finance—Zahn, Johnson, Cornwall.
Library—Parker, Hopkins, Weber.
Sales Dept.—F. Michael, Hoffman, Bescher.
Official Organ—Saxby, Hall, Bellows.
Branch Societies—Batchelder, Lincke, Nast.
Resolutions—Severn, Mann, Rosenthal.
Place of Next Meeting—Kelley, L. Michael, Davis.

Vacancies on the previously announced Committee on Ballots and Proxies were filled as follows:—L. C. Hassler in place of Duffy, and A. H. Hoffman in place of Carstarphen.

Only a short time on the summit was possible, and the entire party returned to Manitou with only a little discomfort

JOHN R. MILLER,
134 West 79th St., New York City

from the rarified atmosphere on the Peak, but loud in their praises of the Denver hospitality that had brought the day's outing to a successful issue. As we entered the city a huge "Welcome" arch lit up with electricity sent forth its beams of light.

At 9.30 o'clock the adjourned meeting held in the hotel convention hall gave opportunity for presentation of reports, a digest of which follows:—

President (published last week).

Report of Vice Pres. (published last week).

Report of Sales Supt. (published last week).

Report of Sec.—Sec. Henkels reported five new branches organized during the past year and one reinstated, also one being organized at Milwaukee, Wis.; recommended branches be formed in foreign countries; present membership 1175, a gain of 349 in the past fiscal year; nine deaths during the past year—Messrs. Brock, Bogert, Le Fever, Randall, Lambert, De Camp, Espinoza, Hertzman and Greenbaum. Total amount drawn by warrant, $1223.70.

Report of Treas.—Treas. Smith reported the following balances: Stock Account, $2683.00; General Fund, $48.79; Insurance Fund, $667.38, and Exchange Account, $35.90. Total amount in the treasury, $3435.07.

Report of Int. Sec.—Sec. Eaton reported one complaint adjusted and recommended that the subscription and reports to the Vertrauliches Korrespondanz Blatt be discontinued as not being of sufficient value to the association to warrant the annual expenditure.

Report of Counterfeit Detector—J. M. Bartels in his report said:

"During the past year, ending July 15th, 236 stamps have been submitted to the Counterfeit Detector for an opinion. Out of this number 134 were originals, 77 were forgeries either in part or entirely, 8 were reprints, and on 17 no definite opinion could be given. As only 12 different members availed themselves of the privileges of this office it is quite evident that a large number of members are not taking advantage of their opportunities. It is pleasing to be able to report that the manufacture of forgeries is on the decrease. In these days of advanced philately it is far more difficult to deceive than it was years ago, and in order to meet with success a forger has to resort to unusual trickery. The only important new forgeries to report are the 1894 and 1902 series of United States stamps on which the word "PHILIPPINES" has been forged. The complete sets of both issues including postage dues and special delivery have been in the market, however, only in used condition. The utmost caution is still necessary in regard to these stamps."

Report of Attorney—Ten claims aggregating $800 have been received during the past year and seven of these amounting to $630 settled. Att'y Watson urges that care be taken in the matter of sending approval selections to boys.

Report of Com. on Phil. Literature—This report was a very interesting and exhaustive one and the WEEKLY will publish it in full next week.

At 11.30 p. m. the convention adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

An attendance of some sixty members marked the opening of the session Wednesday. The Committee on Ballots presented a report on proxies:—

A. W. Batchelder, 220; P. M. Wolsieffer, 146; E. M. Rosenthal, 111; E. de Z. Kelley, 79; H. A. Davis, 44; W. O. Wylie, 34; I. R. Johnson, 19; C. C. Johnson, 18; S. V. Saxby, 17; L. Michael, 15; A. H. Weber, 14; C. E. Severn, 13; H. B. Phillips, 11; scattering, 27. Total, 768.

The report of the Recruiting Com., C. C. Johnson chairman, was received amid loud applause. It showed that P. M. Wolsieffer was entitled to the honor of leading the membership with 59 applications. Due credit was given various firms for space donated in auction catalogs, to the WEEKLY for co-operation extended, and various dealers for favors received. The report made was no doubt the best of its kind ever presented.

The Committee on Obituary reported that in addition to the names of deceased members already reported that of Isaac A. Wright must be added, a telegram being received conveying the sad information.

Business transacted:—Committee on Black List appointed at Boston was discharged with thanks; the matter of condensation of year book was disposed of by voting reference to entire membership in next annual election; the recommendation of the Int. Sec. in relation to the Vertrauliches Korrespondanz Blatt was negatived and the paper will continue in the same relationship to the association as before; the proposition to appoint a special committee of three to take over the work of the National Stamp Com. was rejected; should the work be continued by that committee next year an appropriation of $50 towards its success will be granted; owners of books in which counterfeit stamps are circulated will in the future be fined a maximum of 25c on each counterfeit with the fine at catalog valuation where the stamp catalogs less than 25c.

Seeing Denver—At 3 p. m. a trolley car was taken and with a competent conductor the points of interest were shown members and friends. The outing was greatly enjoyed.

Banquet—The convention hall was converted into a bower of beauty when at 8.30 o'clock the convention attendants assembled for the banquet. Palms, potted plants, flags, bunting and flowers gave added charms to the scene. In this brief account we cannot do the banquet proper justice. The Albany Ladies' Orchestra furnished music. The menu follows:—

Grape Fruit
With Very Old Sherry
Canape Caviar
Cold Consomme in cup
Whole Tomato Olives
Fresh Lobster Patties, Newburg
Milk Fed Spring Chickens on Toast Club Potatoes
Asparagus en Mayonnaise
Neapolitan Ice Cream
Small Cakes

Mint Wafers
Roquefort Coffee Crackers

Vice Pres. Henry N. Mudge presided in a very happy manner. Opening the after dinner exercises with a pleasing address, the following members were called upon: Willard O. Wylie, A. W. Batchelder, E. M. Rosenthal, C. A. Nast, H. B. Phillips, A. H. Weber, P. M. Wolsieffer, E. de Z. Kelley, Chas. E. Severn, W. G. Swartz, F. R. Cornwall and F. Michael. Mr. Nast in responding to his toast rendered a parody on Robyn's "Answer" that was greeted with hearty applause. It was as follows:

Could you but own, my love, this stamp of mine,
You'd find a wondrous picture printed there.
It is the stamp my lips would lick for thee,
If I but dare, if I but dare.
The stamp of which only a few were born,
The price? Just whisper soft as summer's wind.
It is a stamp which Governments made for thee.
Go forth and find, go forth and find.
It is a stamp just made for you and me.
Go forth and find, go forth and find.

The story of its wand'ring over earth,
By land and sea, by home and foreign shore.
And when I found it in a dealer's shop,
My search was o'er, my search was o'er.
Give me, my wife, the courage then to speak
Of what it cost e'en to the cash I paid.
Let but your eyes, love, bid my tongue to say
The price I paid, the price I paid.

THIRD DAY.

Additional proxies were reported at the opening session Thursday, as follows: Chester Myers, 14; F. Cornwall, 2, S. V. Saxby, 2. Greetings were extended from various philatelic societies including the Springfield Stamp Club and Washington Philatelic Society.

Business transacted: Some form of the Australian ballot will be used in the next election by which the names of all nominees shall be entered on a single ballot; a committee was ordered appointed to audit the books of the treasurer; the balance in the hands of the assistant librarian, $34.25, was ordered held in the hands of that officer for future use; the titles of all the library publications to be printed in the Year Book and kept standing for future use; the sales department was praised for the efficiency of its service; branch societies shall not be organized until application has been presented before an annual meeting, the new law to go into effect July 1, 1908 (vote 548 to 226); Columbus was selected for next place of meeting, the vote standing Columbus 754, Rockford 49, scattering 11; MEKEEL'S WEEKLY STAMP NEWS was elected official journal; the recruiting committee was voted $150.00; no member of the association can hereafter vote more than 50 proxies; the dues of foreign members placed at $1.80 per year on account of the extra expense in carrying the same; nominations for A. P. A. officers may be made by any five members or any branch society.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered Vice Pres. Mudge for the able and impartial manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the session. After singing the Chicago "Rah for the A. P. A." song and "Auld Lang Syne" the convention adjourned sine die at 3.30 p. m. Thursday.

In the evening the convention attendants were royally entertained at Elitch's Gardens. Walter C. Bellows and Mrs. Bellows did everything possible in the name of the hostess to make the hours pleasant. The Old Grist Mill, swings, merry-go-round, magic mirrors, etc., were exceedingly well patronized and for the time, sedate men and women became as boys and girls. The Chicago delegation punctuated the evening performance with a rendition of their club song.

A very excellent convention photograph was taken on the steps of the state house by C. A. Nast. Any reader of the WEEKLY desiring one should communicate with Mr. Nast.

SUMMARY.

The writer has been under a severe strain in sending in this report, convention work and social events making severe inroads into his time. It is possible some matter has escaped his attention. If so it must be overlooked in the strenuous days that have been ours. We cannot close the report without expressing our conviction that the Denver convention has been one of the most important ever held. Note the legislation, far reaching in its importance:—

(1) One ballot in future elections and only one.
(2) Strict supervision of branch organizations.
(3) Branches for political purposes taboed.
(4) Nominations for office require five signers.
(5) Proxy holders limited to 50 votes.
(6) $150.00 voted to Recruiting Committee.
(7) $50.00 voted to National Stamp Committee for 1907-8.

A close examination of these several changes in our laws will show that the late campaign served a useful purpose. Our readers will be pleased to know that the best of feeling prevailed and campaign differences were merged into a common purpose, to safeguard the future welfare of the A. P. A.

INDIA.

ISSUE OF 1854.

By P. L. PEMBERTON.

This set of four values is perhaps the most interesting of all the Indian issues and should be closely studied, for it is just possible that varieties may turn up which have not hitherto been found. The half anna red used to be described as an error, but it was really prepared intentionally as the first issue. The original design was drawn on transfer paper and afterwards engraved upon stone. From the latter, transfers were taken to the number of 120 to form the printing stone. This was impressed three times on each sheet, which thus consisted of three panes, each of 120. They were printed in red, but as very little lithographic ink of this colour was available only a small printing was possible. The stamps being urgently required at Bombay, a few hundred sheets were despatched to the post office at that town, but unfortunately there is no evidence of what eventually became of them. A few used copies are known, and the generally accepted view is that a small quantity was actually sold at Bombay Post Office between May and October, 1854. I am not aware that any copy used on entire is known to exist. Proofs of the ½a in red, which are not infrequently met with, are printed from lithographic transfers made from the original copper-plate of the second type, which was used for the ½a blue; the design of this differs in all details from that of the original ½a red. The most noticeable difference is in the number of arches forming the ornamental design on either side of the stamp; in the original there are nine-and-a-half arches, but in the proof there are only eight. These proofs are almost always on watermarked paper.

It was found that the red ink greatly deteriorated the surface of the lithographic stone, and a fresh die was engraved, this time on copper, for the half anna stamps. As mentioned above this new matrix differed from the old in the number of the arches at the sides and in other details, but its general appearance was very similar. The new stone was made up of 96 transfers in twelve horizontal rows of eight, and the sheets were printed in what was officially termed "indigo-blue." This first printing consisted of 30,000,000 stamps, and immediately afterwards the stones were rubbed off. This was in May, 1854. By July a fresh lot was required and another lithographic stone of the same size as before was constructed from the original die, and a fresh supply printed. Again the stone was cleaned, and in August, when more stamps of this value were required the same process was repeated. In entire panes these different transfers can be distinguished, and at the recent International Philatelic Exhibition in London, Mr. Hausburg showed, in his marvellous collection, an entire pane of each. In the first transfer the fifth stamp in the third, sixth, ninth and twelfth rows is slightly tilted on one side, and if the reader should come across a pair containing this peculiarity he will know from which transfer it comes.

Before leaving this value, mention should be made of the fact that, just before the supply of the next issue, which had been ordered from England, arrived, eight fresh dies of the ½ anna were engraved separately, side by side, on a copper-plate. This was apparently done with the object of making fresh lithographic stones more rapidly than was possible form a single die. It is presumed that the arrival of the new issue from Messrs. De la Rue, took place before a new stone was constructed, as no used copies in this design are known. The principal difference is in the upper corners, which in the ordinary issued stamp, bore four-rayed florets or stars, but which, in these essays, were replaced by maltese crosses corresponding with those on the 1 anna value. It was from this plate that a lithographic stone was afterwards constructed for the purpose of making the reprints, which can thus be readily distinguished from the originals.

The colour of this stamp varies in an extraordinary degree, from dark blue to a very pale washy blue. There are also many minor varieties to be found, caused by defective transfers and bad printing.

The lithographic stone of the 1 anna was made up of 96 transfers taken from one die, which was chosen from among eight separate engravings made, side by side, on a copper-plate.

It is known that, as in the case of the ½a, three separate transfers were made for this value, but in this case the stamps from the third transfer can be recognized, as it is what is known as the "pointed bust" variety. The eye should be trained to recognize this stamp, as I believe it generally puzzles the tyro. The point to remember is that the outline of the bust, taken from the angle at the base of the neck to the end of the bust, is almost a straight line, on the other hand, in the ordinary variety, the outline is curved or rounded. A curious point in connection with this third transfer is, that the same mother die was used, though there were seven others which might have been selected from; the difference in the shape of the bust was caused by the deepening of the lines of the background on the matrix.

The stamps of the first and second transfers can be discriminated when found in pairs, as the stamps are placed wider apart in the first than in the second.

For the highest denomination of the set, namely the four annas, three different transfers were necessary as in the case of the other value. The printing stones were prepared from copper plate engravings of the body of the stamp with the wavy dividing line and rosettes and of the head. The printing being in two colours two different stones were necessary, which accounts for the head being found inverted, though the variety is of the greatest rarity. The first sheets contained only twelve stamps, arranged in three horizontal rows of four 18mm apart. The designs were separated by wavy lines in blue, with small rosettes where the lines intersected; a part of the watermark appears on each stamp. In the second transfer there were 24 stamps to the sheet, the dividing lines were dispensed with and the stamps placed at a distance of ¼ inch apart. It was found however that by this arrangement the corner stamps did not get their share of the watermark and indeed were frequently without any, so a fresh transfer was needed.

In this, the third, and last transfer, there were again 24 stamps but they were placed still more closely together, the distance between them being only 3mm. The stamps from this stone therefore all came in for a portion of the watermark.

I believe the different transfers cannot be distinguished in single stamps unless they have sufficient margins, but naturally the difference can at once be seen in pairs. The second transfer, with the stamps ¼ of an inch apart, is the rarest.

The three values which I have now described at some length were all designed by a native engraver named Numeeroodeen, and printed at the Lithographic Department at Calcutta, but the case of the 2 annas is different. This was electrotyped at the Calcutta mint, as the Lithographic Department had as much as they could do to keep pace with the demand for the other values. The pane consisted of eighty stamps in ten horizontal rows of eight. All were reproduced from the same matrix, and there are no differences to be found in the design. The shades of green in which the stamps were printed vary very considerably.

The relative rarity of the three lithographed values is demonstrated by the following account of the numbers printed.

Half Anna,	36,694,180.
One Anna,	9,378,432.
Four Annas,	1,659,984.

The 1 anna and 4 annas are known with serrated perforation. This was unofficial.

Since 1855, all the Indian stamps have been printed by Messrs. De la Rue & Co., with the consequence that, owing to the care and precision with which this celebrated firm do their work, there are very few variations from the normal in any of the stamps, with the exception of shades and colour. Nevertheless there are several points in connection with some of the issues which it is of interest for even the moderate specialist to know.

THE 1855 ISSUE ON BLUED PAPER.

The issue consists of two values only, the 4a black and 8a carmine. They were printed in sheets of 320 stamps arranged in four panes of 80 each. The paper is, I believe, identical with that used for the first English 4d stamp, namely a stout hard pale blue paper with a highly enamelled surface.

Towards the end of 1859, both these values were bisected diagonally and used as 2a and 4a respectively, but apparently only at Singapore, as all those I have seen bear the postmark of that town.

THE 1856-64 ISSUE WHITE PAPER.

Though the stamps of this issue have no watermark, the margins of the sheets and the spaces between the panes were watermarked with the words "GOVERNMENT OF INDIA—EAST INDIA POSTAGE." When the sheets were placed evenly in the press, parts of this watermark encroached on the stamps. The most interesting stamp of this issue is the 2a which was first printed in dull pink. This was difficult to distinguish in artificial light, from the 8a red. A few sheets were then sent over from England printed in green, but these were so much like the blue half anna that they received hardly any trial, as is proved by its extreme rarity in a used state. After this the orange shade was finally

EDITORIAL.

A Record Convention—The twenty-second annual convention of the American Philatelic Association, held at Denver July 30th to August 1st, inclusive, reached the zenith of success, measured by all those standards that enter into the philatelist's consideration. The attendance was large and representative and the interest manifested in the transactions of the convention and the concerns of the association was intense and intelligent. Effective work was accomplished and the legislative measures adopted were sensibly corrective and reflected the best thought of the members, who deliberated well before enforcing changes. In actual movement tending to improve the workings of the association, it is doubtful whether any recent convention can record so much progress. The details of the questions affecting the association's policy appear in our reading columns elsewhere.

Real Philately—No legislation was offered on subjects that applied to philately in its broadest sense, or entirely separated from association affairs, unless we deem a passing reference to the question of official philatelic badge or button an exception; nevertheless, the stamp theme was prominent. Stamps were shown informally in the way of collections and selected specimens; and the advertised occasion on the night of Monday, July 29th, when the collections of C. A. Howes, Chinese Treaty Ports; Ed. H. Hall, United States; D. T. Eaton, United States Entires; and Walter Clarke Bellows, Mexico, were exhibited in the course of the reception to the visiting delegates by the Denver Stamp Club, at the Albany Hotel parlors, was a veritable crush. The spacious parlors were thronged by collectors, their friends and the public generally and the spirit of philatelic enthusiasm ran high. After the exhibition, the complimentary ball was given by the hotel management; one of the Denver newspapers said that the ball was not well attended as it was impossible to lure the collectors away from their beloved stamps, even by the most pleasing form of gayety.

Well Advertised—The treatment afforded the convention by the newspapers of Denver was remarkable for its liberality and intelligence, and much credit is due to the press committee, Chas. A. Nast, chairman, for its well-directed efforts. Reporters were always on the scene; groups of delegates and individuals were pictured and made a feature of many of the accounts. The hotel management placed a sign in the rotunda announcing that the convention was in session and that the general public was welcome; many out-siders took occasion to visit the commodious and beautifully decorated hall where the stamp lovers had fore-gathered.

In Gratitude—The Denver committees worked unceasingly to extend entertainment and comfort to all the visitors, who were deeply appreciative of the hospitality. The responsibilities of the Denver men were many and varied but they were discharged to the signal satisfaction of all. The many trips that were made required much careful planning and never for a moment did those in charge of affairs relax their efforts to cater to the pleasure of the visitors. At the banquet, the toast-master, H. N. Mudge, and several of the speakers reverted earnestly to the labors of the Denver collectors in providing pleasures for the delegates and guests.

Harmony—The result of the election was announced at the second session of the convention, held late in the afternoon of July 30th, at the summit of Pike's Peak, when the committee on credentials reported the election of what was known as the Boston ticket, by a comfortable majority. Great interest was manifested in the result of the contest, which, as members know, was a most spirited one. In this connection, it is only just to say that the heat of the past campaign seems to have cemented the membership in its entirety all the closer, as there were no murmurs of dissatisfaction over the result. The vanquished saluted the victors and a feeling of perfect harmony prevailed; the partizans of the once rival camps fraternized under the emblem of the association, when the issues were decided. Anyone who had not been conversant with the campaign would have thought that the vote, the highest registered in the history of the American Philatelic Association, was a mere formality and pleasantly perfunctory, judging from the manner in which the victors were hailed. Those members who, before the election, expressed in all sincerity the opinion that the campaign as conducted would engender a lasting bitterness may rest in the assurance that instead of any discontent resulting, a warmer feeling than ever is entertained, by the one-time opponents, in the association and all its concerns. A wave of harmony has engulfed all the differences that once divided the ranks and a fraternity more solidified than ever before is unmistakably present. The leaders in the campaign seem to feel nearer than before and they will vie with each other in promoting the association's welfare, irrespective of faction or section.

Thanks—The WEEKLY was selected as the official journal for another year, under the terms practically that were accepted last year. Needless to say, the WEEKLY is proud of the honor that has been paid it, as it may say in all sincerity that it is not alone the material advantages that accrue from its journalship that are concerned. We have a deeply sentimental satisfaction in serving the association, and it is our firm conviction that the wide list of readers that this paper boasts affords a broad avenue for recruiting work. As the circulation of our journal grows there is a natural tendency to a proportionate increase in the ranks of the association. The slogan of the enthusiasts of the American Philatelic Association is fifteen hundred members by the time the convention is held at Columbus next year; this expectation is a most reasonable one, based on the flattering growth that has been experienced the past year.

Next Year—The seat of the convention next year is Columbus, the capital of Ohio, which has attained importance philatelically through the flourishing and energetic branch in that city. The invitations to meet at Columbus came from the governor of Ohio, the mayor of the capital, the business men's association of the city and the Columbus Branch. They were so cordial and engaging that while several other places were placed in competition with Columbus, they did not prove to be serious contenders for preferment. The letter of the Columbus Branch was a most happy one, combining the grave and the gay, in a way to prove irresistible to the delegates. Though some of the members are acquainted with the attractions of Columbus as a convention place, we say with certainty that in due course of time, it will be shown to all that the choice of that city was one dictated by sound judgment.

Coming—The social side of the convention was prominent in many ways and the WEEKLY intends to speak of the personal aspect of the gathering when once the business proceedings have been duly detailed. It is doubtful whether we shall have space in this issue for any comment of the kind outlined but in the succeeding number something will be said of those who attended the convention from near and far. These items have a human cast at least, and they are always an accompaniment of the business or, for comparison, the serious considerations of the convention.

NEW POSTAL CARDS WILL BE OF DIFFERENT DESIGN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Postmaster-General Meyer has promulgated an order, effective August 1, 1907, providing that the face side of a Government postal card be divided by a vertical line placed approximately one third of the distance from the left end of the card; the space to the left of the line to be used for the address only.

A very thin sheet of paper may be attached, if it completely adheres to the card, and such a paster may bear writing and printing. Advertisements, illustrations or writing may appear on the back of the card and on the left third of the front.

Postal cards bearing particles of glass, metal, mica, sand, tinsel or other such substances are declared to be unmailable, except in envelopes with proper postage, or when the objectionable materials cannot rub off or injure the hands of persons handling mail.

The contractor at Rumford Falls, Me., is now putting in new machinery for the manufacture of postal cards of a new design conforming to the amended regulations.

REVENUE SOCIETY CONVENTION.

The first annual convention of the United States Revenue Society was held Wednesday evening, July 31st, in the rooms of the Boston delegation at The Albany, Denver. Dr. H. A. Davis called the meeting to order and Willard O. Wylie was elected chairman pro tem. The result of the election of officers was read by C. A. Nast, showing the re-election of the old board in its entirety with the exception of Secretary, F. B. Kirby being chosen in place of Dr. Davis (nomination declined).

The report of the Committee on Constitution was an excellent document prepared by E. R. Aldrich of Benson, Minn. So well was the work done that only a few perfecting amendments were adopted. Some of the salient features are as follows:

Fiscal year begins Sept. 1.

President serves only one year when First Vice President becomes promoted by virtue of office.

The Second Vice President is in turn promoted, an election for this office being necessary each year.

Affairs of Society to be administered by a Board of Governors, consisting of President, Vice President, Second Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Sales Supt. receives commission of 10 per cent, and must give a bond for $3000.

Annual meeting in connection with the A. P. A.

Polls close at noon Monday of convention week.

A single ballot with all nominations shall be supplied by the Secretary prior to election.

The Secretary shall also furnish blank proxy form.

Annual dues $1.00, payable Sept. 1.

From the above it will be seen that an admirable constitution was presented and Mr. Aldrich is entitled to the thanks of the Society for his labors. It was voted that Mr. Aldrich be requested to prepare a set of by-laws covering the administration of the Sales Department, etc., etc. Upon approval of the same by the Board of Governors a prospectus will be issued containing constitution and by-laws, list of members and such other matter as may be useful in promoting the welfare of the Society. To meet the expense of the same it was voted to assess each member 50c, this amount to be added to the due bills sent out Sept. 1.

The next convention will assemble at Columbus, O., in connection with the sessions of the A. P. A.

INDIA.

decided upon. There is a used copy of the 2a in the Tapling collection printed in reddish-brown, but I believe that it is now regarded by the best authorities as of doubtful antecedents.

The 8 pies value, which was brought into use in 1860, was required for the prepayment of soldiers' letters to Great Britain and the Colonies, which was fixed at that amount by Act of Parliament. This stamp is found on white paper and also on bleuté.

Varieties worth looking for in this issue are the 1a and the 2a, buff imperf., both of which are known, and also diagonal halves of the 4a and of the 8 pies, which, as in the former issue, were used at Singapore.

The 4a black was rather extensively forged, for which reason it was changed in colour to green. I recently found a postally used specimen of this impostor, which, to the eye of a philatelist looks sufficiently atrocious, but which evidently was too good for an Indian postal clerk.

THE 1865 ISSUE.

These stamps are the same as the last issue except for the watermark of an elephant's head, and there is little to note in connection with it. The 1½a blue is known imperf. and postally used.

The watermarked 8 pies stamp is interesting on account of its being one of the few stamps that have been sold at a price other than that expressed upon it. This came about through the raising of the rate for soldiers letters from 8 to 9 pies. This took effect on June 1st, 1874, and from that date to October, 1876, the 8 pies stamps were sold at 9 pies each. Specimens are known with the word NINE surcharged in black, and it is believed that this was done locally by some enterprising postmaster to prevent confusion.

THE 6a PROVISIONAL OF 1866.

This stamp, being wanted in a hurry, was made by surcharging the six annas Foreign Bill Stamp with the word POSTAGE in green block letters, in a curve. These letters measured 3mm in height and were printed near the top, after which the upper and lower portions of the stamp were cut off. Obviously, the specialist who wants an unsevered block of four of this stamp will have far to seek. I do not know how many stamps were surcharged at a time, but there are 20 varieties of the type, differing in the spacing of the letters, and also, in a minor degree, in the shape. The stamp exists with surcharge inverted near the bottom of the design, but only three specimens are known. The type of the overprint was afterwards changed, the new lettering being considerably smaller than the old, measuring only 2mm in height, and presenting no differences in type.

THE 4a 1866.

Owing to the difficulty of getting a sufficient number of distinctive colours for all the different values of the set it was decided, in 1866, to alter the design of the 4a and thus prevent any further possibility of confusion with the ½a blue in artificial light. This was the reason for the appearance of the 4a in a new rectangular design with the corners cut off with concave curves. There are two dies of this stamp and one of the easiest tests for distinguishing them is to remember that in the earlier one there are three or four lines of shading of almost equal length on the forehead, above the eye, and in Die II. there are, at the most, three lines of shading, of unequal length, and several dots. There are other differences in the drawing of the lines around the mouth and nose.

THE 8a 1868.

This is not a variety of the 8 annas of the 1865 issue from a retouched die, but is from an entirely new matrix. The main difference is in the diadem, which, in the new type, contains a row of pearls at the top, and touches the frame of the central oval. In the first type the point of the diadem is some distance from the oval frame.

THE ½a OF 1873.

This also is in the design of the previous issue but is from an entirely new die. It can at once be distinguished by the mouth which here is open while in the former type it is closed. This is the most marked of many differences.

1882-1886 ISSUE.

This issue consists of 11 denominations, each in a different type. It is interesting as marking the assumption by Her Majesty the late Queen Victoria of the title Empress of India. This change is shewn on the stamps by the substitution of the name INDIA for EAST INDIA. This set is capable of great results for the collector who is fond of marked gradations of shades. Two distinct sets can be made up shewing early and late printings. In the case of the ½ and 4a the earlier shades are the deeper, but in the case of all the other values the exact reverse is the case.

The principal specialists' varieties in this issue are the ½a and 2a double printed (both these varieties were actually issued).

The 1 rupee, printed in grey, was forged to a great extent, and large numbers were used on correspondence. I remember that when I was in Manchester in 1890-92, I frequently found these forgeries amongst stamps taken from the correspondence of large business houses. It was no doubt for this reason that the colour was changed in 1892 to carmine, with green centre.

THE 2½as ON 4as 6 PIES (1891).

This stamp was required when the postal rate to England was reduced to 2½d. There is a well-marked variety of the surcharge, which is not generally known, but which is well worthy of catalogue rank. In this the foot of the letters "As" is on a level with the fraction bar in "½," whereas in the ordinary type it is always exactly level with the foot of the large "2." Though I have known of this variety for nine years, and have examined thousands of specimens, I have only found two. From this it seems possible that the error occurred in the earlier sheets only, and was afterwards corrected. A copy I have seen is dated 25th March, 1891, which was three months after the stamp was issued. Besides this variety, specimens may be found with portions of the figures or letters missing, but I cannot say whether these are due to broken type or to defective printing.

THE ¼a ON ½a OF 1898.

The stamp has been chronicled with surcharge inverted, but I believe the best authorities consider it to be bad.

ISSUE OF 1902-3, KING'S HEAD.

There is nothing much of note to draw attention to in this issue, though there are some more or less well-marked shades, notably in the case of the 3 pies. This issue is being gradually replaced by stamps in the same designs, but with the word "POSTAGE" replaced by "POSTAGE & REVENUE."

Before proceeding to the official stamps, I will remark here upon the great pains which the Indian Government have always taken with a view to preventing forgery, in which, as I have shown, they have not been altogether successful. It was for this reason that the margins of the sheets of all the stamps from 1865 o 1900, were either printed with inscriptions or designs, the object being to prevent the paper being used for the manufacture of imitations.

OFFICIAL STAMPS.

THE SMALL "SERVICE" SET.

Stamps for the use of all the Government Departments, which, in India, form a very large section of the European community, were first issued in 1866. They consisted of the stamps of the then current design overprinted with the word "Service" measuring 13*mm*. At first some sheets of the unwatermarked issue were surcharged, but when they were exhausted, and while still waiting for the overprinted stamps which had been ordered from Messrs. De la Rue, sheets of the watermarked series were used. There is a well marked variety of this overprint in which the capital "S" is larger, this occurs eight times on each sheet, but specimens are not common and are worth looking out for. Other minor varieties have no stop after "Service," no dot over the i, and so on.

THE 1866-67 PROVISIONALS.

These stamps are all rare with the exception of the ½a red-lilac of 1867; of this value there are many varieties in the type of the surcharge "Service Postage" some of the letters being very irregularly spaced. The stamp also exists with double surcharge. All the five stamps including both types of the 2a have been reprinted, but these are little better than forgeries, as the overprinting was done with different type some two or three years after the stamps became obsolete.

THE LARGE "SERVICE" SET.

These were overprinted by Messrs. De la Rue, in London and were issued in 1867. The rarities of the set are the ½a blue, Die II. and the 6a. 8 pies (issued in 1868). The Philatelic Society's work on India mentions the 1 and 2as with the surcharge inverted, the ½a and 8 pies without stop after "Service" and the 1a with double stop.

THE "ON H. M. S." OVERPRINTS.

In 1874 five values appeared surcharged "On H. M. S." which is obviously more explicit than the previous overprint. The ½a and 1a may be found with the overprint in a very deep blue, so deep that the colour can only be seen when the stamp is held up to a good light and looked through.

In 1883 a similar surcharge, in black, was applied to the 1882-83 issue, watermarked Star, but as these stamps are larger the letters forming the overprint were spaced further apart. At first the lettering was thick. The "O" of "On" was the same thickness all round, and the "n" of the same was thick where the curved part joined the first down-stroke.

Mr. Wetherell has recently shown me a copy of the 1 rupee with this thick overprint in which the "M" at foot has the cross-bar at the bottom of the last down-stroke prolonged into the stop. He tells me that he has two such specimens, both on the 1 rupee. In later printings of this surcharge there has been more difference in thickness between the up and down strokes, and there is evidence of more than one setting of the overprint. These surcharges will well repay a little close study on the part of collectors, as there are numerous minor differences of type which are not altogether due to defective printing. The "On H M S" surcharges on the 1900 and current issues are all in thin type.—P. J. of Gt. Britain.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Just as we go to press we have received a copy of the new 1c envelope from B. D. Forster. It is a fit companion for the new 2c, chronicled in our last issue. Further mention will be made of the new 1c in our next number.

BARBADOS.—The Kingston Relief stamps are reported to have been found with double surcharge, both normal and inverted.

Ewen's is informed that the last printing of these stamps consisted of 12 sheets of 60 stamps, the date of issue being after they were withdrawn from sale.

BRITISH HONDURAS.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us the high values of the current King's head set on multiple paper. These were announced some time since. These include the 10c lilac and green, 25c lilac and orange, 50c green and carmine, $1 green and carmine, $2 carmine and blue, and $5 green and black.

EAST AFRICA AND UGANDA.—A new issue is reported as contemplated for this Protectorate, the currency having been altered from annas to cents. It is reported that East Africa and Uganda are to be divided again. The 1a East Africa and Uganda stamp has already been seen overprinted "Uganda Revenue" and postmarked at Entebbe.

EGYPT.—Sudan.—The 2m on 3m card noted in No. 841 has been overprinted for use in the Soudan.

MAURITIUS.—Ewen's reports that the 6c lilac and red on red has been issued on chalky multiple paper.

NEW ZEALAND.—Gibbons' Monthly reports the following quantities printed of the Exhibition stamps: ½d, 200,000; 1d, 175,000; 3d, 80,000; 6d, 45,000. The Australian dealers have advanced their prices for these stamps, some recent quotations being 6d each for the ½d and 1d, 1sh for the 3d and 1sh 3d for the 6d.

NICARAGUA.—The Scott Stamp & Coin Co. has shown us a copy of the current 10c, American print, with both the "Cabo" and "B—Dpto Zelaya" surcharges, the "Cabo" having apparently been struck over the other. It is difficult to explain this, for as Mr. Putney writes, many strange things are happening in Nicaragua postal affairs nowadays.

NORWAY.—There is considerable delay in the issue of the new Norwegian kroner stamps, with head of the King. The original die for the three values was delivered late in June, and the preparation of the plates was to have proceeded at once. However, the printer must deliver proofs before the plates are accepted, and the colors must be selected.

THE 19th CENTURY STAMPS OF HAYTI.

By W. BUCKLAND EDWARDS, B.Sc.

Hayti is one example of those countries whose postal issues have depreciated in the public estimation owing to recent more or less speculative emissions, or, at least, unnecessary ones. It began very well, with six values, which lasted the same number of years, imperf. and perf. then the first four were changed in design, and four years later the first five appeared in another, but uniform, type. A slight alteration of this type was deemed necessary in about a couple of years, and the whole series was so printed; but all these changes, including a couple of surcharges, do not account for more than thirty stamps omitting minor varieties, which number is in no way excessive.

To make an early digression, it is almost fatal for a country to attempt the exploitation of stamp-collectors by means of changes which might have been avoided. Take, for instance, Persia: who can possibly take any interest in the enormous output of rubbish made during the last ten years? Or Salvador, with its ridiculous array of surcharges? Even the stamps of the United States, attractive as they are, have suffered decidedly on account of the commemorative issues, and the general collectors' interest in them is nothing like what it was, although there are signs of returning favour.

It is just the same with Hayti, for since 1896 more than twice the number of varieties have appeared that were sufficient for postal purposes during the preceding fifteen years. For this reason, I propose to limit my remarks to the issues of the last century, leaving it to someone better informed than I am to complete them if they choose. Let me say at the outset that this paper does not pretend to be highly scientific. I have no access to official documents or papers of any kind, and my own collection, though fairly representative, is in no way specialized. I might begin with a dissertation on the Island of Hayti, its government, products, &c., but the Encyclopædia Brittanica is probably sufficiently up-to-date to include all that my readers wish to know on the subject, so I proceed at once to the stamps.

The first issue appeared in 1881, and consists of six values in cents, printed on tinted paper of medium thickness and imperforate. No watermark is the rule for all Haytian stamps, except the temporary issue of 1898.

The design is simple and effective, but somewhat crude, although the stamps were produced in Paris, where something better might have been expected. A Head of Liberty nearly fills up a circular band containing the words "Republique d'Haiti," and "Poste" twice repeated; the band is broken at the bottom by a tablet or shield, with the figure of value, on each side of which is the word "Cent." in an oblong. All the wording is in capitals, and the apostrophe in "d'Haiti" is practically a full stop, with only the slightest tendency to a tail Other material details of the design need not be referred to here, but the issue is rich in those minor varieties that the hair-splitting specialist delights in. These result from the production of the stamps by lithography, with the necessary alteration of the figure in the shield for each value required. I am not sufficiently well versed in the methods of printing to know whether the figure could be changed at will (as in typography) but that the rest of the design remained constant is shown by the stamps in my collection in the following way.

First, the shield is sometimes quite plain, but more often than not, an inner line appears at the top or bottom, above or below the figure of value, as if it were type-set, and the inserted block did not quite fit the space it was intended for. These lines are very variable, being sometimes clear, sometimes very faint, or broken irregularly, sometimes they appear both at the top and bottom in one stamp; the outline of the shield, however, remains constant, and, if broken, it will be found broken in exactly the same way on another stamp. I have, for instance, copies of the 5 and 7 cents in which the top left hand corner of the shield is broken off, the solid ground at the back of the head encroaching upon it, and in both stamps the Q of "Republique" is broken on the left in exactly the same way. Again, the figures of value in each case are tilted to the left, and there is scarcely room to doubt that these two stamps occupied the same place on the sheet.

FRANK P. BROWN,
339 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

The specialist may make varieties of shades, all the stamps showing variation in colour to some extent; and also of the defects mentioned above in the two groups, (1) variable—inside the shield; (2) constant—outside the shield.

The list of normal stamps is as follows: 1c vermilion, 2c purple, 3c bistre, 5c green, 7c deep blue, 7c grey-blue and 20c brown.

The two 7 cents stamps are distinct enough in colour to be treated better than as mere shades.

In the following year the same stamps were sent out perforated 13½ on the same tinted paper, and in nearly the same colours. Similar defects in the shield may be found as in the imperf. series, and it is said that the whole issue exists on white paper (Gibbons quotes one—the 2 cents), also in pairs imperf. between. The above list will stand for these stamps, but the 7 cents are still more marked in shade; bright blue and pale ultramarine will best describe them.

I have the 20 cents perf. 15½, undoubtedly postally used, and dated 21 Dec. '89. I do not believe this stamp to be a forgery, in spite of the fact that, according to Gibbons, the "best authorities" believe all the stamps perf. 14 and 15½ to be forgeries made to defraud the Post-Office. I can find no essential points of difference between this stamp and the normal one perf. 13½, the tail of the Q in Republique touches the circle as it does in all the genuine stamps, and the apostrophe in D'Haiti is the same nearly full stop. The colour is certainly deeper and brighter, and the paper is white or greyish, and not tinted yellow; but if I am wrong, the forgery is an exceedingly good one, and the perforation a masterpiece, being quite regular and clean cut. Of course the fact of this stamp being used does not in itself make it genuine, as Gibbons' note shows that the intention was to deceive the Post-Office and not collectors; my stamp is also crossed with a blue pencil mark, which may be official, and an intimation that the fraud was discovered.

In 1886 the type was redrawn for the 1, 2 and 5 cents only, which means that more than one plate was now in use, in fact, as I can find none of the above-mentioned defects within the shield due to a separate setting of the figure of value, it looks as if a plate were made for each of the redrawn values. The 1 and 2 cents stamps are easily located by the shading on the neck which is horizontal instead of following the contour of the face, whilst the apostrophe in D'Haiti is a clear comma. The figure 2 is larger, being 4½mm. against barely 4 in the early 2 cent stamp; in my one copy there is also a small comma after the word Republique. The 5 cents has no horizontal shading, but the figure of value is both taller and broader, and the apostrophe in D Haiti is a note of exclamation!

In 1887, the four lowest values appeared in quite a new type, the head of President Salomon in an oval, Haiti above with a figure of value each side, and the value in words and one figure below the oval. The series is a handsome one, simple and effective (a phase about as useful as "economy with efficiency"), but did not last long on account of a revolution which displaced the gentleman depicted thereon. The four values are: 1c lake, 2c violet, 3c deep blue, 4c green.

The colours are very fine, but I have not come across any marked shades, the perforation is 14.

In 1890, the 3 cent stamp, being less in demand than the 2 cents, was surcharged DEUX CENT. with the figure 2 in the centre of the words placed in the form of a circle.

The surcharge is in red, and shows up badly. It may be found printed in all sorts of positions, with numerous defects due to careless printing, and repeated twice or even three times on the same stamp.

In 1891, an entirely new design appeared, consisting essentially of a palm-tree (or a sweep's broom) and a collection of warlike goods symmetrically arranged as if for sale! I do not know if the design was intended as a representation of Peace and War, but if so it is no improvement on Landseer. The figure of value appears in each top corner, and the words "Republique d'Haiti" occur in a label at the bottom, the apostrophe in the words is a clear comma. The list of these stamps is as follows: 1c mauve, 2c light blue, 2c deep blue, 3c grey-lilac, 3c slate, 5c orange and 7c scarlet.

There are minor shades, at any rate of the first three values, and the two of the 2 cents listed by me are quite distinct, not catalogued.

In the following year, the before mentioned surcharge was placed on the two shades of the 3 cents stamp, and is usually indistinct; here again the double surcharge exists, and I believe the error DEU CENTS has been found, which may possibly arise only from the failure of the x to print.

In 1893, the same type appeared modified, and the 20 cents was added to the series; its late appearance accounts for the cheapness of the old "Liberty" 20 cents, which had a life of 11 years. The modification consists mainly in the palm tree having drooping branches (or are they merely huge leaves?), but the "instruments of war" are more compressed, so that the plain background takes up greater space, the word CENT is smaller, and the apostrophe in "D'Haiti" is what it was intended to be. The colours are modifications of those in the former series, and although (with the exception of the 2 and 7 cents) they differ materially from them, I need not give the list, but would point out that five shades exist of all values. The 20 cents is brown. I have two copies of the 2 cents indigo on paper toned yellow, which seems to be a distinct variety, one of them is on part of the original paper in company with no less than three other varieties of the same value. The writer of the letter must have been clearing out his desk! A single copy I should have regarded with suspicion, but two, and one of those on original, is good enough for me. I may also mention that whereas two shades of the 1 cent are catalogued, only one of the 3 cents is mentioned, when the difference in the shades of the latter value is at least as well marked. This is a type of inconsistency which most of my readers are acquainted with! The 2c and 7c are catalogued imperf., but I know nothing about them.

In 1896 a new issue appeared, which nine out of every ten readers will think to be exactly the same type as last, with colours only changed. Such is not the case, the design is redrawn, but the modification is still slighter than in the previous issue, the only point of difference at first sight being the reduction in size of the letters in the words "Republique d'Haiti." The apostrophe is, however, nearly a full stop and very faint, the C of cent is more open. The issue stands as follows: 1c light blue, 2c light red, 3c brown-lilac, 5c slate-green, 7c slate and 20c orange.

In a strip of the 2 cents in my possession, I find very distinct differences in the size and shape of the figure 2; this peculiarity might be worth investigation in respect of the other values.

In 1898, the 20 cents stamps of this and the former issue were surcharged with the same DEUX CENT as before. Double, triple and inverted surcharges may be found on the brown stamp, and the double overprint on the orange. The same year saw another complete set of a new type, something like the last, but the words "Republique d'Haiti" are in two lines, "Haiti" being in bolder type. This issue attracted the speculator, who appears to have bought up the 1, 3, 7 and 20 cents, with the result that only the 2 and 5 cents are accorded catalogue rank —unfortunate for the speculator! A few of the cornered stamps seem however to have been issued to the public, so that it is a difficult question whether or not they should be collected; just at present I see that some of them are coming on to the market.

Another issue was soon brought out, consisting this time of 12 values from 1 cent to 1 gourde: the 4, 8, 10 and 15 cents keep to the arms type, again greatly modified, the remaining values been the head of President Simon Sam. I propose to say nothing of the issues since 1899, for the catalogue gives all the information which I am able to impart, and I do not find them interesting.

The early stamps of Hayti, on the other hand, possess considerable interest, and, as an inexpensive country to specialize, the medium collector could look farther and fare worse.—Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly.

NEWS GLEANINGS.

—The Managing Editor has just returned from a four weeks' trip which included the Pacific Coast as well as the Convention of the A. P. A. at Denver. It was no small task to so arrange matters that things might run smoothly in his absence. He wishes to publicly acknowledge his indebtedness to the printer, W. W. Jewett, for aid extended. Mr. Jewett's former experience with the Weekly Philatelic Era makes him a strong factor in presenting the philatelic public with a forceful MEKEEL'S WEEKLY. Mr. Severn, also an attendant at the Denver Convention, has returned to his desk at Chicago.

—The WEEKLY acknowledges with thanks clippings from the following: Geo. Dunton (2), Alphons Lang, G. W. Wood, Jas. D. Patterson, J. H. Tweed, Thos. S. Doughty, Julian Park, Wm. L. Hamilton, Jr., Harry C. Redding (3), Geo. S. Dates, Jr., J. Burian, S. A. Klemmer, R. G. Roberts, Carl S. Davis (2) and V. Ruggeri.

—In some unaccountable manner the article in the July 27 issue of the WEEKLY entitled "A Stamp Collectors Club for Boys" was credited to H. S. Linnemann, when Chas. K. B. Nevin should have been given as the author. We regret the error.

—While the A. P. A. was in session in Denver a telegram was received announcing the death of Isaac A. Wright of Kansas City, Mo. Carl S. Davis favors us with a clipping from the Kansas City Star giving an extended account of Mr. Wright's career. While interested in philately, as evidenced by his membership in our national organization, his great fad was photography, while the collecting of coins and old documents, etc., were companion hobbies.

—At the national philatelic exhibition held at Rotterdam, July 20-28, seventy-four exhibits were shown and fifty-seven prizes awarded. The prizes were as follows: 4 gold medals, 4 silver gilt, 15 silver, 24 bronze and 10 diplomas. The four gold medals were awarded as follows: Baron R. Lehmann, London, for Holland and Colonies; M. Z. Booleman, Amsterdam, for Transvaal; G. A. Keiser, The Hague, for United States and D. M. de Heer, Rotterdam, for England and Colonies. Mr. Booleman, who sends us this item, is enjoying a four weeks' vacation trip through Germany and Austria.

—We regret very much that the name of A. H. Weber was left off of the article published in the WEEKLY of July 27, on page 262, under the caption, "Seeing Bermuda."

ALL RECORDS BROKEN.

Through our advertising columns collectors have noticed that the firm of Stanley Gibbons has just bought the largest collection it will probably ever be able to secure, that of Mr. Breitfuss of St. Petersburg, paying the sum of $250,000. This eclipses the record previously held by the firm for the Mann collection and goes to show the enormous resources that Stanley Gibbons Co. is able to command.

We should like to enumerate the choice things contained in this purchase but lack of space forbids. The June number of Stanley Gibbons Monthly Journal contains a comprehensive review and interested parties may no doubt be able to secure copies by addressing the New York office.

WHY COLLECT POSTAGE STAMPS?

Prize Entry by EDMUND DE S. BRUNNER.

Nine years ago I collected stamps because all my companions were doing so, it was the "gang" spirit. Now all of the old "gang" save two have put away their stamps and of those two I am one. Why?

First, because stamp collecting satisfies that desire, inborn in most men, to collect and hoard something, but there are far deeper reasons than this.

Stamp collecting broadens my mental horizon. It teaches me history, not only through commemorative issues, but also because as my collection of a certain country increases, my interest in its people, customs and history grows proportionately. Our own stamps portraying the features of national heroes awaken feelings of patriotism.

Stamps augment my knowledge of geography; they teach me the value of strict attention to detail and they enable me to make friends with strangers who, like myself, know the delights of philately.

Stamp collecting likewise shows the advance which has been made, not only in the art of engraving, but also in the progress of civilization. I admire the quaint productions of years ago for their rugged simplicity and, in some cases, for their very ugliness, but present day issues are beautiful to behold, they are models of the engraver's skill. They are, moreover, typical of the advance the world has made since 1850. Ever and anon new countries start to issue stamps and these issues are sure indications of their advance in civilization. They mean that one more savage country has been conquered by the onward march of civilization.

Thus it is that an evening spent with my stamps brings with it all the profit which would accrue from reading a good book.

Laying aside, therefore, all sordid considerations, there are many good reasons why I am and why I shall continue to be a stamp collector.

AN AERIAL ADVENTURER.

BY OLD GRILL.

(Concluded.)

Grill resumed his paper. Wilson returned from inspecting his balloon. Grill's aid 'phoned that Clarkson had a hut on the outskirts of the city, he thought near the Jones' farm.

"Well, Wilson, I am ready to look at your air ship."

Grill and Wilson were driven to the balloon landing; Grill was introduced to Jones, who said he was sorry, but his youngest boy was sick and he could not accompany them—but that Wilson could easily manage with a little more instruction which he gave Wilson by sailing round with them for an hour or so; and Grill and he were satisfied they could manage alone. They then descended and Jones made haste to his sick offspring while Wilson assumed control.

"We'll travel towards the open country and see the scenery," said Wilson.

"All right, we are off," said Grill.

They landed after a successful flight in an open place near an inn. The landlord came out, followed by his wife, who exclaimed:

"Landsakes, Si! there's an automobile without wheels."

Grill and Wilson, after securing the balloon, took dinner at the inn, where they were the only guests, and aroused much curiosity in the minds of the old couple.

After refreshment Grill obtained some medicine stamps from the town druggist. They reascended in their airship.

"Shall we make for home and sleep in a bed tonight?" asked Grill.

"I am agreed," said Wilson.

Wilson started a wheel which enabled them to sail against the wind, and in due time they landed in Grill's yard just at sundown.

The cook was still there and began to prepare tea. After supper she went into the yard for a "bit of air," and was curious as to the small house there. She went inside and turned on the electric bulb and was sadly puzzled by the small wheels and buttons. She touched one. The air was driven out of one compartment. She pressed another and the ship began to rise.

Grill and Wilson came out in the yard at this moment and saw the cook through the glass.

"There goes the cook," said Grill. "She did not stop to say 'good bye'. The ship is anchored and she can only go the length of the anchor rope." "Press the button marked 'stop,'" Wilson called to the cook, making a trumpet of his hands.

She understood and the ship came down. A frightened woman made an exit in a hurry when the ship struck the ground.

Wilson entered and arranged things.

"Well, we came near getting rid of her," said Grill.

When Grill and Wilson had returned to Grill's office within the house, Grill sent one of his operatives to watch the balloon till they had occasion to use it. Being called to the 'phone, the shadow Grill had instructed to watch Clarkson informed him that he would call with a report. On arriving he told Grill that during the day Clarkson had bought a suit case. Then he went to a large office building and took the elevator and was gone half an hour when he descended and bought the suit case, evidently full. He went at once to the depot where he took the overland flyer for the west, having bought a ticket for a place named Clyde, which he would reach in thirty hours. He had also sent a trunk to the same place by express, as well as registered mail.

A stamp dealer reported to Grill by 'phone that his private collection had been stolen by a man during the day, to whom it had been shown, while the dealer had gone into the rear office for a magnifying glass. Though followed by one of his clerks at once, on the discovery of his loss, he got away unseen and unnoticed. He was a large man and wore spectacles.

Grill took the case.

"Wilson," said Grill, "you examined the substitute collection that Herman brought us; what did you make out of it?"

"I judged by the finger marks it was once a small boy's pride."

"The collection I bought of Clarkson," said Grill, "is what is left of Dr. Hargrave's collection. Most of it has been removed. Where his name was erased shows under the glass. How fast can you travel in that airship?"

"About four times as fast as a fast train."

"Would Jones go with us if we wanted to start at once?"

"No; he's ill—just learned of it."

"Well, get your ship ready. I want to get to a western town ahead of a train."

"All right. I will be ready to start in a half hour."

Grill and Wilson started. Grill had several bundles aboard. They followed the railroad line as near as they could by compass and kept at a moderate height. They passed like a shooting star to those below. They reached Clyde three hours ahead of the train and had stored their ship in the yard of the home of the chief of police, and taken rooms at the hotel near the station by the time the overland stopped.

Grill arrested Clarkson; made him get his mail and trunk expressed there, and had the effects and Clarkson aboard Wilson's craft, and some hours later had landed in Grill's yard.

Grill found all the missing property and returned it to the owners.

Clarkson was held, but in some way escaped.

Jones recovered from his illness, and came to see Wilson and Grill and his ship.

"Well, Mr. Wilson, how do you like my ship?"

"Fine," said Wilson.

"Well, you have three months' option, but if you call the deal off I will refund you your money and pay you five hundred dollars.

"Why? Well, I am in love. I am going to elope with the girl. I am also going to sell my ship to a foreign portentate."

"All right," said Wilson. "Count out the cash. I accept."

"Good," said Grill. "We will use a horse instead. It's more to my mind."

Having concluded the deal, Jones departed.

The morning papers contained an item of interest to Grill and Wilson, which read: "Eva Johnson, daughter of Allen Johnson, disappeared through the window of her sleeping room on the third floor in plain sight of her maid. It was pitch dark outside. Eva did not scream or speak. There was no sound of her falling. She appeared for a moment like a sprite floating, and was lost to view."

Grill, in looking over his album he bought of Clarkson, found a note in it addressed to Eva. He smiled as he lit a cigar, and said to Wilson: "Miss Eva, lost in the night, will be Mrs. Eva Johnson Clark Clarkson Jones."

"Never mind, we have recovered all the property," said Wilson.

"True; something is due to those who travel in the air," said Grill.. "We have at best only a suspicion," he continued. "Time unravels all mysteries," he added.

OUR PRICE LIST OF 15,000 VARIETIES

is being favorably received and all that is necessary for collectors to be convinced that it is to their interest to trade with us is a comparison of our prices with those of other dealers.

Mr. Piercy writes June 17, 1907: "I was very pleased with the stamps you sent as per my order being such clean good specimens and what was better exactly what I ordered."

Mr. Klatz writes June 22, 1907: "I am very much pleased at the way you fill my orders and shall continue to purchase stamps from you."

You run no risk in trading with us as anything not satisfactory in every way is returnable at once and your money is immediately refunded. We make no substitutions.

CYPRUS.

By P. L. PEMBERTON.

By the treaty of Berlin, 1878, Cyprus came under the British Crown. During the two years between that date and the introduction of English stamps surcharged "Cyprus" in 1880, ordinary unsurcharged stamps of Great Britain were used. The following are the obliterations which were in use: 942, (Larnaca); 969, (Nicosia); 974, (Baffo); 975, (Famagusta); 981, (Limassol); 982, (Kyrenia); D.47, (Polymedia); D.48, (Head Quarters Camp); 098, (Platres). All are uncommon, some exceedingly so, this is partly accounted for by the fact that the letters sent through Alexandria were frequently not postmarked in the island but obliterated at Alexandria instead.

ISSUE OF APRIL 1st, 1880.

Five values of British stamps were overprinted in black with the word "Cyprus" 16½ mm. long by 2½ mm. high. On the sixth value, viz:—the ½d, the overprint was 13 mm. long by 2 mm. high. Although the 2½d stamp of Great Britain was changed in February, 1880, from lilac-rose to blue, it was the former color which was used for Cyprus. The lower values are found in various plate numbers. The overprint was evenly printed and appears on the lower half of the stamp just across the neck of the Queen and it is nearly always straight and well centred though not invariably so. Forged overprints generally slant more or less.

The ½d is found on plates 12, 15 and 19. The last of these is very scarce. I have a used specimen of plate 15 in which the overprint not only slants downwards from right to left, but is so badly centred that parts of the word "Cyprus" appear at either side of the design. Altogether, 143 sheets, each containing 480 stamps, were printed.

The 1d is found on plates 174, 181, 184, 193, 196, 201, 205, 208, 215, 216, 217, 218 and 220. Of these, the ones in italics are exceedingly rare, especially 193 and 196, which were not known until they were found among the remainders, and of which it is doubtful whether any were ever actually issued over the counter of the post office. Errors or varieties of surcharge are surprisingly scarce and include plate 208 with double overprint and the same plate without overprint. The latter is known in a pair with the normal; without the latter, of course, it would be of no value.

The 2½d occurs on plates 14 and 15, the 4d on plate 16, pale green; the 6d on plate 16, grey; and the 1sh on plate 13, green. I know of no varieties or errors on these and the collector's principal difficulty, if he be a collector of used stamps, will be to get firm, well-centred specimens with light obliterations.

The remainders of the 1d, 2½d, 4d, 6d and 1sh, which were left over when the issue was replaced, in 1881, by the De la Rue set, were afterwards sold to Stanley Gibbons. The stock of the 1d and 2½d was very large, which accounts for their present low price, but there were not so many of the higher values. I have never seen an account of the actual numbers. The ½d on the other hand, ran short early in 1881 and the 1d stamps were surcharged locally with the words HALFPENNY in Egyptian capitals below the word "Cyprus" and over the old value. This surcharge measured 18 to 18½ mm. in length and was found to be too long, for unless very carefully printed, it was impossible to get the whole of the surcharge on one stamp. This provisional was produced by lithography, a process very rarely employed for surcharging. This type is found on the following plate Nos.: 174, 181, 201, 205, 208, 215, 216, 217, 218 and 220.

It is said that the stone used for the 18 mm. surcharge got damaged, and consequently a handstamp, in similar type, but measuring only 16 to 16½ mm., was used for a short time. This surcharge is found only on three plates, viz., 201, 216 and 218, the last mentioned being exceedingly rare.

The handstamp just described was only used pending the laying down of another lithographic stone. This was ready in May, 1881. The surcharge from it measured only 13 mm. The plate-numbers known are 201, 205, 215, 217 and 218.

The surcharge in this type is known double on plates 205 and 215, triple on 205, 215, 217 and 218, and quadruple on 215. Some of these are obtainable as they were found among the remainders,

NEW ISSUE SERVICE

OUR New Issue Service is becoming very popular with American collectors and boxes are being rapidly taken. At 15% over face value we give earnest collectors a good chance to keep up their collections. Of course there are some collectors who are never satisfied but we have many letters from satisfied collectors who say our service is very satisfactory. though the triple surcharges now command a very high price, and the quadruple is of the greatest rarity. This surcharge is also known placed vertically.

ISSUE OF JULY 1st, 1881.

It was found most inconvenient to have stamps with values expressed in a currency which was not in use in the island, and it is no wonder therefore that arrangements were very quickly made with Messrs. De la Rue for a set of stamps with values in piastres. These were first issued in July, 1881, and consisted of ½, 1, 2, 4 and 6 piastres.

The body of the design was from one of the stock plates, which had been used for Antigua and Nevis, and which was afterwards used for Turks Islands, St. Lucia and Natal. The name and value were printed at a second operation and are not always quite in register, though the printing was so carefully done that the utmost variation does not amount to more than ½ mm. The colors were all very delicate tints. The ½pi emerald-green is a particularly fugitive color, and if damped will change to blue. The wmk. is Crown CC.

Either at the same time, or just before, the issue of the new type, a stamp of 30 paras was issued, formed by surcharging the 1d with "30 PARAS," measuring 14½ mm. long. This is found on four different plates, viz., 201, 216, 217 and 220. All these are scarce, especially 217. Plates 216 and 220 are known with double surcharge, one inverted, the latter being at the top of the stamp. There is also a minor variety in which the "3" is so badly formed as to look like an "8," thus appearing to read "80 paras." This provisional became exhausted before the arrival of the new stamp of 30 paras, which had been ordered from London, and so the 1pi carmine-rose was surcharged in a type similar to the last but somewhat larger, measuring 16 mm. This had a very short life, being issued on May 22nd and withdrawn June 7th, 1882. It is not very scarce, however. It is sometimes found used and bearing the postmaster's initials in M.SS. "J.A.B." and sometimes also with the handstamped overprint "Postal Surcharge. These, I believe, were of the nature of Unpaid Letter Stamps, as I shall explain later.

THE 1886 SURCHARGES CA AND CC.

For the specialist this group of stamps presents an almost unexplored field for operations. I know of no studied account of their history and when the facts which are known are collected and compared, it would seem that the lists appearing in the catalogues should be re-arranged.

It was not many months after the issue of the ½ piastre, CC, that it was found expedient to surcharge this value with "½," on either side of the stamp, to prevent confusion, by artificial light, with the 2 piastres blue. This on account of the peculiar tendency of the pigment in which the ½pi was printed to change into a bluish tint, as already mentioned. The overprinting was done in the island and from an examination of the surcharges it seems certain that they were reproduced by lithography as in the case of the earlier surcharges.

Though all the surcharges on a sheet present the same general characteristics, a close examination of an entire pane will shew that each stamp in a horizontal row differs very slightly, and that all in a vertical row are the same, or so nearly so that the differences may be accounted for by wear of the stone or by dirt. This points to the probability of the stone having been laid down from a row of six pairs of fractions reproduced ten times in horizontal rows. Whether the original designs were drawn by hand or taken from type it is difficult to say, but the former hypothesis appears the more likely. The differences are too minute to describe in full, but the stamps in the sixth, or last, vertical row can at once be recognised by the short thick fraction bar to the left hand "½." The fraction bars to the left are shorter than those to the right on every stamp on the sheet, but in this row they do not extend so far as the rounded part of the "2." On the two bottom stamps of the first vertical row the "1" is prolonged into the fraction bar, but these may not be constant on every sheet. The larger surcharge on the CC paper, though catalogued under the date 1882, were, I believe, not issued until 1886, for reasons which I will give later on.

There is considerable mystery about the history of the surcharges after the issue of the "CA" paper. The ½pi CA, was first chronicled by The Philatelic Record for April, 1883, this was without surcharge, and it was described as being in a darker shade of green than formerly.

This value on CA paper with the local surcharge, had, however, appeared before this, though I can find no record of it in the philatelic papers of the time. It was, however, printed in a shade of blue green, more nearly resembling the emerald green of the CC issue than the dull green of the unsurcharged CA stamps. I have a specimen postmarked Limassol (?) 19, 1882. For two or three years the surcharged and unsurcharged stamps appear to have been used concurrently. In the August Philatelic Record for 1886 we find the first mention of the large surcharge, and from the wording of the notice it is obvious that this was quite new to collectors at that date.

The surcharge is found on the stamps watermarked CC, as well as on the CA. It seems hitherto to have been taken for granted (I.) that these surcharges were made by Messrs. De la Rue, (on account of their being so well and clearly printed) and (II.) that the CC stamps with the large surcharge were issued in 1882. It seems almost certain that the latter belief is erroneous, and the former has not been proved. I have seen several used copies of the CC stamp dated 1886, and none with any earlier cancellation. The same remark applies to the large surcharge on the CA stamps. Though the new surcharge was a great improvement on the old it was not quite up to the standard of Messrs. De la Rue's work, as the figures used were not all of the same fount, and, moreover, the printing was not invariably of the best. It was not until more than twenty years after these stamps were out of issue that these marked variations of type were recognized by collectors. They were first described by Mr. Oliver, of Messrs. Bright & Son, and were reported in the P. J. G. B. for June, 1904.

In the normal variety the "½" is repeated on either side of the stamp in exactly the same type. In what is called variety I. the figure "1" on the left is considerably larger than that on the right. In variety II. the "1" on the right is a little shorter and thicker than the normal, is almost square at the top and has a short, thick, blunt serif. Mr. Oliver looked through a large number of these stamps and found that, judging by the proportion of the number of varieties found, to the total number of those looked through, that the first variety might have occurred four times on each pane, and the second once only. The figures "2" also vary somewhat on some specimens. These varieties are all found on the CC as well as the CA stamps, though they are not catalogued by Gibbons on the former.

Ther was another setting of the surcharge, in which the figures were placed closer together, the distance between them measuring 6 mm. only instead of 8 mm. as before. In this setting, which is much rarer than the other, the odd type was replaced and there are no varieties to be found.

There is a very rare stamp, which, I think, should be listed with this group, as an error without surcharge. This is the ½pi, wmk. Crown CA, in the color of the surcharged stamps. It is given in Gibbons' as ½ pias. emerald green (No. 28a); but as it is not in the color of the CC issue, it would be more correct to call it blue-green. Gibbons' Catalogue, by the way, is much in need of revision hereabouts, for the CA stamps with the surcharges are described as dull green, whereas they are not in the color of the unsurcharged stamps, which are, however, given the same name. The catalogue is also inconsistent in giving the varieties I. and II. of the large surcharge with the one watermark and not with the other. To return to the ½ pias. blue-green without surcharge, I call this an error because it is obvious that the authorities were most particular not to issue any of the CA stamps in this unsuitable color without the surcharge, and also because of its extreme scarcity. My theory is that one or two sheets escaped the surcharge and were issued in mistake.

How are we to account for the CA stamps being printed in two distinct shades of green? My impression is that the blue-green ½ piastres were sent to Cyprus in advance of the other values, namely in 1882, having been hurried forward on account of the unsuitability of the color of the CC stamps. The printers had used a much faster color, but the authorities in Cyprus thought that there was still danger of its being mistaken for the 2 piastres stamp if issued unsurcharged, so they indented for a fresh supply in a still more suitable shade. The second supply, in dull green, probably arrived in the early part of 1883, and it would be to stamps from this printing that the Philatelic Record referred, as being issued unsurcharged, in April, 1883. In the meantime the 1882 supply on CA paper and the remainder of the ½ piastres CC left in stock, continued to be surcharged. The stock of both must have been fairly large, as it lasted until 1886, when they were apparently used up with the large surcharge. It is quite feasible to suppose that, even at that date, there were some sheets of the CC wmk. remaining at the bottom of the pile, and this would account for the large surcharge with this watermark.

ISSUE OF 1882-83, WMK. CROWN CA.

The first value to be issued on the new paper was the much-needed 30 paras, the date of its appearance being June, 1882. The other values were issued as the stock on the CC paper became exhausted, and in 1886 a new value, 12 piastres, was added to the set.

These stamps, as first issued, were printed from the plate which is known to collectors as Die I. The colors were similar to those used on the CC stamps, but generally a little deeper. Of the ½pi "emerald" green, Gibbons No. 28a, I have already spoken; for the rest, the shades do not vary in tone but in depth only. After a time the stamps were printed from Die II. I need not here describe the differences between the two dies as they are well known and may be found in any catalogue. Collectors should try and get copies with part of the margin bearing the plate No. The stamps of Die I. may be found with plate-numbers 1 or 2, but Die II. is only found with plate 3, which is further distinguished by having the line round each pane. The colors of the stamps from the second die differ considerably from the earlier ones, and in the case of the 30 paras and 1, 2 and 4 piastres are much brighter. The 6 and 12pi, Die II., are scarcer used than unused, in fact I have never seen a satisfactory used copy of the 6pi, which is probably one of the rarest modern British Colonials in a used state.

BI-COLORED ISSUE OF 1894-96.

There is little to be said about this issue, which differs from the preceding one in having the name and value printed in a color different from the body of the stamp. The set was, further, enlarged by the addition of three new values, viz:—9, 18 and 45 piastres. There are more or less marked shades of all values and when these and the plate numbers are procured the specialist may rest content.

THE KING'S HEAD ISSUE.

All values appeared in a new design, bearing the head of the King, in 1903. The watermark was changed shortly afterwards from single to multiple Crown and CA and some values are exceedingly scarce on the former, especially the 9, 18 and 45pi, of these the supplies on the first paper were very small, and the numbers of each which are said to have been printed are:—

9 pias.,	2,400 stamps.
18 pias.,	3,600 stamps.
45 pias.,	2,400 stamps.

As nearly all the 9 pias., and the greater number of the other two values, were bought by one firm of dealers, very few were actually issued in the ordinary way, and their market value cannot be a matter for great surprise. It should be noticed that the stamps of Cyprus do not bear the words "Postage and Revenue," and therefore we may presume that there will be no reason to print the current issue on "chalky" paper.

POSTAL FISCALS.

There is great doubt as to whether any of the Cyprus fiscals were ever authorized for use for postage, but many are known with postal obliterations. Many of these have no doubt been postmarked to order, but the majority of them were used in the Post Office in accounting for amounts collected on letters insufficiently prepaid. These were mostly overprinted with the words "Postal Surcharge" in two lines, which were impressed with a handstamp. Some of them were also initialled by the postmaster in ink "J. A. B." while others, again, were left unsurcharged and unsigned. These were not affixed to the letters, but were kept in the post office as a check on the accounts after being postmarked with the ordinary postal cancellation. Occasionally, ordinary postage stamps were also used for this purpose, either surcharged, or initialled, or both, and I believe that after the withdrawal of the 30 pa. on 1 pias., on June 7th, 1882 (when the permanent type arrived) the remainder of the stock of that stamp was used in the same way. This would account for the number of initialled specimens one sees. —P. J. of Gr. Britain.

THE M. P. A CONVENTION.

By John A. Solomon.

The Metropolitan Philatelic Association held their fourth annual convention in Syracuse, N. Y., on Aug. 6, 7, and 8th, the event being far and away the banner gathering of that organization. Convention headquarters were at the Vanderbilt Hotel and all business affairs were transacted in the City Assembly Hall.

John F. Seybold's exhibition of original covers was easily the feature event of the convention. Too much cannot be said of Mr. Seybold's rarities and all who were present can consider themselves extremely fortunate in being able to witness such a mass of matchless gems. John A. Solomon showed his collection of pre-cancelled stamps which is rated as one of the best in the country and L. Mintz and Lynn Crandall exhibited a number of valuable stamps.

Pleasure trips were made to the "Valley Variety Show," "White City," etc. A ball game between Syracuse and Wilkes Barre was seen by most all the delegates.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Rev. Henry Wendt; Vice-Pres., Lynn Crandall; Sec.-Treas., F. A. Mueller; Sales Supt., Leon V. Cass; Ex. Supt., G. M. Steinbrenner; Librarian, Miss Verna W. Hanway; Fraud Investigator, H. D. Munger; Counterfeit Det'r, E. S. Martin; Information Bureau, E. R. Aldrich; Advertising and Sub. Ag't, L. M. Mintz; Attorney, H. A. Whipple; Auction Manager, J. E. Dennett; Trustees, S. B. Hopkins, H. D. Munger and D. T. Eaton; Official Journal, Redfield's Weekly; Convention Seat, 1908, Columbus, Ohio.

A recruiting committee of ten members was appointed with John A. Solomon, chairman. Fifty dollars has already been subscribed by this committee and a considerable amount more is expected to be raised for useful purposes and advancement of the society.

Reports from all the officers were read and approved, a number of suggestions were discussed and action may be taken later. Telegrams and messages were read from several prominent members who were unable to be present on account of important business affairs. All Syracuse papers gave the convention considerable space. The convention closed with the usual promises to meet again at Columbus in 1908.

THE KING'S HEAD ISSUE OE CANADA.

In forwarding from the Royal Collection a sheet of proofs from the die of the King's head Canadian stamps for exhibition at the Minto Fête, Mr. Tilleard relates the following story to Mr. Corfield. The stamps were designed by the Prince of Wales in conjunction with Mr. Tilleard:—

"In regard to these stamps, it may be interesting to know that when the die prepared by Perkins Bacon & Co. was sent out to Canada, the contractor for the manufacture of stamps there (whether from jealousy at not being employed to make the die or otherwise I know not) declared he could not make plates from it. The matter was referred Home, and on Perkins Bacon & Co. stating that there was no difficulty whatever, or that they were prepared to manufacture the plates without touching the die, the contractor was told if he could not use it the plates would have to be entrusted to the English house.

"Thereupon he set to work to alter the die and by cutting a lot of diagonal lines in the background surrounding the head materially altered the beauty of balance and pose, that the die undoubtedly possessed, and although he could not change the beautiful likeness of His Majesty (the best I think of any stamp of the Empire) he has diminished the artistic effect of the original that H. R. H. the Prince of Wales took such pains to secure."

The likeness referred to is that on the well-known series of current Canadian stamps. Its appearance on the stamps of both Great Britain and India in lieu of the present effigy would be hailed with delight by lovers of the beautiful the world over. H. R. H. the Prince of Wales has in his time filled many parts, and the Minto Fête has proved to be the occasion of presenting him as a stamp-designer of rare artistic discernment in conjunction with the popular Honorary Secretary of the Royal Philatelic Society.—P. J. of India.

EDITORIAL.

Philately First—The lessons that the annual convention of the American Philatelic Association carry are to be understood by the one who will devote some moments to thoughtful inquiry. The real significance of the yearly philatelic convocation is an underlying consideration and is not to be found on the surface. An analysis of the motives that impel members to travel thousands of miles in some cases to attend the convention must be of interest, and flattering to philately, in whose name the exercises are held. At Denver, the members from the extreme east met their fellows from the far west to shake hands with fraternal feeling. They were attracted to the meeting place by the thought of communing personally on philatelic subjects, the transactions of the American Philatelic Association typifying the philatelic theme. For one week in the year, philately dominated the thoughts and actions of the members at the convention, and stamps and their suggestions were paramount. This votive offering at the shrine of philately is a tribute to the charms of the hobby and a pledge of permanent interest on the part of its followers.

Not a Serious Matter—If the captious inquirer asks why stamps themselves do not enter more largely into the proceedings of these philatelic festivals and be the objects of more attention from those present, it may be said that philatelic relaxation as well as study has its uses. The social side of the conventions has become so important that if it be attended to closely, little time remains for solid philatelic work. The condition is acceptable to the majority who wish philatelic play as well as labor. In a sense, the convention is a temperamental reflection of the followers of philately in America today. At conventions in the past, papers have been read and serious philatelic work illustrated, and though no member would think of criticizing adversely the value or propriety of this line of endeavor, yet the opinion has been expressed that a keener appreciation would be felt if it could be absorbed under more deliberate proceedings.

* * *

Everything is Lovely—Several members of the American Philatelic Association have written to say that they are much gratified to learn that no bitterness is manifested by those on either side who waged the past campaign so aggressively. Last week, something was said of the instantaneous acceptance of the election result with general good feeling. The harmony that prevailed proved that each faction worked with the intention of benefitting the association. The battle of ballots was a lively one but from the sentiments expressed both by the victors and the vanquished, it was evident that a sincere determination to promote the welfare of the association even more actively than before, prevailed.

Worth Having—Some of the English philatelic papers are discussing the question of the organization in Great Britain of a society on the lines of the American Philatelic Association. A suggestion has been made that the principal societies "devote one evening during the coming session to a discussion of the formation of a British Philatelic Union." It is fair to predict that although tentative plans for a national organization in Great Britain have been presented in former years, without ever having been adopted on a working scale, it is almost certain that it will not be long before an association of the kind springs into existence. In the United States where distances are great, the conventions of our national body are a success, and our British cousins would seem to have an advantage on a geographical basis, over us, in this important respect. The national organization that does nothing more than solidify philatelic sentiment and make it a factor to be reckoned with in a nation's councils fulfils its purpose.

Irish—Opportunely of the reference recently to several bogus stamps of "Ireland," queen's head type, a reader calls attention to the fact that there was a "Fenian Republic" essay or stamp that was familiar to collectors in the early 60's. Its denomination was twenty-four cents, color green; central design harp of Ireland. A writer in the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly says that he has a used copy of a bogus post card, issued by the "Republic of Ireland" with harp and shillelah all complete.

* * *

A Bit of Lore—While examining an old work, the following concise account of the operation of the famous "Sanitary Fairs" held during the civil war period, so far as it applied to the labels that were issued in connection with these humanitarian undertakings, was found, and as it was written at a time when these fairs were being held, it is reproduced as an item of information: "Numerous fancy fairs were held in the northern states in aid of the sick and wounded soldiers. These were termed Sanitary Fairs; and amongst other amusements they contained mock post-offices, with mock postage stamps, which were placed by the lady assistants on epistles concocted by them and delivered, with a request for payment of the sum named on the stamp, to any gentlemen who inquired if there were letters for him. These imitation postage labels have taken their place with the other locals, and as such have been included in many collections."

* * *

Stupendous—The fact of the sale of the famous Breitfuss collection to Stanley Gibbons for fifty thousand pounds, or a quarter million dollars, is now well known. Mr. Breitfuss, easily the leading collector in Russia, possessed a superb lot of stamps whose superiority may be estimated when the collection is said by experts to rank as the third best in the world. The Russian Grand Duke Alexis Michaelovitch, whose active philatelic attainments were known, and whose untimely death some years ago deprived philately of an earnest worker, in all probability would have purchased the Breitfuss collection, and have placed it under the charge of Mr. Breitfuss in one of the leading museums of the Russian capital, had he been spared. The Grand Duke died before the plan had matured. A striking phase of the Brietfuss collection is the enormous appreciation in the value of the stamps according to a chronological table carefully kept by Mr. Brietfuss.

Cake and Tea—At a "tea" given the members of the Junior Philatelic Society, London, a feature "was a special cake fashioned in the form of a triangular Cape of Good Hope." This is a novelty, we believe, and as such, should be widely heralded; the philatelic banquets of the future may elaborate the idea and it is allowable to suppose that the circular rarities, British Guiana, in the form of cakes will become very popular. The discriminating collector, as he munches with apparent gusto, the rarest stamp in the world, may sigh, with complacent satisfaction, as the last crumbs disappear, that it is a rare specimen of combined culinary and philatelic art. The staple "pound" cake, too, should give way to "stamp" cake.

High Philately—The newspapers throughout the country told of the meeting of the philatelists at the summit of Pike's Peak, and it may be that the bit of spectacular effect loaned the occasion by a convention held above the clouds appealed to the newspapers and induced a liberality of treatment. The American Philatelic Association did everything in its power to elevate philately on the first day of meeting.

UNCONVENTIONALITIES.

P. M. Wolsieffer, Chicago, indeed had his moment of triumph, which is said to come to every man, at least once in his life-time. When Mr. Wolsieffer arose at the banquet in response to the invitation of the toast-master, a burst of spontaneous applause almost swept him from his feet. This electrifying tribute to Mr. Wolsieffer was impressive, and it must ever remain a cherished memory to him; he has reached the apex of popularity.

Leonard Michael, the young naturalist of Chicago, created intense excitemen on the car on the ascent of Pike's Peak. The car stopped at a half-way station, whereupon the six-footed philatelic specimen, yelled in a l a r m: "There's a mountain cat; flee for your lives!" as a particularly attenuated and overly domesticated pussy cat arose to stretch itself in the sun.

A big circus arrived in Denver on the Monday of convention week, and gave its parade that morning. A chatty stranger asked Mr. Rosenthal, if he was following the circus; "Rosy" maintained a dignified silence. "What is your specialty?" pursued the affable person. "Entire envelopes," E. M. was trapped into saying, and thereafter, the stranger took great pains to point out Mr. Rosenthal to wide-eyed friends, as a circus celebrity whose specialty was mysterious and unique.

Fred Michael, Chicago, no doubt a reincarnation of some knightly personage of the olden days, spent much of his time rescuing damsels in distress and shielding the fair sex generally from worldly shafts and slings. In token of appreciation of the valorous efforts of the defender of femininity, Mrs. Elitch-Long of Elitch's Gardens, Denver, pinned a rose on Mr. Michael. In the waggish words of the country correspondent: Ask Fred about it.

Iver R. Johnson was one of Chicago's champions who achieved proud distinction in Denver; he was pointed out to one of the newspaper reporters as the man who makes revolvers. Mr. Johnson received much attention from those who met him for the first time, and we are told that at a dinner given in his honor at a leading club, the freedom of the city was presented to him by those who in reality were in a position to tender it.

H. N. Mudge, Chicago, who presided at the convention sessions and at the banquet, was busier than a man after the boss steps into the room. More work devolved upon him through a combination of circumstances than ordinarily would fall to the lot of several individuals. He discharged his duties faithfully and with grace and tact; he could not have done more had he been triplets. Fame has found Mr. Mudge out; a newspaper referred to him as "celebrated throughout the country as a toast-master." Mr. Mudge received several ovations that would have warmed the cockles of the most unfeeling heart; and he will never forget the pride of those moments when he was cheered to the echo.

F. N. Massoth, Chicago, missed none of the good things of the convention, and in his sauntering way, he kept up with the procession. At Manitou, a young lady looking at his badges, timidly asked him what he was, and he answered that he was a "philatelist" she edged away from him nervously, whereat, Mr. Massoth assuaged his disappointment by copious draughts of spring water.

S. Valentine Saxby, Rockford, Illinois, was one of the brightest luminaries of the convention. He was in the thick of everything, work or play; his popularity was shown by the fact that Rockford polled about fifty votes as a seat of the next convention. Mr. Saxby says that he is in earnest about wanting a convention; judging from observation, Mr. Saxby usually gets what he wants. Somebody said that Mr. Saxby looked like a scion of royalty; anyway, he proved to be a royal good fellow, and his presence cannot be dispensed with at coming conventions. He was decidedly au fait, and likewise, en regale.

F. E. McCabe, Denver, was omnipresent. Look where one would, he always ornamented the fore-ground. He was everybody's friend, guide and counseller; and what Mr. McCabe did not know about Denver could well be censored. He took especial pleasure in pointing out the churches to the delegates, and had a keen eye generally for propriety. When by chance one of the visitors stood in front of a bank, Mr. McCabe hurried the stranger along, and said that he hoped the alarming juxtaposition had not been noticed.

Charles A. Nast, Denver, that genial, lovable conservator of the best traditions of philately, was in a state of pleasurable excitement during the week. With engaging versatility, he met the varied demands on his services. He made speeches, sang a song and entered heartily into the gayeties of the week. His vocal offering, a clever parody on "Answer," convulsed the audience, on the night of the banquet. Envious eyes scanned the pages of Mr. Nast's admirable collection of United States revenues; and he proved his right to the title of past master of revenue stamp lore.

Walter Clarke Bellows, Denver, whose contributions to the enjoyment of the visitors were lavish indeed, got hearty cheers between the acts at the Elitch Gardens theatre, where Mr. Bellows' stock company plays. At the theatre, many members joined in singing the C. P. S. song, and at its close, the name of Mr. Bellows was hailed with tumultuous enthusiasm. At Elitch's everything was free to the stamp folks, and Mr. Bellows' considerate courtesy was manifested in many ways. The debt of gratitude to him was freely acknowledged.

KANSAS CITY PHILATELIC SOCIETY.

An organization meeting of the Kansas City Philatelic Society, a branch of the A. P. A., was held here July 25. The following members were elected to hold office the remainder of the year: President, Frank J. Bescher; Sec.-Treas., Carl S. Davis; Purchasing Agent, Arthur L. Nelson; Exch. Manager, O. P. Luther.

By-laws were adopted and a motion was carried to send them with the application for a renewal of the share of stock held by the old K. C. P. S. prominent here ten years ago and known as Branch 10.

The club is equally divided between senior and junior members, all of whom have joined the A. P. A. within the last year, except Bescher, Finney and Michaels. It is hoped that the total membership of twelve will be doubled before the close of the year.

CHRONICLE OF NEW ISSUES.

Edited by HENRY A. KIDDER.

Any information regarding new issues will be gratefully received and acknowledged. Address HENRY A. KIDDER, Arlington, Mass. The figures in parentheses refer to the previous number of the WEEKLY in which the same country was noticed

UNITED STATES.—Clarendon Bangs kindly favors us with specimens of the consular fee stamps. He informs us that he has seen the $1 cut diagonally and used for a 50c. The only values not yet at hand are the 25c and $10.

BRITISH NEW GUINEA.—An official statement gives the following as the quantities of the British New Guinea stamps surcharged "Papua": ½d, 29,190; 1d, 48,060; 2d, 70,170; 2½d, 25,230; 4d, 8100; 6d, 11,550; 1sh, 13,590; 2sh 6d, 13,410. All the remaining stamps are reported to have been thus surcharged, and when these are used up a new design will probably be printed. There is a possibility of an attempt to corner the 4d.

CANAL ZONE.—Gerald D. Bliss very kindly favors us with specimens of the 5c blue, showing marked differences in shade. The central design is so badly registered in printing that it touches the blue frame.

LEEWARD ISLANDS. — The Briefmarken Zeitung reports another value in one color, on multiple ordinary paper.

Adhesive.

1d rose.

LUXEMBURG.—The 12½c stamp, recently issued, may be altered, as the figures of value are too small. The first printing consisted of 70,000 stamps in sheets of 100.

MAURITIUS. — Le Collectionneur de Timbres-poste states that a new issue may become necessary, in consequence of the arms of the Colony having been modified.

NEW SOUTH WALES.—The 9d stamp has been seen on Crown A paper. All the stamps of the current series up to 5sh have been seen punctured "G S B" for use by the Government Savings Banks.

PARAGUAY.—Ewen's chronicles a new value of the series dated "1904."

SIAM.—Prof. M. Loewy has sent us specimens of Siam revenues with and without additional surcharges, with the following extract from a letter from a friend in Bankok: "We now have high valued provisional revenue stamps, surcharged for postal use, of the value of 5, 10 and 20 ticals. All these stamps have what appears to be a postmark, showing a pair of scales in the centre. The values submitted include the 1 tical bistre brown, 1 seek red and 1 seeo dark blue, the two last have additional surcharges in the native language. In this connection the following from Ewen's Weekly will be of interest:

Provisional stamps of 10, 20 and 40 ticals have been issued. Revenue stamps of the ministry of justice having already a value of 10, 20 and 40 ticals respectively, have been used for these provisionals, but bearing only Siamese inscriptions, having been surcharged "Siam—Postage," with the value. All three stamps have the same color, the size being 21x50 mm. Only 1000 of each kind have been surcharged, in sheets of 25, and there are said to be no errors or varieties.

The issue of these provisionals of uncommonly high value is due to the fact that there are living in Siam several hundred thousands of Chinese who entertain brisk exchange of letters with their native country. Until very recently, China had only very incomplete means of conveyance for private letters to the smaller towns and villages in the interior, and therefore the many Chinese societies in Siam established a sort of private post to China. The charges were very high, the carriage and delivery being by a messenger, who was sent when a sufficient number of letters had accumulated. Lately, China has established postal connections with the smaller villages, and private persons are no longer allowed to deal in the conveyance of letters. The private letter posts, however, being sanctified with age, and the conservative Chinaman needing time to accustom himself to the new conditions, the Chinese and Siamese governments have granted a transitional period, the length of which is not yet fixed, but which may last for one or two years.

The Chinese letter agents in Siam are allowed to form "clubbed packets" of their letters, and to address them to their agent in China. These packets must be posted at the Post Office in Bangkok, and the union rate of 12 atts must be paid for every letter contained, the whole amount of postage being placed on the outside of the packet. Then the packets are sent as registered letters to China, where the Chinese post delivers them unopened to the addressees. Letter packets from China to Siam are treated in the same way. Up to the present time the highest value of postage stamp has been one tical, but as the packets very often contain over 1000 letters, higher values were made necessary, hence these provisionals. New stamps of higher value had been already ordered from Europe, the issue of the provisionals being necessitated by the fact that the new arrangement went into effect sooner than was intended. The provisionals are not sold to the public, as the stock is very limited. Ewen's chronicles the following:

NEWS GLEANINGS.

Under this heading we desire to publish all the news from the various philatelic centres. Correspondents' names will be given unless prohibited as we desire to give full credit for services rendered.

—Julian Park, 510 Delaware Ave., Buffalo, N. Y., can supply interested parties with an Esperanto grammar. For further particulars apply as above.

—H. Wesley Legg, formerly associated with Frank P. Brown, and more recently with the J. M. Bartels Co., informs us that he will be located in Pepperrell, Mass., in the future, in which new location he trusts he may receive the continued patronage of his friends and clients.

—A slight error crept into No. 862, dealing with the "Stamps of the Danish West Indies." Speaking of the 4c, 1872, the last line in the second column reads: "It was perforated 12½ vertically." It should have read: "It was perforated 12½ and was printed in dull blue. The stamp is known both imperforate and perforate vertically."

—F. D. Goodhue reports to the Richland Stamp Co. that his representative can secure no satisfaction in the claim against the Oregon Stamp Co. We are, however, unable to give the address of this firm or its business manager.

—L. Harald Kjellstedt has been appointed the American representative of the Royal Philatelic Society of London.

—Receipt of clippings is acknowledged with thanks from R. M. Folsom, G. A. Herthum, Edwin J. Abbott, Paul Zimmerman, Ulmont Stewart and Wm. A. Hubbard.

—Our readers will, no doubt, be a little surprised to note an advertisement elsewhere in this number, from C. E. Hussman, St. Louis, Mo. Although the Hussman stock was recently sold to the United Stamp Co., of Chicago, it is very evident that Mr. Hussman has not entirely lost his interest in the dealing end of philately. He promises us that he will, from time to time, make offerings in our columns, and our readers may be assured of the same satisfactory treatment that has been accorded them in the past.

THE LUXEMBURG REPRINTS OF 1906.

How Was the Watermarked Paper Obtained?

It was discovered some time ago that the first Luxemburg stamp, the 10 centimes, black, 1852, had been reprinted on the official watermarked paper. Later it was discovered that similar reprints of the companion stamp, the 1 silbergroschen, red, had also been made. How the original plates had been obtained was no great mystery, since these appear to have been sold by the government as useless lumber when the stamps of the succeeding issue were produced. But whence came the sheets of original paper, watermarked "W," used by the reprinters? This is a question that still remains to be answered. It is assumed that the paper was stolen, but how? when? and by whom? The matter is being made the subject of stringent investigation, and, as the newspaper men say, "further revelations are promised."

Meantime, from various of our excellent German contemporaries—notably the Illustriertes Briefmarken Journal, and the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung —we are able to gather the story of the Luxemburg reprints of 1906, so far as it is known up to the present time.

DEBATE IN THE LUXEMBURG PARLIAMENT.

The subject of these reprints was raised in the Luxemburg Chamber of Deputies, the following summarised account of the debate being taken from the Illustriertes Briefmarken Zeitung:—

Mr. Ludovicz expressed himself on the subject as follows:—

"I ask for information about a matter which in certain circles, even beyond our frontiers, has given rise to adverse rumours. A short time ago two stamps, reprints of 1852, were put on the market, which have been obtained from the original plates, and are quite similar to the original issues. Further than this, the original watermarked paper has been used for them, and the Government incurs a certain amount of blame from the injury resulting therefrom to the world's stamp collectors. The Government has failed to sufficiently destroy the plates, and also has left the paper on the market, or, at any rate, in the hands of people who have used it for their own profit. In any case, it was wrong to leave the plates in the possession of certain persons; it is less excusable still that the same has happened with the paper on which these stamps were printed. It appears that up to the present 18,000 of these reprints have been made, and I could produce some of them as evidence. In collectors' circles this matter has made a great commotion. As far as we are concerned, the matter is certainly not so important, but it seems strange that the plates should have been sold instead of being destroyed, so that later, even after a certain issue has been declared to be obsolete, reprints of them could be repeatedly obtained therefrom. Of course, as long as the stamps are not withdrawn, any reprint of them should have been issued by the State authorities. Further, at the end of 1905, according to a decree of the Finance Minister, all Luxemburg stamps up to the year 1891 exclusive were declared obsolete from January 1st, 1906, whilst a trade was being carried on with unused copies which must have been obtained somehow from the State Offices, and these were sold amongst collectors under face value, although they still possessed their full worth. The 1 franc stamp, for instance, could be bought from the stamp dealers for 30 or 40 centimes! * * * I request, therefore, that the Director-General should cause an inquiry to be made, for if such stamps have really been appropriated out of the State finances, the matter is sufficiently important."

To this the Postmaster-General, Mr. Mongenast, replied:

"I am acquainted with the matter of reprints put before me by Mr. Ludovicz. The plates were made by a Luxemburg firm (Barth-Wahl) and this firm also saw to the printing of the stamps. Owing to the limited demand for postage stamps at that time the consumption was very small. In 1863, owing to the development of the post, a new issue of stamps became necessary, and the Department of the Crown Lands was requested to sell the old plates, together with the hand-press used for printing the stamps, this being a course, the adoption of which cannot be explained today. Nowadays, all plates which are out of use must be deposited in the State archives, but in the year 1863 this precaution was probably not thought necessary, because at that time the rage for collecting did not yet exist. The press and the plates were sold at the time to a photographer in Diekirch, but before handing them over the plates were made unserviceable by means of a graver. The photographer used the press in his business, whilst the plates became the property of a copper founder, who used part of them to make tools from. Finally, a stamp collector managed to get hold of them. He had them cleaned in Stuttgart, and then had reprints made of these obsolete stamps of 1852. The suspicious part of the matter, however, is the fact that the man who had the plates also managed to get hold of the remainder of the original paper used for the printing of these stamps, which bears the watermark "W"; and on this original paper he had the stamps printed from the original plates by the Stuttgart firm. There is no doubt that this paper has been stolen from the Official Depot of the Government which has charge of the stamps. As a matter of fact the whole stock of stamps was not kept by the Postal Authorities but by the Crown Lands Authorities who handed them over to the Post Office as required. As soon as the matter was pointed out to me I requested the Postmaster General to make enquiries and at the same time I also caused the necessary authority to be given to the State Prosecutor by the Department of Justice to have the plates confiscated because they are a tool used in the perpetration of a punishable offence. I am of opinion that this matter comes under the Offenders' Act, which prohibits the unauthorized reproduction of State values by third persons. Besides this the matter becomes more complicated through the theft of the paper.

"At the time that a new issue of stamps was made in 1905 I declared all previous issues up to, but exclusive of the year 1891, to be obsolete. In order to avoid further suspicion to fall on the postal employees I have had all the remaining stamps of the old issues counted in every Post Office and after this had been done I ordered the remaining copies to be deposited in the Archives of the Central Administration."

REPRINTS FROM MUTILATED PLATES!

It will have been noted in the above report that the original plates of the 10 centimes and 1 silber-groschen, before being sold in 1863, "were made unserviceable by means of a graver." But how, the reader will ask, could plates thus defaced be used for reprinting? The explanation is that the purchaser of the plates, by having them most carefully cleaned and, in parts, retouched, contrived to produce impressions which yielded a certain number of practically perfect reproductions. The original stamps were printed in sheets of two hundred, but out of each complete sheet the reprinter secured only a very small proportion of specimens which would pass muster among collectors. In the case of the 10 centimes, as we gather from an able article on the subject in the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung, the number of satisfactory reprints obtained was only thirteen out of each sheet, and in the case of the 1 silber-groschen, only three specimens out of each sheet!

By courtesy of the printers in Stuttgart, the Editors of the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung have been able to examine black letterpress impressions from the original plates, and by this means they have not only located the exact position on the sheet of each of the "satisfactory reprints," but are also able to point out their principal defects.

THE 10c REPRINTS AND THEIR DEFECTS.

Before we reproduce the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung's list of the defects in the reprints of the 10 centimes, it should be explained that the thirteen specimens regarded by the reprinter as good enough to place on the market, consist of a block of five, a block of three, and five single specimens. The faults are detailed as follows:—

In the Block of 5 (of which there exist also smaller blocks, pairs and single copies):

Reprint No. 1.—In the word "Postes" the top of the first S and the bottom of the second S on the right show a dot.

Reprint No. 2.—In "Postes" in the centre of the P to the right one dot, in the T several dots dispersed; at the bottom of the same letter two dots together, looking like a comma.

Reprint No. 3.—In "Postes" in the curve of P, three little dots obliquely in a row, in the E in the centre of the bottom stroke one dot, which separates the outward stroke from the downward stroke.

Reprint No. 4.—In "Postes" in the T over the centre to the left one dot; in the downward stroke of the E at the bottom one dot.

Reprint No. 5.—In "Postes" in the right half of the O over the centre one dot, in the top of the E on the left one dot.

In the Block of 3, (of which there also exist pairs and single copies):—

Reprint No. 6.—In the white oval rim round the head one large dot behind the head on a level with the eye.

Reprint No. 7.—Very clean. In "Postes" in the last S on the lower black curve one dot which makes the curve appear angular and smaller.

Reprint No. 8.—In "Centimes" the letter N is mutilated.

In the single stamps:—

Reprint No. 9.—In the ornament round the left-hand side number the club shaped outward stroke above the P there is what looks like an obliquely inverted comma which makes the club shape look like a pinnate leaf.

Reprint No. 10.—In the oval rim above the I of "Dix" one dot. The top of the C is too wide.

Reprint No. 11.—In "Postes" in the lower half of both the P and the one dot; the part of the ornament in the left-hand side corner under DI of "Dix" is very wide.

Reprint No. 12.—On the nose one dot and in the centre of the N of "Centimes" one dot.

Reprint No. 13.—In "Postes" the first S has a dot in the lower half on the right and so has the I of "Centimes" at the top on the right. This makes the top part appear to be not straight.

DEFECTS OF THE 1 SILBER-GROSCHEN.

The faults in the Silber-groschen, red (which consist of a pair and a single), are thus described:—

Reprint No. 1.—The nose is blurred. In "Silbergros" the last S has been cut down in such a way as to make it appear too small at the bottom.

Reprint No. 2.—Blurred nose. In "Silbergros" the last S is correctly formed, but shews a little dot at the top, which makes the top end appear to be separated from the other part.

Reprint No. 3.—Clear nose. The inside of the lower curve of the S is too small, and makes this part of the letter look too wide. In addition to this the centre of the top half of the letter shews a large dot.

"The faults given above," adds the Deutsche Briefmarken Zeitung, are only a very small part of those which are really there. The red pair especially is crowded with large and small dots and strokes. We have only given those which are most easily recognized and we have selected such of them as may easily have escaped the attention of the printer. Still, they may not always have been overlooked, and for this reason, the faults indicated above may not always be visible. The cleaning of the faulty places was of course more or less irregular, sometimes one and sometimes other parts show traces of more careful cleaning. It is therefore impossible to give any reliable recognition marks for each of the reprints unless it has a marked mutilation, as for instance the N in No. 8.

"One could of course not spend much time in cleaning the faulty places, because the printing ink would soon get dry.

"As the parts of the plates used for the reprints had to be levelled down a little and had to be retouched, it is possible to make out slight differences between the different stamps, but they are not very obvious, because the retouching has been done in a very clever manner. It is therefore only natural that the reprints are not so clear or so cleanly printed as the originals were."

THE NUMBERS REPRINTED.

As regards the number of reprints made, the D. B. Z. is now able to give a final corrected statement according to the later information received. The statement already published, giving a total of 14,000 reprints remains unchanged, only these 14,000 are divided as follows: 9,500 of the 10c black and 4,500 of the 1sgr red.—Stamp Collectors Fortnightly.

NEW APPLICATIONS.

As soon as your name has been published as an applicant you will probably have unsolicited selections of stamps sent you on approval. As a great many collectors object to this practice the Association desires to break the practice up. Please aid us and help protect yourself and others against further imposition, by holding such selections without purchasing any, until sufficient funds have been sent by the dealer to return it to him by registered mail. Also please report the names of such dealers to the Secretary of the Association.

CONDENSED REPORT, FIRST ANNUAL MEETING, DENVER, COLO., July 31, 1907.

The First Annual Meeting was called to order Wednesday, July 31st, 1907. W. O. Wylie in the Chair. The Committee on Credentials announced the following Officers-elect for term 1907-8, beginning Sept. 1, 1907: President, Geo. J. Carter, New York; Vice Presidents, Clarence H. Eagle, New York, W. S. Aldrich, New York; Secretary, Frank B. Kirby, Massachusetts; Treasurer, Wm. T. Kimball, Massachusetts. President Carter's address was read and placed on file. The Secretary's report showed a membership of 123 members from 75 cities and towns in 25 states and the Canal Zone.

Report of Sales Supt. was read and accepted. This showed a total number of sheets received 709, priced at $2185.68. 36 circuits had been sent out, 18 of which had been returned with sales to the amount of $190.00. No sheets had yet been retired. The report showed that U. S. Revenues were in good demand, and it recommended that members send their duplicates to the Department.

The Treasurer's report showed a balance of $2.37 in the treasury. The report of the Committee on Constitution was received and the constitution reported, was amended and adopted.

The report of the Expert Committee was read and referred to the Board of Directors. It was voted that a committee of three be appointed by the Chair to draft a set of By-Laws and present to the Board of Directors for their approval. The following members were appointed: W. S. Aldrich, Chairman, Max Isenstein, and A. G. Bishop, all of New York City. (We regret our error last week in giving to E. R. Aldrich the credit of preparing the new constitution. The authorship of this admirable document belongs to W. S. Aldrich.—ED.)

The Credentials Committee reported that the proposal to publish a prospectus or year book which was voted on by members, was carried without a negative vote. It was voted that a committee of three be appointed by the President of which the Secretary should be chairman, to publish the year book at a cost not to exceed $40.00, and that the members be assessed 50c each for this purpose.

Columbus, Ohio, was selected as the seat of the 2d Annual Meeting, 1908. The following members were in attendance at Denver: Iver R. Johnson, Illinois; P. M. Wolsieffer, Illinois; C. E. Severn, Illinois; F. N. Massoth, Illinois; L. T. Brodstone, Nebraska; W. O. Wylie, Massachusetts; A. W. Batchelder, Massachusetts; A. F. Henkels, Pennsylvania; W. A. Greenbaum, Colorado; C. A. Nast, Colorado; W. C. Bellows, Colorado; S. Scherzmann, Colorado; H. A. Davis, Colorado.

From this date all communications and applications should be sent to the new Secretary, Mr. Frank B. Kirby, New Bedford, Mass. I wish to take this opportunity to thank all the members for their courtesy and kind co-operation, and to urge a continued interest, and to co-operate with the new Secretary for the advancement of the United States Revenue Society.

August 10, 1907.

The Second Annual Convention of the Indiana State Philatelic Society will be called to order 2 p. m. o'clock, Tuesday, August 27th, 1907, at English Hotel, Indianapolis, Ind.

Proxy blanks have been mailed to all members and those who cannot attend the convention should see that they are represented by some other member who will be in attendance.

Any suggestions for changes in By-Laws or any matter you wish brought before the Convention may be addressed to the Secretary or delivered in person at Convention.

UNCONVENTIONALITIES.

H. A. Davis, Denver, must have labored under a severe strain during the convention period. He had in charge the arrangements for the trips and different "functions" and was the oracle that was consulted at every turn. He was capable and courteous, and he should know that while keenly enjoying the pleasures provided for them, the visitors did not forget for a moment any of the men who were behind it all. Mr. Davis starred in his difficult position.

J. E. Zahn, Denver, who is known personally to many of the delegates, was present early to renew acquaintances. Mr. Zahn was ever alert to extend the hand of hospitality to all, and his unbounded good nature under all manner of circumstances made him most companionable. As the Bird Center editor would say, "his conduct won many encomiums." L. C. Nelson, Denver, too, was indefatigable in his efforts to add to the comfort of visitors and he will be remembered with kindest thought. Then there were many other philatelic yoemen of Denver, who protected the visitors from harm; among the members of the Denver committee of public safety were Greenbaum, Ballou, Hoffman, Schwerzman, Bigler, McManus, and the some.

W. G. Swart, Denver, whose nominating speech was a feature of the Boston convention last year, was full of merry quips, which he distributed gratuitously among the philatelic populace. He generated good cheer where he went and was trailed by an admiring crowd of constituents. His speech at the banquet was a merry one and kept the table in a roar; and all the day and much of the night he went about with a song of joy on his lips. Beware of the man of many business cares when once he takes it into his mind to really relax.

Frank J. Bescher, Kansas City, Mo., organized a fat men's philatelic club at Denver, appointing himself temporary chairman. The chief requirement for admission was five dollars, and Mr. Bescher's persistence in soliciting members was something to marvel at, until he told one man who was reluctant to join that he really was not fooling but needed the money. Mr. Bescher sought donations for the collection of the aforesaid society, saying that he would gladly furnish the hinges; it was easily seen that there was nothing small about Mr. Bescher.

Karl M. Mann, Milwaukee, was among those present, and he gave an excellent account of himself. Mr. Mann was a splendid representative of the younger element in the association, and he wanted to know what steps were being taken with a view to the adoption of the philatelic badge. Nobody seemed to know or care much. In a few years Mr. Mann no doubt will be wearing medals, and will have forgotten all about the philatelic badge.

A. F. Henkels, Philadelphia, the retiring secretary of the association, was made to feel doubly welcome. The sterling work that Mr. Henkels has done for the association during the past year is appreciated and all honor was paid to this efficient officer. Mr. Henkels brought his collection of stamped revenue paper with him and some of the members had the privilege of inspecting it. We expect to mention at some length certain of the hitherto unknown varieties included in this special collection of Mr. Henkels.

L. T. Brodstone, Superior, Nebraska, circulated busily among the delegates, and was hailed joyously according to custom. Mr. Brodstone attended the convention of the defunct Philatelic Sons of America at Denver in 1895, and those who met him then say that he is still the same "Brody." Needless to say that everywhere that Brody went, the camera was sure to go.

(Further notes will have to be held over for the next issue.)

PAPER, GUM, PERFORATION AND COLORS.

NO. 4 OF A SERIES OF PAPERS ON U. S. STAMPS READ BEFORE THE DENVER STAMP CLUB.

By H. A. Davis.

One of our members said to me the other day, "I see now why you are taking up each value numerically instead of all the values by issue in this study of differentation. Its on account of the repetition of the differences in paper, gum, etc., for instance, of the National, Continental and American Bank Note Companies."

Just so. He was right. It is by repetition that our knowledge becomes perfected. The old Professor hit the nail on the head in the story no doubt most of us have heard:—A student on asking what he should do to become more proficient in his writing, received this reply. "There are three rules you must observe, the first is practice, the second is practice, and the third is practice.

One often sees in the auction sale catalogs, lots described something like the following: "100 3c green, 1870 to 82." This lot contains many issues, and I know of no more interesting work for the novice who really desires to know more about U. S. Stamps, than the sorting out of such a lot into the different issues. I know of several collectors who bid on such lots with this object in view.

I have tried to make these papers as simple as possible consistent with a thorough understanding of each description. As a partial review, and explanatory of papers to follow, I wish to take up in as brief a manner as possible, the subject of "Paper, Gum, Perforation and Color," this by request of several members who have become much interested in this series, and who "seek further light."

The issue of 1847 we find on bluish paper. Copies exist on grayish and even white paper. It has been decided however, that none were printed except on faintly bluish paper. We have for our authority 3d Assistant Postmaster General Terell. Mr. Tiffany says so in a letter that was published in 1870 in the American Stamp Murcury on page 111. Mr. Terell says "These stamps were never issued except on faintly bluish paper." Mr. Tiffany adds: "It may be observed, generally, that the paper of all stamps of the early issues of all countries which were affixed to the blue or bluish paper in general use at the time, has a tendency to vary from the original color, sometimes becoming blue or bluish, when originally white, darker or lighter blue or even whitish if originally blue. This has been variously explained, as the action of some ingredient in the paper of the cover, or of the stamp, in the gum or in the ink."

The issue of 1851-60, imp. and perf. we find on medium hard paper of a slightly creamy tint. The 1851 issue exists on thick, medium and thin hard paper. I have in my collection a pair of 12c '51 on quite thick opaque paper, a strip of three of the same on medium, and a pair on very thin paper, almost transparent. So far as I know these different papers of this issue have never been mentioned. The pair on thin paper are not proofs as may be thought, for they bear the regular cancellation mark of that period, a circle containing seven bars.

The issues of 1861-69 which include those of 1862, 1867, 1868 and 1869 are on a paper corresponding to the medium paper of the 1851-60 paper.

The next issue 1870 to '78 which include the issues of 1870-71, '73 and '75 are on a slightly tinted creamy hard paper much more compact in texture and of a more brittle consistency. It bends at a longer angle, and snapped with the thumb and finger, there is a greater resistance. Held to the light, it shows an even thickness which is not true of the papers of previous issues.

In the year 1875 we have seen that reprints were made of all previous issues. They were on a white paper, sometimes described as pure white. This helps to distinguish the reprints and reissues, altho we shall see that perforation, gum and color also are distinguishing features.

These reprints were made for Government Postal display at the Centennial Exposition held at Philadelphia in 1876. There were two envelopes issued to commemorate this exposition, a 3c red and a 3c green.

THE supplement to our Catalogue is now out. It brings the 20th Century Stamps down to May 31, 1907, and is a work of 40 pages. Those collectors who have our Catalogue will get one free on filling out the slip in the front of the Part I. To others the price is Fifteen Cents post free.

UNITED STATES AND ITS COLONIES.
The above stamps are my specialty. I have a fine lot of them. If you want any just send me a list of them; I will do the rest. I have other lines also. It will do you no harm to write me.

H. F. COLMAN,
GEO. L. TOPPAN, Manager,
725 Eleventh St., N. W., Washington, D. C.

This brings to mind two remarkable curiosities I possess, while not dealing with this subject, may be interesting to some. At this exposition there was displayed for the first time three models of the first typewriter. The manufacturers had procured a stock of the 3c stamped envelopes, which they sold at a small charge over face with the name and address of any party written thereon with the then phenomenal writing machine. It was my good fortune to acquire one of these three original writing machines some years ago which I keep as a curiosity. I met a gentleman some few weeks ago who showed me one of the 3c red envelopes 1876. It bore the name and address of his daughter, and was postmarked Philadelphia. This was addressed for him by a young man at the display mentioned on one of the typewriters. I now possess this envelope. I have proven beyond a doubt that it was addressed on the particular machine I have in my possession, and the machine and envelope meet again after a period of over thirty years of wandering.

But to return to our subject. The next issue 1879-93 we find on a soft porous paper, thin and thick. By holding to the light we may see large patches of light spots. It bends at a shorter angle, and has not the snap and energy of the hard paper of 1870-75 We may also notice small hair like shreds hanging to the perforations, these being absent in the hard paper. These soft paper issues were printed by the American Bank Note Company. The Continental Bank Note Company's contract expired in May, 1877. Just before this the Continental and American Company were consolidated under the name of the latter Company. This is why we find some of the soft paper varieties with the Continental imprint.

In 1894 the Bureau of Engraving and Printing was awarded the contract for making our stamps which they have continued to do up to the present time. They are on soft paper, but not so porous as the American Company's issues. It is a trifle more snappy, and the light spots are much smaller. I have not thought it practical to describe here the double paper, the so called ribbed paper, the chemical paper and the so called laid paper of the current issue. These would probably interest only the specialist. I will however gladly give any information concerning these papers to any member on inquiry.

Gum: In some cases the gum is the distinguishing feature, and I will speak of the gum only in this connection. We have seen that the 1869 issue was reprinted without grill, also that there are copies of the original issue without grill. The originals of 1869 were coated with a brownish gum, while the reprints of this issue if they possess gum, is of gum arabic and therefore white or colorless. It follows therefore that if we have one of these issues without grill and with a brownish gum it is apt to be the original.

On March 27th, 1875, 3d Assistant Postmaster General E. W. Barber issued an official circular to the public calling attention to "specimen postage stamps," issued by the Postal authorities, which could be obtained at face value. The circular begins as follows. "The Department is prepared to furnish upon application, at face value, specimens of adhesive postage stamps issued under its auspices as follows:—" Here follows a list of the stamps which were reprinted and includes all values from 1847 to 1875, the then current issue. The circular continues: "All specimens furnished will be ungummed, and it will be useless to apply for gummed stamps." According to this, no reprints have the gum, but notwithstanding, we do know that some of them did get out with the gum. These reprints were all good for postage except the issues of 1847-60.

Tiffany says: "The specimens when found can hardly be called reprints and cannot be distinguished from the ordinary stamps that have by some accident lost their gum. There is reason to believe that some of them have been adorned with this appendage by private parties, so that the presence of gum is no guarantee of genuineness. As, however, they are only partly finished stamps of the regular issue, no great harm is done if a specimen is treasured in a collection." Well, I should say not! They are now much more valuable than the regular issues. But I do not agree with Tiffany in not being able to distinguish the reprints, for this is very easily accomplished in most cases by the paper and the colors, with the possible exception of the then current issues. Tiffany wrote in this connection: "Of the 'ordinary stamps for the use of the public,' the fifth or 1870 issue was then current, and why ungummed stamps which the circular says were never the less available for postage, should have been sold when the Department had a large supply of finished originals at command, is a mystery to all but official minds."

A Mr. Coster writing for the American Journal of Philately in 1875, page 6th, says: "Notwithstanding the official circular (March 27th, 1875) some of them (reprints) were sent out by the Department gummed, but strange to say, the gum of the originals varied from decidedly brownish to almost white. On the issues of 1861-69 reprints, simple gum arabic seems to have been used, the color being perfectly white."

It would appear at first thought, the more we look into the matter of gum, the more we are confused. There is one sure way, however, to recognize the reprints, regardless of what has been said by different authorities. The result reminds me of a story: "The nurse was asked by the mother of her charge, how she knew the water was at the right temperature when giving the darling of the household his bath. The nurse replied, 'Well, I'll tell yez mum. I put him in, and if he turns red, the water is too hot, and if he turns blue the water is too cold.'" This illustrates the result of our final test as a last resort, with more or less damage to the stamp. If we bend a reprint with gum, it cracks, which is not the case with the originals. I would like to quote further on Mr. Coster's remarks, but it would go a little too deep for the object of this series, as it is I am afraid too much time is being spent on the recognizing of the reprints. The object of distinguishing the reprints from the originals, is not that the former are valueless like the reprints of most countries, for they are quite scarce and worth much more than the originals in most cases. Hence we should be able to recognize them, should they happen to fall into our hands. The view held in 1875 at the time they were issued is very different. Speaking of the differences, and recognizing the reprints of 1869, a writer of that period says:—

"Unfortunately it is not very difficult to remove the gum, imitate the grill and regum the stamp with brownish gum. Such experiments have been made with fair success by members of that fraternity who exist by the trade of bogus antiquities and counterfeit evidences of value, who sometimes do these little things merely to experience the delight they feel in deceiving the so-called experts, especially when as in this case a known reprint is almost unsalable, but if it can be made to pass as an original its value is increased several hundred fold and its salable qualities many times more."

Perforations: This subject is easily disposed of. From 1847 to 1856 all stamps issued regularly were imperforate. From 1857 to 1860 they were perforated 15. From 1861 to date all perforations have been 12 gauge. The reprints of the 1857-60 issue are also perforated 12 the same as the current stamps of that period (1875).

Color: A great deal may be said on this subject, especially to one who wishes to specialize. I will touch, however, just one point, that is the difference in shades of the originals and reprints. This has been gone over with each value thus far taken up, and I will merely emphasize what is said in Scott's catalog. The reprints are a different shade of blue, ultramarine, brown, carmine, etc., which are fully given under each respective heading.
